Soviet Increases Meat and Butter Consumer Prices

Designed to Finance Lagging Farm Program

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today increased consumer prices of meat and butter to finance the country's lagging agricultural program in the face of food shortages.

Butter—up 25 per cent—will cost $1.80 a pound; pork and beef—up 30 per cent—will retail for 88 cents a pound.

The effect of the increases are measured against salaries much lower than those in most countries. A dentist gets a semi-skilled Soviet worker gets the equivalent of $88 a month, professional and semi-professional people about $222 a month.

The government announcement said that the increased prices were necessary because there was no other means of raising money to pay the increased expenses on farms.

WILL CAUSE BURDEN

The government conceded that the increase in price would be a burden upon the people, probably decreasing their eating of meat and butter, but compensation, some decreases in prices were made on other products, notably sugar.

The government added the increase was a temporary measure.

The statement said the cost of agriculture in the past year had increased sharply because of the expenditures on mechanization and fertilizer.

This announcement left Western capitals somewhat nonplussed since the aim of mechanization in most countries is to cut costs, rather than to increase them.

What has been known for sometime, however, is that the amount of money spent on mechanizing farming and producing fertilizer has been kept so low that agriculture has fallen behind the rest of the economy.

Foreign Gold Reserves up Since Pegging

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's foreign exchange reserves in the general fund increased during the month exceeded even the $115,000,000 decline which occurred the whole month of April.

The Canadian dollar's value was dropped to 92½ U.S. cents from its previous level around 93½ cents. Finance Minister Fleming said at the time that a major factor in the decision was some heavy international speculation.

Today's report said that since the pegging of the dollar, the government had sold $48,000,000 of its exchange reserves on the market and that other transactions produced increases of $62,000,000 for a net gain of $14,000,000.

The foreign exchange reserves, at $1,600,000,000 at the end of last October. This was a result of government policy to funnel U.S. dollars into this exchange market to offset a strong downward pressure on the Canadian dollar which occurred during the previous months.

The present standing of the reserves—lowest point in more than a decade—compares with $1,935,200,000 a year ago.

Country Club Fraud Exposed By Chamber

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—An apparent fraud involving plans to build a country club near here, Has been exposed by the Chamber of Commerce.

Secretary-Manager Stan Shipman says statements circulating for bids for the building of a club outside the city limits appeared recently in newspapers.

The advertisers asked that cheques be sent to a box number to a Sarnia post office box by those interested in receiving specifications.

"We have now been advised by Sarnia chamber that the whole thing is phoney," said Mr. Shipman. Similar advertisements appeared in newspapers in Kingston, Niagara Falls, Hamilton and Orangeville."

He said police are looking for a man now on probation at the result of similar actions.

Said Mr. Shipman:

"All sorts of cheques have been sent to this box number. We've had calls from two local firms enquiring about it, but we don't know how many firms have become involved."

TRUCK STRIKE SHOWS NO SIGN OF SETTLEMENT

Officials Ready To Step in

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario - wide Teamsters walkout moved into its fourth day today with no indications of a settlement soon between the highway freight - haulers and five striking union locals.

However, officers of the provincial and federal conciliation services are preparing to step in as soon as conditions indicate a possibility of settling the strike of 7,200 Ontario truckers of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.).

F. W. Murray, manager of the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, said the strikes locals are manufacturing a "smokescreen" with their attempts to make piggybacking the main issue of the dispute.

Pickets stood aside at Malton as a crew of defiant Teamster truckers, some accompanied by wheeled their giant rigs out of the M and P Transport Limited terminal. Later the company failed in an attempt to sign an agreement with Local 938 of Toronto.

POLICE ESCORT TRUCKS

Mr. Murray's statement quoted the report of Judge J. C. Anderson of the conciliation board which said piggyback operations — transport of truck trailers on rail flatcars — are here to stay.

The union, demanding a guarantee that highway drivers will be laid off because of increased use of piggyback, has been offered a guarantee by the board that truckers with five years' seniority will be kept in some kind of employment in such an event.

Mr. Murray said the release of equipment from long highway runs dropped because of piggybacking and resulted in more trucks and more jobs in other sub-operations.

"In trying to make piggybacking the main issue, they (the Teamsters' locals) are simply trying to throw up a smokescreen," he said.

SAYS IN EXCESS

He said company wage offers, including 12.7 per cent over the contract period, are "far in excess" of recent agreements negotiated in the trucking industries.

The union strike ballot rejected the board's proposal of a 24½-cent hourly increase in wages, including a basic rate of $1.78 an hour. The bureau, agent for 20 trucking firms, approved the offer.

In Malton, the Toronto Teamsters local 938 unanimously refused to accept a 36-cent hourly wage increase offer by M and P, which withdrew from the bureau after signing an agreement with the Teamsters local in Windsor for an interim rate of $1.78 an hour above the present Windsor rate.

The company operates between Toronto and Montreal, but its highway drivers are not subject to the bureau agreement.

Vincent Stenger, vice - president and co-owner of M and P, said Toronto union leaders, unlike the Windsor locals have lost control of the situation.

In Kingston, the police action came after the first day of a mid-night shift walkout by 61 of the Teamsters and the non - union Taggart firm.

Famous Driver Will Race At Mosport

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Jack Brabham, three-time winner of the Indianapolis Speedway 500-mile auto race Wednesday, has been signed for the June 24 Peterborough International 250-mile feature at Mosport, it was announced here.

"He jumped at the chance when we invited him immediately after the Indianapolis," James Clayton, general manager of the Canadian driver. "He has not raced in Canada before but we signed him and a number of his friends have come for this event."

Mr. Clayton, of Toronto, and director Harold Hunter, of Kitchener, went to Indianapolis at the invitation of Brabham, owner of the famed 500.

Mr. Clayton said there would be at least 30 starters in the new Peterborough International, which will include Canadian drivers.

Purse for the 250-mile race will be $20,000.

HOLIDAY TOLL 201

CHICAGO (AP)—Traffic accidents killed 107 persons during the Memorial Day weekend, under the record toll for the one-day holiday period in 1956. A record overall toll of 201 violent deaths was recorded during the 30-hour holiday period. In addition to the traffic fatalities, nine persons lost their lives in boating accidents, 36 were drowned and 47 were killed in miscellaneous mishaps. The total topped the previous record of 174 set in 1956.

To Continue Search for Letters Written by Browning's Wife

WACO, Tex. (Reuters)—Lachy Reid said today says he will return to England in about a month to continue his search for 16 lost letters written by Elizabeth Barrett Browning to her father.

Kelley has received a Guggenheim Fellowship Award to make a study of letter written by the poet and her husband, Robert Browning.

Reached by telephone here, where he's on holiday, Kelley said the desk in which the letters had been hidden had been located in Cornwall, according to information he received when he left England last May 11.

But when the desk panel behind which the letters were believed to have been hidden was opened, they were not there.

Kelley said a previous press report quoting him as saying the letters would be worth £100,000, Kelley said he stood by his estimate despite a statement by Sotheby's that this would be a gross exaggeration.

"If the letters were found and they were sold, they would probably go for what the owner thought fit—£100,000 would not be unreasonable."

Picket Line, Few Hecklers Greet Pearson at Vancouver

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A picket line, a few hecklers, no fisticuffs—that's how Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson was greeted in Vancouver Thursday night.

Mr. Pearson followed Prime Minister Diefenbaker to the city by less than 24 hours—heading into the aftermath of Wednesday's wild demonstration that disrupted Mr. Diefenbaker's rally at the huge Exhibition Forum.

The Liberal leader said the demonstration was a "bad deal."

"The prime minister is entitled to good treatment—whether he is," he said, during a stop-over in Kamloops, B.C., en route to the city, with a gathering in Vancouver's colorful Chinatown.

His main speech was in the Queen Elizabeth Auditorium, where 3,000 gathered in the main hall, with another 1,000 watching over closed circuit television outdoors. The doors were closed to avoid a repeat of Wednesday's disorder. Fire regulations was reached.

He received a warm reception, but there was some heckling. Mr. Pearson declared that a few pickets carried placards asking for jobs.

Mr. Pearson declared that as prime minister he would call on the best brains in the organized labor and farm organizations to form a task force to tackle what he called the "crisis" created by the Conservatives.

"You can expand your markets and increase what production," he told farmers at Wetaskiwin, Alta. "We have the markets and we will continue to have markets."

At Red Deer—the riding being contested by Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson—Mr. Diefenbaker's sale of discussions are under way on acquiring 13,000,000 acres of marginal land on the Prairies for pasturage and millions of acres in East-ern Canada for forest purposes would be paid to move cattle to better feeding areas from places where grass is in short supply.

The prime minister also referred to his Vancouver experience.

He said he will always remember with gratitude the reception given him at 3:30 p.m. persons in the Vancouver Exhibition—the end of his often interrupted address.

The audience, he said, was "tremendous" and the more 150 persons were also there to do their best to prevent him and to keep him from being heard.

At Penticton, B.C., Social Credit Leader Thompson made his party, if elected to government, "immune from political blackmail" in judicial appointments. He told reporters that he felt he has a parliamentary majority should make the appointments to the Supreme Court from top of representatives of bar associations, labor, government, the

Eichmann Calm, Defiant As Rope Put Around Neck

TEL AVIV, Israel (Reuters) I watched Adolf Eichmann walk to the gallows and die yesterday tragedion to his death before midnight.

Eichmann was calm, self-possessed and defiant to the end.

Just before the noose was put around his neck, he said:

"Long live Germany, long live Argentina, long live Austria, . . . I had to obey the laws he was going my flag.

"I am ready."

He then looked at us journalists, the witnesses, and in defiance of a yard or so away, with a ghostly smile on his lips, he added:

"After a short while, gentlemen, we shall meet again. Such the fate of all men. I have been believing in God all my life, and I die in that belief in God."

The gallows were in a small room—only four yards square in size—at Ramleh prison near here, which was surrounded by a cordon of security men.

In a cloak-and-dagger operation, I was taken Thursday night from a house in Tel Aviv to the police station through a second from where, about an hour later, I was escorted into the heavily guarded prison compound surrounded by a double perimeter of barbed wire.

A police car blocked the road about a mile from the prison, and a helicopter circled overhead. block had to be removed to let me pass.

Only a few yards from the prison gates, an armored car stopped me at the border police again blocked our way.

The locked gates successively opened and closed behind me as I walked into the prison building.

Minutes later, as I sat in a small room adjoining the inner death chamber, Eichmann was told by the prison warden, Shalom Nave, that in five minutes the condemned man will be walking into the room next door.

Three minutes later I heard in the condemned man's cell a firm voice barking "Forward march" in Hebrew.

Canadian Stocks Fall Off Despite New York Gains

At Toronto, losses outnumbered gains but changes were all in a fractional range. Trading was moderate.

Stocks were lower on the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchange. However, losses there were mixed with gains.

The Canadian markets followed the pattern of New York which opened on an irregular note. Trading, though, was active and most changes of key stocks were small.

Profit-taking and a lack of buying power dropped prices on Canadian markets Thursday despite gains made on Wall Street.

Adjustment of prices between Canadian markets and American can markets, following Wednesday's American holiday, was reflected in an extra-ordinary situation of advances in New York and declines in Toronto and Montreal.

The same interlisted stocks the adjustment meant New York coming part way up to the Canadian level. The opposite occurring part way to meet New York. Thursday's New York did not support Wednesday's increases, such as in International Nickel and Walker-Gooderham. Canadian markets had to retreat.

The disappearance of American buying power, along with profit-taking, was a prime factor in Thursday's losses on the Toronto and Montreal markets.

The industrial index at Toronto—compiled from 20 leading stocks—dropped a second 56.92 but the decline was fractional most of the day and lashed the severity of Monday's sudden 16.31 drop of $2.31. Golds were mixed but under heavy selling pressure.

Base metals were hesitant to say what the market will do next but many feel a levelling out process has been reached and that the roller - coaster action has run its course.

The profit-taking appeared to have run its course late Thursday when the index rose 0.37 to 198.37 points. Volume was considerably lighter than Monday's 4,696,000 shares. It was compared with 4,996,000.

Trading was predominated on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges as profit-takers appeared to be active in markets frequently.

The stock market at New York presented a different story Thursday as it carried its advance through a second consecutive session, more than recovering its losses of Wednesday's week.

An estimated $7,900,000 was added to the record value of stocks as volume was heavy 10,701,000 shares. The ticker tape was one hour and 46 minutes behind transactions at the close of trading.

The Dow Jones index of 30 industrials gained 9.45 to 722.36 and the Associated Press 60-stock index 3.40 to 225.50, both setting all of their pre-plunge levels Monday.

BOER WAR VETS MARK SIXTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Toured Capital, Enjoyed Dinner

OTTAWA (CP) — About 250 Boer War veterans, ranging in age from 76 to 96, headed home today after "taking" this politically-deserted capital in their first nation-wide reunion.

The old - timers marched smartly on Confederation Square and remembered their fallen comrades as they observed the 60th anniversary of the end of the South African War.

Bedecked with Queen Victoria medals, they toured the capital and swapped anecdotes about the bloody three - year campaign.

They capped the gathering Thursday night with numerous and boisterous toasts and an enthusiastic re cepti on for Mayor Charlotte Whitton, the only woman at a dinner tendered by the federal government.

"I find you more vigorous and friendly than most city councillors," Mayor Whitton told them.

GREETING FOILED

Governor General Vanier and Minister Churchill said he had been unable to greet the mayor because an honor guard inspection gathered around to kiss her when she arrived at the Chateau Laurier Hotel.

Governor General Vanier earlier said he had been charged at his present Scot as he decided to "kiss the rest" when they marched past him on parade.

Mr. Churchill said he was "a very good example to the rest" when they marched past him on parade.

Mr. Churchill said he was "a very good example to the rest" when they marched past him on parade.

Glancing at the chests of many of the armed services, he added with a smile that this was not a "medal parade" but a desk-bound regular troops who had fought in the veterans.

Gen. Vanier expressed pride in his prepared text as he decided to "kiss the rest" when they marched past him on parade.

Organizers of the reunion expressed surprise at the turnout of veterans from all 10 provinces. They had expected only 75 at first. Of the 250 Canadian volunteers who fought in South Africa, about 1,100 are still living.

Mr. Churchill, himself a First World War veteran, greeted the guests for their courage and endurance. He recalled that in the Great War, Boer War vet. erans were leaders and had a "tremendous" effect on the spirit of the enemy or the devil or of the town.

Greetings and good wishes from South African veterans' associations in other areas included a message from the late Louis Botha's staff.

As the drawn-out dinner broke up, Mayor Whitton shouted above the din: "I hope when we meet on the 75th anniversary, that the minister and I will be back."

Eichmann Dies On Gallows In Tel Aviv

Body Is Cremated, Ashes Put Into the Sea

TEL AVIV (AP)—Defiant to the end, Adolf Eichmann was hanged Thursday night for organizing Nazi Germany's wartime extermination of 6,000,000 European Jews.

The young state of Israel hanged the 56-year-old former Gestapo lieutenant - colonel at two minutes before midnight on an improvised scaffold in a third-storey storeroom of Israeli prison near Tel Aviv.

It was the first execution in the 14-year history of this Jewish state which counts among its citizens survivors of the atrocities of Jew's whom Eichmann helped speed to death in Hitler's gas chambers.

Eichmann's body was cremated quickly and the ashes scattered upon the waters of the Mediterranean.

Eichmann was cool and unrepentant as Israel carried to conclusion its announced determination to record the history of the Nazi genocide and carry out justice in the name of all Jews.

SMILES FAINTLY

A faint smile on his face, Eichmann spurned the traditional black hood and even chided his jailers for making it available for him to stand on the scaffold's trap door.

"My belief was correct," the former leader of the German Jewish affairs section said. "I . . . I had to obey the rules of war and my flag."

At a command from an Israeli guard, Eichmann stepped to the trap door and lunged to his death almost in a single motion.

Death was almost immediate, prison officials said.

Eichmann was condemned to death last December by a special three-judge tribunal that found him guilty of acts of "unparalleled savagery" against the Jewish people and against humanity—the only crime subject to capital punishment in Israel.

The cold - blooded Nazi bureaucrat with thinning hair and tinted lens was only a minor cog carrying out orders from above in the Nazi campaign for the extermination of the Jews, his problem"—extermination.

The court said he was originally relished shipping Jews to their deaths by the hundreds of thousands, but was later motivated by "an ardent desire to blot out every trace of Jewry from the face of the earth."

REJECTS APPEAL

The Israeli Supreme Court rejected Eichmann's appeal against the death sentence Wednesday, declaring it was such as an inadequate penalty.

And with unexpected speed, Israel President Itzhak Ben Zvi sealed Eichmann's doom about noon Thursday when he refused the executive clemency from Eichmann, members of his family and others.

Eichmann was transferred from his cell to the execution room, where he had been lodged for the Supreme Court decision, by Israeli police officials. Rabbi Shlomo Goren, chief Israeli spiritual adviser, Rev. William Hull, a native of Winnipeg, visited him in his cell.

The Protestant clergyman reported that he found the man "a man who was sad" but was "deeply religious" and after whom had expressed a belief in God but belonged to no church, refused to reaffirm a faith in Christ.

"I do have time to read the Bible," Eichmann told the minister, "I have peace in my

London's Famous Old Hostelry 'The Cavendish' Closes Its Doors

LONDON (AP)—The Cavendish Hotel — a colorful and musty link with Edwardian London—shut its familiar doors for the last time today.

Located on narrow Jermyn Street, in the heart of London's theatre and club district, it will be torn down and in its place a modern hotel will rise.

For years, it was presided over by the fabled Rosa Lewis, known to her many and influential friends as the Duchess of Jermyn Street.

Grills Outlines Achievements As Member for S. Hastings

Progressive Conservative party supporters in Hungerford township learned this when they were addressed by Mr. Lee Grills, party candidate for the June 18th federal election.

Mr. Grills told his listeners that in addition to taking his seat in the Commons, a member is called to overseas on various government committees, acts as a one-man welcoming committee for members of his constituency visiting Ottawa, and does a full time job in working for the benefit of his constituents at home.

Mr. Grills told of his appointment to various committees, including the Agricultural Committee, and the committee on Railways, Air Lines and Shipping.

SUPPORTED EXPORT SUBSIDY

As a member of the first committee Mr. Grills said he had supported the amalgamation of cheese factories and the export subsidy for cheese and also compensation for farmers whose cattle had been infected with rabies.

As a member of the Railway committee Mr. Grills said he was able to bring his influence to bear on having the regional offices of the Canadian National Railways remain in Belleville.

Mr. Grills said that during his term as riding member at Ottawa he had tried to give individual attention to all requesting his assistance and had always tried to be on hand to welcome visitors to Parliament Hill.

He had particularly enjoyed playing host to 4-H club members on their visits to Ottawa, and also the hundreds of school children who had visited him at the Parliament Buildings.

Mr. Grills said that through his efforts the city of Belleville had been saved approximately $80,000 in the construction of its sewage disposal plant. He had also been instrumental in helping to bring about the new $12,000,000 improvement program on the Trent Canal.

SAVED CITY MONEY

Through Mr. Grills' efforts the city had been saved thousands of dollars in the completion of the roads and sidewalks around the new federal building at Belleville.

In his capacity as committee member he had been able to bring about vast improvements to Belleville harbor, resulting in an influx of trade to local merchants. Mr. Grills said he was presently negotiating for dredging in the bay of Quinte to allow vessels of deeper draft into local harbors.

But while dealing with the bigger items, Mr. Grills said he had not allowed small things to escape attention. He was ready at all times to listen to suggestions, requests or complaints.

Mr. Jack Ireland, president of the riding progressive conservation and Clarke T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings East, also spoke briefly at the meeting.

Month Was Hottest May On Record

There possibly isn't a resident who will dispute it, but the temperature in May reached an all-time high, it was confirmed this morning by officials of the city water filtration plant.

High temperature reached during the month was a sweltering 93 degrees as compared with the ten year maximum average of 79.2 degrees.

Low temperatures recorded for May was 30.3 degrees with a mean reading of 55.

A year ago the high was 78 degrees, the low 29, and the mean temperature 53.8 degrees.

Rainfall during the month was 3.81 inches, as compared with 3.57 inches a year ago. The ten year average for May is 3.34 inches.

Aside from temperature, the month of May also saw other records established at the pumphouse.

Water gallonage pumped during the month was at an unofficial high of 70,727,000 to 32,483,000 gallons over May, 1961. Greatest volume of water pumped in any one day was 6,037,000.

Cumulative temperature of the July water got up to 70 degrees during the month. Water temperature at the filtration plant intake got up to 62 degrees an increase of 12 degrees over the low reading for the month.

EICHMANN DIES

heart, "I am ready to die."

Eichmann was told of the rejection of the clemency appeals —by phone. He was to die that night — about 8 p.m. He asked for and received a bottle of red wine, his first drink of it.

Outside a thick fog set in. Guards turned on floodlights and police set up roadblocks to prevent strikers from the prison, a former British army camp in Tel Aviv-Jerusalem road.

Eichmann, bathed, shaved, was at hand only when guards came to his cell to take him the 50 yards to the scaffold. He walked steadily to the execution room handcuffed to two guards. He made only one request—to stop and blow his nose.

Dressed in brown slacks and a brown shirt open at the neck, he mounted the scaffold by a single step and stood directly under the noose which was suspended over his head on a chain. His hands and ankles were bound with white cloth.

As the noose was fitted over his head, Eichmann half closed his eyes and looked downward at the floor. As the black hood was pulled over, Eichmann said: "I don't need that."

HID IN ARGENTINE

Eichmann, the father of four sons, was born in Solingen in Germany, served for a time in Czechoslovakia and left after the Second World War ended.

Eichmann's wife, Vera, was the "only witness" of his family to see him in prison.

The Israeli government issued a statement after the hanging, which says:

"Adolf Eichmann was executed by hanging this night in accordance with the sentence of death passed by the Jerusalem district court on December 11.

"The appeal having been dismissed by the Supreme Court on May 29, 1962, and the minister of justice (Moshe-Shalom Dov Shapira) having informed that the president has decided not to exercise his right of pardon or of clemency, the hanging was carried out.

"The body was examined by a government physician who pronounced life to be extinct at 2338 hours (11:38 p.m.)."

Eichmann went to his death two years and a day after Israeli commandos captured him in Argentina and smuggled him to Israel by air, ending a worldwide search by Jewish agents that began at the gates of the ashes of the Nazi empire.

The swiftness of the execution after the rejection of the appeals startled Israelis and many others around the world. Some leading Jews had urged that Eichmann be spared as a living reminder of Nazi horrors. Many others, however, urged death.

In Argentina, officials ordered extra protection around the Israeli Embassy and at synagogues and Jewish business houses after word was flashed of Eichmann's execution. Antisemitic demonstrations have increased in-frequency during the last two weeks in Argentina.

'Hollywood Producers' In Jail

TORONTO (CP)—Two "Hollywood producers" were in jail today and police were sorting through $75,000 in worthless cheques.

Police said two men posted $25,000 in worthless cheques in Toronto banks to open accounts. Then they rented a suite in the Royal York Hotel — largest in the Commonwealth—and moved into a luxury apartment.

Police said the two men introduced themselves as a man and a woman with credentials marked "Peterson Productions."

Only One Type Of Crosswalks To Be Allowed

TORONTO (CP) — The only type of pedestrian crosswalk the provincial government will authorize will involve specially-painted crosswalks, Transport Minister Rowntree announced Thursday.

The minister put an end to a teapot - size controversy with the announcement the type of crosswalk for Ontario municipalities. The city of Hamilton had asked Mr. Rowntree to have every intersection designated under a system used in British Columbia and the western United States.

Mr. Rowntree said the decision "is not the final word on this subject," since future experiments might mean a revision. But for the present, any municipality wishing to establish pedestrian crossings must conform to a model by-law prepared by the government and the Ontario Traffic Conference.

The approved system is already in effect in Metropolitan Toronto and in three municipalities. It provides for a cross-hatched white line, a white border and a warning sign, and requires motorists to stop when a pedestrian is crossing in their lane.

Expectant Mother Given Three Months

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — A 25-year - old expectant mother has been told three months more in jail Thursday, after being convicted of exposing her five children so that their lives were endangered.

Mrs. Lesley Bowie, of Barriere, sat quiet and sullen as the sentence was read by Magistrate D. E. Brousson in the district court.

Mrs. Bowie's five sons, ranging from five years to five months, were left alone in a fire that destroyed the Bowie home Jan. 8.

Giving reasons for the judgment, the magistrate said that Mrs. Bowie had failed to get a baby sitter and then went to visit her friends and from there went to the Canadian Legion, she was placing her own pleasure "ahead of the safety and well being, and as it turned out, the very lives of her children."

Oil Dumping By Ships Will Be Checked

OTTAWA (CP) — Helicopter patrols watching for oil dumping by ships in navigable waters, the Kingston past Quebec City thin summer as an experimental anti - pollution measure, the transport department announced Friday.

The department said the St. Lawrence Seaway waters involved are bordered by thousands of summer camps, many of which have docks and swimming beaches.

It said that "considerable quantities of oil are wasted in tank cleaning and other routine operations of tankers and oil burning ships."

"If this oil is dumped into Canada's domestic waters, it not only fouls the surface but smears downstream to clog fish and birds."

The department asked the public to report to the department any dumping of oil by ships in navigable waters, the name of any offending ship, the time and location of the offence should be telephoned to the nearest steamship inspection office or wired collect to the director of marine regulations for the department at Ottawa.

Chinese Reds Have Their Little Joke

Prime Minister Macmillan, French President de Gaulle and West German Chancellor Adenauer as well as Japanese, Italian and Canadian leaders roped to him also were falling or clinging desperately to the cliff.

A comment below the cartoon says: "Wall Street stock prices dropped greatly, so prices of stocks in western Europe, Japan and Canada also had to drop to follow suit."

Spray Sends Fish Into Food Frenzy

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Fish were virtually leaping at tailfed hooks in a St. Louis City park like Thursday.

Fisherman Dab caught by a youngster weighed 25 pounds and others ranged from 12 to three pounds. They included buffalo, catfish, perch and carp.

A spokesman for the Missouri conservation commission said the copper sulphate might have helped cause a lack of oxygen in the water, sending the fish into a frenzied hunt for fresher water.

William Broz, 78, who is the unofficial fishing teacher at the lake, said that the fish acted like they were drunk. Some of them swam in circles and they would bite anything thrown at them.

A new agricultural organization, the Hastings County Plowmen's Association, came into being this week as men interested in the furtherance of good plowing met at the county building in Belleville.

A tentative slate of officers was named, the slate to be confirmed at a second meeting called for the village of Madoc on July 27th.

Honorary president of the new Association is Dr. J. Russell Scott of Belleville, who headed up the local organization for planning of the International Plowing Match held north of Belleville last year.

President is Harleigh Hamilton of Sidney township, with vice-presidents being Earl Segar of Madoc township, and Harry Coulter of Hungerford. Secretary-treasurer is Agricultural Representative Sidney MacDonald of Stirling.

Fire Dept. Answers Two Alarms

DESERONTO — The local fire department had two calls during the latter part of the week. On Thursday noon they were called to the new warehouse at the Metcalfe Canning Co. where a large supply of tar had caught fire. Workmen were putting a roof on the new warehouse when the tar ignited. The blaze was quite heavy and the smoke almost obscured the whole of the waterfront below Main St. Two lines of small hose with fog were used to quell the flames but not until considerable damage had been done the vehicle used to melt the tar. Some of the blackened the whole south wall of the building but fortunately the warehouse did not suffer any fire damage.

On Sunday morning the firemen were called to the Boundary Road, shortly before 9:00 o'clock. A fire which had started on the outside wall had burned through the eaves into the attic and practically the whole roof was burning. After ventilating the roof the firemen put one hose line into the attic and another on the roof and brought the fire under control. The damage will amount to about $1,000.

Project Causes Lake Level To Lower

MONTREAL (CP)—A water conservation project at the St. Lawrence Seaway entrance near Cornwall, Ont., is causing concern among boat owners along the shores of Lake St. Louis southwest of here.

The project has caused the water level of the lake to drop abnormally and the resulting water has left behind waste normally carried downstream, producing a disagreeable odor, it was charged.

"If it's like this so early in the season, we're going to be like in the fall when the water usually gets low!" said one resident.

The water is being held back at the dam, a spokesman explained, to provide a reserve supply for later in the season when it may be needed to counteract possible drought conditions and maintain a safe level for navigation.

Light precipitation in the Great Lakes watershed in May, 1958 has brought about the difficulty.

Nuclear Testing Disapproved by United Church

KINGSTON (CP) — Disapproval of all nuclear testing for military purposes by any country in the world has been voiced by the Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church of Canada.

The 400 delegates attending the conference opposed in a resolution Thursday the suspension of nuclear weapons by Canada or any country. They opposed the development of any other form of mass destruction.

The resolution will notify the Canadian government of its disapproval and call upon it "to pursue every possible means of acting as a mediator in the present international situation."

Another resolution requests the general council of the United Church to reconsider its stand on the moral issues involved in the practice of smoking.

The resolution was founded on concern of the conference that excessive cigarette smoking may cause lung cancer.

From human eyes unseen.
Shattered by the Rock of Ages,
But healed by the gentle mine.
In the loving arms of Jesus,
She is safe somewhere over.
Sadly missed and quite unforgotten by mother, brothers, sisters and families.

CNR to Close Downtown Office, Transfers Ticket, Wire Services

Under the company's policy of consolidating its business administration, direct ticket sales by the Canadian National Railways from its downtown Belleville office, will be discontinued during the coming summer.

Mr. W. Pollock, area manager for the CNR at Belleville, said today that the company's Front Street ticket sales and telegraph office will be closed July 31st.

Following that date downtown ticket and telegraph service the CNR will be handled by Rôhl's Travel Centre at 227 Front St., while the telegraph service will be carried on from the station.

Mr. Pollock said that actually several factors entered into the company decision to close out its downtown ticket office.

One is that their present lease runs out July 31st; another is that a more central location for the ticket office was required.

The fact that less than five per cent of the telegraph business now comes in over the counter motivated the decision to close out the downtown telegraph office.

"Times have changed," noted Mr. Pollock, "most telegrams are now received over the telephone."

Mr. Pollock said the location of the present ticket office was now more in the "off the beaten track," as business volume increased and the Front St. Rohl's more central location was considered ideal and the agreement with Mr. Rohl was decided on in favor of obtaining the downtown company office and renovating it to required standards.

Customers who wish to purchase train tickets directly from the company may continue to do so at the station and a "beefed up" service will be provided at the depot for this purpose.

No Reason To Put Embargo On Cuban Trade - Green

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Howard Green said Thursday night he believes "many Americans" would like Canada to put a total embargo on trade with Cuba and also withdraw its ambassador.

"The Cubans gave us no excuse whatever for doing that," he added.

Mr. Green was speaking on a political free-time broadcast on the CBC's national television network.

He cited Cuban trade as an example of a policy disagreement between Canada and the United States.

Most of the time Canada and the United States agreed on major policy questions, "but sometimes we think our policy is better than theirs . . ."

"I think we can be of more value to the Americans, certainly to Canadians, by telling the Americans frankly when we don't agree with them and why we don't agree."

Have Many World Markets Says Speaker

TRENTON — Wednesday night, Harry Bradley, Progressive-Conservative candidate for Northumberland, County, told 200 persons in the Warkworth town hall that "the Conservative government doesn't need lectures from the Liberals on how to go about getting world markets".

"We have many world markets already", said Mr. Bradley, "including China".

Mr. Bradley said that the Conservative party believed in "Confederation", in every sense of the word.

"We want to see all the peoples of Canada march along together", he said. "This government gave the Canadian Indian the right to vote. Everyone should study the record of the Conservative government before going out to vote on June 18".

Dr. Percy Vivian, MP for Durham County, spoke briefly, telling the assembly that when the Conservative government took office in 1957, Canada was in debt, in the world market to the tune of $750 million dollars. "Now" said Dr. Vivian, "Canada has a credit in world markets of $175 millions".

The Boundless Sea

We live in a world men can now leave, to spend a few hours in orbit. In a few years, men are expected to make another leap, to the moon, and establish a base there. The tremendously expensive program to conquer space has its roots in war, but its excuses in peace-time problems.

"The world is becoming overpopulated," is a common cry. And it is true. But let us not dream of solving the overpopulation by settling the excess on other planets. And let us not think of interplanetary commerce bringing in the food to feed Earth. The material and effort consumed to put a mouse on the moon would support a family of men in luxury on Earth for several lifetimes. When we run short of food, there will be no material for rockets. When we run short of space, there will be none for launching-pads.

The Russians have accepted this fact for years, and the fact of the relative military uselessness of space. There will be no defensive value in a space platform. Reduced to essentials, it would be a standard missile launching base with the difference that it would be in. plain sight, travelling along a known orbit; a classical sitting duck target for the first missiles of an attack. A ground base, with the location clearly marked on all maps, would at least have the advantage of possible inaccurate mapping.

The Americans have an answer, in a military sense, in the Polaris submarine. As a missile base, it is harder to find than a satellite, and it follows no fixed route.

And the sea might provide the answer to the population problem, too. Russia is probably the world leader in tapping the sea's protein-rich food source, with its trawling fleets. It is also probably ahead in learning about the sea's mineral potential, through oceanography teams working with the fishing fleets.

Japan leads in the farming of the sea as a vegetable garden. Seaweed of various kinds is an important part of the Japanese diet. In Canada, seaweed candy is popular in Nova Scotia.

And the conquest of the sea is cheaper than the conquest of space. A research submarine, even nuclear-powered, is cheaper to build than a rocket ship, and it is good for fifty years, while a rocket booster may last only fifty seconds. The submarine, with four-fifths of the earth's surface to explore, will have more than fifty years of work out out for it.

Outer space is romantic, and perhaps the future home of man. In its favor as the scene of further exploration, it has years of comic book tradition, and the thrilling newsreels provided by a large rocket blasting off.

But the sea is man's ancestral home, and already a traditional source of food. Man began to explore the sea thousands of years before space was recognized, and the job is not finished yet. If we, in the lands of plenty are fearing a time of need, the sea will provide space and food when it is needed, if we prepare now.

And space will still be there when we can afford it.

Enforcement No Answer

The National Council of Women of Canada has called for stiffer law enforcement to eradicate the practice of criminal abortions. This practice, says the Council, is "the most common cause of maternal mortality in the big cities."

Most abortionists are in the business to make money. We have no sympathy with them.

Still, we see little reason to hope that stiffer law enforcement will reduce the number of abortions materially. If the National Council is chiefly concerned about the death toll, rather than the moral aspect of the problem, it might might suggest that consideration be given to two possible solutions.

The first probably would be to make abortions legal. There is little doubt that if this step were taken, the death rate from abortions would drop. However, the number of abortions would increase substantially. For this, and other reasons this "cure" seems as bad or worse than the "disease."

A second and much simpler solution would be a campaign to disseminate birth control information. Most of the illegal abortions are said to be performed on married women. Except for those who have religious objections, there would seem no reason why these women should not be fully informed as to how they can prevent pregnancies, when they are so opposed to bearing a child that they will go to the length of procuring an illegal operation to avoid its birth.

Forced Into Rebellion

By Bertrand Russell in the London Observer

Old age, am I an experiencing it, could be a time of very complete happiness if one could forget the state of the world. Privately, I enjoy everything that could make life delightful. I used to think that when I reached old age I could retire from the world and live a life of elegant culture, reading all the great books that I ought to have read at an earlier date.

Perhaps it was, in any case, an idle dream. A long habit of work with some purpose that one believes important is difficult to break, and I might have found elegant leisure boring even if the world had been in a better state. However that might have been, I find it impossible to ignore what is happening.

Ever since 1914, at almost every crucial moment, the wrong thing has been done. We are told that the West is engaged in defending the Free World but the contrast is a stale one. I noted before 1914 is now as dim as memory of the crinolines.

Supposedly wise men assured us in 1914 that we were fighting a war to end war, but it turned out to be a war to end peace. We were told that British militarism was all that had to be put down; and, ever since, militarism has increased vastly increased.

Murderous humbug, such as would have shocked almost everyone when I was young, is now solemnly mouthed by eminent statesmen.

My own country, led by men without imagination, and without capacity for adaptation to the modern world, pursues a policy which, if not changed, will lead almost inevitably to the complete extermination of all the inhabitants of Britain.

Like Cassandra, I am doomed to prophesy evil and not be believed. His prophecies came true. I desperately hope that mine will not.

The way in which the world has changed during the last 50 years has brought about the changes opposite to those which are supposed to be typical of old age.

One is frequently assured by men who have no doubt of their own wisdom that old age should accept serenity and a larger vision in which seeming evils are viewed as means to ultimate goods.

I cannot accept any such view. Serenity, in the present world, can only be achieved through blindness or brutality. Those who are conventionally expected, I become gradually more and more of a rebel. I was not born rebellious. Until 1914, I fitted more or less comfortably into the world as I found it. There were evils — great evils — but there was reason to think that they would grow less.

Without having the temperament of a rebel, the course of events has made me gradually less and less able to acquiesce patiently in what is happening. A minority, it is true, is growing one, feels as I do, and so long as I live, it is with them that I must work.

Strictly Personal
Being Normal Is to Work And Love to Play

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When Freud was once asked what, in his opinion, was the best definition of "being normal," he replied that it consisted in the ability "to work and love well."

The great preponderance of our creative literature — plays, films and novels — deals with the aspect of loving, usually in a shallow and sentimental way. But relatively little fiction deals with aspects of work.

In most novels, films and plays, the protagonists scarcely seem to work at all; they are economically sustained by some vague mystical activity that is rarely mentioned, and is thus considered as an essential part of their lives.

The kind of work a man does, the pleasure he gets from it, the significance of it for his traits it encourages or represses — these are all ignored in fictional studies of personal and social relations.

A few books (such as Harry Sinclair "On the Line") have tried to deal with men's occupations as an integral part of their lives, but they are usually so specialized that we gain little insight from them. A book about a doctor, or an army general, or an actor, is dealing with the generality of men in understanding the role of work in their own lives.

We have had non - fiction studies like "The Organization Man," which tried to describe the profile of a new kind of society, but almost never do creative writers, on the whole, have concentrated on the love relationship, rather than on the work patterns.

Each generation, and each culture, develops its own specific attitudes toward love and these, I am convinced, are intimately bound up with the culture's attitude toward work. For if certain gratifications are lacking in work, then one tries to substitute for them certain gratifications in love.

Unhappiness in jobs, what the sociologists call "alienation" from one's work, makes it hard for people more promiscuous, more pleasure-seeking, more ready to equate love with sex and to treat it as a commodity.

The satisfaction that an old-fashioned craftsman received from doing his job well, the feeling it was necessary to the social order, carried over to his family life; and the sense of pride of the stability of marriages in that day, the final consummation, sprang from the husband's pride in his worth in his occupation.

The way men earn their livings, the needs and drives to maintain their status in a shifting society, deeply influence their attitudes toward women, both as mothers and as sexual and human beings. Our fiction will remain superficial and sensational as it continues to slight this area of modern life.

Roughing It Modern Style

Vancouver, Sun

The "burnt-wiener-and-scorched-ginger barbecue never held much charm for me, even in our Cub Scout days. But the hairy-chested he-man who braves the wilds to barbecue a $3.75 porterhouse steak these days is raising eyebrows instead of admiration.

In his $104.98 wrought-iron barbecue, complete with a hood to keep the steak warm for you, Dual heat controls, too. A $35.95 percolator to perk the coffee.

A hostess wagon, also electrified, at $136.50 is a convenient aid to gracious service.

Now if there'd only be a roof over all that to keep the rain off, and walls around it to keep the wind out, we'd all set to bunker down and enjoy real, primitive, old-time grub just like the pioneers used to eat.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

EVERYWHERE

It took the people of the world, and especially of the United States, years to get over their claiming about John Glenn and his exploit. Especially everyone was impressed but John Glenn himself. His modesty, his penetrating sense of humor, his generosity in ascribing to others the major part of the praise that was given great achievement.

He made one interesting statement about religion. "To try to limit God to one particular section of space is very foolish," declared Glenn. "He'll be wherever you go."

This was not only the word of a scientifically trained astronaut but the word of a fine and humble young Christian believer brought up in a devout home and and committed with simplicity and completeness to the requirements of his faith.

How foolish it would be for us to try to limit God within man-made spaces, or even, as a matter of fact, what is space? The telescopes rove the heavens and see a little more, but probably can be compared to a square mile on a great continent. In one little section of this cultured area our lives are lived. Are there others in the vast expanses circling about those distant stars? Probably. Will we ever communicate with them? That, of course, opens up even more exciting possibilities than John Glenn's orbital achievement.

But God is out there. He is here. He is in the heart. He is on the earth. He is in the deepest heaven and throughout it.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Empire Day was celebrated in Trenton in a most unique way, by the holding of a Hobby Show in the Collegiate Institute School, with twenty-four rural and four city schools taking part. This show, which was sponsored by the Rotary Club was by far the best organized project to have taken place in Trenton in many years. Some weeks ago it was announced to all the town and surrounding country children that this would not be open to the public on Empire Day and the children went to work with a will. Some 5,000 persons viewed the display.

With the shortage of farm labor in Hastings County at its most acute stage in history, measures are being put into effect to cope with the situation were paramount questions discussed at a meeting of the Hasting County Agricultural Committee held at Shire Hall yesterday. "Labor seems to be the paramount issue in agricultural production," stated Secretary Fairley as he pointed out that there are 3964 farms in Hastings County 1500 of which are under cultivation. Since the outbreak of war the farms of this county have lost 1,789 men in work or other urban employment, mostly city.

Having the distinctions of being the only public school in the city to boast of a girl cadet corps this year, Queen Mary School certainly paraded before an admiring crowd of proud parents and other interested spectators on Wednesday afternoon for inspection by District Cadet Inspector of Kingston.

What Makes Little Girls?

Vancouver Sun

Sugar and spice and everything nice — that's what little girls are made of, according to the old rhyme.

Some adults suspect this rhyme was concocted by an ultra-feminist, but after reading what the Rev. Dr. Schoettler, Rev. F. Schoettler, says of his 30-year experience of the boy or-girl situation in his mission of Holy Love Guinea, maybe they'll change their minds.

He is of the opinion that when children are happy, when they worry less and fight less, they bring more girls than boys into the world.

Someone wrote a song about there can't be too many girls. But if Pastor Schoettler's on the right track and the world could ever run into an era of unalloyed happiness, there would be many girls there wouldn't be any boys.

And who would be happy then? Not the girls.

Pastor Schoettler believes his theory beats out the old one that says that boys are born in war time because old mother nature is intent on redressing the balance of the sexes disturbed by the loss of soldiers in the battle.

More boys are born in wartime, he claims, contrasted with when people are unhappiest.

Well, it's an interesting theory, Pastor Schoettler. Pastor Schoettler's theory doesn't rule out mother nature. And what about the present time, between the Second World War and the next — war - we - hope - doesn't-happen?

Is this a happy time or not, with communism and fall-out and such things to worry about?

Has there ever been an era of unalloyed happiness in history?

And have men and women ever been so content in circumstances over which they had no control, that they wouldn't spare a little personal happiness for each other?

Cataract Operations Are Usually Highly Successful

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a cataract in my left eye, and about all I can do is distinguish light from darkness. Is this likely to develop in my right eye? What are the causes and treatment of it? — Mrs. A. D., E.D.W.

Let's not blink at the facts. When one eye gets a cataract, the other is likely to do so — not always, but usually. However, they don't as a rule develop at the same time or speed. Thus it is possible to correct the poorer eye, and have it serviceable again by the time it is necessary to operate on the other one.

A "cataract" is a cloudy condition in the lens of the eye which lies just behind the pupil. The cloudiness comes on so gradually, as a rule, that for a long time it isn't noticed.

Causes are varied, but in general cataracts develop after the age of 50. True, there are "congenital cataracts" in children, but they are rather rare.

Diabetes and faulty calcium metabolism can be associated with cataracts. Early treatment of diabetes may, in hence, very important.

And people exposed to excessive heat may develop one. There's a wide difference in the rate at which cataracts progress. Some do not reach the stage of loss of sight — in such cases no operation is called for. The pupil make up sufficiently for impaired vision.

There is no way, however, to stop development of cataracts once they have started.

Where necessary, surgery is the method of restoring sight, but this is so successful these days that there is no reason for fear of the operation.

An eye specialist keeps track of the situation — people with cataracts always should be under his care. He knows when the time is ripe for operation.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a grandson, 12, who turns black and blue very easily, even just scratching his skin. What is that bad? Shall I take him to a doctor? — Mrs. J. F.

It is something that may or may not be serious, and yes, I would take him to a doctor immediately. Possibilities include lack of calcium, other nutritional matter, or even some serious defect in the blood, as a lack of enough platelets or particles which are necessary for healing.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can a pregnancy last 11 or 11½ months? My doctor says 284 days is the actual carrying time. C.A.B.

The usual time for labor to start is about 280 days after the first day of the last period, but since pregnancy begins about ovulation, the actual carrying time would be about 270 days.

There can be considerable variation; cases have been known to go as long as 290 days, or 10-½ months, which is the longest on record, so far as I can learn.

Most "prolonged pregnancies," it is believed, are due to miscalculation, however. Nine calendar months or 10 lunar months remain average.

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with fissures, fistulas, itching and other rectal problems, write Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 196, Dundee, Ill., requesting a copy of my booklet "The Real Cure For Hemorrhoids." Enclose a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25c (coin) to cover handling and postage.

Russia Takes Case to Court

Milwaukee Journal

The international court of justice at The Hague has opened hearings on the question whether United Nations members are obligated to pay their share of the cost of peace-keeping operations in the Congo and the Middle East.

The Soviet Union flatly states that nations must pay their share of the annual UN operating budget. States in arrears in the amount of two years' assessments have violated their vote in the general assembly.

The United States and many other nations contend that when the assembly approves peace-keeping operations the peace keeping operations the peace keeping part of the operating budget is obligatory and to be shared by all. The Soviet Union argues that the cost of peace keeping is not part of the normal budget and should be borne by those who broke the peace.

The two contending arguments are being presented to the World Court by Russian and American delegations. What is perhaps most significant is that this is the first occasion that the Russians have made an oral argument before the court. This precedent may be important as the issue before the court itself.

The fact that the two greatest world powers are trying to settle this issue through law and its processes is heartening. It could be a step toward peaceful settlement of other issues that divide us.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Nothing could be more preposterous than the contrast during the first world war, between the lives and attitudes of the government for the recruit during the war, and the sudden collapse of fervor when the war ended. Even to be considered for a medal, or for any other benefits of hospitalization, a veteran had to prove his conditions had been caused by his wounds or ailments. I remember the bitterness of business for some of my old command before the cagey tribunals got through.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK — By R. J. SCOTT

PICKET LINE,

judiciary and other major organizations.

The election campaign — focussed largely on the West where all four party leaders have been electioneering lately — takes on an East-West look today.

Mr. Diefenbaker flies from Edmonton to Timmins and Kirkland Lake in Northern Ontario, while Mr. Pearson flies back to Ottawa, with a stop at the Lakehead. New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas is returning to his home riding of Regina, with a Thompson stumping in the Calgary-Edmonton area.

This is the first general election in which Indians have the franchise—and three of the four party leaders made a pitch for their vote in speeches Thursday.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, speaking in Westlock, Alta., said one of his proudest achievements is the granting of the franchise to Indians. This right was provided by legislation passed by Parliament in 1960.

"Your treaty rights are as sacred as long as the rivers flow and so long as the sun shall shine," he told Indians in the audience.

Liberal Leader Pearson said a Liberal government would establish a tribunal to adjudicate Indian land claims. It would be a "legal tribunal which the Indians themselves will know will be above politics."

At Dauphin, Man., Mr. Douglas said Indians should have the same rights as all other Canadians.

The Indian Act, he said, was "paternal . . . with the great white father telling the Indian how to run their affairs." It should be "thrown in the ash can and we start over from there."

He also said the Bill of Rights "not worth the paper it is written on"—offered no protection for Indians against discriminatory practices.

Many ministers of Mr. Diefenbaker's cabinet were active on the hosting Thursday.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green said, on a national TV broadcast carried by the CBC, that talk of a declining prestige for Canada in the world is "a purely political fallacy."

He called it a general charge with no details and it wasn't raised "until an election was coming up over the horizon."

Mr. Green also declared what he considered Canada's main role is in world affairs: "Do what we can to promote understanding among the nations of the world . . . and also to try to cut down distrust and suspicion, particularly between the United States and the Soviet Union."

In another CBC TV broadcast, Veterans Affairs Minister Gordon Churchill said the government had given priority consideration to the problems of war veterans.

"Direct payments to and on behalf of veterans have been increased from $200,000,000 in 1957 to $300,000,000 in 1962."

Trade Minister George Hees told a Vancouver press conference that the only consumers who will be hurt by the devaluation of the dollar are people who buy Cadillacs, New York dresses and Georgia melons.

"Certainly the price of some things will go up," he said. "But we Canadians should cut out Canadian food and buy more Canadian articles."

Any firm that tried to post an increase in price because of the pegging of dollar at 92½ cents in terms of the United States, Gordon said, "is using a completely false and groundless excuse for doing something they obviously need to do one way."

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton, speaking at Barrsboro, N.S., said it was better for nations to lend money on food than on arms.

"I believe we should sell any of our products off any of our farms to any country, regardless of their race, creed or color," he said, defending grain sales to communist China.

Works Minister David Walker touted 10 operations at the Liberal leader—borrowing the idea from Mr. Pearson, who earlier this week mailed 10 questions prime to Mr. Diefenbaker.

One question asked by Mr. Walker:

"Why do you profess to champion free enterprise after agreeing that many of your policies and aims are the same as the socialists?"

Top spokesmen of opposition parties were also active.

Former Liberal cabinet minister Paul Martin said on the CBC television network that the Liberals will win the election.

He said the Conservative government had concealed problems it had created.

Walter Gordon, Liberal candidate for Toronto Davenport, predicted the Canadian dollar will depreciate in value "even further" if the government continues a system of chronic deficit financing and incurs heavy deficits in foreign trade.

Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario NDP leader, said the prime minister, in "talking" with newspaper men, "is revealing more and more the signs of a man who fears he is going to be beaten on June 18."

Medical Arts Building Will Be Sold

SASKATOON (CP)—Dr. M. G. Kunkel, president of a company of 50 doctor-shareholders in Saskatoon's Medical Arts Building announced Thursday that the building is for sale.

He said the decision was reached Wednesday night at a meeting at which members expressed fears that the provincial government was "not showing any signs of considering the health needs of the people of Saskatchewan and will go ahead with its plans to foist this medical care plan on the province."

He referred to the government's compulsory medical care plan which is scheduled to go into operation July 1. It has been vigorously opposed by the 800-member Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons.

In Regina, Dr. H. A. Brown, chairman of the board of the Medical Arts Clinic, said all of the newly renovated and expanded building is under consideration. A real estate agency said sale of the Medical and Dental Building, owned by doctors and dentists, is being considered. Dr. J. B. Scheer said in Regina Medical Centre is for sale "if there is a buyer."

Dr. Kunkel said some shareholder-members of the company told the Saskatoon meeting that they were leaving the province whether or not a solution to the doctor-government impasse was reached.

He said many of the others said they would leave Saskatchewan if the plan went into effect. Because of that feeling, he said many of the doctors wanted to be released from the company and the lease they felt in their obligation to agree. Therefore, it was decided to sell the building even if the doctors had to take a loss on it.

EICHMANN

the death chamber: "It's too light. I can't stand."

Beside me Mr. Hull was saying in a low voice: "Jesus, Jesus."

Seconds ticked by. The noose hanging from an iron chain tied to a wooden crossbeam was motionless in the still, warm air.

When a guard holding a black hood in his hands came to Eichmann, "Do you want it?" he answered "I don't want it."

The hood was put on. The reporters facing him and said: "Long live Germany, long live Argentina, long live Austria. These are the three countries with which I have linked myself, and which I shall never forget.

"I greet my family, my friends and my friends.

"I had to obey the law of the war and my flag."

"I am ready."

Eichmann's face was ashen, but I could detect a defiant expression on it as he spoke to us his very last words in German.

He said he was a "Gottesgläubiger"—an earlier term in Germany which was the Nazi expression for Christians who had left the church under the directives of the party, but still professed to believe in God.

I glanced at my watch: It registered two minutes after midnight. Then came the boomed-out in Hebrew: "Mukhan" (ready).

The noose was in position. I had time to glance at Eichmann's face for the last time.

A second "mukhan" was heard, and I was aware of some movement from behind a curtain on my right.

The square, black - painted trap - door under Eichmann's feet snapped down, the rope became taut, and Eichmann dropped into the dark pit under the scaffold.

Mr. Hull, standing beside me, said in a low voice, "Jesus Christ. . . ."

I approached the trap-door and looked down. Eichmann's body was hanging with almost his head by his wife. He said: "Tell her I take it calmly. That I have peace in my heart, and this is proof to me that my belief is correct."

During the two hours I spent in Ramleh prison compound, I saw no other prisoners and changed his mind about confessing in Christ," the evangelist said. "He said he has peace in his heart, he was ready to die, and that death would be a release for his soul.

"I asked if he had a message for his wife. He said: 'Tell her I take it calmly. That I have peace in my heart, and this is proof to me that my belief is correct.'"

During the two hours I spent in Ramleh prison compound, I saw no other prisoners and could hear no sound from the other wings.

The prison at Ramleh was under a blanket of mist, as I drove through it on my way back to Tel Aviv. There was hardly a soul in the dark streets.

Eichmann's body was to be cremated early today, and the ashes are to be thrown into the Mediterranean later. I learned from usually reliable sources.

An official announcement of this is expected later.

PC Candidate and Other Speakers Heard at Rally

FICTION — "If I can assist in any way in helping to get out the vote and elect the candidate, I am ready and willing to do so," declared C. A. Milligan at a Progressive Conservative rally held in the Picton courtroom. But here he was dressed in a blue brown open necked shirt, and slacks to match.

He walked erect and looked straight ahead. His face was pale and drawn.

A few seconds later, Eichmann stood under the noose, with his arms gyrating tying his hands behind his back, his ankles and his knees.

I heard Eichmann speak the first words he uttered in the death chamber: "It's too light. I can't stand."

Beside me Mr. Hull was saying in a low voice: "Jesus, Jesus."

Dr. J. A. Corry Addresses Alumni Assoc.

Queen's — Alumni held its spring Conference on Education at the hospital. It was catered by the Ladies of Albury Church and 125 graduates and friends enjoyed the evening together.

Mr. Jack McDougall, 1st vice president, was in charge of the program. Besides the speaker of the evening, Dr. Corry, the principal of Queen's, there were present as guests, Harvey Marshal of Ottawa, president of the Alumni Association and Alumni Section the Alumni coordinator Mr. Deschief the Hospital Administrator, welcomed the guests and graduates was said by the Archdeacon J. B. Creighton. Singing at grace led by Stu Robb accompanied by Ron Robinson at the piano.

Dr. Corry was introduced by Bill McCormick and spoke on the "Future of Queen's". He mentioned that there were no longer any private universities, that universities supported by government grants necessarily had to fall in with the wishes of the government. Donations made by private people made it possible for a university to do things it wanted to do, possibly the government thought unnecessary.

Governments statisticians have declared that in 1971 there will be a shortage of 40 thousand universities as there are now. The reason being business and more recently governments have become to realize that high-er education is one of the greatest resources of the country. For the past ten or 13 years the universities have been telling this to the government which is just waking up to the need.

What will be Queen's share of the population explosion? Bounded as it is between the lake and very valuable real estate, it seems impossible that the university can expand to accommodate more than 4,000 students in the future.

Queen's has always prided itself on the "personal touch" between the students and staff. However, in England and America, colleges of this size have managed to retain this community of interest.

Last year Queen's had 300 graduate students and that number must grow. This must not upset the balance between undergraduate teaching and research. Queen's good name depends on the high excellence of its undergraduate school.

Research has increased at such a rate that some curb must be placed on it or the students cannot be absorbed into the academic community. This mature student wishing to enter any faculty must have an average of 65 per cent. Applicants between 60 per cent and 65 per cent in arts, if there is room for them will be carefully screened by the Dean of Arts and a committee of senior professors. To admit more students than the university has room for would be unfair to all.

Mr. J. Good of Stirling thanked the principal and another pleasant evening came to an end.

Art Topic Enjoyed by Tri-M Club

The May meeting of Tabernacle Tri-M-Club met in the church parlor on Tuesday with president Jack Pitts in the chair.

A devotional conducted by Mrs. Wm. Christopher opened the meeting, with the topic of art in mind, Mrs. Christopher read Psalm 19 followed by a meditation on the life of Dr. Cronish, famed for his beautiful stain-glass windows, one of which dominates the choir group, in Princeton University Chapel. Dr. Cronick's life was influenced by his mother of whom he said "was an opener of windows and put into life the qualities of love and courage that Brahem's sang into his first symphony".

After a short business session the guest speaker Mrs. Muriel Ross, was introduced by Mr. Pitts. Mrs. Andrews chose as her topic "Art is for Everyone".

To paint all one needs is the desire and the will to spend the time it requires, it is truly rewarding and opens up a whole new world to the individual. One begins looking at the lines of architecture, the delightful displays in store windows and to think of the color combinations in nature. One is never bored in entertaining, whether finished enjoying what is created in everyday life.

To be a good artist one must be honest in his work. What is created must be able to withstand time and if it doesn't in material is to be dishonest.

Art is a form of adventure for there are many different forms of painting. To illustrate, Mrs. Andrews showed four of her paintings. One was a street scene done from her kitchen window which she commented was already historical since many of the buildings mentioned in the area painted. A second was the Bridge painted at Burley Falls in softer tones and a third, old buildings done in the Bancroft area. In Cobourg with the town hall tower in the background.

Mrs. Andrews made a plea to try to find beauty in abstract creation. In order if following specific rules of art, portrays his unspoken emotions of the heart. To illustrate, she produced one done by herself and another by a friend, colors compliment cold colors and how the artist has a definite pattern in mind. "If one can enjoy it merely for the colors alone, do so".

This glimpse into the world of artists was enjoyed by all as was demonstrated by many questions Mrs. Andrews was asked.

The meeting concluded with the serving of a delicious lunch.

LOYAL NURSING

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. J. Gilbert Turner, executive director of the Royal Victoria Hospital, believes a sense of loyalty should require the graduating nurse to spend at least a year with the hospital in which she trained. Loyalty, Dr. Turner is "considerably in excess of the dollar value of the service given in return," he said.

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

I need some help in cooking sausages. Could you please send me a few different ways of doing them. My husband and I both like them, but I only know one way of doing them and that is frying . . . Mrs. J. P. D.

ANSWER:

Thank you for a good question. I have made up two recipe releases giving three methods of making sausage rolls.

BROILED SAUSAGES:

Arrange on wire rack and place 4 to 5 inches under broiler heat in unheated boiler. Broil slowly for 10 to 12 minutes. Turn several times while cooking to brown on all sides.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Cold Salad Plate of Shrimp or Lobster on Green Leaf Lettuce with Potato Salad and Cole Slaw and Sliced Tomatoes and Cucumbers with Mayonnaise; Melba Toast and Rusk; Stuffed Two-crust Pineapple Pie with Cheddar or Cambert Cheese; Coffee, or Canteen

BAKED SAUSAGES:

Arrange sausages on ungreased cold pie plate. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr., for about 15 to 20 minutes. Sausages Cook Time depends on how brown you like the sausages. Drain off fat before serving.

NOTE:

BAKED SAUSAGES SPANISH STYLE

1 lb. pork sausage, 1½ cups tomato juice or strained tomatoes, ¼ cup chopped onion, 1-3 cup chopped green pepper, 1-3 cup finely chopped celery, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1 teaspoon sugar, 4 teaspoons flour, 2½ tablespoons water, grated Parmesan cheese.

Slightly brown sausages slowly in moderately hot frying pan. Drain off fat. Add tomato juice, onion, green pepper, celery and seasonings; cover and simmer. In flour, mix to a paste and add to a hot platter. Blend flour and water and when smooth, add to tomato juice mixture in which sausages were cooked. Stir until it boils and thickens. Pour sauce over meat, sprinkle with cheese and serve hot.

SAUSAGES BAKED ON SCALLOPED POTATOES:

This is one of my favorites. Prepare scalloped potatoes as you usually do, but put them in a baking dish which they only half fill. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1½ to 1¾ hours. When the potatoes come to boil in oven cover top with sausages which have been covered with boiling water, brought to boiling point and drained. Cook until potatoes are tender and sausages are browned on top.

SAUSAGE-RICE CASSEROLE (serves 4).

Into cups raw rice, 2½ cups water, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 2-lb. little link or regular-size sausages, 1 10½-oz. can condensed soup, 1½ cups water, 1 chopped onion, ½ cup finely chopped green pepper, ¼ cup grated Parmesan or old Cheddar cheese, ½ cup chopped celery.

Add 2½-cup amount water and salt to rice. Bring to boil, cover, bring to boil. Turn off heat for 5 minutes. Turn heat on at low. Cook rice for 20 minutes without uncovering. Cover sausages with water, bring to boil and simmer for 5 to 7 minutes. Drain. Cut into 1" pieces. Add 1½ cup amount of water to soup, onion, green pepper and celery. Arrange rice, sausage pieces and soup mixture in alternate layers in casserole, finishing with tomato sauce. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes.

W.I. and I.O.D.E. Present Fine Art, Crafts Display

MARMORA — Marmora Women's Institute and I.O.D.E. members held a memorable display of art, crafts and antiques on Friday afternoon and evening and Saturday afternoon, May 25 and 26 in Marmora town hall. Exhibits were from the village and township. Reeve William Shannon opened the show and took several pictures.

Mr. Ed. Killian convened a display of polished driftwood, much of which will be his own work. Metal craft in copper and aluminum had a large showing as did the floral work in plastic and sponge rubber and ceramics. Weaving was attractive with Mrs. H. P. Naylor as convener who also wore a runner. The knitting and needle point had a large entry. Mrs. R. E. Neal convened and demonstrated needle - point work. Knitted lace over a 100 years old was entered by Mrs. John Gloyen.

In the crochet work were bedspreads, afghans, table cloths, insertions, lace, gloves, even a dainty crochet cup and saucer starched to shape. Tatting designs were shown and demonstrated by Mrs. James Black and Mrs. Herb Vanstone.

The leathercraft took in articles from a pony saddle made by Mrs. Gerald Potts to purses of all sizes, key rings, beautiful buckskin gloves, hammes and ladies' mitts. Mrs. Percy Carman convened this display much of it being her own work.

A coin collection was interesting especially to the teenage boys. Old coins, periods and the paper money such as a 25 cent bill (talin plaster) were shown.

The quilt display was outstanding and showed appliqued dresden plate, star of Bethlehem. One log cabin quilt was entered in antiques and was started by Mrs. Gertie Caverhyr when she was 15 and took several years to finish as it is 6-8 all done by hand. A quilt was put on frames to quilt and Mrs. Caverley now 85 was one of the quilters.

Mrs. Gaffney, also 85, was another steady quilter. Mrs. M. Gawley, Mrs. Sheridan and others gave a helping hand.

On Friday afternoon, Mrs. Lewis Andrews, Belleville, a graduate of Toronto Art College, painted a picture and tickets were sold on it later. It was won by Mrs. Charles Brady. Among the paintings were two done by Mrs. Susan Meehan (Gee Hooter) when she was 78 years old.

Among crafts were shellcraft, cross stick, cushion tops and Christmas wreaths.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

Guests can be a big help to a hostess who has many details to handle during a party. But sometimes, they can overstep bounds. Do you know when you stop being helpful and start being a hindrance? Try these questions on for size:

1. When the door bell rings, and the hostess isn't around, should a guest go to the door?

2. When the phone rings, and again the hostess has vanished, is it proper for a guest to answer it?

3. Suppose you're a houseguest and the youngest member of the household, age 3, pulls the kitty's tail. Is it within your jurisdiction to chastise him?

4. If the hostess has her hands full, may a guest offer to pass the canapes for her?

5. If the host is in a similar state, is it considered correct for a guest to mix a drink for himself and other guests?

6. It often happens that someone spills something on the carpet at a party. Should a guest run for the mop or leave the job of tidying up to the hostess?

7. If the ashtrays are getting overloaded and the host or hostess doesn't seem to notice, may a fastidious guest do the honors?

8. When dinner is over, is it polite for women guests to help in the clearing of the table and straightening the kitchen?

9. If the hour is late and a considerate guest sees his hostess is getting very tired, he might suggest that everyone call it a day. But is he really being helpful?

10. May a guest properly suggest a game of charades or Ping Pong if the hostess without first checking with his host?

Answers:

1. Yes, but then he should try to signal the hostess, so she can come and greet her guests properly.

2. No. It's better form to search out some member of the family and let him answer it and take any messages.

3. No. Save the kitty a and the day, but leave any punishment to the parents. Discipline of any sort definitely is not a guest's area for the hosts' most intimate friends.

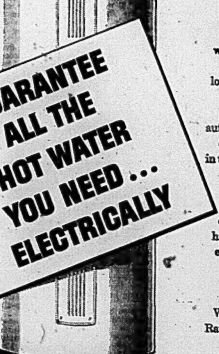
4. Yes, and this is other that usually is gratefully accepted.

5. Yes, so long as the guest at least asks the host: "Mind if I mix another?" A host may mind, so a guest should get permission first.

6. Let the hostess be a do-it-yourselfer. She knows where the cleaning utensils are, whereas a guest might create a lot of extra fuss scooping around trying to find the proper mop or broom.

7. No, it would embarrass the hostess. A close friend might whisper she needs a fresh ash tray, but the job should be left to the hostess.

8. It's polite to ask, but if the hostess declined, a courteous guest sits tight and does not insist.



9. No. If he wants to leave, he should do so directly and not by a roundabout attention. Suggesting that everyone else leave, too, often makes the hostess insist on staying, just to cover up her embarrassment. An individual guest should not dictate any party's end, apart from arrival to departure.

10. No. The wishes of the hostess should always be consulted first.

KILL RED GUERRILLAS

SAIGON (Reuters) — Government forces killed 12 Communist guerrillas and captured 16 at a village about 15 miles southwest of Saigon Tuesday, the South Viet Nam press agency reported today. An underground hideout in the village used by the guerrillas was destroyed.

It is unfortunate that the word "love" has been associated with so much that is cheap, lascivious, and shabby, for it is a very beautiful word, and rich in meaning. But it has been so long associated with tawdriness that some of us hesitate to use it in connection with divine dignity and strict morality.

NEW TESTAMENT WORD

The authors of the New Testament were writing in a time when many words carried meanings much different from those assigned to them today.

There's the word "church" for example. It never appeared in the speech of Jesus more than a single time. And there is some suspicion that it may even then have been an insertion from a later date. But the original Greek which has come down to us as "church" was a word ekklesia. As used by the Greeks in Jesus day it had no particularly religious connotations. Rather, it meant something like "society" or "association." It was happened occasionally that a labor group called itself an ekklesia. In time the Christians took it over as a name for their local congregations.

At least one of the New Testament authors delighted in using such words as light, sea, way, and shepherding. It is easy to identify his writings because of this peculiar vocabulary.

Conspicuous among the words which appealed to his favorites was this word "love." Again and again he used it, but he "made" it. He gave it his own peculiar meaning.

CERTAIN BUILT-IN VIRTUES

Both the Apostle Paul, and the author of the three New Epistles of John (also most probably the Gospel of John) used the word love as though it meant a divine spirit that had "inflowed" upon the life of the Christian believer as a result of the fact that he had accepted the moral and spiritual mastery of Jesus.

As a matter of fact, the author of this week's lesson seems to make the assertion that it is this inflowing which identifies the Christian as being a Christian.

There is a disposition in many quarters today to identify a man as a Christian who "believes" certain doctrines. If a man can pass an examination, and be judged to be "orthodox," he is treated as a Christian no matter what the spirit of his life may be.

The International Uniform Sunday School lesson for June 3 is: THE FELLOWSHIP OF LOVE." I John; 1:1-3, 5-10; 4: 7-21; 2 John; 3 John.

But this was not the New Testament practice, nor was it the way with the Christian Church. Paul never inquired, "Does he believe correctly," instead, he asked, "Has he received the Spirit?" It was as if the inflow of the Spirit of Christ upon a man's life resulted in certain attitudes, certain habits, certain reactions, certain reflections of the divine spirit.

Put in its simplest terms, the Christian was a man who had undergone a certain spiritual redemption, as a result of which his life thereafter exhibited a series of markedly beautiful and clever characteristics.

LOVE IS CLEVERNESS

Living in a crowded world such as ours is, all of us need, as the first characteristic, the ability to get along well with other people. I have been accused for estimates in the case of literally hundreds of individuals who have given my name as a reference. And in the long list of inquiries I can say very sure of this one appearing people get along well with other people."

Over and over again I have seen it happen. When a man has really committed his life to the spiritual leadership of Jesus Christ, he immediately begins to get along better with other people.

As soon as a man has really come into possession of the spirit of Jesus, his conflict is very aptly to improve. He is afforded with a new sense of moral responsibility that results in a higher respect for his own word of honor.

Our author uses the simple word "love" by which to pack all the virtues of the successful Christian gentleman. It is free from distracting theology and when exhibited in the burly burly of life it can never be misunderstood.

Nothing in all this world is as clever as honesty, good will, decency, uprightness, and willingness to go the limit for the person who is in need. And all these virtues combined in what Paul called love — it is the gift of God to the man who seeks to do the will of God.

Harriet Y. — She's close to 200 lbs., yet has no interest in reducing.

Violet O. — I'm well. I'm happy. Why must I starve myself?

* * *

Harriet Y. — Maybe you can put some sense into my big sister, Just because she has a husband and a child, she thinks it doesn't matter how she looks. She has let herself grow into a monstrosity. Although I love her and enjoy her company, I must admit I'm embarrassed to walk down a street and have her waddling along at my side, puffing and puffing.

She's only 33, but she has to buy her clothes in fat-lady departments and she looks like 60. I mean, that could be her age as well as her dress size! It's not her glands. Our family doctor settled that excuse five years ago when Vi started to spread in earnest.

It's just that she doesn't care about looking attractive. She has lost all pride in her appearance. This upsets me, not only for her sake but because it's awful for me to look at her now.

* * *

Violet O. — Maybe I could get myself to relax if—there was a good reason. But I feel fine, my husband says I look fine, I think this way, my son says I'm and he's wild about me, I still have all my friends and, after all, while they are a lot, they have no real objection to my appearance.

It's only Harriet, my baby sister, who keeps nagging me about my shape. But even so, at bottom I know she loves me and thinks I love me. That's why I can't feel any real drive inside myself to go on a diet and suffer. I'm not as though a job were in danger, or I had no social life or was sick or any of the other reasons which make people reduce.

I've never slender. I'm 5'4" and 10 years ago when I married I weighed 142. After my baby came I was 160. I thought it was my glands. The doctor said no. But it doesn't worry me. What's wrong with being fat and happy?

* * *

The Council: To answer Violet, there's nothing wrong with being fat and happy except that it doesn't last. You either get thinner and less happy, or less fat and more happy! So when you say you're not worried, you're just whistling in the dark — or rather, the lard! Or you mean you won't stay the same, you won't lose, you'll keep on getting fatter until . . .!

Well, space prohibits us from listing the "good reasons" women seize on for quitting her reckless overeating. She's heard most of them — health, activity, appearance, self-control, self-respect — but pretends they don't matter in the face of her great hunger. So all we can try to get across to her now is that it's not the fat hunger, which is mainly in her head, but the overeating in the wrong food. A person in loose ends, as Violet seems to be, needs not 10,000 calories at a sitting and still feel satisfied. What she needs is a new point of view about life.

How change the course? Violet, as a first step, might roll through life! Listen to "bett" which merely piles up more woe, you will have rounded the most important bend in your road. Next, you'll have to bring you directly to your doctor, who will, if you need possibly, too, to membership in one of the reducing groups like which offer help, encouragement and encouragement in generous dollops.

Pilot, Aviation Engineer Named New Commissioner Of the Yukon Territory

By JACK VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (CP)—"I swallowed my gum and took a bite out of the telephone receiver."

This, says Gordon R. Cameron, is how he reacted when he got a call at Whitehorse offering him the post of Commissioner of the Yukon Territory.

Mr. Cameron, who had been manager of a helicopter company at Whitehorse, succeeded J. A. Collins as commissioner on May 1. He immediately came to Ottawa to discuss his new job with northern affairs department officers.

"I've flown over every bit of land, slept under the odd tree and in the odd hangar," said the native of Scotch Hill, Pictou County, N.S., who was raised in Vancouver.

"It's the greatest country in the world, with fantastic scenery. The future is all ahead and a terrific challenge to everybody."

TWO-HEADED ANIMAL

He went to the Yukon "as a bush aviation engineer in 1940. Now he is, as effect, lieutenant - governor of the 207,000-square-mile province—for about its 14,600 people.

"I'm a federal employee, acting as administrator of the territory and liaison man between the federal government and the elected seven - man council of the partly autonomous frontier country.

He also acts in the capacity of a vice - regal personage, presiding over functions of state and the Yukon social season.

"I'm a two-headed animal. I have to keep changing hats all the time."

He feels a commissioner's job is to "administer to the best of his ability, maintain peace and harmony in his house and at the same time stay within the bounds of the financial structure he has to work with."

The Yukon has an income from taxes and other sources of $2,000,000 annually. The rest of its financing is done through casual borrowing and federal grants. The economy is largely based on silver, lead, zinc and gold coming from two main mines.

GREAT POTENTIAL

He intends to promote private enterprise, tourism and mineral development in a push toward provincial status.

"The potential of the country is unlimited. We know we have heavily mineralized areas that have just been scratched."

The government had been slowed by heavy transportation costs but a number of roads have launched to improve facilities.

When would the territory become a province?

"That's just like putting your hand in a pot of cooked beans, bringing your hand out and trying to count them."

The commissioner is uncomfortable when in the city and breathes easier when he discusses the Yukon.

"I wouldn't live in a big city if there was any possible way I could avoid it—short of shooting myself."

He ticked off the good things about the territory:

There's only four to six feet of snow a year, compared with 10 to 20 feet in the Rockies. There is hunting, fishing, thousands of lakes, skiing, curling and good farmland.

TWO BAD MONTHS

The only two bad months of the year are January and February when the territory hits the thermometer.

"Everybody is broke, after a merry Christmas, and if it's going to be cold it's usually then it happens.

"You have the place for those two months, but when March rolls around it's the greatest country for you to live."

Mr. Cameron was mayor of Whitehorse for two years and an alderman for four. He entertained the Queen and Prime Minister Diefenbaker at different occasions and says the work of social obligations the territorial council helped prepare him and his wife for his present post.

The Cameron's have four boys. The eldest, Bob, 11, won the governor - general's bronze medal last year for the highest grade 12 academic standing in the Yukon.

They live in a two-storey official residence in Whitehorse. The five-year-old four-bedroom frame house is filled with original furniture, some of it brought to the Yukon in the gold rush of 1898.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Husband Is Unfaithful

DEAR DORIS:—After a business trip I found evidence that my husband had been with another woman. When he denied this I told him her name and he made some feeble explanation like he had met her in a bar.

He acts guilty, but refuses to discuss it further. There have been other times when I have had reason to doubt his fidelity. I know he has lied to me on several occasions.

I love my husband dearly and believe that he really loves me. Where then have I failed him? Why does he seek other women? I suggested I go away for a while, but he refused, saying my place is with him.—K. M.

DORIS CLARK

* * *

DEAR K. M.:—The treatment is not to go away, but to come closer.

It does sometimes happen that immature persons, away from their marriage partners, seek reassurance from others. Your husband finds it necessary to prove his masculinity over and over again.

So if you love him don't deprive him of yourself when he's home. You don't condone unfaithfulness. But you do build up the other parts of your marriage. Become better companions; take some of his trips with him.

Later, the sex part will diminish. Will you have enough left for a full life then?

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—Could you please suggest a few things that I could give my boy friend for his seventeenth birthday? I am told that a book, or tie clip and cuff links, would be appropriate, but he does not like to read and does not wear a shirt and tie often enough to give him a tie clip and cuff links.—SHIRLEY.

* * *

DEAR SHIRLEY—Doesn't he dress up on Sundays? Or when he takes you to a dance? Perhaps a tie clip would encourage him to wear a tie!

If he wears shirts he'll put a good looking initialled linen handkerchief in the breast pocket. If he carries money he'd be glad of a wallet. If he writes he'd prize a good ballpoint pen.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO MOTHER-OF-THE-GROOM:—The off-white brocade suit sounds perfectly beautiful. Style and type of material will keep it from looking like the bridal dress or making you look attractive. A bag and gloves in green would be very pretty.

Matched shoes in the same color would be too much. The green shoes will be the contrasting color in rather small amounts for best taste.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I am 13 and will be 14 next month. Do you think I am too young to go out like one boy better than another and call him my boy friend?

Do you think 14 is too young to go maybe bowling with a boy, another friend, and a boy friend of hers at night about 9,00 to 10.00?

And do you think if you were walked home from say bowling by him at 10 o'clock, should you let him kiss you goodnight?—TOO KNOW.

DEAR EAGER:—Thirteen-going-on-fourteen is too young to go out with a boy and call him your boy friend. It would be reasonable for you to make up a group of boys and girls to go bowling or have a picnic, but you should certainly be home by ten o'clock at night.

Better wait a while before you start thinking about that good-night kiss.

* * *

TO LOOKING AHEAD—For details about P.S.I., write to the Toronto office, at 2221 Yonge Street, Toronto 7, Ontario.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—I would like to know what is involved in public relations work.

I would like to do this kind of work in the field of radio and television and I was wondering how to go about it. Also, is any special training or special education needed? I am now taking a matriculation course.—GRADE TEN STUDENT.

* * *

DEAR STUDENT—Public relations work is the task of publicizing a service or product and gaining the good will of the public for it. It is a broad term including telling about a firm's operation and about the product and undertaking various kinds of promotions and goodwill gestures which would help the public to have a favorable impression.

To enjoy such work you need to be the kind of person who is outgoing and sociable, who finds it easy to talk to people and write things down. You have to be bright and imaginative. Such work is becoming more important all the time.

For work like this a university education is desirable. Get an appointment with the manager of your local radio or television station. People in these positions are glad to give students some idea of the field of work.

(Doris can help you, too. Write to her with your difficulty enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Adjourn Trial Of Nick Peconi On Meat Charge

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The trial of Nicholas Peconi of Peterborough, charged with selling dead or diseased animals for human consumption, was adjourned Wednesday until June 28.

Judge John DeN Kennedy of Peterborough County Court asked the Crown and defence to prepare written statements.

Witnesses testified that Peconi, operator of a dead animal processing plant in nearby Smith Township, sold a 75-pound box of meat to two undercover RCMP officers Oct. 24.

The policemen said they believe Peconi knew the meat was to have been used for human consumption.

Peconi, testifying in his own defence, said he had never sold meat from his plant for human consumption. He denied knowledge from his conversation with the officers that the meat was for human use.

Defence counsel C. L. Dubi moved for dismissal of the charge on grounds the Crown failed to prove the meat was from a dead, not a slaughtered animal. He also said it had not been proved the meat was sold for human consumption.

Railwaymen Tell Temple Of Problems and Support

Liberal Candidate Robert Temple recently spent an interesting afternoon visiting the Canadian National Railways facilities in Belleville and met the many CNR employees there.

Although traditionally cast as strong labor backers many of the railwaymen attended Mr. Temple's warm welcome on another of his fact-finding visits through the Hastings South riding.

A number expressed considerable interest in the Liberal pension plan which the local candidate for Parliament announced recently on a coast-to-coast broadcast over the CBC radio network.

Mr. Temple found that many were concerned over the decline of the Canadian dollar and the resultant loss of buying power which they were experiencing. Other topics of discussion centred on the unemployment situation and the need for more and more jobs to meet the rising number of people in the work force.

The necessity for better education for their sons and daughters who would be entering this work force in the next few years was also a topic of discussion with many railwaymen. Mr. Temple emphasized that his views of free education in any technical school, business college, or university, were now incorporated under the Liberal plan for free education and of providing assistance for every student until they could stand on their own feet.

The system would allow any Canadian youth who was willing to work and persevere the opportunity of obtaining the best possible education to prepare him for his life ahead.

Many of those who talked with the candidate enlightened Mr. Temple on the problems peculiar to the railway man and his way of life. Mr. Temple stated that he sought their assistance in recognizing these problems and their advice in appraising possible solutions, and thanked them for their help.

He emphasized that an active candidate relies upon the readiness of the citizens he desires to represent to advise him of their needs in order to give them the best possible service.

ON THE TRACK — Bob Temple, Hastings South Liberal candidate, gets out to see the railwaymen as he is welcomed by engineman Bill Coleman (right) and helper Howard Welch in the CNR's Belleville yards.

Farm Policies Discussed by Prime Minister

By DAVE McINTOSH

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—It was the natural element which embarrassed prime minister Diefenbaker Thursday in the windup of his western campaign.

Man-made elements — boiling, fights and general bedlam —disrupted his speech in Vancouver Forum Wednesday night.

Today Mr. Diefenbaker carries his campaign back to Ontario with a speech at Kirkland Lake. Tomorrow he visits Sudbury and Chesterfield and makes an evening speech at Pembroke.

The prime minister completed his 10-day campaign in the west with two speeches on farm policy at Westlock, 50 miles north of Edmonton, and at Red Deer, 95 miles south of the Alberta capital.

After his hail-rattling arrival from Vancouver where he told Canadian Pacific Airlines employees that the stability of air and space will be created, he drove through snow sleet-road gumbo on the way to Westlock.

HAD FLAT

His car had a slow flat and the tire was changed while he made a call at the new Stetson Cooch building in Morinville.

He told a standing-room-only gathering of farmers and their wives at Westlock that in the last five years his Progressive Conservative government has done more for the farmer than any other administration in the 95-year period.

The government had spent $275,000,000 to stabilize farm prices and had found markets for farm products. The granaries were being emptied. There were fair prices for wheat.

"We have expand your acreage and increase your wheat production," he said. "We have the markets and will continue to have the markets."

Any farmer, in east or west, who voted against the Conservatives would vote against his own interests.

Mr. Diefenbaker again indicated that the special acreage payments for western farmers — $1 an acre to a maximum of $200—will be put on a permanent basis and in effect, a two-price system of grain.

He said Liberal Leader Pearson had stated the Liberals would end acreage payments. Mr. Pearson had found out the reaction in the west and had changed his mind.

Mr. Diefenbaker drove and flew across the rich black farmland to Red Deer, where he was greeted by an overflow crowd of about 1,000 in the Memorial Centre.

About 200 were turned away and the Prime Minister said the fire marshal had threatened to halt the meeting if any more were allowed in.

Mr. Diefenbaker mildly criticized Mr. Thompson and this criticism was largely a repetition.

SOME HECKLING

There was some heckling but Mr. Diefenbaker easily disposed of the four or five interruptions.

He said Liberal Hazen Argue, former Commons leader of the CCF — the New Democratic party group, had ridiculed acreage payments of $42,000,000 a year as a pittance.

"He was right," somebody yelled.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson had got his views about ending acreage payments from "Toronto brain-trusters." He referred to Liberal Walter Gordon as a representative of the "big interests."

When the Conservatives took office, he said, grain facilities were clogged and boxcars scarce. The government had cured both these problems. It also had sold $400,000,000 worth of wheat and barley to Communist China and payments were being made promptly each month.

The wheat prices were going "up and up" and wheat board payments were greater than in nearly every year since the war.

Pearson Moves Election Bid Back to East

By JAMES NEIS ON

VANCOUVER (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson moved his election bid back to Eastern Canada today as Liberal organizers breathed a sigh of relief that his big Vancouver meeting went smoothly.

Mr. Pearson spoke Thursday night to more than 2,000 persons in the Queen Elizabeth Auditorium and by closed-circuit television to a crowd of more than 1,000 standing outdoors.

But, unlike Prime Minister Diefenbaker's Wednesday night Progressive Conservative rally in Vancouver's vast old Forum, there were no demonstrations or political placards inside the main auditorium—except those sponsored by the Liberal party.

Outside the hall, about 25 pickets carried the same "We want jobs" slogans displayed at Mr. Diefenbaker's rally. Among them were posters declaring: "We want bi-lingual," "Canada needs ship-building industry," and "Trade means jobs; do it now."

Mr. Pearson said that if his party is elected in the June 18 federal election it will set up a task force of the best brains management, labor and farm organizations to help solve Canada's difficulties.

RACE TO CANADIAN

He was scheduled to fly back to Ottawa today, with an early-evening stop at the Lakehead for a rally of Port Arthur and Port William Liberals. The final two weeks of the campaign will be spent mainly in Ontario and the Maritimes, with possibly one more quick jaunt west.

Before the big meeting Thursday night, Darwin Gallagher, Chinatown, where about 1,000 persons jammed a street intersection to hear him praise the contribution of Chinese - Canadians to Canada.

At a meeting of about 250 Liberal supporters in suburban Vancouver, Mr. Pearson said he would, if elected, see that disputes Indian land claims are settled by a judicial tribunal of impartiality so that the Indians themselves could trust its findings.

The Liberal leader recognized throughout the day the importance of the party's rally-closing 24 hours after Mr. Diefenbaker's stormy reception. Mr. Pearson told a group of lawn bowlers any prime minister and national party leader deserved cheering. He repeated the sentiment in each of his speeches.

When he was escorted to the stage of the Queen Elizabeth Auditorium, he was inaudibly but given prolonged applause.

SOME INTERRUPT

There were frequent interruptions from the audience, about 75 per cent meaningful as there were Tuesday night in Edmonton, but again the mood and acoustic properties of the hall deadened them. Most of them could not be caught by reporters' ears at the front of the auditorium and Mr. Pearson ignored all but two.

"How are you going to do it?" someone shouted, as he spoke of reducing unemployment. He said the Liberal party program would encourage creation of new jobs.

"We've heard that before," someone else shouted.

"You heard it before, but this time there will be action," Mr. Pearson said.

Canada Should Produce to Nation's Limit

GRAND FORKS, B.C. (CP)— Robert Thompson, national leader of the Social Credit party, says Canada should produce as much of everything as it can.

He told a political meeting Thursday night as much as possible of this production should be sold in Canada for what it's worth and the rest disposed of to other countries for whatever it will bring.

Speaking to 85 persons in the 400-seat school auditorium in this lumbering community 40 miles southwest of Trail, Mr. Thompson said the domestic price of such things as manufactured goods, wheat and lumber would include a profit for the manufacturer or producer and good wages for employees.

Mr. Thompson, on a swing through the British Columbia interior in his campaign for the June 18 federal election, said Canadians are looking to the progressive policies of Alberta and B.C., where they see prosperity and abundance.

People were being attracted by this prosperity and the fact that Social Credit governments in other provinces were debt free. The population of the two provinces had increased between 35 and 50 per cent in 10 years.

Mr. Thompson forecast that Social Credit will probably take 30 seats in Quebec in the election. A good portion of the labor and conservative votes in Ontario would switch to his party.

The party would win seven seats in Manitoba and the New Democratic Party in Saskatchewan would be lucky if T. C. Douglas, the leader, won his seat.

Now Is Time to Ready Pool For Summer-Long Utility

A little care and forethought may add substantially to the fun and satisfaction you'll derive from your pool during the summer swimming season. It is a good idea to check your pool now to make sure it will be in perfect shape for that first warm day when the family will want to use it.

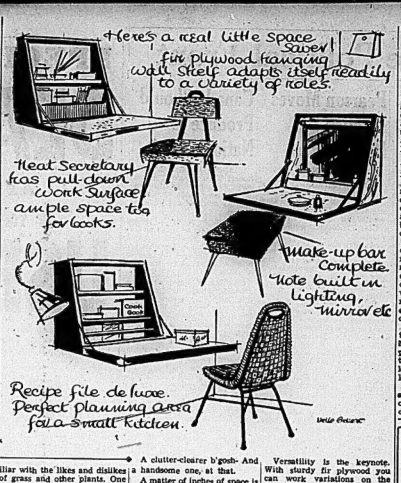
Pools made of concrete or steel may require a new paint job —a chore that should be undertaken as soon as possible after the frost is out of the ground.

In both steel and concrete pools, all surfaces should be thoroughly scrubbed and cleaned before painting. Loose dirt can usually be washed away with a strong stream of water from a garden hose; old paint that has powdered or flaked should be removed with a wire brush.

If an algae scum has formed on pool surfaces, it may be advisable to call in a pool maintenance specialist, since removal of the algae may require the use of chemicals.

However, this problem is not likely to arise if the proper chemical balance has been maintained in the water left standing in the pool during the winter.

The new paint should be "compatible" with the old paint; that is, it is to cover—it should be of the same type or general chemical composition although not necessarily the same brand. It should be the best paint you can buy. Cheap paint that soon fades and peels can be a very poor investment.



It is best to let the new paint "set" for a week or so before refilling the pool with water.

There are several excellent paints that are made especially for pools. They are "engineered" to withstand constant exposure to water, chemicals, weather conditions and general wear and tear. They protect the pool and enhance its beauty and attractiveness while reducing upkeep costs.

Bare spots on the concrete should be etched with an acid solution, washed thoroughly and primed.

Rust spots in steel pools should be removed with sandpaper and then primed, but should not be treated with acid.

Trend to Lighter Tones Is Seen in Roofing Materials

The saying "there's nothing new under the sun" may still apply to many things, but it doesn't apply to roofs. There are many new developments under the sun (and rain too) as far as roofing is concerned. For instance:

Dark colors are giving way to lighter shades on residential roofs, with snow-white shingles a particular favorite of new homeowners. These light colors not only reflect the heat of modern homeowners but also reflect the rays of the sun better and keep the house cooler in the summer.

The last word on what kind of shingle to use when a new roof is put on is being spoken more and more by the women of the house, who is insisting on roof colors that conform with the color scheme of the rest of the house. As a result, a record number of shingle colors are now on the market.

Shingles are also being made to blend with the lines of a house. A new shingle with 50 per cent wider tabs is designed to enhance the low sweeping look of ranch homes and split-levels.

Flat and low - incline roofs are being used more and more on private homes, with whole developments of flat - roofed homes going up.

Shingle tabs aren't ripping off or flying away as they used to during a windstorm. A new shingle has hidden adhesive bands under each tab that seal the shingles down so effectively they will stay down, even when battered by winds of hurricane force.

And one of the sun-roofing specialists point out that its roof's greatest efficiency because the drying effect of the sun's rays causes roofing to crack and admit moisture. That's why, they report, shingles with extra coatings of sun-resistant minerals are also becoming more popular in home construction and re-roofing projects.

PREDICT HEAVY TOLL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Highway Safety Council predicts that more than 900 persons may be killed in traffic accidents during the summer months. The council issued its forecast at the opening of its safe driving campaign. "Slow Down and Live" which lasts until the end of August.

DIVIDERS

There are several ways now for keeping the edge of flower beds trim and free from encroaching grass. One can sink special metal strips flush with the garden, or use brick, or build a concrete curb.

THREE MAIN PLANTING GROUPS

Most conveniently flowers and vegetables arrange themselves into three main planting groups for the Canadian climate. In the seed catalogue these are listed as hardy, semi-hardy and tender. The first named can be planted just as soon as the soil is fit to work. A bit of frost will not hurt them and some actually prefer a cool start. Grass, radish, peas, spinach, coumbor, pansies and most nursery stock are in this category. Next, come the semi-hardy and these should not be planted until practically all danger of frost is over. Freezing may not kill them, but it will set them back so far that later planted seed will do better. In the semi-hardy group are corn, tomatoes, the main planting of potatoes, and petunias, marigolds, zinnias and many other flowers. For the things marked tender in the catalogue, however, the slightest nip of frost will kill and they will not thrive in any case until the weather is nice and warm. Melons are in this category and cucumbers and squash, also gladioli, dahlias and cannas.

DON'T RUSH THE SEASON

Ea more seed and time is wasted by planting too soon than too late, even in the northern parts of Canada. And there is a real risk of damaging the soil, not to mention having things frozen. A good test to make sure that the soil is fit to work, is to walk across the garden. If no mud sticks to the shoes then the soil is dry enough to work. Or if we want to be still more sure, then we can take up a handful of soil and squeeze it. If when released it has compacted into a ball, instead of crumbling, then it is too wet and by digging or working then, the soil will bake hard later on and cause all sorts of trouble. Both soil and air should be warm before it is safe to plant any but the hardiest seeds.

* * *

STAKES AND BRUSH

There is one garden job that we can do anytime and that is preparing a supply of stakes and other forms of support. There is never enough of this material on hand once the season really opens. Small stakes, anything from six inches up to two feet will be needed to mark rows, and spots in the flower garden where we have sown seeds in clumps. These stakes will be neater and less conspicuous if we stain them brown or green but some may think that it's painting the lily.

For supporting tall perennials like hollyhocks and delphiniums, dahlias and tomatoes some thing much sturdier and taller will be needed, stout stakes up to six or seven feet high. For this we can purchase bamboo or inch thick square pine or cedar from a lumber yard. There are also metal stakes available. For sweet peas and other tall flowers brush is advisable, fixed firmly in the ground before growth starts and through which the plants will grow and eventually hide. Some people also stake or support with brush garden peas and the taller beans. Much of the brush removed in pruning operations from fruit trees will be found very suitable.

SOAK, DON'T SPRINKLE

A lot of mistakes in using the hose are made by those unfamiliar with the likes and dislikes of grass and other plants. One thorough soaking of the lawn or garden that will take the moisture down a couple of inches is worth a dozen sprinklings and it will last for some time. Sprinkling never gets the moisture down more than a fraction of an inch and the roots must come up to the surface to get it, thus exposing themselves more and more to drying and killing by heat and sun. Heavy soaking, however, does not mean turning the nozzles on full blast. The nearer we get to a fine mist the better and as soon after watering as possible it is advisable to cultivate to create a loose open top on the soil to block evaporation.

KNOW WHERE THEY ARE

Tools are much easier to find the next time if they are put back where they belong. Some gardeners we all know literally leave trails behind them. If a phone call or lunch time interrupts the schedule, they drop rake, wheelbarrow or shovel right where they left off. The tools are left to rust in rains. Or sometimes they are just too lazy at the end of the day to put things back where they belong. Then the next Saturday morning is lost while trying to find the missing tool or stake or ball or twine. If tools have to be found, they will hang there ready for the next use.

CARRYING GLASS

When carrying a large pane of glass, slit a piece of garden hose lengthwise and slip over the bottom and top edges to act as a grip. This will help prevent breakage and injury to hands.

A matter of inches of space is all this fir plywood unit requires, and you can tailor it to fit your own needs and decorating preference.

In the bedroom, a modern little make-up table. Make it more important this way: start with a small square of fir plywood, attach to it four legs available at lumber dealers. Add a piece of foam rubber, cover with a shaggy piece of carpet remnant (or sample) — and you've got a magnificent poufike stool for your make-up table and turned your bedroom into a boudoir.

The little wall shelf will snugle conveniently against the wall near the front door for occasional use as a desk — and topped with an attractive ornament, add a flourish to the entry.

In the kitchen, it could mean quite literally, order out of chaos. Cook books, recipe files, shut collection of hotlops, and coupons, that might come in handy — and the phone list for the Women's Auxiliary — they all have a place here, tucked neatly behind a short length of dowel.

Versatility is the keynote. With sturdy fir plywood you can work variations on the theme to your heart's content, in odd little places about the house.

You'll have to work out your own plans to suit you own home, and ideas. A visit to the local lumber dealer's will quickly clear up construction details.

For very little expenditure in either time or money, you'll add value to your home, dash to is atmosphere, convenience to living — and solve clutter problems as you go.

A bonus item, indeed.

MOPPING OPERATIONS — Damp-proofing the foundation walls with tar on the outside helps to keep the basement of a new house dry. The drain tiles at the base of the wall are covered with crushed stone before the earth is replaced around the foundation.

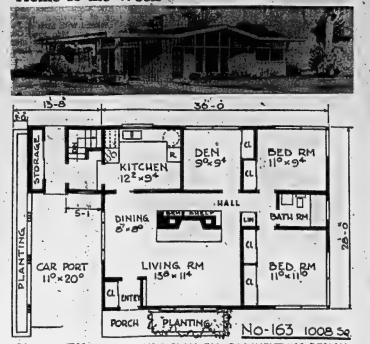
Foundation Should Be Treated To Prevent Water Infiltration

If the foundation is to enclose a cellar or basement it, exterior surface must either be waterproofed or damp-proofed below ground level. This is necessary both for poured foundations and concrete block foundations.

To damp-proof, one or two coats of tar or other acceptable material is applied to the walls. A single heavy coating will be sufficient in many cases, but if the first coat fails to mask the concrete completely a second coat should be applied. An even, generous application of damp-proofing is better than too little.

Waterproofing is a more elaborate process and is recommended in areas and locations where flooding is liable to occur. Where the water level is only a few feet below the surface it may be inadvisable to build a foundation.

Where hydrostatic pressure occurs waterproofing becomes essential. Hydrostatic pressure happens when the soil surrounding the foundation is saturated. The treatment required for waterproofing involves the building of a double concrete floor with two separate layers. Between these two pourings of concrete a thick coating of tar or asphalt preparation is applied. This coating is extended to the exterior between the footing and the foundation wall. It should form a tight seal with the coating applied to the exterior of the foundation wall. Where the water level or "table" is close to the surface, it may be advisable to reinforce the foundation walls and basement floor with steel rods.



WEEPING TILES

Drain tile, or "weeping" tiles are placed around the footings of the house to prevent water accumulating about the foundations. They can be dispensed with in isolated cases where the natural drainage is such that the danger of water accumulating at the footing level is negligible. In most instances, however, drain tiles are required either to take care of normal run-off or to cope with spring thaws or unusually heavy downpours.

The drainage system should work efficiently throughout the life of the house if it is properly installed. Every tile should be checked, because a single bad joint or break can result in loose soil accumulating inside the tiles and lead to rapid clogging of the whole system. Special corner tiles are available and their use is recommended. There should be a slight separation between tiles and these should be covered with strips of asphalt felt. Crushed stone is then spread over the tiles to a depth of about six inches. If gravel is used it should contain as little fine aggregate as possible.

Tiles can be well laid and yet be ineffective, if they are not connected to an adequate outlet. The normal method is to hook the tile drainage system to the municipal storm sewer. But this is not always possible. For example, when the footings are lower than the sewer outlet, gravity cannot carry excess water away from the tile drainage bed, in some areas municipal regulations do not allow connection of the drain tiles to sewers. In such cases other methods of draining the tile system, such as a dry well or sump pump, or a combination of both, can be used to draw away the excess water.

Patios Come In Many Styles

Patios are turning up in fresher, sprightlier, more individual designs than ever before. And of the many built and myriad materials used, there are probably none more attractive than those that rely on ordinary lumber used in imaginative ways.

Wood is easy to work with and inexpensive as patio material, and with proper preservative treatment. it will last for years. Some of the most versatile species grow in the western pine region, and these woods are going into patio flooring, roof decking, sun screens and sun shades.

Patio flooring of wood still sounds unorthodox to many people but it has some solid advantages over other materials For one thing, it is level. Two-by-fours or two-by-sixes are generally used and can go to make different patterns. They can be employed singly or in blocks of two or three with a narrow space between the units. Use a piece of lath as a measuring stick for the spaces so that furniture legs or ladies' heels won't slip through the cracks.

Such a floor is virtually self-cleaning. Dirt or sand will fall through and very little rain will collect. What does will dry quickly.

The boards are best placed on their narrow sides for strength, and your lumber should be treated with a pentachlorophenol preservative. This won't change the color, but you can paint or stain your wood after the preservative has dried. All treatments should be done before construction.

Similar patterns may be created in sun shades and, again, ordinary lumber may be used. Such a sun shade can also support vines to add coolness.

Western pine decking is excellent for use overhead if you want a solid roof over a part of your patio. This may be supported by posts and beams of the same or a complimentary species finished with clear lacquer. The upper side, of course, should be routed in whatever way you choose.

Museum Scientist Searches Country for Items to Put on Display for Celebrations

By JAC VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal museum scientist is searching the country for items of yesteryear to put on display here in time for the 1967 centennial celebrations.

Dr. L. S. Russell, acting director of the human history branch of the National Museum, has managed to collect a chair that Benedict Arnold once sat in and a desk used by Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's first prime minister.

He has piled tons of other gadgets, furniture and equipment used by pioneers in a huge warehouse in neighboring Hull, Que.

The seemingly insignificant household utensils, tools, furniture and bric-a-brac are the main interest of the 58-year-old native of Brooklyn, N.Y., who was raised in Calgary.

He plans to restore these thousands of articles and recreate the atmosphere of the Confederation era in a new museum building planned for completion by 1967.

OUTFIT KITCHEN

The museum will contain a pioneer kitchen "with a real hoest - to - goodness fireplace where pioneer cooking could be demonstrated" and a blacksmith shop "which would actually function," Dr. Russell said in an interview.

There will be home interiors with all the furnishings used by Canadians of the 1800s; concerts by musicians playing instruments of the day; demonstrations of spinning and woodworking; an old - time drug store; a general store; school room, and a doctor's office.

"We may even hitch up a team and drive a cutter around the grounds."

Dr. Russell began collecting last year and has until July 1, 1967, the date set for official opening of the museum, to complete his work.

The museum will trace the progress of "the European man who developed Canada as it is today" by bringing under one roof the things he created and used through succeeding generations.

Persons demonstrating use of the various pieces of equipment will be dressed in authentic copies of clothing of the past.

PREMIER PROTESTED

The goods are being bought, begged and borrowed from families, farms, dealers and philanthropists. Sometimes there are problems, such as when the search first began in Newfoundland.

Premier Joseph Smallwood protested that federal antiquehunters were cleaning the province out of historic articles and demanded their return. "He seized some of our choice bits," Dr. Russell said with a chuckle.

One difficulty has been to locate a cobbler's bench. "People are buying them up to make coffee tables."

He is also having trouble collecting hardware for fireplaces and is especially interested in a mechanical spit operated by a dog running on a treadmill.

The current popularity of Canadian antiques is pushing prices up and making many items scarce. Dr. Russell said some Americans are buying Canadian antiques and selling them in the United States as "genuine New England pieces."

Authority on Rattlesnakes Says Few Die of Bites

By WARREN LERUDE

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)— Laurence Klauber begins his talk this way:

"My subject really isn't very important because so few people die of snake bites. But the followers of snake bites, that's something else."

Klauber, 78, is the retired president of the San Diego Gas and Electric Company. He is regarded as the world's foremost authority on rattlesnakes and is honorary curator of reptiles of the San Diego Zoo. The most definitive work ever written on the subject is Klauber's weighty two - volume, Rattlesnakes, their Habits, Life History and Influence on Mankind.

Klauber has been studying and collecting rattlesnakes — and being bitten by them—since he was a boy. Once he had hundreds preserved in jars in his basement and always a few dozen live ones, too.

The mortality rate in the United States from rattler bites is low.

"Only about 20 people die from snake bites each year, fewer than from bee stings," he says. The total is about 1½ per cent of those bitten. It is likely that more people have died from snake bite cures than from snake bites.

BURN IT OUT

"This one, which used to be pretty widely used, was a dandy: A spoonful of black powder was placed on the bite and then ignited. It relieved the anxieties of the companions of the victim, even if it failed to improve the well-being of this martyr to experimental medicine 'in the raw'."

Never was there a more pleasant remedy for so dire an affliction.

Not, in truth, Klauber advises that the use of alcohol is dangerous. It speeds the circulation and, consequently, venom absorption.

Citing medical journals, he says records show that one snake bite victim was given 3 quarts of corn whisky in 3 hours. A young girl was given 1½ quarts of whisky, and another victim gulped down seven quarts of whisky and brandy in four days.

"And these," says this expert, "are from printed case reports of physicians. I imagine the doses applied by enthusiastic rural amateurs."

The best thing to do if bitten by a rattlesnake is to see a doctor. If no doctor is available, a victim should apply a tourniquet between the bite and the heart and loosen it for 60 seconds every 15 minutes. Then a slit should be cut just above the bite and suction should be used to draw out the poisoned blood.

NIGHT FISHING

Despite Market Gyrations, Investors Are Reassured

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Keep Cool. History does NOT repeat itself . . .

For students of coincidence, it's striking how this concept is being stressed in the fields of international politics and finance.

Acting Secretary - General U Thant of the United Nations, in his Ottawa speech May 25, sought to show the major powers labor under an "obsession" about war—an obsession resulting from an erroneous conviction that history will repeat itself.

Each situation must be judged on its own merits and it is foolish to think something is going to happen just because it happened in the past, Thant declared.

The gyrations of stock markets in New York and elsewhere prompted similar assurances by government and financial leaders. People were told 1962 is not 1929 and there is no real basis for the feeling of impending doom that apparently hit speculators.

In the United States, strenuous efforts were made to show this was no whistling in the dark.

It was noted, for instance, that every political leader is aware of what happened to the Republican party because it was in power between 1929 and 1932, as is the depression of 1930 started. The Republicans wandered in the political wilderness for 20 years.

It was also noted that as the market took its worst fall in 33 years, the U.S. Senate was investigating Premier Kennedy's anti-depression bill, giving him standby authority to pump $750,- 000,000 into the economy in the event of a serious downward trend.

The public was reminded of built-in economic stabilizers that didn't exist in 1929. These include the enormous size of the federal budget, unemployment insurance, social security, a stable wage structure and a stronger banking system.

The Wall Street Journal compared Monday's stomach-tightening market plunge to the experience of man who has suffered a heart attack. Early faith in attack can be a good thing if it causes the man to stop abusing his body and follow a healthy regimen.

The stock market, says The Journal, is not a thing apart from the rest of the economy — "whenever it reflects fright, it is only because uneasiness has been created elsewhere."

Private observers on both sides of the Atlantic see Kennedy's recent intervention to prevent an increase in steel prices as a cause of widespread pessimism about the future of company profits.

Unpleasant, sometimes grotesque, aspects of the U.S. economy are spotlighted by the stock market. While more people are holding jobs than ever before, some 5,000,000 are out of work and 4,000,000 are idle on short time. The dollar is strong because of record sums poured out in aid to other countries.

But what's financial Times says, however, that rational calculation of U.S. economic trends is largely forgotten when herd instincts take over in a panic.

White Collar Serf Prey To Many Strange Illnesses

NEW YORK (AP) — Every occupation has its own health hazard.

Think the deep sea diver is subject to the bends, the miner to lung ailments, the barber to flat feet.

The white collar serf is prey to more strange illnesses, unknown and unknown — than you can find in most hospitals.

If you glance around your own business firm, you'll probably readily spot examples of the following common office worker's occupational ailments:

"One-day hangover" — often accompanied by symptoms strikingly similar to those of a hangover, It usually strikes its victims on Monday morning and prevents them from coming to work. However, it also often strikes on Fridays among workers who want a longer week-end.

MONDAY ONCE MORE

"Two - day flu" — Popular with employees who fondly kid themselves if they have both Monday and Tuesday off nobody will suspect that all they really had wrong was a hangover on Monday.

"Virus flu" — Probably the most reliable of all office ailments, as it enables one to stay home a week or 10 days without creating undue suspicion.

"Virus X" — For those with a passion to be different and who don't wish to have "Virus X," time and place are the same.

"Loafer's kidney" — A chronic back pain that comes from sleeping too long in a swivel chair without changing position.

"Lender's paralysis" — A stiffness of the wrist and elbow that makes it physically impossible to reach into one's pocket when a fellow worker asks to borrow $5.

BOSS A JOKER

"Sycophant's syndrome" — This is a stitch in the side one gets while bending over and laughing uproariously as the boss tells a funny story. Some employees suffer this pain so often — and still don't get a promotion.

"Cafe variosue" — A tired sensation in the leg veins that comes from standing too long in line during the coffee breaks. Also hits many employees who hang around the water cooler too much.

"Typewriter psychosis" — Regression of a secretary when she is handed letters to type over five minutes before quitting time on Friday. Characteristic symptoms: victim froths, sees red, mutters wildly.

"Payday melancholia" — The hopeless despair that seizes a slater that no payment can be made on behalf of a candidate for election expenses be channelled through an official agent.

Razor-Slashing Suspect Charged

TORONTO (CP) — Leonard Zytewich, 24, was arraigned Thursday in connection with a razor-slashing Wednesday night of a stranger who had been drinking at his table. The assailant fled after the slashing.

Kostiuk is in hospital where he received 24 stitches for cuts on the neck, one eight inches long and on inch deep.

ABLE TO USE FILM

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Prints which are usable for scientific purposes have been made by Eastman Kodak Company from motion picture sound film taken of Malcolm Scott Carpenter during his three-orbit flight in space. Kodak said Thursday that while new prints of the damaged film are not good enough for publication, they are "adequate for engineering evaluations."

Communist Party Claims NDP Move Undemocratic

TORONTO (CP)—The Communist party of Canada Thursday night urged the Ontario New Democratic Party's move to obtain a court injunction prohibiting certain individuals from being candidates in the federal election is undemocratic.

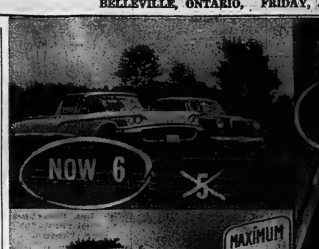
Leslie Morris, national leader of the Communists and candidate in Toronto Trinity riding, said the injunction is laughable and many Canadian voters would be shocked if the NDP resorted to it.

The NDP candidates, R. V. (Val) Scott in York Centre and T. A. Hyrb in Toronto Greenwood, along with provincial party officers, last week authorized lawyers to apply for the injunction.

They have claimed that Communists have been paying for advertisements and distributing leaflets in support of NDP candidates in York Centre, Greenwood and High Park. No Communists are contesting these ridings.

The injunction application is to be based on a section of the Canada Elections Act which states that no payment can be made on behalf of a candidate for election expenses be channelled through an official agent.

Mr. Morris said the NDP move is an attempt to muzzle free and fair comment.



Tim Buck, national chairman of the Communists, said his party's aims are not all the same as those of the NDP, but it is supporting NDP entries in ridings where no Communists are running because the Communist party had been advocating the formation of a federated labor party since 1922.

"The overwhelming majority of NDP candidates welcome Communist support, he added.

Regarding NDP claims that Communist support is the kiss of death to candidates' chances in the election, Mr. Buck said these are "an insult to the intelligence of Canadian voters" and a "deliberate attempt to confuse them with malicious statements."

William Tepperman, NDP candidate in Essex West, and George Drury, NDP entry in Kent East, Thursday announced they will ask to have their names included in the court injunction.

The two Windsor candidates claimed Communist party agents are distributing—under cover of darkness — handbills which say the Communists support the NDP and voters should do the same.

Main changes in the revised Ontario Driver Demerit Point System taking effect July 1 are illustrated in the above examples of driving infractions. While the suspension level has been raised from 12 to 15 points, the most cases the same number of violations under either system will bring suspensions because of the upward revision on the point scale and the addition of 10 new infractions. The advantage of the revised system is the increased gap between the nine-point interview level and suspension. For the top two illustrated infractions, a motorist loses a total of 10 points for (top left) passing and (top right) following too closely and so must attend an interview with Department of Transport examiners. Under the old system the driver would have only seven points and after incurring the extra points to reach the interview level, might be off the road with a further violation before an interview could be held. The value of the interviews in correcting driving habits is evident in the fact that only 15 per cent of drivers interviewed go on to lose their driving privileges.

Ann Explains Art of Dancing To Magistrate

TORONTO (CP)—Magistrate Joseph Addison listened patiently Thursday to Ann Perry's explanation of the art of exotic dancing.

Her act consisted of muscle control, said the 32-year-old brunette. Its purpose is to interest the various dances of the moment.

"Why do you tell me you can interpret better with your clothes off than on?" asked the magistrate.

The purpose of the act is to entertain, she replied.

Magistrate Addison acquitted her of a charge of appearing in an obscene performance. He said no evidence had been adduced to show that anyone but morality officers was in the theatre at the time.

Const. Sgt. William Quinnell said he and another officer went to the theatre to view her performance after a telephoned complaint that she was "flashing"—lowering the net panties she wore—at the close of her act.

He testified she wore a red dress, went through a bump-and-grind routine, then removed her clothing except for a G-string and "pasties"—covering for her nipples. He considered that subsequent gyrations, hip movements were not arousing the scene.

Miss Perry, who said she had danced throughout North, America in the last 11 years and never been charged with anything, denied she had gone beyond the grey mentioned by the detective, lowered any clothing or removed.

"Sometimes I burn to myself," she said, "but it's not for the audience."

Nine New Offences Placed On List of Driving Errors For Motorists to Lose Points

TORONTO (CP)—An increase in the opportunity to steal for motorists under Ontario's demerit-point system and a score or more of tougher penalties were announced today by Transport Minister Rowntree.

The total of points was increased to 15 from the present 12.

Nine new offences were placed on the list of driving errors for which motorists can lose points, and 6 increased points were announced for 10 other offences.

Under the demerit-points system introduced in Ontario three years ago, each motorist starts with 12 points. For each offence, he was docked a certain number of points—with warnings, an interview and finally suspension of his licence as his point total dropped.

Motorists now will begin with 15 points instead of 12, Mr. Rowntree said the increase will extend the opportunity to avoid advisory letters and conduct interviews," he said. "It also will help to lessen the shock to a driver's tendency to have further offences or violations.

HIT HARDER

But several other changes will hit harder at offenders.

A driver who accumulates 15 points will be ruled off the road for a month, if he accumulates the full points a second time within two years, his licence will be suspended for six months.

In addition, the driver returning to the road after a suspension will find himself initially with seven points. At present his slate is clean when he returns to the road.

"The first violation will bring him back in for an interview at which time he may be again suspended," Mr. Rowntree said. "The second violation under the Criminal Code of failing to remain at the scene of an accident—an offence now assessed at nine points—will be removed altogether from the point system and will carry instead an automatic suspension of from three to six months.

"All other Criminal Code offences—such as ability impaired, dangerous driving, criminal negligence, etc.—also have been removed and will carry mandatory suspensions of from three months to two years," the announcement said.

Explaining the changes, Mr. Rowntree said:

"It is under the purpose of the point system to suspend drivers, but rather to get at and improve the small minority of motorists who seem to fail to appreciate the need for good, safe operating habits behind the wheel.

"I am confident the changes will assist us in our efforts and benefit all users of our streets and highways."

He added that during the two-year period ending March 31, only about four per cent of drivers who were warned by letter and later interviewed by safety authorities went on to lose all their demerit points.

For the driver who loses all nine points, however, he is a smaller but more uniform penalty and a longer period of probation.

At present, a driver losing all points is suspended for three months but Mr. Rowntree said the "full suspension is seldom served" because of time required to process the suspension. Under the changes, the one-month suspension takes effect from the day the driver turns in his licence.

HELP FOR DRIVER

The change "will preclude the possibility of a driver losing his job in some instances," the announcement said.

A six-month suspension if the driver loses all his point within two years would serve to keep him longer than the present period. The present regulations provide for a six-month suspension if the driver accumulates a second suspension within one year.

New offences listed in the schedule: failing to remain at the scene under the Highway Traffic Act (seven points); failure of bus driver to stop at railway crossing (five); passing railway barrier (three); following too closely (three); overcrowding the driver's seat (three) four more points each for failing to lower headlight beams, making progress with "U" or "L" driver, using towing persons on toboggans, skis or similar vehicles, and failing to obey signs.

Among offences which get increased points are careless driving, racing, exceeding the speed limit, failing to stop for a school bus, following too closely, improper passing, and driving the wrong way on a one-way street or divided highway.

Prime Minister Said Treating Newsmen Rough

DURHAM, Ont. (CP) — The Progressive Conservative Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Thursday night of conducting a "running battle with newspaper men" covering the prime minister's election campaign.

Donald C. MacDonald, himself a former reporter in Montreal, told a Grey-Bruce riding nominating convention that Mr. Diefenbaker "becomes a nasty and peevish" if newspaper men write critically of him, "even in a factual report on those of his meetings which are a flop."

"Prime Minister Diefenbaker is revealing more and more the signs of a man who fears he is going to be beaten on June 18," Mr. MacDonald said. He mentioned recent reports of Mr. Diefenbaker criticizing reporters on the prime minister's election tour.

"Like (former Ontario premier) George Drew of yesterday, Mr. Diefenbaker is running true to Tory form. He apparently hoped to soften criticism by placing the newspapermen under an obligation to him through free travel, and when they persisted in doing their duty of reporting the campaign as they saw it, they found themselves the butt of bitter attack.

"The Tories have long expected the press to serve their interests rather than conduct its attack on them in the interests of the Canadian public."

HISTORIC FORT

Gold, Opium in Vientiane Shops Easy to Come by But Hard to Get Into Saigon

OTTAWA (CP) — There was no mysterious cloak-and-dagger work required for Canadians in Laos to get gold. They could simply walk into a Vientiane shop and buy it.

Opium was almost as easy to come by. Chinese civilians had huge quantities of it. One clerk at the Vanity Airport in Vientiane could produce opium by the satchel-full.

The real derring-do was getting either of the two commodities across the border to Saigon, South Viet Nam, where delivery could bring a fat fee.

But for Canadian personnel—soldiers and civilians—attached to the international truce supervisory commission, it wasn't too tricky. Opium was put in suitcases, the gold in brown-paper parcels the size of a chocolate bar—or even in the diplomatic pouch.

Then, either on leave or on duty, the Canadians boarded the frequent chartered flights to Saigon. On arrival, the stewardess gave them a customs declaration requiring the listing of U.S. dollars, gold, jewelry and so on.

WROTE 'SPECIAL'

Even that was lifted simple. The Canadians either wrote "special" across the face of the pink customs slip — and just signed it. The Canadian moved scratched a line across it, and went quickly ahead. The slip was supposed to send the ship to customs.

The wares then were delivered to other Canadians in Saigon. Payment was made. Then the ultimate delivery was made to . . .

But there the story ends—at least the part of it, however incomplete, that is known to the public record at five army courts-martial in Saigon, the last of which ended earlier this week.

The indochinese or others who organized the smuggling remain unnamed, unsought and unpunished.

A few civilian names were uttered by military witnesses—a Ross Hogg, a Pete Cochrane, a Madame Tubert who got a free trip on the commission plane, and a Saigon lady of somewhat dubious virtue named Mi.

NOT IDENTIFIED

But the examination and cross - examination of witnesses never identified them further or established their connection, if any, in the smuggling.

Army prosecutor Maj. James Kelly probably knew all these people. But detailed statements given to provost officers by three of the accused soldiers were never admitted as evidence. Apparently they contained their pleas to guilty before that could happen.

In any event, the army was not concerned primarily with the big criminals in the international smuggling. Nor was it influenced by Canadian criminal law, which does not apply outside Canada.

Backgrounding its prosecutions were several orders issued by Canada's chief of the defence staff, Gen. Charles Foulkes. One of these was titled "misuse of diplomatic immunities" and read in part:

"All personnel are warned of the probably consequencies of accepting requests from residents of either Viet Nam or Laos to carry info or out of either country small parcels or letters.

"These parcels in all probability contain black market funds or opium . . . therefore, under no circumstances will Canadian personnel accept parcels and like items from any person in this country (Laos) for the purpose of transporting elsewhere."

NO SPECIFIC CHARGE

Nowhere in the Defence Act or army regulations is there a charge specifically covering the breach of such an order. So the accused soldiers were charged under an omnibus section of the act dealing with conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline.

Conviction on such a charge brought severe reprimands and fines of $100 each to Sgt. J. M. Conroy, Sgt. W. D. Cachel and Cpl. A. J. Hill—not further identified by the army—who were tried by a senior officer in Indochina. Two external affairs department employees, who never have been named, were dismissed.

The three cases had been dealt with, and announced in the Commons, by Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Defence Minister Harkness, before the army began its court-martial in Ottawa.

The Ottawa trials had three outcomes:

Cpl. Gerald Albert West, 23, of the Black Watch Regiment, was reduced to the rank of private and given 90 days' army detention for carrying one parcel of gold across the border from Laos to Saigon. He escaped conviction on a "mask" that he was acting under orders, but the army refused to divulge his hometown but his service number indicates he is either Eric Frederick or Halifax.

PREVIOUSLY PUNISHED

Cpl. Hector Joseph Noel, 41, of Regina, was demoted to private and given 28 days' army for arranging two opium deliveries to Saigon and for making two large purchases for personal shipments for which he was paid about $2,500.

S. Sgt. William John Harry Hockman, 38, a native of Theodore, Sask., was demoted from the service.

Oliver Francis' Johnson, 31, of Windsor, N.S., was given a severe reprimand and fined $100 on a charge that could bar future promotion—for "conduct to the prejudice" of Maj. William Allan Platt, 48, of Cobourg and Victoria. Ont., was fined $500 and given a severe reprimand for buying a business concern in Laos and shipping them to Saigon in army personnel. He was supposed to get about $40 for each 2.2 pounds of gold but actually received $2,500.

All five soldiers, faced a maximum penalty of dismissal with disgrace. So far there has been no indication of appeals.

AUTHOR DIES AT 66

NEW YORK (AP)—William Hillman, former correspondent for radio news commentator H. V. Kaltenborn and author of the Truman memoirs, Mr. Truman, died Wednesday. Hillman had worked for The Associated Press in Albany, N.Y., New York and Paris and at one time was chief foreign correspondent for the Hearst newspapers and general European manager for the International News Service.

Mother Given Three Months

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — A 25 - year - old expectant mother was sentenced to three months in jail Thursday after being convicted of escaping her five children so that their lives were endangered.

Mrs. Stanley Bowie of Barriere sat quiet and sullen as the sentence was read by Magistrate D. M. MacDonald in district court here.

Mrs. Bowie's five sons, ranging in age from five years to five months, burned to death in a fire that destroyed the Bowie home Jan. 4.

In his reasons for the judgment, the magistrate said that "once the accused failed to get a baby sitter and then went to visit her friends and from there went to the Canada Legion, she was placing her own pleasures above the safety and well-being, and as it turned out, the very lives of her children."

Beaverbrook, Weston, Monty Against Common Market

LONDON (CP)—In characteristically forthright fashion, two legend-shrouded public figures are up in arms this week against the Common Market and all its works.

Teaming up in the anti-European Eurosceptic camp are Beaverbrook, biscuit manufacturer Garfield Weston and Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery.

Beaverbrook's antipathy to the European idea is well known through his newspapers. Now it looks as though the 83-year-old publisher has enlisted his old friend from Canada, Weston, in a kind of common front against the Common Market.

At the same time the controversial Monty, with his flair for coined phrases and simplification of great issues, is plugging the same theme in a series of newspaper advertisements, scheduled to start Monday.

It may be exaggerating a bit that Weston, "Monty and the Beaver are synchronizing their watches. But there seems to be a general understanding about aims.

Until recently, Weston had seemed two minds about British entry into Europe. Now he sees it as suicidal for British shipping and as a deadly blow to Commonwealth.

"We are standing on the edge of the abyss," said the 83-year-old Weston, speaking in the enthusiastic American style that characterized him in earlier days when he was building a business empire that now goes round the world.

Beaverbrook said the Commonwealth should be opposed on moral, economic and strategic grounds.

Monty's blast, reports say, will take the form of a full-page newspaper advertisement with acclamation marks, to be placed in such papers as The Times, The Daily Mirror, Daily Telegraph, Daily Mail but not, surprisingly, the same Beaverbrook papers.

These recent blasts against British membership do not necessarily signify any sudden movement of opinion. The broad consensus is still that Britain will join. Many people feel that joining up with the Common Market is inevitable.

Number of Stars Will Be Attempting Returns to Favor

By CYNTHIA LOWAY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television, through all its short existence, has been feared for its ability to consume talent. The viewing public is feared for its fickle tastes. It finds a performer, can't get enough of him for a time—and suddenly turns stonily away.

Next season, a number of stars will be attempting returns to favor, and one of the most interesting spectator sports of the fall will be watching the way they make out.

Lucille Ball will be back, after a long absence, with a new situation comedy. Jackie Gleason comes in with a new series of Saturday night variety hours. Sid Caesar has been signed for a series of shows. Jack Paar will be transformed from a late night phenomenon into a weekly variety-show host.

A big sword will hover over all of them. Will they make it back to success?

In the case of Lucille Ball, the chances look good—if she returns in a funny, bright show. Her old, beloved series, I Love Lucy was an extremely popular program.

Jackie Gleason's chances are more debatable. This season, he was a party to a short - lived little affair that united as a game show and wound up as a conversation hour.

Sid Caesar was the nation's toast in the old Your Show of Shows days with Imogene Coca. Nothing much has happened to Caesar over the recent years.

Jack Paar quit when he was still far ahead, but there's a question of course, whether the public will still embrace him when he returns with an entirely different type of program.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I knew it was going to be rough, but I didn't think it would be this rough."

This was Janet Leigh talking about the breakup of her marriage to Tony Curtis. What she had to say gives testimony to the difficulty of making marriage work in Hollywood and especially of healing one that has suffered a break.

"It should be a matter between Tony and me," she commented, "but it isn't. Everybody wants to put in their two cents. Everybody has a different story. I'm astounded by some of the things I hear about us.

"I can't seem to convince anyone that we separated for the reasons we gave at the time."

When Curtis moved out of the family home in March, the pair announced they had been having problems for some time and hoped to work them out. They declared no other parties were involved.

Gossips reported Frank Sinatra was the new No. 1 man in Janet's life. Someone printed recently they would wed.

"I haven't even seen Frank for two months," she commented, ridiculous. I've been linked with men I've scarcely met."

As for Curtis, the rumors concentrate on Christine Kaufman, his young leading lady in Taras Bulba. She now is in Europe making a film while he is working here.

"I made a special trip to New York to talk to the fan magazines," Janet continued. "I wanted them to hear my side of the story so they would get it straight. They printed what I told them, all right, but they also included everything else — every piece of gossip they could get their hands on.

"I didn't realize what going through a separation in this town would be like," she said. "I was divorced before (from college sweetheart Stanley Reames in 1948). But I didn't have much of a name then, and there wasn't much fuss."

Derby

Hethersett Still Hot Favorite

LONDON (AP)—Major Lionel Holliday's Hethersett remained a strong favorite Thursday night to win next Wednesday's Epsom Derby.

Leading London bookies made Hethersett a 5-to-2 shot at a calluver of odds at London's Victoria Club. Miralgo remained second favorite at 21 to 1.

The odds lengthened to 25 to 1 from 20 to 1 on Prince d'Amour, French-bred colt who will run under the Alberta Ranches colors of Max Bell and Frank McMahon.

These were the odds quoted:

Soccer Loop Adopts New Rules

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League decided Thursday night to accept penalty regulations similar to those of the National Hockey League.

Herold Ballard, league president and an executive member of the Maple Leaf Gardens hockey committee, made proposals for a five-minute penalty for a player guilty of repeated fouling or dangerous play.

Under the new regulations accepted after a four-hour meeting, the player will be sent to a bench and his team will play a man short as in hockey.

A $25 fine and banishment from the game is also provided for a player who deliberately injures an opponent or engages in fighting. A substitute player will be allowed after 10 minutes.

Ballard said the old rules needed "streamling to North American standards" and that the new rules "will do a lot to speed up the game and at the same time counteract a lot of this chippy rought stuff creeping into games."

Cleroux Rated Sixth In Heavies

NEW YORK (AP) — The Kingdom of Thailand has been named Ring Magazine's "fighter of the month" on the strength of his latest victory in the flyweight division.

The magazine made the announcement today in its monthly rulings, which showed few drastic revisions in the eight divisions.

The victory by Harold Johnson over Doug Jones earned Johnson world-wide recognition as light heavyweight champion. Each man in the division was awarded a notch, with undefeated Peter Gumpert of Germany and Willi Hoepner.

There was only one change in the heavyweight division, promoting the duel between Archie Moore and Willie Pastrano.

Moore held No. 5 place in the list of challengers, but Pastrano moved into the 10th spot, replacing Alejandro Lavorante of Argentina.

Montreals' Bob Cleroux was sixth among the heavyweights. The little Canadian, former world welterweight and middleweight champion, dropped from the ratings because of inactivity. It marked the first time in more than 20 years that Robinson had been omitted, except for his retirement in 1952-55.

MEET AT GARDEN

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweights Eddie Machen and Cleveland Williams agreed Thursday to meet in Madison Square Garden on Saturday night, June 9. The bout will be televised.

The Trots

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Clint Hodgins of Clandeboye, Ont., brought Ranger Knight across the finish wire in the final strides Thursday night to capture the $117,542 Cane Futurity pace by a half-length over favored Lehigh Hanover in a sloppy track at Yonkers Raceway.

Ritzy Hanover, the only filly in the field of 13 three-year-old pacers in the 1 1-16mile race, set the pace most of the way but settled in the home stretch and finished third, two lengths behind Lehigh Hanover.

Hodgins was pinch hitting for Buck Minnicar, regular driver of Ranger Knight who was suspended recently. It was the third Cane victory for Hodgins and gave him the lead in that category.

Palmer Well Behind

Brewer Tops at Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)— Deadly accurate Gay Brewer Jr. led a tight knot of leaders today as the $400,000 Memphis Open golf tournament moved into its second round.

Brewer went ahead Thursday with a six-under-par 64 over the 6,501-yard course. He did it with six birdies, including the shot of the day, an 80-foot chip that found the cup for a birdie.

Tournament favorite Arnold Palmer labored well behind with a 71, hindered by a wayward putter he had to use 36 times in the round. He threeputted two greens and needed four on another.

At 66 were Al Balding of Toronto, Tony Penna, Dow Finsterwald and Gene Littler. Seven men were tied at 67. Thirty-seven finished under par 70.

Cary Middlecoff, the defending champion, had an unhappy day, carding a 72 and nursing an ailing back.

Brewer, 30, from Lexington, Ky., missed three greens but chipped so well that he needed only 28 putts.

The original file of 130 pros and 10 amateurs was cut to 90 after the first round and will be trimmed to 60 tonight for the final 36 holes.

Driver, Owner Share Loot

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Driver Rodger Ward of Indianapolis and owner Bob Wilke of Milwaukee are dividing a record purse of $124,515 for winning the 500-miler race at Indianapolis Speedway.

Wilke shared in the two biggest slices of the record $455,262 payoff at the annual victory dinner Thursday night. He also owns the car which Len Sutton of Portland, Ore., drove to second place Wednesday for $44,566 in prize money.

The third biggest prize, $33,316, went to Parnelli Jones of Torrance, Calif., who finished seventh. His total included $18,000 for leading on 120 of the 200 laps of the race at $150 a lap. Besides his share of the championship money, Ward picked up a long list of prizes, including a $5,000 sports car.

Staff Honors Jack Dickens

Mr. Dickens concluded a successful two-year stint as the arena head. He is succeeded by former assistant manager Bob Burrows.

A loyal staff did not let the incident pass unnoticed.

Mrs. Dickens was the recipient of a bouquet of red roses this morning.

A number of friends associated with Mr. Dickens during his tenure of office attended the party held in the arena at 7.30.

The function was a complete surprise to Mr. Dickens, who was "coaxed" to the arena by a piece of mental skullduggery.

However, he "fell for it," and the result was according to a week's planning.

The element of surprise apparently had its effect — for once Mr. Dickens was practically speechless, but eventually he expressed his appreciation and paid tribute to his former staff.

Refreshments were served in the arena canteen following the presentation ceremonies.

Canada Third in Tuna Race

CAT CAYS, The Bahamas (CP) — Canada remained in third place in the International tuna tournament Thursday, making two catches of 344 and 367 pounds for a total of 2,080 pounds after four days' fishing.

W. Douglas Hatch of St. Catharines made the first catch and Donald C. Hemley of Islington, Ont., followed with the larger of the two.

South Africa leads the standings with a total of 2,561 pounds, followed by Bermuda with 2,216.

The tournament ends Saturday.

Pinson, No-Mays Si

'The Lip' Backs Up Willie

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — It all started when Leo Durocher was asked to comment on a recent statement by Cincinnati manager Fred Hutchinson that the Reds' Vada Pinson could do everything Willie Mays can on a baseball field.

Durocher laughed.

"You don't believe that, do you?" he asked. "Look, that Hutch is a pretty smart fellow, but he knows better. Heck, when I was managing the Dodgers and Giants, my players were the best in the world. There was nobody better than they. That's the way it should be.

"But I got news for you. Nobody can do all things as well as Willie. Nobody. Maybe one thing. Maybe two. But not when you put everything together.

"Pinson is great, just great. He can play for me anytime. But another Mays? Don't make me laugh."

Durocher was older and greyer than when he managed the Giants and Dodgers in New York and Brooklyn but he was no more subdued. His authority now is limited to coaching with the Dodgers.

FAN REMEMBERS

Durocher looked out at the wildly enthusiastic holiday crowd of 55,704 that had been attracted by the Dodgers' first appearance here in five years for a twin bill with the Mets. He grinned broadly as a fan screamed raucously at him: "Hey, Lippy, once a bum, always a bum. Go back to Hollywood, ya bum, ya."

"That guy must have been a Giant fan," he remarked. "I had a tough time winning them over after coming from Brooklyn. Some of those guys never accepted me."

"Yes, it brings back memories. Bobby Thomson's home run, Jackie Robinson's baserunning, Pee Wee Reese's fielding, Eddie Stanky, Sal Maglie, old Campy, big Newk, Gil Hodges, Alvin Dark, the Duke. And the greatest of them all, Willie Mays."

"But nobody is as good as Willie. He's the best since DiMaggio, Joe D. was great, Willie is great. Nobody else comes close.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

They put Sonny Liston on a Toronto television program the other night. The big, brawny, colored challenger for the heavyweight title was subjected to the quiz antics of a panel who asked questions that brought few informative answers.

The only saving grace of the program occurred when Liston gave a fine exhibition of rope-skipping which is part of his training for the forthcoming title match.

Otherwise, the Philadelphia negro was as much at zone as a fat rabbit at a fox convention. His illiteracy was as plain as the nose on your face. He was the target of words which he did not know the meaning of and probably seldom if ever heard before.

The greater majority of the answers were Yes or No or shakes of the head.

In an act of mercy, perhaps, the producers showed a film clip of Liston's first-round knockout of Westphal, the German champion, the same night that Floyd Patterson knocked out Tom McNeeley in that Toronto ring farce.

I felt sorry for the big fellow. Had his quizzers read the newspapers they could have saved him the trouble and humiliation, perhaps, of answering. "Why were you not allowed to fight in New York?" Liston murmured, "Because of my record."

And it wasn't his ring record. The seekers of knowledge acted as though they did not know that. Perhaps they didn't. Liston looked very uncomfortable before he finally came up with his low-toned answer.

Liston has a police record. Anyone who reads the sports pages knows that. But he has also undergone a period of rehabilitation, thanks to the fine efforts of a Denver parish priest, Father Edward J. Murphy.

The fighter learned to read and write and received moral guidance from Father Murphy. He was pronounced rehabilitated, and signed to meet Floyd Patterson for the world heavyweight championship.

But New York boxing authorities and the majority of the Gotham boxing writers took a dim view of the proceedings. Liston was barred from fighting in New York.

Other states were more lenient, or perhaps, humane, in their views. They put in bids for the big fight and the state of Illinois and Chicago drew the winning ticket.

Liston is an exceptionally reticent and remote man. He is proud of what he has accomplished with his fists and perhaps proud of what he can do with his angry stare. "I try to look tough because I'm trying to scare the other guy," he says. "And from the results, I guess some of them were scared."

In one of his rare moments of speaking at some length, Liston said: "A boxing match is like a cowboy movie. There's got to be a good guys and there's got to be bad guys. That's why the people pay for; to see the bad guys get beat. So, I'm a bad guy. But I change things. I don't get beat up."

Strangely enough, Liston's only defeat came from opening his mouth too much. Archie Moore and Marty Marshall in 1954 Sonny scored an easy knockdown. Marshall, something of a clown, got up and whooped loudly.

"I got to laughing at him," Liston recalls. "He caught me with my mouth open and he broke my jaw. In the sixth he pops me again and busts my jaw in another place. It hurt so I walked the streets all night."

He was born on a cotton farm outside Little Rock, Arkansas, the product of a second marriage. He thinks there were 25 children in the family. His own mother had thirteen.

A priest taught him to box while he was serving a prison sentence. He became the inmate champion and after the priest had secured his parole, picked up the name "Sonny" and took up the beat-busting trade. He could be the next world champion.

Wood Paces Tiger Win

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Al Kaline is out with a broken shoulder. Frank Lary, a 22-game winner last year, has one victory. Batting champion Norm Cash and slugger Rocky Colavito are hitting .238 and .233 respectively. And the Detroit Tigers have moved within two games of the American League lead.

How've they done it?

With key contributions from the reawakening C boys—Cash and Colavito—who have given indications of shaking their prolonged slumps, and with outstanding performances from Jake Wood, outfielder Billy Bruton and pitcher Paul Foytack.

The trio combined Thursday as the Tigers won their 10th in 12 games by belting Chicago White Sox 13-5. Wood drove in five runs with a three-run homer, two doubles and a single.

HAS WON FOUR

Foytack, who had been relegated to the bullpen at the start of the season, has a perfect record to 4-1 since being restored to the starting rotation when Lary was injured and the other frontliners were being tagged by the opposition.

While the Tigers were improving their pitching, Cleveland upped its first-place edge over the idle New York Yankees to a full game by beating Baltimore 4-3. In the only other game scheduled, Kansas City blanked Washington 1-0 behind Jerry Walker's six-hitter.

Backed by the slugging of Wood and Bruton, the Tigers had little difficulty with the White Sox, although Foytack had to have relief help after allowing a two-run homer by Bob Farley in the sixth and a two-run triple by Bob Sadowski in the seventh. Foytack gave up six hits before Ron Kline took over to permit only one run over the final 2 1-3 innings. Don Lee (3-2), first of four Chicago hurlers, took the loss.

ERROR HELPS TRIBE

The Indians, shut out on three hits by Robin Roberts for seven innings, trailed 3-0 when Brooks Robinson's error as a wedge in the sixth inning and scored all their runs. A single by Ty Cline after the bobble, Al Luplow's double, a two-run triple by Tito Francona and a sacrifice fly by Chuck Essegian did the damage. Jim Grant (3-0) won it with relief help from Gary Bell. Ron Hansen homered for the Orioles.

Walker (6-2) won his pitchers' duel with the Senators' Dave Hamilton (0-3) when the As came up with an unearned run in the last of the ninth. With two out, Ed Charles started things with a single. Joe Azcue followed with another single and when right fielder Joe Hicks lost control as he prepared to throw the ball, Charles sped home with the clincher. Hamilton wound with a seven-hitter.

Joyces Blank Bobcats

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Joyce Real Estate chalked up their third victory in as many starts at the Fairgrounds last night when they blanked the Bobcats behind the good right arm of young Doug Ellis.

Ellis, fashioned a neat four-hitter to register the loop's first shutout of the 1962 season.

He gave up one hit in each of the second, sixth, seventh and eighth innings. Ellis struck out eight and issued but one walk. Joyces committed three errors but executed two double plays to help preserve the shutout.

Bobby Green, the only pitcher the Bobcats have had out yet this year, went the route for the Tabbies again. He gave up eight hits striking out three and walking three. Four errors did little to aid his cause.

This was the final 6.15 game of the schedule. Lights will be turned on at the Fairgrounds this weekend and starting Monday night all games will begin at 8.00 p.m.

A special league meeting will be held prior to Monday's game here between Joyces and Bellins. The Picton Walls applied for entry yesterday and Commissioner Belch has called a meeting of all team managers to vote on the Walls' request. The meeting will be held at 7.00 p.m. under the grandstand.

Joyces scored two runs in the first frame last night. Carr led off with a walk and Batchelor singled to right - centre, the ball bouncing through Clapp as both runners went all the way around.

Kellar singled to open the sixth and two errors later scored the plate Carr. Joyces 3-0. Joyces had loaded the bases with none out in the previous inning but two force outs at the plate and a fly ball got the Cats out unscratched.

The winners' final run came on Bert Faulkner's fly ball after Carr had walked and Batchelor doubled.

Bobcats got only one runner as far as third base that in the eighth inning.

Teddy Batchelor paced the Real Estate hitters with two doubles, a single and a sacrifice in five trips. Claude Carr hit safely twice with other base hits shared by Terry Kellar, Jackie Elliott and Doug Ellis.

Bobcat coach Bill Old said he would have a full club out for next weeks' games with the addition of Bobby Hunter, "Wiener" Brown and Jackie Hughes.

Western Prexies Give Ruling

Eskimos Boil, Stamps Get Miles

"CALGARY (CP)—The presidents of the five Western Football Conference clubs handed down a ruling on the Calgary-Edmonton Rollie Miles squabble Thursday that was guaranteed to put Eskimos out of sorts.

The presidents were holding a special meeting here after Syd Haller, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, tossed the Miles hot potato into their laps. They ruled that Calgary Stampeders have the right under the WFC player equalization draft to get a player from Edmonton Eskimos.

The unhappiness likely wasn't all Edmonton's however. In other business, Haller declared Calgary's trade of Joe Carruthers and John McMurtry to Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Conference for Hal Krebs "conditional" or "temporarily void."

The action followed a demand from Edmonton that the four-player deal — one unnamed player is still to come to Calgary—be cancelled because Carruthers is on the Stampeders' unprotected list.

DRAFT MUST END

Halter told George McMahon, president of the Calgary club, that the trade could not be completed until the draft ends.

Calgary claimed Miles, an 11-year veteran with the Eskimos, some weeks ago under the new draft. Edmonton disputed the claim, saying Calgary had misinterpreted provisions of the draft.

CFL club presidents Thursday adopted a resolution saying that under the equalization plan teams drafting 10 or more points behind the first - place Winnipeg Blue Bombers in regular play last season will be allowed to draft players from the equalization pool.

The ruling made Calgary, Saskatchewan Roughriders and British Columbia Lions eligible to draft players. Calgary was allowed one selection and Saskatchewan and B.C. were allowed two each.

It also was decided that two player selections by the Lions and Roughriders would stand. The Lions took Ray Nagle from Winnipeg and Roughriders took Ron Meadmore from the same club.

UNTIL WEDNESDAY

Calgary was given until Wednesday to make its selection—likely Miles if Edmonton doesn't take him off its list of 12 protected Canadians.

The Lions have until June 8 to make their second selection and the Roughriders have to make theirs by June 11.

Halter said the equalization plan will be "completely spelled out by next year."

He said there was an "obvious misunderstanding" over the resolution regarding the player equalization draft passed at the WFC's annual meeting in Vancouver earlier this year.

The Calgary - Edmonton dispute was over the interpretation of the draft ground rules adopted at last February's annual meeting.

Joe Piran, general manager of the Eskimos, said when the dispute first blew up that the plan was drawn up by the club managers at the annual meeting. He said that as drawn up by the managers it provided that a team finishing 10 or more points behind another club could draft up to two unprotected Canadians from the higher-placed club. No team would be forced to give up more than two players and clubs could protect 12 Canadians from the draft.

Ryan said that in recording the adoption of the plan, the secretary at the annual meeting explained how the plan worked and erred by not including the 10-point spread and two-player limit clauses.

Calgary, said Ryan, seized on the omission to claim Miles.

"I've never seen the like of it in my 40 years in football," he said.

Giants Come Home

'Hot Time in Old Town'

NEW YORK (AP)—It'll be "lying room only" again today when the old tenants drop into the ancient Polo Grounds to visit the new boys in town.

The San Francisco Giants, who fled to the Golden West along with Los Angeles Dodgers five years ago, will be making their first return to the scene of their former digs when they meet New York Mets, who now live there now. A doubleheader follows Saturday with a single game Sunday.

It should be a real house warming party. If the one tossed by the Dodgers is a sample.

A total of 55,704, largest of the year in the majors, met the Dodgers on their first inspection since, a Memorial Day doubleheader. In all, before the week is out, more than 200,000 will have contributed to the fund being collected at the Polo Grounds to get the Mets out of the National League cellar.

Judging by the advance sale, the Giants' crowd could be even bigger than the one the Dodgers drew, but it seems impossible that the Humane Society could allow such a thing.

There's no saying customers at the Dodger games who spent more than seven hours lying flat on their tummies to catch a glimpse of action between the upper grandstand girders.

It was a fire sale, a county fair, a world series, all packed together.

And that was without Willie Mays, who sparked the Giants to the last pennant in the Polo Grounds in 1954, and will be back wearing "San Francisco" on his shirt. Garbed similarly will be Alvin Dark, then the dashing shortstop, now the manager.

OMHA Acts

Officials Get Stiff Suspensions

KITCHENER (CP)—Two life suspensions, a two-year suspension and reprimands were handed out by the executive of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association to management and players of the Minden Juvenile D hockey team.

They were accused of falsifying records in the last season and the heavy penalties were imposed at a meeting of the OMHA executive last weekend.

The decision was announced today by Jim Ingis of Atwood, president of the Western Ontario Athletic Association. Involved were the protesting Atwood juveniles who lost to Minden in the provincial final.

As a result of the meeting, Atwood and Beeton were declared co-holders of the title. Beeton had been eliminated in the semi-finals by Minden.

Life suspensions were imposed on Minden manager Al Nesbitt and coach Gary McKnight. Jim Sheffie of Haliburton, playing on a certificate made out to Douglas Austin of Minden, was suspended for two years.

Eric Bain and Christopher Carroll, two other Minden players found ineligible for the playoffs, will receive stiff warnings from the OMHA.

Schmidt is the leading contender for the welterweight title, vacant since gale Kerwin of Ottawa retired as champion. Durelle is rated second.

It's still the powerful San Francisco Giants and the dazzling Los Angeles Dodgers bunched at the top of the National League but the surprising Cincinnati Reds, who took it all last year, are on the move.

Meanwhile, things got even closer at the top as the Dodgers won their 11th in a row and the Giants saw their string stopped at seven victories. Los Angeles pinned the 11th loss in a row on the New York Mets, 6-3 on a three-bit pitching job by Joe Moeller, Ed Roebuck and Ron Perranoski. And Philadelphia's Art Mahaffey trimmed the Giants 3-1, giving the Phils their first victory in eight games.

PIRATES BEAT CARDS

In other NL games, Pittsburgh won its fifth straight in a 5-4 slugfest over slumping St. Louis and Houston whipped Chicago 10-6 with a five-run ninth inning.

Purkey, a 16-game winner for Cincinnati last year but No. 3 among the Reds' front line pitchers behind Joey Jay and Jim O'Toole, registered his ninth victory in 10 decisions as the Reds jumped ahead of Milwaukee and stayed there. He was tagged for a homer with one on by Hank Aaron in the sixth and yielded two more runs in the eighth.

Robinson's double got in a run as the Reds scored twice off Carl Willey in the third and he powered Cincinnati into a 4-2 lead in the seventh with his homer, which followed singles by Don Blasingame and Marty Keough.

Robinson's prolonged slump had him under .300 not too long ago, Thursday's two hits raised his average to .299.

The Dodgers relayed even with the Mets until the sixth, when Larry Burright broke a 2-2 fly with a two-run triple and scored on a sacrifice fly. Lightfoiled Maury Wills' 23rd flashed on the bases, stealing second after each of his three singles. Tommy Davis also counted three singles for the Dodgers and drove in two runs.

STYMIES THE GIANTS

Mahaffey stymied the Giants with speed and control before wavering slightly in the late going. He was nicked for two singles in the eighth, then was flatly reached for a run in the ninth on Orlando Cepeda's triple and Felipe Alou's single with one out.

The Phils collected four of their six hits and both their runs off lefty Billy O'Dell in the first. Tony Taylor and John Callison opened up with double bles for one run, and Tony Gonzales' single coupled with an error by Cepeda brought in the other.

Bob Friend ended a string of five losses with ninth inning relief from Elroy Face and Dio-medes Olivo as the Pirates slapped the Cardinals. Friend, now 5-5, and Dick Groat batted in two runs each for a 4-1 Pittsburgh lead after three innings and Bill Mazeroski's homer in the sixth proved the winner.

Carl Warwick supplied the ninth-inning clincher for the Colts with a two-run single and Jim Pendleton applied the crusher, a three-run homer.

King of the Hill

For the sixth consecutive time Cec Harkwick has come out on top in the King of the Hill contest at the Bowl-O-Drome. This week's challenger was Wally Lavergne who rolled 1282 for 3 games. In the 3 game roll-off Cec rolled 817 for an average of 272 and Wally rolled 725 for an average of 242. This makes 8 weeks out of 10 that Cec has defeated the cream of the bowlers from Trenton and Belleville to stay on top at Bowl-O-Drome. The other two winners were Ron Saylor and Howard Saunders.

Chiefs Clip Bisons Win String at 4

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lefthander Don Rowe, who helped Columbus Jets to the International League pennant last season, may have started them on the road to a comeback.

Rowe, 26, showed good control in allowing only a one-run, infield single in the ninth in his one-hit 9-0 win over Richmond Virginians Thursday night. Syracuse Chiefs ended Buffalo Bisons four-game winning string 5-4 and Atlanta Crackers topped Jacksonville 4-3 in the only other games scheduled.

Rowe had allowed three men to reach base, two on walks and one on an error, when Don Brummer beat out a hit to deep short with one out in the ninth. Rowe struck out four and allowed only three balls hit out of the infield as he posted his record to 4-3 for the last-place Jets.

GETS SUPPORT

He got all the support he needed from Charlie Leonard, who had a home run, a double, two singles, scored three runs and drove in two. John Power also had a homer for the Jets.

Jacksonville jammed in a couple of runs in the first inning on a single and double without a score, but couldn't make it stand up against Atlanta and the 21-year-old Carl Houdkin to make the lead stand by striking Bisons' A two-run triple off Bob Sadowski and a one-run triple by Ron Stillwell were the big blows.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Puss N Boots, an irascible three-year-old who is also likely to go for a swim as run a race, straightened out Thursday to win the featured Detroit Purse at Old Woodbine Track.

Sent to the post, as prohibitive 4 to 5 favorite despite a tendency to give his jockey—and before the jittery, American-owned colt whipped a field of seven's Plate eligibles over a mile and a driving stretch finish. Aboard was Hamilton George Gobbins.

Puss N Boots attracted national recognition at the Fort Erie track this winter when he jumped a fence and went for an eight-furlong ramble in the field lake, At Florida during the winter he bolted and loosed his jockey.

Pat Remillard, the indestructible Sherbrooke jockey, who shows infrequently on Stocker Club tracks in Ontario, accepted one mount and made the most of it, some dividend of $61.80 with a $2 ticket on European Flight, a 25- to 1 shot.

That was in the second race, seven furlong gallop for maiden three-year-olds, and it seemed to set the pattern for the bettors who ignore the form chart. Red Pal took the third for an $8.80 payoff, Cally Yates the fourth for a return of $23.10 and Dishonest paid $14.50 in the fifth.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A quinella of $65.70 resulted at Western Fair Raceway Thursday night when 16-1 shot Pan's Girl won the fifth race to pay $35.50 and Lucky Is Sallie, an also 8-1 shot, came second.

A muddy track slowed the horses. Pan's Girl, a four-year-old mare owned and driven by Charles Pierce of Longwood, Ont., ran the mile in 2:32.

H. E. Miller was the 3-5 favorite in the filth, but the horse's pace at the start and was never a threat.

One of the closest finishes of the night came in the seventh, a C-2 pace, when Sister Harvey C nosed out Jerome G. Creed, an 11-year-old gelding was a fast-closing third.

Sports Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Ken Farmer of Montreal says anybody is welcome to join in Canada's first big-scale national fitness festival in Toronto Sept. 1. "It's open to anybody—fathers in arms or old men," he says.

Farmer is a trim 40-year-old who played hockey for Canada in the 1936 Olympic Games and now is chairman of the 30-member national advisory council on fitness and amateur sport. It's a pretty good advertisement for such a job although he jokingly says he'd have to be pushed in up against a wall to catch his breath after a stiff two - block walk.

He and 41-year-old Jim Worrall of Toronto, president of the Canadian Olympic Association and an Olympic hurdler a quarter of a century ago, were here about the only athletic - looking types present at the other end when the extravaganza was announced.

They were surrounded by paunchy, double - chinned chaps who, heavily outfitted the idea of getting together thousands of youngsters from across Canada at the 320 - acre Canadian National Exhibition grounds. Their theme was that the festival would focus attention on sports in which fitness can be won, enjoyed and retained by Canadians of all ages.

SIGHT IN BYDS

When the big day in September arrives it would be a good idea to keep most of these fellows well in the background, despite what Farmer says about everybody being welcome to join in the festivities. They'd be a sight in their BVDs.

One of the features at the announcement ceremonies attended by federal, provincial and civic officials was Alderman Joe Piccinini. Kidded by Hal (Toronto Daily Star) Walker, big Joe said he's a team sport man, but while he's all in favor of people taking exercises

Astrological Forecast

For June 2

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Tremendous Lunar-Solar emphasis on area of chart dealing with contacts, ideas, travel, self-expression. New Moon stresses activity, salesmanship. Be on move, mentally!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): New Moon points up stress on income, ability to make the most of what you possess. Avoid panic, stubbornness. By attitude of giving you eventually gain. Give your best!

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): No time for second best, be first with the most! Cycle up, and this doubly emphasized by fact that New Moon is in your zodiacal sign. Stress confidence and charm!

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): You will see New Moon when you scan heavens tonight. This highlights area dealing with your secret desires, hopes. Come out in open. Say what you believe!

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): May be difficult to be truthful with friends, because it is easier to be "easy" and popular. But if you are to help yourself and those you care for, you must disclose facts.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): New Moon spotlights section of Solar horoscope dealing with ambitions, profession challenges. No time to fuck off. Show creative abilities and be flexible.

Libra (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22): No need to burn candle. Live up to principles. You may at first appear "unpopular." But the allies you gain will come to forefront when you need them. Be yourself!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): New Moon in part of chart emphasizing strength, willingness to invest in your own talents. But better take care in connection with contracts. Wait to sign.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): An offer could be made, and it is admittedly attractive. But this Astrological Forecast stresses caution. Your cycle, judgment, could be better.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Stress on what you can do for others rather than what they can do for you. Service is key. Trying to push for your own way could be misinterpreted by those who "count."

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Favorable lunar aspect today means that associations with members of opposite sex emphasized. Wonderful "date" night. Good for creative hobbies. Excellent for self-expression.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Find what it is you want and then make some resolutions, even though this is not New Year's Eve! Today is time to sum up, then program leading to achievement.

If today is your birthday ... your intellectual curiosity one of greatest assets. This year promises much if you are willing to accept added responsibility in business and family life.

General Tendencies: New Moon, other indications stress change, conversation, messages exchanged between persons and nations. Nothing too permanent indicated so "threats" are to be regarded as part of so-called "game."

Bona Arsenault One of Few Politicians to Write Book Of Self While in Office

By JOHN YORSTON

QUEBEC (CP)—Bona Arsenault, Quebecs lauda and foresta minister, is a colorful "bird" whose plumage stands out, even in the colorful world of Quebec politics.

Not only is he one of the few politicians to write an autobiography while still in office, but he readily admits there was a political reason:

Entitled Maigre les Obstacles —Despite the Obstacles—it was written before the 1953 federal election when he was campaigning for re - election to Parliament.

"In politics, even when you have truth on your side, you sometimes have to use a gimmick to get the truth across."

His gimmick was the book, covering in heart-rending detail his early life in a poor Gaspe Peninsula family and discussing in a conversational style his ups and downs in politics, life insurance and newspaper work.

He recalled that after the book was distributed around the Bonaventure riding he often saw people reading it on their porches.

'MUST BE TRUE'

"In the country, people may throw away newspapers and pamphlets because they don't necessarily believe them. But they feel if it is written in a book it must be true."

Mr. Arsenault, tall, sober citizen but with a ready smile, has run for public office as a Conservative, Independent and Liberal. Now that he's a member of the cabinet legislature he has become a favorite target for raillery from his Union Nationale opposition.

He hit the headlines—and the cartoons — with an announcement that he would insist all his mail be addressed to him as the "honorable." Bona Arsenault. His remark followed Premier Lesage's statement in the favored abolition of the title for cabinet ministers.

"I was aware in as the "honorable" Bona Arsenault," he explains. "Union Nationale tried to humiliate us in the assembly by referring to us as the members for such and such a county. They avoided calling us by the title 'honorable minister.'

"In the country areas it humiliated our friends. The question of prestige exists in French - Canada much more than elsewhere."

GOT RESULTS

He says he decided to do something about it and announced he would return unopened any mail without the title.

That was more than a year ago and he still gets kidded about it. But his mail comes addressed the way he wants it.

This season Premier Lesage got in a sly dig. During study of his department's supplementary estimates, Mr. Arsenault was asked the meaning of the letter B in 4-H clubs.

"Four virtues beginning with the letter H," he replied after a moment's thought.

"Honorable," said the premier, turning around in his seat to prompt.

Mr. Arsenault has written two other books as well as his autobiography. One is a history of the Acadians—he is of Acadian descent—to the time of deportation in 1755; the other a history and genealogy of his hometown of Bonaventure, Que.

His first venture into politics was in 1931 at 27 when he was Conservative candidate for the legislature. He lost then and again in 1935.

In 1944 he resigned as president of the Quebec Conservative Association and left the party because he was dissatisfied with its attitude toward Quebec. A year later he won his first election, as an independent, and took his seat in the Commons. His book says it was made clear he would support the Liberal government of Mackenzie King in most matters.

BEATEN IN 1957

He was re-elected in 1949 and 1953, both times as a Liberal. Defeated in 1957 by 256 votes, he returned to provincial politics and was elected in 1960 when Premier Lesage's Liberals ousted the Union Nationale.

He has always run for office in his native Gaspe. But mention the name Bona almost anywhere in the province and no one asks "Bona who?"

His book explains how he got his unusual first name. In the French - Canadian tradition he was baptized as quickly as possible after birth and his mother didn't attend. His godparents, forgetting the names his mother had chosen, had him christened Joseph Ambroise Bonaventure Arsenault.

As he tells it, his mother was more than vexed.

"He will not be called either Joseph nor Ambroise nor Bonaventure. He'll be called Bona, that's all."

Between his election defeat in 1935 and his victory 10 years later, Bona Arsenault was a newspaper man and an insurance salesman. He was president of the Quebec City daily L'Evenement-Journal which he left in 1939 when it changed owners and "modified its political orientation." After that he sold insurance and became district manager for a large firm, a position he held until 1953.

SURPRISE CHOICE

Eyebrows arched when it was announced he would enter the Lesage cabinet. But, he explains, the cabinet needs men with a nose to the political wind in addition to the intellectuals who are felt to be the premier's principal advisers.

He was a member of a group of about 15 men who met regularly in 1958 to reorganize the Liberal party and draft a platform. For one week in September, 1958, they met at his white walled summer home — called Acadia — at Bonaventure. Four of the group now are in the cabinet.

Bona Arsenault has a reputation as a hard-working minister, often arriving at his office while his department's 4,000 employees are having breakfast and leaving when they are settling down to watch the late show on TV.

His office was once used by Quebec's premiers and he says: "I have to be more solemn in my office than the other ministers. It's the tradition."

Solemn or not, he has a sense of irony and doesn't appear to mind being the butt of legislature quips. He laughs heartily and rarely explodes.

One of his interests is names of Quebec towns and areas. Addressing a Laval University student group, he was asked whether it was time to change the name of a Gaspe region known as Arsenaultville.

"No, to - Bonnsbourg," he replied.

Blurring his reply just a bit gave it a double meaning. In French it can be pronounced roughly, "Bona is stuffing himself."

"They didn't seem to catch the irony," he says, a trifle mournfully.

End Exams With Fling

By JACK HUTTON

So you're facing your final exams? Well, why not think now about throwing a party for as many people in your class as possible?

The sad thing about most end-of-the-year exams is that you will never again be in a class with exactly the same people. There'll be additions or subtractions in the fall—if you haven't finished completely.

Why not have an all-out class party the night after exams are over? This time invite everybody—not just your own gang.

I'll give you one tip. Everyone will feel so good about finishing exams that your party's bound to be a raving success, no matter what happens.

MASS OUTING

It might be just a mass outing to the movies with coffee and sandwiches back at someone's house later. Or, if you want to be more elaborate, these few points may help you:

—Relax! This is the most important factor of all. If you're having fun, it's 10-to-1 that everyone else will too. But nothing puts a damper on things like a host or hostess with jumpy nerves.

—Plan everything as well as possible in advance. If you'll be dancing, make sure your record player is working properly. If it's a beach party, make sure there are places to change and that everyone has transportation.

—Something you'll certainly need will be your mother's co-operation in preparing food. The wisest thing, if possible, is to prepare sandwiches the day of the party and wrap them in wax paper, then cover with slightly dampened towels.

—Get as many friends involved as possible. Have them help with the sandwiches, bring records or make a few good friends responsible for seeing that the few shy ones have a good time.

—Be sure that you've planned one or two "mixers" early in the evening. It might be a game, or it might be a novelty dance—a hat dance or a Paul Jones. Otherwise you may find boys in the kitchen and girls in the livingroom.

As a wise host or hostess, of course, you'll let everyone have an idea of what they should wear—dress-up clothes or shorts. And you, of course, won't try to "out-dress" your guests.

MEMORABLE

The party is something all of you will probably remember with nostalgia, so why not make it as memorable as possible. I'd suggest getting together with a few bright lights in the class and writing either a class skit or a class song.

I can't imagine anything being more of a hit than a surprise skit based upon things that happened to your class during the years. (Only one thing which I don't need to emphasize: don't be unkind!)

The party could take place anytime up to two weeks after finishing school—with one word of caution. Check among your friends and try not to have the party after too many have left for summer jobs or the cottage.

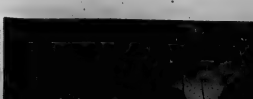
One final piece of advice: it is only natural during the school year for any class to divide itself into groups of friends who share the same interests.

But this is a class party for all of you who may never be in the same class again. So it's your job as host or hostess to make sure that the party isn't dominated by a clique. It's for everybody!

NEW STAMP ISSUE

I trust all stamp collectors have noticed that Canada will issue a five-cent blue honoring the great intendant (1665-1688) of New France, Jean Talon, on June 13.

The customary first-day service will be given by the Postmaster, Ottawa 2, and orders should reach him not later than June 11. Remember to include in your remittance not only the cost of the stamps but also 5 cents for each cover you want.



The design of the stamp may interest you. It is based upon a document which says that Talon presented each of the 1,000 brides he brought to the colony with "a bull, a cow, a hog, a sow, a cock, a hen, two barrels of salt meat and 11 crowns."

All of these items will be on the stamp. Who gets a dowry like that today?

VANISHING TWIST

All together now, three cheers! Has anyone noticed that for the first time in weeks the word "twist" is vanishing from the hit parade. We have not one title with that word today.

If you remember, every new hit parade tune had the word "rock" in it shortly after the rock 'n roll craze hit us. That is a period which is mercifully behind us now.

Final exams are coming and classmates for the past year will soon be separated. Jack Hutton today suggests an "end-of-the-year" party you'll remember with nostalgia in later years.

Medical Plan Changes Likely After Election

Saskatchewan Ministry Forecasts Concessions

Church Refuses To Censure Sask. Doctors

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto conference of the United Church of Canada Friday refused to censure Saskatchewan doctors for their opposition to the province's medical care plan.

A resolution before the annual meeting of the conference, calling on the doctors to co-operate with the government, was thrown out after heated exchanges.

Rev. Helmut Wipprecht of Cobalt, Ont., said the conflict of last year had "the check" to censure Premier Antoine Sala-zar of Portugal. It should now have "the courage to tell the doctors a few things."

"Governments look after educations—why should we leave health to the whims and selfish interests of doctors and their associations," he said.

The resolution also called on the Ontario government to co-operate with the federal government "in any steps to inaugurate a health plan for Ontario."

The conference decided to press the issue of the need for "substantial number" of Hong Kong refugees.

The conference decided to ask Mr. Robarts these questions:

1. How do you justify licensing clubs in areas where a majority has voted against liquor outlets?

2. As drinking drivers are already a serious menace, how do you justify granting licences to motels?

Goodman Puts On Jam Session Near Kremlin

The visiting jazz musician also persuaded Soviet composer Aram Khachaturian to write a piece for his orchestra to be played around the trumpet.

And he accepted a bid from Soviet composers to hold a public jam session with Soviet jazz players when he returns from a month's tour of the Soviet Union.

First was Yankee Doodle Dandy. Then he played a few bars of Moscow Evening, a song known in the West as Midnight in Moscow.

By that time 300 or 400 Soviet citizens were huddled around Goodman. He played a little quick-step march as three guards went by. The trio had been relieved from guard duty at Lenin's tomb nearby. While they marched into the Kremlin's Supreme Soviet Gate, Goodman played Pop Goes the Weasel.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis—A northerly flow of air produced rather cool temperatures overnight. Armstrong in northwestern Ontario was one of the coldest spots, with temperatures near the freezing mark. Temperatures will continue rather cool during the weekend.

REGINA (CP) — Social Welfare Minister A. M. Nicholson said Friday there are indications concessions will be made in the dispute over Saskatchewan's medical care plan after the June 18 federal election.

However, he wouldn't say who would make the concessions—the provincial government or the federal government, which says it will not practise under the plan slated to go into effect July 1.

The minister said some doctors are willing to work under the plan but are in a difficult position because they don't want to be a scab to their union.

By "union" he apparently referred to the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Estevan, Sask., a doctor at Regina's medical arts clinic said Los Angeles clinic has offered 44 doctors at the Regina clinic jobs and has given them until Monday to make a decision.

Dr. J. H. McIntosh said the clinic owner says Los Angeles can't come any days later. He said none of the doctors has indicated whether they will accept the invitation.

RESPONSIBLE

College President Dr. H. D. Dalgleish of Saskatoon said Wednesday Premier Lloyd has admitted his CCF government is responsible for doctors' services in rural areas.

Dr. Dalgleish was commenting on the premier's announcement of government plans to cope with a "possible serious" shortage of doctors if the plan takes effect. The premier announced plans for an emergency pool of doctors and medical air and ground transportation services.

In Toronto, the managing director of a sponsored prepaid medical care plan said he feels doctors across Canada are on a ever-increasing number of laymen will support Saskatchewan's doctors in their "struggle for freedom."

Dr. J. A. Hannah of Associated Medical Services Incorporated was addressing the church's 25th anniversary dinner. He said AMS, a non-profit organization, has remained solvent because it represents an ideal of voluntary effort and control.

"This is a voluntary type of service which cannot either be bought at any price, or secured by coercion through legislation."

HEADS ILGWU

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — David Dubinsky, 70, has been elected to a new four-year term as president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. He was elected by 441,000 - member union since 1932.

COPTER SIGHTS PLANE WRECK NEAR COCHRANE

May Hold Bodies Of Barilko, Hudson

COCHRANE, Ont. (CP) — The wreckage of an airplane was spotted Friday in an area where 11 years ago the most extensive air search in Canada's history failed to find the hockey star and his dentist companion.

A roving helicopter of the Ontario department of lands and forests sighted a flinting heap of metal in a barren headland 40 miles north of here.

Speculation arose that the wreckage might contain the remains of Bill Barilko, former star of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, and Dr. Henry Hudson of Timmins.

The helicopter was due to take off at dawn today in an attempt to relocate the wreck. This in itself presented a serious difficulty, however, since no bearings could be taken Friday because the wilderness area devoid of landmarks.

CAN CONNECT

Only two slim threads of evidence connect the wreckage with the long-missing pair:

Dr. Hudson left the scene of flight that would have been taken by Dr. Hudson's seaplane base at Moosonee. He disappeared in August, 1951, while commercial aircraft were known to have crashed in the immediate area.

Earl Hall, district forester here, said the low-flying helicopter pilot who spotted the wreckage in the bush while on a routine flight "had no alarm was made to land because its crew first believed it was the site of a previously-known crash.

A re-check when it returned to its base discovered no known crashes in the area.

IDENTIFY PONTOON

Dr. Hall said the seaplane's pontoon was identified during the sighting.

The pontoon was at the controls when the yellow Fairchild 24 disappeared on a 226-mile flight from Rupert's House on James Bay to South Porcupine here Timmins.

About 15 planes took part in the search during the 10 days it covered some 100,000 square miles. But several years smaller searches continued on private basis, but no trace was found.

DENY REPORT

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun says that the prolonged interference during a visit by Prime Minister Diefenbaker here Wednesday night was planned and carried out by Social Credit party supporters of the New Democratic Party's provincial wing.

The paper was given to Sir William Mabane, chairman of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and for years had chided the British way of life, was knighted.

The above words could refer to building materials, scrolling or obtaining a college degree. But, in a pharmacy they relate to one thing — the filling of prescriptions.

A mortar is used to mix ingredients, the tile is smoothing and unifying an ointment, a balance weighs drugs, and a graduate makes sure quantities. Many words have different meanings, but our name always means — "dependable pharmacy service for medicines, sickroom needs and health-aids"

She came here as a bride to the farm on the hill, and since that time has been a part in the work of the church and community. The minute books of the W.A. and WMS of Stone Church show that Mrs. Jeffrey has been at various times, president, treasurer and active member of the parsonage committee, and representative to Presbytery. In fact, she is present, the representative to Presbytery when the Official Boards of the Sidney Pastoral Charge. We are sure, that she has seen many changes in the area in the time that she has been here, but we are sure that the change that has come about in her life will not take her too far from the Stone Church area, and her friends of long standing. Mrs. Jeffrey, we would like you to consider this gift as a token of our esteem and love for you."

Mr. Glenn Lane, Mr. Garfield Evans and Mr. Ken Tweddy then presented Mrs. Jeffrey with a Convex wall clock. Mrs. Jeffrey thanked everyone for the gift and for the many kindnesses shown her.

A very pleasant evening was brought to a close as the ladies of Stone Church served a delicious lunch.

Red Guards Kidnap Girl, Wound Friend

BERLIN (AP)—Lured by friendly voice, two teen-aged West Berlin girls walked into a Communist trap Friday night. East German border guards kidnapped one, shot the other.

It was the third such shocking incident along West Berlin's 27-mile border. The West Berlin police gave this account:

The two girls, Sonia II and Identified only as Ursula and Karin, approached the border separating Communist East Germany from the U.S. sector borough of Lichterfelde.

Presumably, the girls intended to wave to or speak to friends in the East German Friendly East German guards often do such evenings, either actively or at least by turning the other way. This seemed to be the case Friday night.

"Come up to the wire," an East German called and called out to Ursula and Karin. "Your friend is waiting for you."

The two girls walked forward, crossing into Communist territory as they approached the barbed wire fence. Just back a distance from the actual demarcation line.

When they reached the wire, the East German guards grabbed Karin and dragged her through the fence. As Ursula turned and fled toward the west, the guards opened fire with pistols and submachine guns. Bleeding from a wound in the hip, she managed to reach the border guards and stagger to a police post.

In Calgary, Senator John Connolly, president of the National Liberal Association, said the Liberals are receiving donations spending on the present scale "would leave them bankrupt."

Mr. Douglas, speaking to young Liberal members in Regina, said formation of a Canadian youth service was one of the "first things" he would do. It would be composed of volunteer men and women who would be sent under United Nations auspices for assignments in underdeveloped countries.

He added that two per cent of Canada's gross national product should be used for assistance to the world's underprivileged peoples.

He repeated an NDP proposal to give the provinces "the finances necessary to provide an education free to every person from Grade 1 through university and technical and professional schools."

Mr. Douglas also spoke on a filmed national free-time political telecast in which he declared that a national medical care plan, which would pay doctors' bills and eliminate interference with the medical profession, is essential.

Medical Care Plan Defended By Douglas

OTTAWA (CP) — T. C. Douglas, national leader of the Democratic Party, said Friday night that "misstatements should not practise medicine."

But he declared that a national health medical plan which would pay doctors' bills and eliminate interference with the medical profession is essential for Canada.

Mr. Douglas spoke during a 15-minute television program on the CBC from Winnipeg network's free-time political time.

He was seen in a discussion with Dr. Lyall Knott, director, Dr. W. D. Howe, running in Hamilton South, and Dr. Ed. Hartley, seeking election in Calgary South.

Dr. Howe told Mr. Douglas that he has found no real opposition but a nationwide medical program among the practising doctors of his acquaintance.

Mr. Douglas laid out at private medical care plans, referring to the one put in force was in collision with a ton truck.

Four persons in the truck, driven by Roy VanCott, 55, of 296 Main Street, Deseronto, had a miraculous escape from serious injury. Mr. VanCott had a broken arm but was allowed to go home. Miss Jacqueline Cole, her sister-in-law, Mrs. Eugene Cole, and the latter's son, William Cole, 2½ years old, escaped with a shaking up, but the boy also received a severe bump on the head.

The collision occurred opposite the Ferguson home on the Cherry Valley road, the truck and tractor travelling in opposite directions. The tractor was demolished and the left front of the truck was extensively damaged and it rolled on its side after the impact, but the occupants were not thrown out.

GALT (CP)—A second fire in 48 hours early today burned through the remains of a $57,000 blaze in the Galt Paint and Varnish Company building here.

Abolish Tolls On Que. Bridge

MONTREAL (CP) — Tolls were abolished Friday on the Jacques - Cartier and Victoria bridges, linking Montreal Island and the St. Lawrence south shore, in a brief mid-afternoon ceremony.

The ceremony was boycotted by a citizens' committee set up last December in Montreal's south-shore suburbs to campaign for the abolition of tolls.

Mayor Lawrence Gallotti of Greenfield Park said the committee has been left holding the bag for $10,731.

Pledges had been made by various municipalities and organizations to pay the committee's work but most of them had not been honored.

The Quebec government stayed away too.

Roads Minister Bernard Pinard said in Quebec City the committee's absence "takes away the air of impartiality from the ceremony and gives it a purely political allure . . . The representatives of the provincial government will not be able to take part."

Kidnapped Girl Said Sighted In Manitoba

He said a blonde-haired girl, accompanied by two women and a man, had breakfast in the restaurant but he did not recognize the girl at the time.

Hours later, he saw a newspaper picture of the girl and said it fitted the description of the girl in the restaurant.

Name of the man or his place of business in this southern Manitoba city was not released.

The girl was kidnapped from the bedroom of her parents Tacoma home last Aug. 31 and has been the object of a search in Canada and the United States.

Authorities have offered a $5,000 reward for the return of the girl to her parents and arrests of her abductors.

Find Explosive On Beach at Kennedy Home

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A mysterious barrel lying on the beach 15 yards from the mansion of President Kennedy's father was found to contain enough explosives to flatten everything within 50 yards.

Navy demolition experts said the object was a 55 - gallon drum of metallic sodium which—if rain water had beaten into its open top—would have flattened everything within 50 yards. A brisk shower fell 19 hours after the navy men arrived.

The naval ordnance facility team replaced the lid, took the drum out to sea and exploded it with a time device. As the sodium and the sea mixed together, a continuous, rumbling explosion assured for about three minutes.

Investigators said the drum was a commercial container that might have fallen off a ship and drifted ashore. A similar drumful of sodium was found Tuesday at Key Largo, south of Miami, and was exploded safely.

The Kennedy estate currently is occupied only by a caretaker. The president, his wife and children, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, have spent many vacations at the mansion.

Kiwanis Club To Campaign For Big Vote

TRENTON — The Trenton Kiwanis Club will encourage Trenton residents to "get out and vote," by supplying buttons bearing this message to local businessmen to be worn in their coat lapels. Stickers for car bumpers, stressing the importance of casting a ballot in the June 18 federal election will be supplied to businessmen by the club also.

Ted Kinsella, Kiwanis chairman of public and business affairs, told the club members Thursday night of his committee's plans to urge every person in town, eligible to vote, to exercise his or her franchise.

Mr. Kinsella also announced a club-sponsored cultural exhibition, to be held on June 15, in Canterbury Hall. School children submitting art work for the exhibit, will be, in effect, competing for prizes with their entries.

Mr. Kinsella reported on the assistance club members had given to medical authorities during the recent oral polio vaccine clinics in Trenton.

Safety chairman Ted Snider reported that last weekend's bicycle rodeo was the "best ever." He said that the results of the written examination for each contestant would be ready soon and that shields and cups should be presented within ten days.

Mr. Snider said that parents who attended the rodeo has become so enthusiastic about the event that they had left their spectators' seats and assisted with the examinations.

Mr. Snider told the club members that, during the past two months, three Lower Safety Belt had been lowered at Trenton schools. The one bright side to the picture, he said, was that the three school children, who were involved in accidents necessitating the lowering of the flags, had not been seriously injured.

Federation Says Govt. Could Reduce Costs

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Labor said today that a comprehensive, rationally organized " health service program sponsored by government could reduce the cost of health care in Canada.

The federation, representing local unions with a combined membership of more than 400,000 told the royal commission on health services that too much information has been fed to the public about the "supposedly irremendous cost" involved in a comprehensive public scheme.

This had had the effect of discouraging people from even discussing this matter . . . what most people who have talked about the exorbitant cost have ignored is the amount already being spent on health services.

Until details of a public plan are worked out, it would be impossible to put a price tag on it.

Judging from studies conducted by the international Labor Organization, said the federation, social security schemes do not necessarily increase national expenditures on medical care—"they only replace expenditures from other sources."

RCAF Yukon Will Make A Trans-Canada Flight

TRENTON — An RCAF Yukon air craft from No. 437 "T" Squadron, Air Transport Command, based at CFB Trenton, will make a trans-Canada flight of historic importance on Monday and Tuesday, June 4 and 5.

Carrying a load of cargo and passengers, the turbo-prop Yukon will make a non-stop flight of 3,640 statute miles from Vancouver, B.C. to RCAF Station Trenton, covering all 10 provinces and both Canadian territories.

Leaving Vancouver at 3 p.m. Monday and arriving at Trenton, 8.30 a.m. on Tuesday, the route of the 14 1-2 hour flight will take the aircraft from Vancouver over Whitehorse, in the Yukon Territory; Fort Resolution, North West Territories; McMurray, Alta., Reid Lake, Sask., Churchill, Man., Goose Bay, Lab., Gander, Nfld., Sydney, N.S., Charlottetown, P.E.I., Moncton and Fredericton, N.B., Montreal, P.Q., Ottawa and Trenton, Ontario.

The flight, designated "Operation Cross-Canada", will demonstrate the long-range capabilities of the RCAF's Air Transport Command. "Yukon" aircraft, it will be the first non-stop flight over the ten provinces and the territories. In contrast, the first trans-Canada flight was made in 1920, when six Canadian Air Force aircraft, flying in relays, took 45 hours to travel from Halifax to Vancouver. This "Yesterday and Today", contrast of the RCAF will be the theme of the National Air Force Day show at RCAF Station, Rockcliffe, outside Ottawa, Saturday, June 9.

Air Commodore R. J. Lane, DSO, DFC, CD, Air Officer Commanding Air Transport Command, has designated Group Captain D. J. Williams, DSO, DFC, CD, Commanding Officer at RCAF Station Trenton, as Operations Coordinator for the flight.

The Yukon, built by Canadair, Ltd., Montreal, is the largest air craft in the RCAF. It can carry 134 passengers with heavy baggage, or 56,000 pounds of freight. Cruising speed is around 370 mph.

VON Director Makes Round Of Services

TRENTON — This week, Miss Ethel Grindley, regional director for the Victorian Order of Nurses, spent several days in Trenton, accompanying Miss Joan Moyer, VON nurse-in-charge locally, on her rounds.

Miss Grindley said that she was agreeably surprised at the many special services offered by the Trenton nursing service.

At an executive meeting of the Trenton branch, held at the home of Mrs. Sam Mowbray, Miss Grindley told the officers of a brief, which the national VON body has submitted to the Royal Commission on Health.

Included in the brief are recommendations to do with home nursing care, rehabilitation, the provision of housekeeping services for patients lately discharged from hospital and a scheme called "meals on wheels" for elderly persons, whose diet may be inadequate for their needs.

The thought was brought out at the meeting that many persons living in Trenton, Bayside, and Middleton Park do not know about the VON programme.

VON nurses, will, under the direction of the doctor, administer treatment to patients recently booked from the hospital, chronically ill patients, or will assist new mothers with baby's care. A nominal charge is made for these services, or if the need is established, the cost may be met in some other way.

Many Attend Convention Of Lions Club

TRENTON — This week, Nostrand Sprague and Mrs. Sprague, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Linton and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Yarmish attended the District "A" Lions convention at the Royal Connaught Hotel in Hamilton. District A includes clubs from Ontario and Quebec. Approximately 3,500 delegates were in attendance. Last Sunday, a busload of Trenton Lions and their wives travelled to Hamilton for a day-long session of the conference. Arrangements for the trip were handled by Rube Herrington and Les Hyman.

Mr. Sprague, secretary of the Trenton club, acted as chairman for a "secretaries' convention" at the meeting. He gave advice on how to prepare reports for the International body and conducted a question and answer period on the same subject.

Cancer Fund Little Short Of Objective

TRENTON — Thursday night, canvassers from Trenton, Frankford, Stockdale and Middleton Park, who took part in the recent door-to-door appeal for funds of the Trenton branch of the Canadian Cancer Society, were entertained by Dr. and Mrs. W. A. L. MacDonald, Byron St., Trenton Dr. MacDonald is medical adviser to the local unit.

Elmer Bonter, 1962 campaign chairman, told the group that although all 1,200 cards from the canvass were not in as yet, indications were that the drive would fall short of the $8,000 objective for this year. Mr. Bonter said that to date, $4,500 had been turned in. He said that there had been excellent efforts on the part of all canvassers, but, perhaps because of the "tight money" situation or the fact that several other drives had been held around the same time, the objective had not been reached.

George Colling, campaign chairman for Frankford, told the group that a cheque for $931 had been sent to the Trenton headquarters. The Brighton raised $1,001, but expenses in connection with the drive were subtracted.

James Duncan, president of the Trenton unit, commended Mr. Bonter on the success of the drive and praised the individual canvassers.

Mrs. Wm Platt, education chairman, told the ladies present that home-sewn dressing gowns and bed jackets or knitted bed socks would be welcomed at the Princess Margaret Lodge in Toronto, for the use of cancer patients.

Mrs. Platt showed the group two interesting colored films and a social hour brought the evening to a close.

Life Is Dangerous

Francis Lamphier, a 12-year-old Toronto boy, died Sunday when he failed to unhook a freight train on a bridge in Toronto. There were two tracks on the bridge, and the boy could have saved himself by stepping across to the other track but he tried to run, and he died.

During the weeks to come, we will hear from various groups about the danger of children playing on railroad tracks. We will hear about parents who permit their children to play near railroad property, and we will hear about railroad property that is not properly fenced in.

Almost everybody, excepting the railroad, will ignore the fact that the bridge had been there for forty years, and children had played on it for forty years, before anyone was killed.

And nobody will accept the fact that death is a natural end to life, and regrettable though it is, will continue to be so.

We live in a dangerous world. At one time the danger might have been wolves, wild Indians or being lost in the bush. The day may come when the danger is malfunctioning robots going beserk. Nowadays, it is traffic, railway trains, water and almost everything else in normal life.

The point is that the world will never be safe, and everything we do to make it safe breeds a new danger of its own. If the five boys crossing the bridge Sunday had been unable to cross the bridge, they might have tried to swim the river, or float across it on a raft. If there had been a footbridge to provide access to the old boathouse they were heading for, they might have fallen off. If they had reached the boathouse, they might have been killed or injured playing in it.

The only security the world can possibly offer lies in the minds of men. Children will adjust to living with danger, if they are not overly protected from it; it is part of the nature of man that has kept him alive until now.

If Francis Lamphier had been told that some day he might be caught on the same railroad bridge with a train, and how to act when the time came, he might be alive today.

Trains, for instance, clear the bottom of their roadbed by nearly 18 inches. There is plenty of room for a full grown man, or a boy, to lie flat on a track and allow a train to pass safely over him, if he knows his head down. The noise would be frightening, but not dangerous.

In this case, there was plenty of room for the boys to step onto the next track and wait for the train to pass. Instead, they ran, without even taking time to check the actual danger.

Accidents will continue to happen, and people will continue to die, and other people will continue to demand safety precautions. But let us not forget that safety is a function of a mind oriented to danger.

Heel Trouble

The Ontario Court of Appeal has ruled that women who wear spike heels do so at their own risk.

This seems little enough to demand. Spike heels have wrought havoc with many a floor. For women who wear them to demand that, instead of being expected to pay for the damage they do, they should be eligible to collect from the owners of these floors if some minor flaw results in their normal teetering, turning to tottering, is a little bit too much.

We should be sorry, though to see the Ontario Court of Appeal decision result in women abandoning spike heels. These heels are silly, they must result in the distortion of women's feet and they punch holes in all but the very hardest surfaces. The only thing that can be said in their favor is that women's feet look good in them. And we are all for women looking lovely. So are women. Their natural vanity will probably result in them continuing to wear these heels, even though they must do so at their own risk.

In the unlikely event, though, that this court ruling makes women hesitate to place themselves on these little pedestals, we suggest an insurance scheme of, as a last resort, a tag day for casualties of the heels. Surely no male with 20-20 vision would object to contributing a quarter.

There are all sorts of weed seeds specially equipped with parachutes and landing gear, which will enable them to "touch down" on your newly dug soil. Before you are aware of their presence, their tap roots will be firmly established in the soil you so carefully prepared. If the first wave should miss their objective, you can rest assured there will be strong "reinforcements" to follow, because nature is always lavish in its methods of reproduction.—British gardening expert, Jim Middleton.

Savage Campaign Cartoons Irritate Prime Minister

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has been fretting about some of those campaign cartoons . . . and who could blame him?

A few have been so savage . . . in such shocking bad taste . . . as to be almost indecent.

It must be something of a letdown for the luminary cast on the campaign trail these days when, for the first time, we meet the politicians in the flesh.

After all these weeks, even months, of seeing those mad distortions in the crazy-mirrors of the political cartoonists . . . suddenly to discover that the faces of John Diefenbaker and Mike Pearson are almost ordinary.

And while it may be more realistic to confirm what they must have known all along . . . that Finance Minister Fleming doesn't REALLY look like a slightly demented gap-toothed pumpkin . . . or that Trade Minister Hees couldn't ACTUALLY double for the unsavory early riverboat gambler . . . it can't be as much fun, although, depending on which side of the political fence they're on, more reassuring.

NOT QUITE THE SAME

Disappointing or heartening, too — again depending on their political point of view — to find out, face to face, that Liberal Leader Pearson isn't quite the bow-tied cute-pie that the cartoonists would have them believe.

People in the Capital here are in a preferred position most of the time to see the politically great and near-great whenever they care to look around.

To them, John Diefenbaker, Mike Pearson, Paul Martin, Donald Fleming and most of the other political personalities from Parliament Hill are little more than friends and neighbors . . . in just ordinary folk, really.

Ordinary folks, that is, all except J. W. "Jolly Jack" Pickersgill, who looks like Jolly Pickersgill in the flesh and the cartoons.

For when they appear in caricature, they know that someone has made the political grade as a "Famous Figure."

They frame the cartoons . . . or at least, most of them — and display them on their office and rumpus-room walls.

DEEP COLLECTS

The Prime Minister has an astounding collection of them on the walls of his reception room at 24 Sussex Drive, where the Golden Labrador dog, Cleo, shares space with the many caricatures of his easy-to-cartoon master.

Few of his visitors can prevent anything approaching a flattering likeness of the Prime Minister. But most have been done in the spirit of good, clean fun if polonies . . . political or not . . . so he appears to enjoy them . . . or at almost.

Only occasionally, when he has been confronted by some particularly savage caricature, has he been troubled by some doubts.

On those occasions he has been heard to remark that otherwise people might wonder if he is human when they see some of the more outrageous political cartoon caricatures.

Occasionally, he even disposed to go along with the cartoonists . . . but only so far . . . for there is a point of no return beyond which a caricature becomes downright nasty, plain bad, and often atrocious taste.

People don't mind, as Oliver Cromwell didn't either, having a wart on the nose in a picture or portrait . . . or cartoon.

It is when the wart is distorted to the size of grapefruit . . . and far beyond eye, shooting distance of the subject . . . that the question of taste arises.

INSTANT CARTOON

That hair . . . with its slash of light streaks on the top of the head with the contrasting color at the sides . . . makes him a natural for the caricature.

The eyes, the out of the jaw, everything combine to make the PM at once familiar in almost any caricature.

Of all the politicians, the PM comes closest to being the "instant cartoon."

And this can be both an advantage and a handicap . . . for while he has built into the editorial page cartoon with regularity . . . sometimes the goodness of his caricature.

His face, lacking some of the sharply distinctive features of the Diefenbaker, nevertheless doesn't lend itself so readily to be said in which some of the more brutally imaginative cartoonists work.

Seeing, too bad, or maybe it is just as well that the politicians aren't always as funny as frenied or fatuous as the cartoonists make out . . . but then reality seldom does come up to the imagination . . . and facial fact is never a carbon copy of fancy.

Stockholders Like to Eat

Des Moines Tribune

The best way to draw a crowd is to offer a meal, preferably free. Even corporate stockholders like it as much as than they like to hear about their investments. That's the experience of American Telephone and Telegraph company.

The last three ATT annual meetings have packed in from 11,000 to 20,000 apparently hungry stockholders. Box lunches for that kind of crowd finally became a logistical challenge that the company felt itself no longer capable of facing. It was announced, well in advance of the 1962 meeting, that there would be no food of any kind.

The result: A turnout of only 3,200 who rattled around in the 10,000-seat armory which had been rented on the assumption that stockholders were interested in the company's progress.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

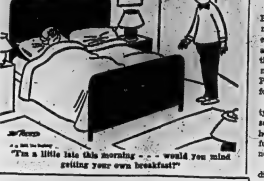
NAVIGATION BY THE STARS



When navigation began many centuries ago sailors crept only from one point of land to another. Sometimes we did they venture out of sight of land. It was only when men began to sail by the stars that navigation, as we know it today, became possible.

People without religious faith have to creep through life, darting from one circumstance to the next. Such people are guided almost wholly by expediency. Life for them is not a voyage, their sails rent with the breeze, the prow of their ship carelessly plowing the waves. Neither do they have some distant port in mind. Their lives consist of a series of petty little objectives to be attained by steadily darting from one point of safety to another. Christ came into the world to give people faith in life, and deeper abundantly. For a person genuinely religious, life is a voyage to a distant port. There will be storms. There will be nights when it is darkness, black and fearful. But about the Christian's whole life there is a conviction and a sense of purpose and trust which arises from the fact that he sails his ship by the stars and knows for a certainty that because these stars are eternal, his voyage will not fail.

Look up for guidance — not out but up — on the turmoil and chaos of the world. Happiness is sure only for those who make life a voyage and life eternal the distant harbor toward which the prow is set.

He was named Teddy Doran of Grove Street, dove into the water above the dam, but was unable to reach the boy before he went over the dam.

Who Wants Welfluence?

Sherbrooke Record

They're at it again! Those word chefs.

In a single issue of a sedate United States newspaper, discussing the economy, the columns brought forward two brand new words: "disemployment" and "welfluence."

Disemployment is in itself a horrible, if somewhat comparative-ly new word, automation and according to its proponents it means the decrease in employment associated with increased productivity.

But lest this definition prove too technical, the alternative suggested is: The total decline in employment associated with the decline in unskilled labor.

However, for the benefit of the extremely stupid, as are presented by most of us, it means jobs lost through the introduction of automatic machinery.

Similarly "welfluence" is rather hard to, decline, for it is described as the condition which exists when the welfare state transforms itself into the affluent society. It results when welfare payments on one form or another make it more profitable for a man or woman to loaf than to seek employment.

Regardless of the economic or political implications of these fun words, they do illustrate the claim that the English is a living and growing language.

Some of the words which make their appearance from time to time certainly be monstrosities, but sometimes they do serve a real purpose.

For an example, a Canadian politician who recently described his opponent was suffering from "intellectual silvosis" explained the disease this way:

"Gathering of dust in that part of the head which houses the brain in an ordinary individual."

Plumbers Ask $6.50 an Hour

Hamilton Spectator

Plumbers in Nefl York are polishing up contract demands for a new agreement that will raise in pay from $5.20 to $6.50 an hour, provide seven paid holidays a year instead of one, and some other fringe benefits.

The 25-hour week now, won by 9,000 construction electricians after a eight-day strike last January, has apparently inspired the plumbers' union to seek for shorter hours. The bricklayers' union, whose contract ran out at the end of May, is demanding a six-hour day. Plumbers and bricklayers have been working a seven-hour day.

There are 200,000 craftsmen in the New York $1,250,000,000-a-year construction trade. It is predicted that the short week is going to be one of the major items in the forthcoming round of bargaining.

One of the rather neat little things the New York unions have been practising has been the limiting of apprenticeship in skilled industries to sons of present members.

All of which makes one think. We are not sure of what.

Perhaps $176 a week doesn't mean great affluence for a man living in New York, but there must be thousands of people to whom it looks like wealth indeed. Twenty-five hours a week isn't enough hours for an ambitious man to work, or for a nation to expect from its workers if it wishes to continue to compete with nations whose people work twice as long for a quarter as much.

To Your Good Health

Bell's Palsy Is Paralysis Of the Facial Nerves

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have Bell's Palsy. It started with a mild earache and watery right eye, then a sort of numbness across my cheek bone. Why do the tears from my eye burn so much? How long does Bell's Palsy last, and what can I do for it? — M.J.

Your description is quite typical of the way Bell's Palsy sometimes starts. Some cases, however, are much more painful than others, and the numbness is preferable.

The ailment is the result of a disorder of the facial nerve, and it can be caused by infection, injury, from surgery in the mastoid area, a generalized illness such as diabetes, or (some believe) from such things as cold, since many cases seem to follow exposure to a cold draft. I doubt whether cold does it alone, but it may trigger a case that is ready to start anyway.

Bell's Palsy usually comes on suddenly but doesn't always depart the same way. It can be a day. Duration varies: Some cases clear up in a few days or weeks, some take many months or more.

Recovery may be hastened by warm applications to the face, Vitamin B, mild electrical stimulation and other forms of physiotherapy that your doctor may prescribe.

Because the eyelid (this ailment does not affect one side of the face usually) does not close completely, the eye tends to dry, and the stinging is the result of the body trying to protect it by a flow of tears. It is important to protect the eye, especially at night. Your doctor may suggest moistening the eye with a bland oil, and often a patch is used to protect the eye from injury.

In particularly painful cases that go on and on, specialists sometimes paralyze the nerve temporarily by injections, which sometimes is referred to as "exchanging the pain for numbness."

In extreme cases, sometimes the nerve is cut for the same purpose, but this leaves permanent numbness and is a last resort rather than a first one.

Be thankful that your case is not one of the more severe kinds, and keep after the measures that speed recovery.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes brown spots on the skin and what can be done about the spots, as big as pin heads, that look like what they are and I can't call them. Is it a lack of vitamins? — Mrs. R.H.

Both spots are common enough, and harmless — and if you look carefully, you'll see that others your age have the same things. Brown spots of pigment accumulate in the skin especially among people who have been much exposed to sun and wind. Pin-head spots are accumulations of tiny capillaries, very small blood vessels. They are just skin blemishes that don't really matter. No, they aren't caused by a lack of vitamins.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have one of those wonderful but stubborn husbands who insists on me and the children seeing the doctor at the slightest pain.

For three months he has a cold that has gotten progressively worse — we go through this every winter. The new problem is that he has been perspiring profusely.

Please tell me what to do. My husband keeps asking me what's wrong with him. — Mrs. J.D.

Your husband ought to see his doctor and have a chest X-ray. Tuberculosis, although gradually being conquered, is not an obsolete disease. A lingering cough from a "winter cold" can be a sign of lung cancer or some lesser disease. It's ridiculous that a man can be so solicitous about his family and yet refuse to go to the doctor himself. He should, and soon, for his family's sake, and anyway.

What do you know about your heart? Simply, calmly, and palpably, Dr. Molner has booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart." Write to him in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 128, Dundee, Ill., asking for your copy of the valuable booklet, enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Ask Another Pelican

Chicago Tribune

The Berlin talks were still in session and there was burning and the Yanks were getting ready to land in Thailand because that dumbbell formed Commons of a more delicate attitude. Let's get over to home, in fact right in St. James' park, not far from parliament.

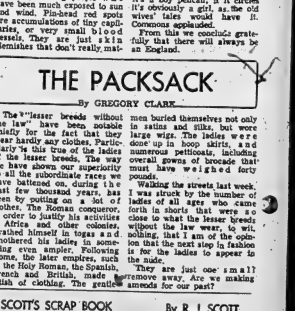
It was a question of Daphne, beautiful American girl, Paul, the handsome Patriotai. Or was it Paul, the handsome American girl, Daphne, the lovely oriental? Their romance was delicate, but the hero and heroine were pelicans and the minister reported himself at a loss. I know what he means in this boy-meets-girl pool-side idyl. The minister is not a pelican.

One member suggested that the minister call them Paul and Paul and then Daphne. If the cork swings back and forth it's a boy pelican; if it circles it's obviously a girl, as the old wives' tales would have it. Common applauded.

From this we conclude, gratefully, that there will always be an England.

THE PACKSACK

—By GREGORY CLARK



The "dresser breeds without the law" have been attacked chiefly for the fact that they wear hardly any clothes, particularly is this true of the ladies of the "dresser breed." But what we have shown our superiority to all the subordinate races we have learned in the course of the past few thousand years, has been by putting on more and more clothes. The Roman conqueror, in order to justify his activities in Africa and elsewhere, bewigged himself in togas and other draperies, and the conquering even ampler, Following Rome, the later empires, such as the Holy Roman, the Spanish, French and British, made ample fetish of clothing. The gentlemen buried themselves not only in satin and silks, but in very large wigs. The ladies were literally lost in yards and yards of pounds.

Walking the streets last week, I was struck by the number of ladies of all ages who came forth in clothes that were so close to what the lesser breeds without the law wear, to spell, nothing, that I am of the opinion that the next step in fashion will have the ladies appear in the nude.

There are just one small remove away. Are we making amends for our past?

A Lift For Living

Self-Discipline, Prayer Ease Unexpected Shocks

By Dr. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Jesus used some striking figures in advocating prepared-ness for the crises of life. For example, He used the symbol of lightning. He said, "As the lightning cometh forth from the east and is seen even unto the west, so shall be the coming of the Son of Man. Yes, life has its lightning changes.

Events may move along as regularly as the rising and the setting of the sun. Then suddenly clouds appear. The air becomes electric with tension. There is a flash, a crash. Maybe the only result is that the air is cleared, a new goodness fills our spirits, and our tears dry as the rain drops on the dripping leaves. Or maybe the lightning has struck something. And a cherished plan, a home, a child lies stricken.

The first telephone call which came to my home on New Year's morning was from a home in which the clouds of sickness were clearing and a sunny future seemed assured. A wife was recovering her health and, together with her stalwart husband and year old son, was looking forward to a happy home. But the husband and father who went to sleep saying, "What a happy New Year this is to be!" never awoke. Life is like that.

ARE WE READY?

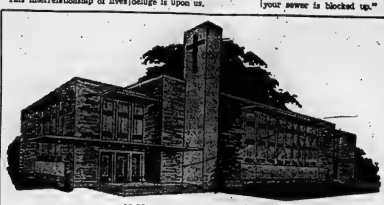
Strokes like that do come, as unpredictable as lightning. An accident may come hurtling into us tomorrow, crippling our plans. Or a temptation may flash upon us and in a hot quick moment we shall have to make a decision. Would we be ready for such emergencies, ready as the sailor who is trained to seize the right rope when disaster strikes the ship?

Professor Peabody of Harvard was wont to say that the heroism of the moment, the doing of the noble and brave thing in the hour of crisis, is the result of long discipline. The sudden crisis reveals in a moment what we have been becoming through the months and years. As one has put it, "No man has more religion than he can command in an emergency." One of the basic differences between a truly religious man and a non-religious man is that the former faces his crises easily because he has prepared himself in advance, while the latter takes crises hard because he has been living too easily and thoughtlessly beforehand.

In addition to the figure of lightning, Jesus used the symbol of flood in preparing for life's crises. There do come floods in the stream of life. They do not come as swiftly as the flash of lightning. When the storm has subsided, and the rain has ceased, then the flood begins to make itself felt. For floods are caused not merely by the rain which falls on our region, but also by what falls on the lands which drain into ours. So with life. So many crises into ours that we are involved in what happens to them. This is the truth which Ellen Glasgow in "Vein of Iron" made her heroine see, as she beheld her whole family affected by her tragedy and exclaimed, "That is the greatest injustice in life — we cannot suffer anything alone, not even in disgrace.

COME IN TORRENTS

This interrelationship of lives explains in part why troubles so often seem to come in torrents. We say, "It never rains but it pours." Our difficulties do seem to come in a deluge, for back up in the tributaries of our lives things have been happening, too, and their results pour into ours.



Sometimes the crises come as a flood when all seems fair around us. Abbe Dimnet reminds us that on the sunny Sunday afternoon in 1914 when the news reached Paris that an Austrian Archduke had been shot, most of the Frenchmen on the boulevards hardly gave it more than a passing thought, for the attention that day was on the running of the Grand Prix at the Longchamps race course. The killing of the duke was the bursting of a dam which released the pent-up hatreds which had been pouring into European hearts. Life is like that, a little thing lets loose the flood and a deluge is upon us.

In the midst of little troubles we can bestir ourselves by saying, "Brace up now and be a man." But when troubles flood upon us, merely bracing up will not keep our heads above water. Then we need to pray with the Psalmist, "Lead me to the rock that is higher than I."

If we are to be prepared for emergencies, we need self-discipline, Yes, And more. We must know the way to the sources of divine help.

Music Recital Much Enjoyed At Albert

In his introductory words of welcome at Albert College Memorial chapel on Friday evening, the Principal of the school, Rev. J. Alastair Haig paid tribute to the late Egerton Boyce, who was associated with the Albert College Conservatory of music as a teacher, of piano, voice and organ for several years, and who was greatly missed.

The occasion was the annual recital of the music students of Miss Marjorie Woodard, A. Mus. (MeGill). The program was varied with solos, duets and quartets as the piano and vocal numbers with all the young performers giving most creditable presentations. Their efforts showed the results of practice and study, the quartets being especially pleasing to listen to. The numbers were well received by the audience who responded with their applause.

"The harp . . . has language for me."—from an old Welsh song.

* * *

We continue with Miss Dilling's letter to Mrs. John Deacon, 221 John Street. Many interested readers recall hearing Mildred Dilling, the famed harpist, when she played in Belleville several years ago. She writes:

Hong Kong, a free port, is a bustling place. So is Japan. I had just been there five weeks under the auspices of our Cultural Exchange Program, and the Japanese Harp Association. They filled my schedule (but utterly!) with radio, TV, recitals galore, six appearances with three excellent orchestras, and one lecture in the very latest of auditoriums, the modernistic conference room in the new Festival Hall.

There, before several hundreds, mostly harpists, I talked about my collection and played on the eight harps I took with me, as well as on two greatly improved Irish harps which are being made in Japan, and which are so inexpensive that the harp is sweeping the country and is being taught in many schools from primary to university level.

The makers gave me their finest harp with their name and mine in Japanese painted in gold on the harp. I bought their smaller-type harp also, to take home. Another interesting session with all the harpists was a so-called workshop afternoon, when I introduced them to the Renle School harp technique.

Even the teacher, Joseph Molnar from Vienna, a remarkable and charming young man who has started this great enthusiasm for the harp during the past eight years, wants to know about this relaxed way of playing for himself and his pupils. They have begged me to stop in Tokyo between planes on my way home and are urging me to come back soon to teach them more.

I love Japan and living in the Imperial Hotel in Tokyo. Each time I went off to play in Sapporo (northern tip of Japan), Kobe, Osaka, where I had a day and a half of visiting temples and shrines, or Sendai, it was like coming home, to be back at the Imperial Hotel in Tokyo.

In Japan I met Mrs. Takaki and her daughter, a graduate of Principia College in Elsah, Illinois. Mrs. Takaki has been lady-in-waiting to the Empress for 35 years — ever since she was Crown Princess. After hearing my recital she told the Empress about it and the Empress wanted to have me play for her. However, since she has no control over her busy schedule, she was only able to listen to a TV performance and later telecasted Mrs. Takaki to tell her she was fascinated.

She yearned to just touch a harp! I told Mrs. Takaki that I had located a beautiful Lyon and Healy concert harp in the Imperial Palace music room under a stair case, when I was invited there for a program by the Imperial musicians and dancers. The harp hadn't been touched for years and in case was covered with dust. The Empress now knows she has a harp she can touch.

Probably no traveller in the Far East has been fewer sights than I have, but I feel I have made many new friends and have been a part of the musical life of Japan. Every orchestra, every society, TV studio and radio, for whom I played gave me a handsome parcel of gifts — pearls, woodcarvings, lacquer work, paintings, a mask and always great bunches of flowers at the end of concerts presented by little girls or big girls in colorful Kimonos, bowing very deeply.

Since I came to the Orient, there has never been a day that my room hasn't been full of flowers. In Indonesia, they always give roses and orchids — long sprays of orchids which lasted weeks in my air-conditioned studio. In Malaya, in Singapore, they were all sorts of summer and fall flowers.

I should retract my plaint that no visitors have been fewer sights than I. Enroute from Malaya to Japan I took off two days from duty for a sightseeing trip to Angkor Vat in Cambodia, climbing around those incomparable ruins — and whizzing down avenues of ancient trees in a motorcycle cortart for a more intimate inspection of a few of the hundreds of temples . . . After dinner I watched a rehearsal of very young beautiful girl dancers accompanied by 8 native musicians on their teacher's front porch. Before starting off in the morning had an elephant ride and . . . then joined two riders for more strenuous sight seeing.

Going Places

Section of Washington Retains Old-Time Charm

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Washington — To many travellers, Washington is a city once a gracious and lovely city, and a strangely cold one, it is often compared to Paris for its tree shaded boulevards punctuated by circles where history's great are commemorated in stone and bronze. Its imposing Government buildings are impressive and dignified.

Yet there is a uniformity and a sense of impersonality about Washington that deprives it of much personality. Unlike other great cities, most of the people come from someplace else and eventually will go back there. There is no Chinatown, no Montmartre, no Soho or Beacon Hill. With one tiny exception.

That exception is a ten square block area in the northwest corner of the city known as Georgetown, a fiercely independent last stronghold of traditionalism. Georgetown is, in effect, the "old city" of Washington, and it was a thriving place when the Capitol was still a swamp.

Its colonial times tobacco trade were shipped down the Potomac from here via the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, one of the first in the country. It cool courses, quiet and abandoned, among the ruins of the waterfront, a favorite haunt of naturalists and amateur historians.

When history bypassed Georgetown in the 19th century the area became a slum. Its handsome examples of Federal architecture, with unique salmon colored scored bricks—and fanshaped doorways—were divided into disrepair. Inevitably the speculators swung their interest in restoration grew. By a few years ago, Georgetown had become one of the most exclusive residential area in the United States.

Nearly everybody who is anybody in Washington — some of the most powerful people on earth — either lives in Georgetown or would like to. Most of the elite press corps and Government figures like Allen Dulles, Stuart Symington and Welfare Secretary Abraham A. Ribicoff are numbered among them. In other days, were the Kennedys and the Nixons. Government overfly grandees here, too, piling seven into an apartment so they can afford it. Property values are so high that a member of the Kennedy clan, looking for a place to live for a house a while back because there was "nothing decent" under $250,000.

Though Georgetown is technically part of Washington, residents are so influential that they control virtually all their own affairs and operate on their own light. A Georgetown, D.C. mailing address is quite legal as are traditional street names. A shingle hand painted in colonial lettering with "Prince Street" is, after all, much less troublesome than 2210 N.W. 23rd. Georgetown also has its own newspaper and social customs.

The shops, many of them in the trees and facades and atmosphere preserved, under the watchful eye of Washington's Fine Arts Commission, without whose approval absolutely nothing can be changed.

Hardly anything ever is. Gas lamps still illuminate the streets and housefronts, their tops carefully removed so they flicker jitingly. Nothing would be less surprising than to see a horse-drawn coach stop down "M" St., as it might have in the eighteenth century when Washington's only accommodations for Congressmen were in Georgetown's Union Hotel.

"N" Street, probably the most fashionable in the tiny area, still has its original cobbled streets and frame houses, which are required to be painted regularly. Some of the loveliest of Georgetown's famed walled gardens are here also, the objects of annual pilgrimages.

Still surviving — and thriving also, are some of the last of the neighborhood groceries, as well as quaint shops of odd description — saddleries, fabric stores and the like.

Tourists are about the last things Georgetowners want (only a small sightseeing buses permitted on the streets). It took effort tantamount to monkeyshines and sex to get a hotel in Georgetown, but that's exactly what opened last fall with the most somber grudging approval of the Fine Arts Commission.

Knowing that only a unique place would satisfy the rich buyers that he knew, Chicago entrepreneur Julius Epstein is remodelling stalling Georgetown Inn "the most luxurious in the country." It has floor butlers like a European hotel, the help is liveried in colonial costumes, and the rooms are furnished with four-posters, Kennedy rockers and TV sets housed in colonial style cupboards. Message slips read "Whilst You Were Out," though signs that identified "Ye Olde Stairway" mercifully were painted out.

This one is of crepe and has a short jacket with jewel neckline and elbow sleeves. Its skirt is short and slender.

A thin layer of polyurethane foam laminated to the underside of the fabric converts the crepe to suiting weight while keeping it supple, durable and figure-flattering.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a case history of problems encountered by the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counsellors and social workers.

Gayle M. — Three years ago I married for the second time. I have two young sons by my first husband. Jeff is a construction worker and often spends Monday-to-Friday in hotels near the sites. However, no job lasts long for him because he's an alcoholic, a fact that became clear to me after our first year together. That's when I left him, but I returned when he joined my church and promised never to drink again, in accordance with my faith.

But he still drinks, whenever he's away from home. He goes into bar fights. Recently I was called at 2:30 A.M. because he got his head cut. He gets very mean to my boys, and his promises are useless. Then, to make up, he buys me showy things like air conditioners and a $700 ring, when we need food. Between jobs we live on Unemployment Insurance or Child Welfare cheques. My legs are going numb and the doctor says it's because half of me wants to run away and half wants to stay. I'm sorry for Jeff.

Jeffrey M. — Gayle is just a prim bitse-nose. She won't join me in any fun over the weekends, and she has a fit if she finds out I had a little diversion after work on the weekdays. I don't but in on her and I think I have a right to do as I please while on the job. As long as I bring home the money she's supposed to get, what I do is my affair.

I've begged her to come along with me on weekends, to go dancing and have a drink or two. It would do her a world of good, make her more fun. If I knew I could look forward to her company, I wouldn't drink at all during the week.

But the way things are, she drives me to drink. And when I try to show her my love by buying something nice, she sniffs, she says it's for show, not for love, and not to waste money. I wish her religion made her more loving. All she cares about is church, money and her children.

The Council: One well-known fact emerges here: An alcoholic's money — if it's up to him — is for only two things, liquor and petty offerings. Food isn't important to him and he may not consider it important for his family either — probably so important, say, as a big glass of lemonade for saying "I'm sorry."

But this difficult marriage has improving matters for anyone, the alcoholic or his family. Evidently Jeff was a moderate drinker or a mild social imbiber when Gayle married him, and his descent is over-drinking indicates his effor to escape or to find warm satisfactions from a bleak world. At the time of marriage, Gayle may not have been so rigid an adherent of the no-dance, no-drink tenets of her religious sect. At any rate, the extreme positions each has taken now — he for his only wife drinking and dancing, she for milk-toast sobriety — could not have been present three years ago. Else they'd not have married each other, since they were presumably sane then!

The present impasse appears insoluble because each is asking the other to do something impossible. Jeff can't stop drinking. Gayle can't go dancing and drinking with him. He's caught in the alcoholic spin, and she's bound by her religious scruples. But a smack-up's around the corner unless each seeks help, whether via A.A. (for Jeff) or AlAnon (for Gayle) or a mental health clinic.

A direct word to each, here-with: Jeff, if you were h burglar would you ask Gayle to be one, too? You imply you'd love her more if she's become an alcoholic like you! No, respect her qualms. With help you'll find enjoyment in other kinds of fun, some of them Gayle's kind.

And Gayle, a recent study turned the spotlight on the wives of alcoholics and found them to be frequently to blame for the condition), enjoying the martyrdom of having a problem mate, doing nothing constructive to help him achieve control. Show you're not one of these. Do your part.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

NOTEWORTHY JOTTINGS

For an invention that's been around so long, the elevator still poses a few problems of etiquette to many persons anxious to practise good manners, no matter where.

The most recurrent question put to me is whether or not a man should remove his hat if he's starting the elevator with one or more women.

If he's in an office building, he doesn't have to. It's probably preferable that he doesn't, if the elevator is jammed. But it's definitely the right thing to do if he's in an apartment house elevator, and this applies if he's riding with neighbours he knows or with total strangers.

Some men feel insulted, even if they're in a crowded office building elevator, to move back and allow women passengers to exit first. Other men have complained of this custom, particularly when they've had their toes mashed by those eager to do the right thing.

It would seem that women in industry have become hardened to the facts of business life and that, they don't look for all the small courtesies in an office building that they would expect elsewhere. Since it's simpler for the man near the door to get off first, why shouldn't he?

Again, however, good manners prevail in an apartment house elevator, and the woman should be permitted to enter and leave first.

The final tidbit of elevator courtesy we don't see a result block. In other words, don't stand near the door and force people on intermediate floors to go through or over you to get to the elevator.

Ever wonder how thoughtful friends and relatives remember you had your children on anniversaries and birthdays?

They keep a diary, that's how. It's a good idea to make a note of significant dates in the lives of good friends, possibly even important business contacts. There's a note of pleasure as you write down when the recipient of the gift or card says: "How nice of you to remember my birthday!"

In any good stationery store you can get a little memo book which is broken down into months and even days.

The book will turn out to be particularly useful to husbands who forget their own anniversaries.

Under the heading of keeping records, it's also smart for the hostess who entertains frequently to list the names of her guests and the food she served them.

Guests often have long-range memories which remind them that the last time they visited you they were served the same chicken casserole and dessert.

The fact that they remember is no real criticism of the hostess who, through trial and error, has learned which party dishes are easy to prepare and serve.

But if she values her reputation as cook, she will vary her culinary repertoire and by keeping a guest diary know when and what she served to whom.

She can even repeat a certain dish because her records show that the same group was enthusiastic about it the last time, providing she makes sure that the last time was a long time ago.

Stories of Famous Hymns

BY HORACE P. POWELL

COME THOU ALMIGHTY KING!

Come, Thou Almighty King,
Help us Thy name to sing,
Help us to praise:
Father, all-glorious,
O'er all victorious,
Come and reign over us,
Ancient of Days.

Come, Thou Incarnate Word,
Gird on Thy mighty sword,
Our prayers attend:
Come, and Thy people, bless,
And give Thy word success.
Spirit of holiness,
On us descend.

Come, Holy Comforter,
Thy sacred witness bear
In this glad hour:
Thou who almighty art,
Now rule in every heart,
And ne'er from us depart,
Spirit of power.

To the great One in Three
The highest praises be,
Hence, evermore!
His sovereign majesty
May we in glory see,
And to eternity
Love and adore.

For Christmas whose faith remains Christ each season as they celebrate the anniversary of His resurrection and victory over death, there is no more glorious hymn than "Come, Thou Almighty King!"

Through 300-years it has been a favorite with all church hymn groups and denominations, yet to this day its authorship is in doubt. It probably was composed during the era of the Wesleys, and some authorities give Charles Wesley credit for its composition because it was found in 1757, printed on a little leaflet with two other hymns known to have been written by Wesley. Other authorities suggest that George Whitefield, eminent English preacher, may have been the author.

Whoever the composer was, he gave the world one of its most inspiring lyrics and one which through the years will continue to stand as a bulwark of strength for the religious faith of human kind. Its tune was written in 1789 by Felice de Giardini, a widely known violinist, famous for his work in concerts and as conductor of the Italian Opera in London.

Before Giardini provided the music which has become so popular, the English tune for "God Save The King" was linked with the hymn. The English music also is used by people of the United States for their hymn, "America." Even in the days of the American Revolution, a congregation of patriotic colonists — to the story goes — was at worship in a little church on Long Island when the service was interrupted by the arrival of a company of Hessian troops.

The captain of the company stalked down the church aisle and ordered the church people to sing "God Save The King!" The organist started the tune but the people, true to "the cruse of the American," colonies said to their God, sang the words of the hymn:

"Come, Thou Almighty King! Help us Thy Name to sing."

The soldiers, it was reported withdrew from the chapel without harming the Americans and without attempting to enforce their demand.

Honor Family At Presentation

THOMASBURG Friends and neighbors gathered recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Arbuckle to bid them goodbye as they have purchased a new home near Arden and are leaving the Thomasburg district.

They were presented with a coffee table, two step-up end tables, a mirror and a magazine rack by Mike Mourton who presented with a locket and Cameron with a tie-bar and cuff link set.

A social time was enjoyed after the presentations and the recipients expressed appreciative thanks.

The C.G.I.T. group also gathered in the school for another presentation last Wednesday evening for Miss Arbuckle and Miss Barbara Brough who are leaving Thomasburg, in the near future. They were each presented with corsage from the group.

Barbara and Maureen each thanked the girls, after which a dainty refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Do You Know Where You're Going?

Boys and Girls—If you are among those who have not yet chosen your life's work—read on! You are not alone. Messages like these reach my desk from many parts of Canada:

1. "I am in grade 11 and don't know what I want to be. My mother wants me to go through for a nurse, but I think I would rather be a stenographer."

2. "Would you please tell me where I can find out about purible relations work?"

3. "I know where I can get a job as a gas station attendant. I am not learning any more at school anyway as my teachers are stupid. Don't you think I should leave? My father is against it."

DORIS CLARK

4. "My mother would like me to take librarian's work as she thinks this is a lady-like profession. I'd rather be a hairdresser or a saleslady. My grades are not very good and I wouldn't be able to get through university anyway. How can I decide on what to do?"

The trouble is that for one teen-ager who writes about his or her dilemma, there are dozens who are letting time slide by without doing a thing about it."

Do you realize that your talents can be tabbed? That your own teacher or counsellor can tell you things about yourself which can point you in the right direction?

Do you know that an insatiable curiosity about how people's minds work may mean that you could be a world beater when it comes to law, social work, psychology, theology? On the other hand, there are jobs that were made for the student who knows mathematics or has a passion for history.

You may think that just because your uncle is a doctor and you admire him, you should be one too. Or you may think that your mother's ambition for you to be a teacher—because that was what she wanted to be and wasn't—that that settles it.

Perhaps you want a job with big money. Or lots of glamor—like a movie actress for instance. Perhaps to be a TV announcer sounds positively dreamy.

Actually, there's work, plenty of it, involved in any career worth thinking about. If you choose the one which makes the best use of your own native talents, there will be plenty of glamor in it for you.

When a counsellor takes you in hand he will consider several things. School marks, your past record in school and out, what you do when you're on your own, and perhaps what your mother and dad have to say about your inclinations. He will spot the clues and make them all add up for you.

A strong interest can overcome serious obstacles. And a special set of the mind can be used in one of a dozen vocations. The counsellor will direct the general lines of your thinking, and you make the final choice.

WHAT DO YOU WANT IN A JOB?

All right. What do you expect out of a job? Don't you want the satisfaction that comes with doing something to improve the world you live in? You don't have to be the Prime Minister or the Mayor, or even a first rate welfare worker. You can lay bricks and be building for the future. Or by typing letters you can carry an important part of the load of a business executive. Everything else—money, glamor, handling people, what have you—comes secondary to the satisfaction of using your best talents in a worth while job.

A decision made now can give thrilling purpose to the next few years. When you know exactly what you are going to, you will settle down in earnest. You will determine to master those subjects you need—be they ever so demanding. And when you get sailing along on your chosen course you may surprise yourself at just how good you are.—DORIS.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO BEWITCHED, BOTHERED AND BEWILDERED:—As I see it you are unsulled in two areas of life—one has to do with your boy friend, the other with your career. The vocational counsellor at your school can help you with the one. Whether or not you could go to university would have to be decided by looking at your aptitudes and interests.

It upsets you to see the old boy friend, and this will eventually settle itself when you grow up a little more. The fact that you daydream is all part of growing pains. Once you begin considering vocations and have worked your way through to a decision about this, other things will fall into place.

Be nice to all the boys. Show yourself friendly and sociable. Dress your best and quit worrying about yourself so much. Life is for living.

* * *

TO MRS. H.—Sorry, but R. W. lives many hundreds of miles from you. Have you talked to your National Employment Office about your needs?

(Write to Doris about your own vocational problem. Canadian resources for choosing a career can help you.)

Voters Have Extra Hour to Cast Ballots

OTTAWA (CP) — Voters will have one extra hour to cast ballots June 18 than in the last 11 federal elections.

Polls will be open "for 11 hours, from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. local standard time—or 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. local daylight time in many sections of the country.

There is an exception for British Columbia where daylight time is in effect but is legally called standard time, where the polls will be open — 8 a.m. 7 p.m. PDT.

In 11 elections from 1921 to 1958 polls were open 10 hours, from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. In the 11 elections from 1874 to 1917 they were open eight hours, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. There were no standard voting hours in Canada's first two elections, 1867 and 1872, which extended over several weeks.

Because Canada stretches through seven different time zones, voting will begin and end 3½ hours later in the Yukon than in Newfoundland. Newfoundland is half an hour ahead of the Maritimes and the Yukon is normally one hour behind British Columbia.

SAME VOTING HOURS

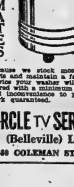
However, because of the special arrangement for B.C. it will close its polls two hours before those in the Yukon. And the polling times of polls in Alberta and in most parts of Saskatchewan will be the same as British Columbia.

Where a constituency lies within two time zones, its returning officer determines which time shall apply, subject to approval of the chief electoral officer, Nelson Castonguay.

Saskatchewan is the province most affected by the double-time situation as it has 17 constituencies lie in both Central and Mountain time zones. For voting purposes, two of the nine — Rosthern and Yorkton — will operate on Central time. Mountain time will apply in the remaining seven—Assiniboia, Humboldt - Melfort, Thisdale, Mackenzie, Moose Mountain, Qu'Appelle and The Battlefords.

The vast Northwest Territories riding, which takes in most of Canada's Arctic regions, will operate on central time, the same as Manitoba, part of Saskatchewan and part of Northwestern Ontario.

NEWFOUNDLAND STARTS



In terms of true time—that is, in relation to Greenwich Mean Time—voting will start first in Newfoundland which is 3½ hours behind GMT. Then come the three Maritime provinces, four hours behind GMT; Quebec and all but one riding in Ontario, five hours behind; Manitoba, two Saskatchewan seats, Kenora - Rainy River in Ontario and the Northwest Territories, six hours behind; 15 Saskatchewan seats, Alberta and B.C., seven hours, Yukon, eight hours.

One result of the longer hours June 18 is that persons living on daylight time areas east of the Manitoba - Saskatchewan boundary aren't likely to know the outcome until at least two hours later, by the clock, than in 1958.

That election was held March 31 when standard time was in effect across the country. Thus the 8 p.m. close in daylight time areas this election is two hours later by the clock than the 6 p.m. that prevailed everywhere four years ago.

In 1956, The Canadian Press reported re-election of the Conservative government at 7:02 p.m. EST, 62 minutes after the polls closed in Quebec and Ontario. Because of the Election Act provision banning publication of results in any province until that province's polls close, the news was made public immediately only in the area from Manitoba, where polls closed two minutes earlier, to Newfoundland, where they had closed two hours and 32 minutes earlier.

In the 1957 election, on June 10 when daylight time was in effect, CP reported at 10:18 p.m. EDT that the Liberals had failed to gain a majority. At 11:55 p.m. EDT it reported election of the Conservatives without an over-all majority.

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Reducing injuries in accidents, teen-age drinking, and new ideas on how nerves and muscles work are in the medical news.

PREPARING FOR CRASH

Tightening up stomach and other muscles may protect you to some degree from internal injuries in case of auto accidents or spills.

A sudden blow when the abdomen is relaxed is more likely to cause internal injuries than when muscles are tightened, says the publication, Therapeutic Notes. People often have some warning of an impending collision or fall.

ALCOHOLIC ROAD

About one in 15 teen-agers is likely to become an alcoholic later in life, an authority on alcoholism warns.

Calling for greater education about this sickness, Dr. Marvin A. Block of Buffalo says drinking in the home should be done exclusively by adults (and never to excess), except for ceremonial drinking, or regular drinking with meals.

In homes where drinking goes with meals, "we see very little alcoholism. Nice children look upon it as part of [illegible]," he writes in Today's Health magazine. Serving youngsters soft drinks in cocktail glasses is dangerous, Dr. Block adds, for "children are not little adults, and it is a mistake to encourage a child to imitate an adult."

NERVE REACTIONS

So says Dr. Albert Szent-Gyorgyi, Hungarian born Nobel prize winner, who suggests that human minds, nerves and muscles may be sparked by swift electrons.

Up to now, he says, scientists have pictured the action of brain cells, nerves and muscles as chains involving chemical reactions in molecules. Now he suggests that molecular reactions are too clumsy, too lumbering, too slow to explain normal responses to what goes on around you, or the speed with which a muscle contracts.

The scientist, who isolated vitamin C and now is engaged in biochemical research, asks how could a 1/1 millionth of molecular reaction trigger an instantaneous response when it has to travel for a series like a row of blocks tumbling down one by one? Especially so, now that it has been demonstrated that a muscle contracts along its entire length, instantaneously.

Something fast would be needed to do that, he says, something which would simultaneously trigger the whole system.

He suggests scientists may profitably study the role of the electron in sparking life reactions. Electrons already have been assigned an important triggering role in the body—in photosynthesis, which plants convert lightenergy into other forms.

GOD IS

I lean upon the garden wall
And looking on my garden small
These foolish words I then recall

SCOHARIE — Mr. and Mrs. Roland Intead enjoyed a couple of days' holidays when they drove the Lindfields to Montreal last week. They also crossed over to Ogdensburg, Mr. and Mrs. Ross McElwee stayed with the Intead children while their parents were away. Mrs. Intead has her little nephew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reg Badgley, with her this week, while his parents are enjoying a week's holiday at Kirkland Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Huff and Miss Louise Huff motored to Montreal on Monday of last week where Louise was joined by a girl friend and they sailed for the British Isles and Europe for several months. Mr. and Mrs. Huff enjoyed a couple of hours on the ocean liner while there, and returned home Tuesday night.

VOTE "NO"

A Statement on The Liquor Question

Facing Tyendinaga Township June 6, 1962

With reference to the local liquor vote to be held in Tyendinaga Township on June 6, 1962, the terms of the by-law are:

1. ARE YOU IN FAVOR OF THE SALE OF LIQUOR UNDER A DINING LOUNGE LICENCE FOR CONSUMPTION WITH MEALS ON LICENSED PREMISES?

2. ARE YOU IN FAVOR OF THE SALE OF LIQUOR UNDER A LOUNGE LICENCE FOR CONSUMPTION ON LICENSED PREMISES?

In both cases we urge responsible citizens to vote NO — "no, we are not in favor of increasing the variety and number of liquor outlets in this township". When you go to the polls, the real question confronting you is "Will this be a better or worse township to live in if outlets for the sale of alcoholic beverages are restricted to those presently allowed by law?" We believe the answer lies in the facts revealed by the recent research of the World Health Organization, under the direction of Dr. E. M. Jellinek. These findings state:

> "The amount of trouble resulting from the drinking of liquor is directly proportionate to the amount of liquor consumed; and the amount consumed is directly proportionate to the facilities offered by law."

Because drinking is responsible for so many of the evils that assail our society, we feel it is important to take our stand against any increase in outlets, for drinking has proved itself to be a habit that will most certainly destroy and debauch many of those who acquire it.

We are thankful that Protestant Christians are not alone in their stand against drinking. Recent statements reflect the concern also of Roman Catholic Christians. The Catholic Digest of October 28, 1961, contains this report from Montreal:

> "Paul Emile Cardinal Leger charged (in Montreal) that in Canada, 'more money is being spent on alcoholic drinks than would be needed to educate all our children'. The Archbishop of Montreal deplored the sympathetic publicity given to liquor in the press, over radio and on television. He said that often this publicity is "indirect", but still has a telling effect. "At the very moment when governments, the society of nations, and all men of international repute are asking us to give bread to the hybrids of humanity, we are drinking their bread", the Cardinal said. "We will only be logical and just when we close a tavern to build a bakery in an underdeveloped country", he added.

Here are some pertinent fact you should know when you vote on Wednesday, June 6th.

- We understand that the cost of conducting this plebiscite falls to the tax-payer of the township, not on the liquor interests.
- It is an established fact that a number of persons within this township have lost their lives in traffic accidents in which liquor was involved.
- Drinking is involved in 50% of the serious highway accidents in this province.
- Approximately 5,000 drinkers become alcoholics every year in Ontario, and there is no way of telling which drinker will become an alcoholic.
- Every Canadian worker labors for three weeks of each year to pay our national drinking bill.

To Those Who DO NOT DRINK:

We appeal to you to maintain your stand, to encourage others to do likewise, and to use your vote against any increase in outlets. VOTE NO.

To Those Who Drink:

Responsible people are fully aware that any so-called "business advantage" to the area is heavily offset by the alarmingly high cost of alcoholic indulgence. We all know that you can already get MORE than all the liquor you require under the present arrangements allowed by law. Additional outlets are unnecessary. You don't need them, we don't want them and neither you nor your families can afford them. We appeal to you to be satisfied with the existing liquor facilities now legally operating and to vote against any increase in outlets. VOTE NO.

- To Protect Life and Limb, VOTE "NO"
- To Protect Cash and Character, VOTE "NO"
- To Protect Friends and Families, VOTE "NO"

Support Active Candidate

Warm Reception at Bata For Liberal Candidate

BATAWA — The 500 workers of the Bata Shoe Company extended a warm greeting to Liberal candidate, Robert Temple, during his recent visit to their plant. It was another of the active campaigner's visit to the industries of Hastings South to become acquainted first hand with their organization, problems and hopes for the future. After meeting the firm's executives, headed by managing director Carl Bata, Mr. Temple visited every department and met every employee in the plant.

During his tour, the active young Liberal candidate found that many expressed a keen interest and support of his ideas on free education for all Canadians. It was also noted that these ideas have never been expressed in the National Liberal Party's program and include a system whereby any needy student with a good school record will receive monetary assistance from the government.

In keeping with the ideal of the integrity of the individual and his ability to forge ahead on his own, this program of financial aid to students provides for its own perpetuation through the repayment of any loans made by their recipients once they graduate and gain employment, Mr. Temple noted.

During his visit Mr. Temple was advised that the company was encountering heavy competition price-wise from the communist countries and there was considerable interest in how this would affect the long range prospects of the firm and its employees.

The Liberal candidate noted that the Hon. Lester B. "Mike" Pearson, leader of the Liberal Party, had had considerable experience in dealing firmly with the communists under trying and difficult circumstances in the United Nations as world recognized evidence of his ability in this field.

A number commented favorably on Mr. Temple's personal knowledge of some of these problems as a result of his recent visit to Russia and other communist countries.

On the Political Front

Liberals Only Effective Alternative - - Pearson

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson, entering the final two weeks of the election campaign, said Friday night in Port William his party is the only effective alternative to the present Conservative administration.

A vote for the Social Credit or New Democratic parties, he said, is a vote for a party which has no real hope of getting a majority in the Commons.

He spoke to about 1,000 people attending a baked bean supper at the Lakehead Exhibition Grounds. At the door of the hall, workers for the NDP passed out socialist party literature.

Mr. Pearson, who returned here late Friday night, drives to Prescottville today for an evening meeting in Leeds' constituency which has a strong Conservative history but elected Liberal John Matheson in a byelection last year.

In Fort William and Port Arthur Friday night, however, Mr. Pearson was in "multi-party territory." Douglas Fisher won Port Arthur for the CCF from Liberal C. D. Howe in 1957 and held it in 1958.

PRAISES HOWE

"The late former trade minister, Mr. Pearson said, "may have had his faults as a politician, but he had no faults as a great builder of Canada." Canada had always "moved forward" under Liberal governments in the past...and would do so again after a Liberal victory June 18, he added.

The first task of a new Liberal government will be to "get back confidence and restore stability" to the dollar, and in the choice facing voters the Liberals are "the only alternative to the present government."

"A vote for any other party is a vote for a party which cannot form a government. The only way you can change to better management is by voting Liberal."

Mr. Pearson, who stopped at the Lakehead en route from a four-day swing through Western Canada and the Yukon made devaluation the major item in his brief supper address.

REJECTS CLAIM

He rejected the government's claim that it devalued and pegged the dollar at 92½ cents in terms of U.S. funds as a carefully planned move to lodger the export business.

"You don't plan this kind of thing to take effect in an election campaign. If it was good for the economy, why didn't the government do it four months ago before spending $500,000,000 out of the exchange fund to try to hold the dollar at 95 cents?

Mr. Pearson noted that $216,000,000 had been spent in May, between the first of the month and May 30, when the government's move was announced.

He concluded that "there was a run on our dollar—a run on confidence in the dollar" which forced the government to peg it, and said the government would find it difficult to maintain the 92½-cent rate.

Social Welfare Depends on Economy - - Diefenbaker

By DAVE MANITOUH

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker warned Friday night that higher production and economic expansion must precede any extension of social welfare programs on the scale of recent years.

He also said Canada will have to adjust its trading patterns to the "probable" entry of Britain into the European Common Market.

He said Canadian trade must extend competitively into continental Europe, Africa, Asia and South America.

Though Britain would do its best to retain Commonwealth trade references, it was "inevitable" that there would have to be "considerable of a readjustment" in at least some industries in all areas of Canada.

STUDY PROBLEM

Studies of this problem now were being made.

Mr. Diefenbaker, speaking before an overflow theatre audience of about 900 persons who waited for more than an hour to hear him, said certain adjustments must be made to assure continued expansion of trade.

With higher production, 4ed-cent budget deficits would "disappear."

"Essential as social welfare programs have been," he said, "without increased production and economic expansion these programs cannot to the same extent continue to be extended."

He said Liberal Leader Pearson had suggested that Canada join the European Common Market. But this group was European and associate members permit the full membership of Canada, with its big agricultural interests and industrial potential?

Mr. Pearson then had suggested an Atlantic trading community, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

CITES PRECEDENCE

Japan had asked whether this would be a "white man's club" and South Africa had objected. Mr. Pearson and drove to Kirkland Lake for an evening meeting.

Today he visits Sudbury and Chelmsford and makes an evening speech at Pembroke before arriving at Ottawa about midnight. There will be a Sunday cabinet meeting and the prime minister will resume his election campaign at Port Hope, Ont., Monday morning.

YEARS OF ASSISTANCE

He said this assistance had been increased by 104 per cent to $9,300,000 between 1957 and 1962. The price of gold now was $35.08 an ounce because of dollar devaluation, an increase of $3.64 since 1957. Employment

Youth Service New Plank in NDP Platform

By SCOTT SCHILL

REGINA (CP)—Federal New Democratic Leader T. C. Douglas, speaking to 250 young party members Friday night, many of whom were not of voting age, outlined a new plank of his election program—a Canadian Youth Service.

The program, by Mr. Douglas' description much like President Kennedy's Peace Corps, was not compared to the United States group.

Mr. Douglas said the service was one of his "pet projects."

The service would be composed of young men and women of all kinds who would volunteer for the service and would be paid by the government under auspices of the United Nations to all parts of the world to aid underdeveloped nations.

"You have to send a group of young people to teach them how to set up, co-operatives, trade unions and show them how to work together," Mr. Douglas said.

The service would provide technical assistance in the fields of agriculture, health, education and resources development.

HELP UNDERPRIVILEGED

The NDP leader, ending a week - long campaign trip through Saskatchewan, said two per cent of Canada's gross national product should be sent to help the underprivileged of the world.

"This is one of our most important responsibilities," he said.

Mr. Douglas also reiterated two topics of the NDP platform of particular interest to the youthful meeting — free education and disarmament.

He said the NDP believes there will never be equality of opportunity until there is equality of opportunity for education.

"We propose to give the provinces the finances necessary to provide an education free to every person from grade one through university and technical and professional schools."

Mr. Douglas said the NDP federal government would also provide living allowance for both single and married students, as well as scholarships, bursaries and grants.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

FEEDING FLEDGLINGS

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

Nestlings require an enormous amount of food for their size. Amazing as it seems to us, one baby robin has been known to eat 68 worms in a day. Instead of using anything as large as a worm, house wrens feed their offspring on spiders and other crawling or flying insects of all sorts. Imagine how many trips a day must be made to feed the family of six or eight babies! But the food intake must equal the speed of growth required, and nestlings grow so fast. Wrens, for instance, emerge from eggs .63 inch long by exactly ¾ inch wide; yet when two weeks old, except for stubby tails, they are almost indistinguishable from their 4¾ inch parents.

Both the type of food and the manner of feeding differ according to the species. A great many songbirds feed their fledglings insects. Besides members of actual flycatcher clan, swallows, warblers, vireos, and many others of this sort are insect eaters. Some seed eaters, such as whipping grosbeaks, even have special pouches in their throats, bring it up whole on regurgitation, and then break it up before giving it to the babies.

Capways, mergansers, shearwaters, kingfishers and others are themselves fish eaters and catch this prey to feed their young. Gruesome like herons and cormorants are among the birds that regurgitate fish for their fledglings, the babies put their bills into the mother's and the food comes up. Hummingbirds bring nectar from flowers to their nests, insert the tip of the tongue into the tiny bill, and squirt, as though using a syringe.

FEED THEMSELVES

Some parents make their youngsters feed themselves. Partridges and grouse scratch up the ground so that insects are exposed and then to pick up; and in somewhat the same way woodcocks dig worms for their babies.

At times parents seem to have difficulty getting their nestlings to eat the food they have brought. They then apparently touch something in the back of the little throat to make the baby swallow.

TO TEST FOR FAULT

OTTAWA (CP)—The possibility of a rare fault in the earth's crust in Canada's Arctic which may contribute to abnormal variations in the earth's magnetic field was disclosed here Thursday. To test this hypothesis, a five-man scientific party will shortly begin experiments near the arctic weather station at Alert on Ellesmere Island.

Bond Markets Down Slightly From Last Week

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian bond markets continued to soften this week with prices down fractionally.

The 91-day treasury bills showed little change on the week and were quoted at 3.53 per cent, down from 3.59 per cent last week. The 182-day bills were quoted at 3.71 per cent, unchanged from last week.

Day-to-day money was available at 2¾ per cent.

On the government market, the Canada 4½-per-cent 1966 issue was quoted at $101.35, the Canada 4¼-per-cent 1983 at $92½ and the CNR five-per-cent 1987 issue at $97.25.

There were no new provincial issues during the week. The Municipality of Metropolitan Toronto came to the market for $20,180,000 in debenture issues. A total of $11,881,000 5½-per-cent debenture to mature June 15, 1982, were offered at $98.81 to yield 5.80 per cent.

On the corporate market there was an issue of Simpsons acceptance 5½-per-cent debentures due June 15, 1982 offered at $100 to yield 5¼ per cent.

Both issues enjoyed favorable reception.

Lunch Pail, Dollar Bill Become Symbols of Key Election Issues in Campaign

OTTAWA (CP) — The lunch pail and the dollar bill have become symbols of key election issues as the campaign warms up on entering the home stretch to June 18.

Unemployment and the exchange rate devaluation of the Canadian dollar are main points of attack for leaders of all three opposition parties.

Meanwhile Prime Minister Diefenbaker, bidding to take the offensive in the campaign, has been nailing down planks in plank his "Confederation platform" for the next five years leading to the nation's 100th birthday in 1967.

He has asked for five more years in office for his Progressive Conservative party — so while Mr. Thompson says election day will show Social Credit as "the mini-car party" which will "certainly hold the balance of power" in the next Parliament.

BACK DIEFENBKR

A recent campaign development has been the emergence of Conservative Premiers Robarts of Ontario and Roblin of Manitoba with strong declarations of support for Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

This followed the vigorous support given Mr. Pearson by Liberal Premiers Smallwood of Newfoundland and Robichaud of New Brunswick. Liberal Premier Lesage of Quebec has remained on the sidelines — he said it isn't customary for Quebec premiers to enter federal campaigns.

Former Prime Minister St. Laurent, 80, has spoken in support of the Liberals. Former CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell, 72, now honorary president of the New Democrats, has also taken to the hustings.

Most of the platforms and election promises of the opposition parties were unveiled early in the campaign.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who spent the campaign's early weeks defending his government's record, now is spelling out his party's future platform which he says will round out Canada's first century.

The planks include a second Trans-Canada Highway to start "very shortly," a national power grid, incentives to new industry, expansion of transport and communications facilities, the convening of a national conference on human resources, and an agricultural program that includes such things as better crop insurance, stepped - up agricultural exports and a new feed grain and storage program.

The two parties have their promises too.

Mr. Pearson's main offer is that a Liberal government would work to cut unemployment to not more than two per cent of the labor force. Last year it averaged a record 7.2 per cent.

He has also promised such things as special incentives for industries to set up in depressed areas, job training with pay for unemployed, better tax deal for the provinces and for agriculture — improved price supports, easier credit for farm co - operatives and consumer subsidies on butter to cut down the butter surplus.

Mr. Douglas, forecasting that all other provinces will follow Saskatchewan's lead and implement health plans within five years, says an NDP government at Ottawa would bear 50 per cent of the cost of providing complete medical care for all.

He has also promised a consumer Bill of Rights, establishment of a planning board of industry, labor, agriculture and consumers, and pension rising automatically with living costs.

Mr. Thompson, promising an end to budget deficits and a reversal of the trend toward higher taxes, has made fewer promises of new government spending than the others. He has attacked the idea of "the welfare state". But he has promised certain things as low-cost loans to municipalities and a two - price system for farmers, fishermen and other basic industries.

LONDON (AP) — Doctors said Friday that Stirling Moss, racing driver, injured seriously in an April 23 crash, was showing continued general improvement.

Judge Costello To Give Verdict Late in June

OTTAWA (CP)—County Court Judge Frank Costello reserved decision Friday in the case of Raymond Denis Bruneau, 44-year-old former Liberal member of Parliament charged with accepting a $10,000 bribe in 1956.

Judge Costello said he would give his decision in the last week of June but specified no date.

The case was adjourned after Crown Attorney John Cassells summed up his case by maintaining that the word "bribery" should not necessarily be taken in a literal sense in determining Bruneau's guilt.

His argument countered the contention made earlier Friday by defence counsel Roydon Hughes that the $10,000 Bruneau received from Abbe Begorgeon could not be considered a bribe because of Bruneau's testimony that he received it as a loan.

The Crown attorney said that in either case the money—as given to Bruneau by Abe Hawkesbury garage owner with the intention of inducing favors for him.

Bergeron earlier testified that Bruneau, member of the department for Glengarry - Prescott from 1949 to 1957, requested the money to help Bergeron sell a piece of Hawkesbury property to the federal government. He also testified that Bruneau was to help him get a job.

Bruneau said he took the money as a loan.

Muskrat Prices Fall at Auction

NORTH BAY (CP)—Muskrat prices slumped 15 per cent Friday at the final fur auction of the Ontario Trappers Association, but the total take still was enough to establish a single-season record.

Some $85,850 was grossed in the fifth and final sale for a season total of $410,000 on 80,-the 26,300 furs on sale Friday would collect close to $80,000.

Muskrat which normally sells for between $3.15 and $6.75, dropped below $3 when furs held up well, however, beaver fetching a top of $27.50 and otter $42.

Fifth Offering Of Mortgages Made by CMHA

OTTAWA (CP) — Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation Friday announced its fifth and largest offering of National Housing Act Mortgages for sale by tenders.

Loans totalling $20,000,000 will be offered for sale and $15,-000,000 will be accepted. President Stewart Bates of CMHA said the excess offering will give investors more opportunity for selection.

Tenders will close June 26. The mortgages will be in 40 packages with 31 valued at about $500,000 and 18 at about $250,000. All loans carry an interest rate of six per cent.

Tea-Rich Ceylon Sliding Into Chaos Say Observers

By DOUG MARSHALL—
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Observers in London are concerned by what they view as a steady erosion of democracy in Ceylon.

The tea-rich country is seen sliding into chaos despite ominously autocratic measures taken by the government to stabilize the situation.

Strikes are frequent and a crime wave is spreading. A currency black market offers 2c against the official exchange rate of about 13.

PRESS IN PERIL

The latest liberty threatened is the freedom of the press. A new press bill drafted recently by Finance Minister Felex Dias Bandaranaike has aroused opposition both inside Ceylon and throughout the Commonwealth.

"If it is enacted," says the Manchester Guardian, "Ceylon will flagrantly have forfeited what right it has to call itself a democracy."

The proposed bill would in effect give the government monopoly control of the local press that own most of Ceylon's newspapers.

What is worse the bill's second part provides for a 15-member, government - appointed council that could compel all newspapers and magazines to reveal their sources. Publication of "false" news would be punishable by a fine of about £250.

The bill is likely to come before parliament within the next two weeks unless accumulated opposition persuades Bandaranaike to withdraw it.

Dr. C. P. De Silva, the minister of agriculture, has called the bill "the beginning of the end of democracy" and presented drafts of two bills of his own. They would conserve the freedom of the press and seek to improve the standards of newspapers.

Meanwhile the newspapers, under intermittent censorship since the strikes of 1961, have refrained from protesting against some of the government's blatant abuses of personal liberty.

Nobody knows what has happened to 25 well - known Colombo citizens arrested in January after an alleged attempt at a coup d'etat. Despite protests by international jurists no date for their trial has been set.

With her racial and linguistic sores far from healed, a staggering economy and inadequate capital being discouraged by massive nationalization schemes, Ceylon seems to be ripe for revolution.

What may perhaps save it is its struggling tourist industry. Observers say two or three good hotels would do twice as much for the economy as the Russian steel mill the government is toying with accepting.

Blind Knoll, Depressed Intersection at Milltown Being Removed by Dept.

A blind knoll and depressed intersection area on No. 2 highway at Milltown which for many years has been a death-trap for motorists, will soon be no more.

For the past two weeks the Glen Lawrence Construction Company of Kingston has been at work, west of the Milltown railway underpass cutting through two knolls in preparation for close to a mile of new grade.

Excavation work to date has been south of the existing roadbed, and when this is levelled and graded traffic will be diverted to allow excavation of the buried area.

On completion there will be a new straight roadbed with uninterrupted visibility for well over half-a-mile west of the railway underpass.

In preparation for commencement of the new grading, the Ontario Highways Department in the past two years has purchased several dwelling properties in the hamlet. Two houses have been torn down and others moved to, provide for the widened right-of-way.

In addition to the blind knoll which made it impossible for approaching traffic to be seen from either direction, the township road intersecting No. 2 highway at Milltown, made the stretch of road particularly dangerous.

Over the years several fatalities and other serious accidents have occurred in the hamlet.

50,000 Civil Servants May Get Pay Raise

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposal to award pay increases without 50,000 civil servants is expected to go before the cabinet next week, it was indicated Friday.

Representatives of the three main civil servants' associations ended their "consultations" with government officials Friday night and said they are not completely satisfied with the proposals.

The salary revision would affect clerical and administrative employees as well as some professionals. It is estimated that 20,000 of those affected live in the Ottawa area and that the remainder are in branch offices across the country.

The revision, latest in a series of cyclical salary reviews inaugurated a few years ago, was prepared by the Civil Service Commission.

Ask Henry

Henry welcomes letters from readers, and awards each week a best-selling book for the most interesting letter he receives.

Dear Henry—How do you get rid of a little brother when he is sitting behind you in a movie when you are sitting with your boy friend. And . . . . — DESPERATE LITTLE BROTHER'S SISTER.

Dear Desperate Sister—I am sure that if you are nice and kind to him, like you always are, he won't be kicking at the back of your seat. And anyway you and your boy friend won't be doing anything your little brother shouldn't see—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I have a problem about my teacher. He doesn't like rock 'n roll and he says it is no good. I think it is very good; it has a good beat to it. What do you think of it?—HELP ME.

Dear Help Me:—Maybe rock 'n roll has a good beat, but looking at your writing it rocks and rolls, too. I think that's what your teacher is angry about. So hurry the beat and learn to write.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—In your column of May 5, I noticed a letter from Bird Lover who tells of a boy who enjoys shooting birds. This reminded me of a similar boy I know when I was much younger.

A meadowlark which he killed prompted me to write a poem, a copy of which I am enclosing. I showed it to the lad who shot the bird. It has apparently done some good as he never shot another song bird since.

THE CRIMSON STAIN

We have heard the cheerful music
From the break of dawn till dark
That comes from the throat of a bird,
The beautiful songster lark.

She was perched on a branch and singing
By her nest when her song of joy
Suddenly stopped as she fluttered and fell,
Killed by a thoughtless boy.

No more she'll perch on the maple tree
By our bedroom window in spring.
For tonight she lies in the pasture
While her young ones cry in their nest.
Awaiting the return of a bird
With a crimson stain on her breast.

GEORGE REIS.

Dear George—That's a real beautiful poem! I see it is for the birds! I hope all murder leaves after reading this will hang up their holsters for good!—HENRY.

Republic of South Africa Today Enters Second Year With Its Economy Secure

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—South Africa today entered its second year as a republic with its economic position secure, its political outlook stable and its attitude defiant.

British correspondents in Cape Town report there have been few changes in the Afrikaner republic since it withdrew from the Commonwealth. The government remains unperturbed by the storm of protest aroused by the sweeping powers of detention proposed in the sabotage bill now passing through parliament.

Verwoerd has, of course, retained the passionate support of the Afrikaner population. But by bringing security and stability, he has also reassured the English - speaking South Africans.

'THINGS IMPROVED'

"The end of the world has not come as they half expected," writes Leslies Beilby in the Daily Telegraph. "In fact things have improved all round."

English - speaking opposition to Verwoerd and the government's increasingly dictatorial measures has weakened after disappointing returns for both the United and Progressive parties at last fall's general elections. Says Beilby:

"His more violent opponents are beginning to feel a sense of futility in fighting the prime minister now that he is constitutionally so secure."

Part of Verwoerd's strength has come from his inflexible determination to impose the apartheid policies in the face of objections from almost the whole outside world.

The Daily Mail's Peter Younghusband says the Afrikaners compared their present alienation with the great trek they made by their ancestors in 1836. They accept the fact they stand alone "with the stubborn courage Afrikaners have always shown in their fight for what they believe in."

WINS RESPECT

This has won Verwoerd a certain grudging respect in even some English South Africans worried about the current problems in the Rhodesias, where property values have slumped, and about the eventual possibility of a black African invasion from the north.

More important, the republic's economy, which slumped after the Sharpeville shooting, now has recovered to a point where gold and foreign reserves stand higher than they have for many years.

The financial Times says investments now are flowing back in and the government will probably soon relax its hastily imposed controls on imports and foreign exchange.

After failure of last year's attempted general strike, the threat from African nationalists appears to have diminished. Bold African parties now are banned and forced to conduct what activity they can underground.

Finally the republic now is spending 12 per cent of its current revenue — proportionately more than Britain or the United States — on building a modern and powerful army.

South Africa stands armed and ready on the tip of a troubled continent, determined, says Beilby, "to make a last stand for white supremacy."

As long as the nationalists retain their massive weapons of suppression, Verwoerd can proceed with his Bantustan policy of separate development of Negroes in self - contained areas without fear of immediate violence.

Check Points When Engine Won't Start

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

The driver who throws up the hood and stares inside when his engine refuses to start seems to be hoping the guilty part will identify itself. Yet, he accomplishes as much as the fellow who immediately begins pulling out everything he can lay loose.

Either the electrical or fuel system is at fault when the engine can't be started. Usually it's a form, so let's look here first. If the engine doesn't turn over readily, the battery or starter circuit is the trouble spot. If it does, however, you know they are OK.

Check for dampness or moisture, for loose or corroded connections at the coil, distributor and spark plugs. Be on the lookout for split or chafed cables, for cracks in the distributor cap or damaged plugs. Scorched or oxidized contact points, or trouble which prevents them from opening and closing properly are often difficult for the average motorist to pinpoint. The same goes for ignition coil failure, shorts to grounds.

* * *

From L.W.: I always understood that in cold starts the choke valve will normally be closed to get a rich fuel mixture. Yet, I had starting trouble and the mechanic said it was because the choke was closed.

A: You could have been closed too tightly . . . or perhaps the valve did not open properly once the engine started warming up. This would cause flooding.

* * *

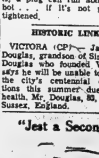
D.A. writes: My car is smooth as glass when idling or crawling in traffic, but the engine misses at all other times.

Q: Check the spark plugs. This type of trouble occurs when plugs are fouled, damp, incorrectly gapped or damaged.

* * *

W.S. asks: Since I bought my '54 station wagon six months ago, I've heard a knocking noise when I start the engine. It always disappeared after a moment or so, but now I notice it also knocks after I've driven for an hour or more.

A: A slightly loose main or rod bearing may act this way when it's temporarily starved for oil or when hot thins out the oil, reducing its cushioning effect.



* * *

From N.E.: In checking over the plugs after 3,000 miles, I see that the porcelain of one is badly burned and the centre firing point is worn down. All the others look OK.

A: This can happen . . . that is, a plug can run abnormally hot, if it's not properly tightened.

PRECIPITATION STILL LOW — Precipitation on the Prairies was 13 per cent below normal for the nine months ended April 30.

Map, based on a report of the meteorological branch of the transport department, details distribution of rainfall and snow across the grain-growing areas of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Average deficit for Alberta was 12 per cent, Saskatchewan 16 per cent and Manitoba 11 per cent. (CP Newsmap).

West Moisture Conditions Are Improved Slightly But Remain Well Below Normal

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Over - all moisture conditions on the grain - growing Prairies improved slightly in the two months to the end of April, but remained well below normal. And total precipitation for the nine months to April 30 was even lower than in the same period a year ago.

For the Prairie provinces as a whole the fall of moisture was 13 per cent below normal for the nine months ended April 30, compared with 14 per cent to the end of February. A year ago at this time, the all - Prairie nine-month average was 10 per cent below normal.

Statistics prepared for The Canadian Press by the meteorological branch of the transport department show the average deficit for all Alberta to the end of April was 12 per cent, for Saskatchewan 16 per cent and for Manitoba 11 per cent. The respective figures a year previously were nine, 19 and three per cent below normal.

TWO IN EXCESS

Two regions actually showed above - normal precipitation to the end of April. The Peace River district of northern Alberta was one per cent above, compared with 69 per cent below to the end of March. The northeast Saskatchewan region was three per cent above normal, compared with seven per cent below at March 31.

North - central and southern Alberta regions are now 40 per cent below normal. South-east Saskatchewan was 22 per cent below, and northeast Saskatchewan 18 below average.

Eastern Manitoba remained 19 per cent below normal figures to the end of April, and western Manitoba 10 per cent below.

DRY AREAS

In some areas of Alberta and Saskatchewan, along the Red Deer and Saskatchewan rivers, less than half the normal precipitation was received.

The monthly summary shows March was the coldest since 1955 in most regions. Despite blizzards in southern Alberta, precipitation ranged from normal to 60 per cent below average throughout Alberta, Saskatchewan in spots had up to 50 per cent above normal precipitation, but there still were deficiencies ranging to 30 per cent below normal in the southeast. For Manitoba, the record showed irregular distribution, from 50 per cent above normal precipitation south of the Assiniboine to deficiencies of 50 per cent in the Neepawa-Portage la Prairie region.

Winter snow cover disappeared at Edmonton April 9, Regina April 11, Winnipeg April 17, in mid - April dust storms were prevalent over southern Alberta and record high temperatures were reported in the southern Prairies on May 19, 24 and 25—reaching into the 90s. Throughout the grain - growing areas, April precipitation averaged less than half the normal.

COOL IN MAY

The first two weeks in May were cool across the Prairies. In the first week, a series of cold disturbances moved across the area but gave little precipitation. At the end of the week a vigorous disturbance brought some snow to the northern Prairies and the associated strong winds caused some soil drifting and dust storms in many central and southern districts.

During the second week of May the weather remained unsettled with frequent showers, particularly in the southern and central districts, while temperatures remained three to five degrees below normal in southern Alberta, southeast Saskatchewan and all Manitoba.

Rainfall of one or two inches in Central and Assiniboine river valleys in the second week of May brought totals for the first half of the month to two or three times normal in these districts. The precipitation was also above normal in the northeast of Manitoba, and in the southeast part of Saskatchewan and the regions around Calgary and Whitecourt.

BELOW NORMAL

In contrast, precipitation in the second week of May was below normal in a strip along the southern edge of Saskatchewan, in the Regina area and in the Watrous - Kamsack - Prince Albert triangle; in the latter area only one-half to one-quarter of normal moisture fell was recorded.

Precipitation in this period was also below normal in the area of Alberta stretching south and east from Edmonton, south to Empress and westward in the Rocky Mountain Foothills in this area reported one - half to three - quarters of normal fall. And in the Peace River area at this time precipitation was slightly below normal, the deficiencies averaging 10 per cent, with Fairview getting only half the normal fall.

Europeans, Moslems Mix Peacefully

ALGIERS (AP) — Europeans and Moslems mixed peacefully in the centre of Algiers Friday as the second consecutive day of less morning drew to a close.

The French Commando Secret Army Organization continued its campaign of terror in an apparent effort to prove its bargaining power in any negotiations with the Algerian Front of National Liberation.

Secret Army leaders want to talk directly to Moslem nationalists to seek additional guarantees for Algeria's European community before the Moslem majority takes over an independent Algeria.

So far, Moslem quarters have denied any contact has been made.

The truce, which began with the Ascension Holiday Thursday gave the city a new face.

Veiled Moslem women penetrated the heart of the European city without incident. Moslem bootblacks and flower vendors, long absent, set up their stands over again. The markets were busy. Even Moslem housewives, many of whom have been feeding their families with canned food for weeks.

Europeans close to the Secret Army leaders privately had received orders to "cease fire" until Saturday.

The French Algeria Thursday terrorism took a toll of 17 lives — a relatively light total for recent weeks. Officials put the dead included 13 Europeans, most of them in Oran.

MOSS DOING WELL

LONDON (AP) — Stirling Moss is still making good progress after his auto racing crash, a hospital bulletin said today. It added that the "operation on Moss' fractured nose performed last Saturday to make his breathing easier, was a success. Moss crashed at the Goodwood Circuit April 23 and has been in hospital in Wimbledon suburb ever since with a fractured skull and left leg and head injuries.

The Golden Years

One Senior Citizen Tells Why He Plans Move at Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

"Why I would never consider retirement, as far as I'm in the picture right now I've . . ."

This was the subject of an interview with a man by the name of Harris. He had written to protest a letter that we had given here about the desirability of staying on in the old home when the pension came at 65.

It seemed fitting that he be contacted, and that his views be laid out. Here they are:

"I have seven months to go now before I retire," Mr. Harris says. "And I have thoroughly researched my future. I have without doubt that the man who has worked in the $9,000-$10,000 class should take the plastic covers off his life when he retires and fill it as far away as possible. All the parables about retirement that are fed to men like me are nice, but by about half of them are nonsense.

"I am going to move, and first, because of real estate taxes. My $24,000 home is costing $700 a year in taxes, or roughly $58 a month. The $24,000 equity, if invested at 4½ per cent, would net me $90 a month. That totals $148 a month. But with insurance, painting and upkeep it is costing me more to live here than where I live. I can get good retirement housing for much less for my wife and I.

"I am going to move away, second, because my wife's world is my wife's world and not mine. For five years or more she has been in the women's clubs of all kinds. She'll have two places to go. I'll have none. I won't tell her she must stay home to keep me company. I'll just move away and get a start out equal and fresh with the terrestrial. Same with my reasoning. She smiles paternally at me. But she understands.

"I am going to move away, third, because in that area I plan to live on a retirement income of $1,200 a year among working neighbors. I've got a hobby about three times as much. Not because I can't afford to get by, because I can. It's because I would spend months in years with no hope of bettering myself financially. While all the time my neighbors would be getting $10 raises and still heading upward. This hope for a better tomorrow is a big hard when a man retires. But it has to do. And I'm thankful that a man get away and into a neighborhood of people who are still going to get and succeed . . ."

Mr. Harris had other reasons. He cited the one about cost-of-living being a difficult thing to reckon in a community he didn't know you, but that it's fairly simple among neighbors. He cited the one about the retired being a "has been," and he cited the one about a community that knew him when he was still a man to be reckoned with. He used the phrase "a used-to-be" and explained that it would be the second thing anybody in the community always said about him. The first thing, he explained, would be a telephone to say "That old gentleman living in the corner house is Mr. Harris . . ." And the second would be "He used to be . . ."

He figures that somewhere else the first thing somebody said about him would be "The new fellow living in the corner apartment is a Mr. Harris, who is retired . . ." and that second would be "he moved in two months ago and is very nice . . ."

He thinks the difference between the two attitudes can be important enough to a retired man's ego to warrant his moving away.

"And I put a premium on something most people don't consider in retirement," says Mr. Harris. "It's the relationship a retired man can have with other men, probably retired ones. It's marvellous for men having a pal (which sounds juvenile) and having a crony (which sounds senile). But I don't mean a friend — the world has that all meaning to men in business careers.

"I'm talking about a companion to whom I can express the psychological problems of retiring, which I intend to do, and who can debate things with me, fish with me, exchange car repair jobs with me, advise me and take my advice. In brief a man who has already shed the trappings of a mercenary life, has scraped down to people, and likes what he has scraped down to.

"This sort of retirement colleague will not be found in the environment where I have lived the terrestrial life. Image of my neighbors and business friends, even though it's the image I see in them, would never allow it. I need fresh people."

(Next week: A man who thinks Mr. Harris is all wrong.)

Garden Notes

Plant Annuals for Cutting

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

For a steady supply of cut flowers for arrangements there is nothing like the annuals and they give quick returns. Plant them in rows in the back garden and you will not feel that you are robbing your special beds.

For easily quick results buy a few flats of the ones that are slow to get started such as snap dragons, asters, petunias and stocks. If you do not have zinnias planted yet get the started plants, also French and Scotch Marigolds (Calendula) and any other favorite that is well advanced. These will give you cutting material until your own plants are ready.

Set them further apart in the rows than you would bedding plants. This will allow them to develop to their fullest and yield the most blooms. Keep the soil loose and hilled up a little around the base of each plant. Supply sufficient water to keep them growing vigorously and give feedings of liquid fertilizer every two weeks while in bloom. This will increase the size of bloom, number of bloom and the length of the plants life.

INCLUDE YOUR FAVORITES

The annuals you plant by seed should be sown sparsely in shallow drills. Thin plants to at least a inch apart for medium sized plants and eighteen inches for spreading types such as cosmos, large zinnias and the big ruffled petunias. Include your favorites such as Sweet Sultan, Mountain, and Batchelors Button. These can be had mixed or in one color packets. Blue Boy, Pinkie, Red Boy and Snowman are the large hybrids. Jubilee Gem has extra large dark blue flowers and big busy plants. If you are fond of salmon pink there are fine Zinnias, and single and ruffled petunias in this shade. Nigella has lovely blue flowers and fern-like foliage that goes well with the salmon pinks. Plant some Gypsophilla pink and white for mixed arrangements.

Nothing beats the asturtiums for brilliant orange, red, coral and yellow shades. The double Golden Gleam hybrids are quite large. The perfume is delicate and sweet. They will bloom for months if you spray weekly to control the aphids. Hybrid nicotianas offer a number of colors and they stay open through the day. For perfume at night be sure to plant a few old fashioned nicotianas (flowering Tobacco.)

Three weeks after the first planting you can put in a second planting of Bachelors Buttons, Calendula, Cleome and Sweet Alyssum, for fall cutting.

Make several plantings of gladiolus, especially the new miniatures. They make long lasting and beautiful arrangements. For fall cutting you will want several plants of the medium size and pom-pom dahlias. They are at their best in the fall and last until frost cuts down the plants.

Keep faded blooms cut off all plants to keep them coming with new blooms.

Be sure to plant several kinds of foliage plants. Leaves play an ever increasing role in modern arrangements. Try the new Park Opal Basil. It has iridescent purple leaves that will look well with many white and pink flowers.

Grey plants such as Dusty Miller, either Cineraria Maritima Diamond, or (Dusty Miller) Centurea Cyrocarpa. The latter has pale grey fern-like leaves while the former has deeply lacinated, almost white leaves. These add contrast to the flower colors, interesting leaf formation and are good background and filler material.

Science at Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: a new search for meteorites, secrets of why locusts swarm, and a note on musical appreciation in babies.

METEORITE SEARCH

U.S. astronomers are starting a new project to find and study fiaiing stiiiai meteorites. They want more of them to determine, by radioactive dating analysis, the ages of these visitors from interplanetary space.

At 18 locations in seven midwestern states, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory is setting up cameras operating automatically at night, and photographing the heavens in the north, south, east and west.

Films will be studied and whenever a meteor fall is indicated, quick trips will be made to the predicted site of the fall.

LOCUST GLANDS

Hormonal reactions trigger locusts instinctively into forming tremendous swarms which sweep with ruinous appetites over areas of Africa, the Middle East and India, British biologists report.

Using radioactive materials, they find that the swarming tendency is controlled in female locusts by two tiny glands in the brain. These glands are regulated by hormones secreted by cells in the head. And these cells, in turn, are stimulated into action by a chemical on the bodies of male locusts.

When fairly large numbers of locusts cluster together—either because food is abundant or in short supply—the chemical reaction is triggered, and the insects increase in size and then fly off in devastating swarms.

MUSICAL APPRECIATION

He compared musical responses of 12 sets of twins, aged nine to 31 months, with non - twins of the same age. Twins usually showed little activity due to music while piano and orchestral works were played. Non - twins engaged more frequently in rhythmic tapping, and more spontaneous singing at later ages.

Simons, an instructor in music education, says the research indicates twins should be exposed to earlier and more carefully planned musical experiences.

Giants Return To Gotham

Willie Glad To Be Back At Home

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—"I'd feel the same even if I went 0 for 4. It was great just to play in New York again."

Willie Mays had just hit his 17th home run and a single in five at bats for San Francisco Giants in his old home park, the third game in the brief New York Mets. He was telling reporters how it felt to return, at 31, to the park where he broke into the majors as a kid of 20 in 1951.

"Do you think the fans felt that you still belonged to them?," a fellow asked.

"I hope they still feel that way, I know I do," said Mays with that same boyish grin he had when he left town with the Giants in 1957.

Before the game Mays said he was a little nervous. He had been hounded by phone calls from friends he'd played with the old club in the early morning hours from Philadelphia.

"I'm getting almost to get a haircut," he said. "From the sound of the fans it feels like it never left."

FARR SEEMED STRANGE

Mays admitted it seemed so strange to be batting for the first again with its short foul lines and vast acreage in the centre field.

"I've been playing in places with short fences and I'm used to it around and not really," he said. "It will take only a little while to get used to this."

The fans cheered when Willie made a ball hit into the stands (one of them over the roof) while swinging against Johnny Podres, a lefty he carried well. He drew an ovation from the 43,742 fans when he hit a 1-1 pitch by Craig into the upper stands in right for a "wrong field" home run in the 5th of four innings.

When Willie McCovey made a catch in right field that Mays might have taken, the fans booed. They wanted to see a patent basket catch by Willie. In the sixth inning they saw it on a fly ball by Felix Mantilla.

When the mets rallied with five in the eighth and threatened in the ninth before losing for the 12th straight time 9-6, their mood of nostalgia dissipated. Quickly the fans' allegiance shifted from Mays to the Mets.

That was the way it was the night Willie the Kid came home.

Skulduggery Backfires

Tolos Boys Are Beaten!

By GEO. E. CARVER
Sports Editor

The Greeks may have a word for it, but the modern word is Non, albeit somewhat, aged, but "fooled" is more to the point.

The Grecian laddies, Chris and John Tolos, might better look up the meaning of the expression because that is exactly what happened to them last night in Memorial Arena.

Referee "Bunny" Dunlop may have holes in his head, but true when we sat there we no eyes in the south side of the Dunlop cranium.

And the portly but tough arbiter needed them last night. Plenty of skullduggery went on behind the back with the Tolos boys the chief offenders until Whipper Watson and buddy Gentleman John Eady turned it to their own advantage.

As a matter of fact—the Greek laddybucks had the third fall and match all wrapped up. The Whip was prone on the mat, on this last year's romance, Chris, or was it John, goaded in his corner and shouting.

The man in white turned to scold the blundering Greek back to his corner. With both the Whip and Tolos flat on the mat, Eady slipped into the ring and placed the Watson body atop that of the supine foemen.

Referee Dunlop turned, re-viewed the situation and promptly award the Whipper the fall and the match. It was definitely all right, but it was nice. The crowd loved it, too.

But the Tolos boys asked for it. A little skullduggery now and then, is relished by the best of men, but it can be overdone. The cocky young Greeks, again showing their disregard for the fans, made no bones about using unorthodox methods and tricks.

They won the first fall while brute force surged about ringside. The Whipper and Mr. Eady took the second. Then came the "unconscious" third fall and victory for the good guys.

A real touch of color mushroomed in the Theberdeer Sikh-Tom (Emperor) Jones pandemonium pool. Daddy" pressed and strutted his way around the ring posing for the benefit of the fans when things were going his way.

The man in white turned to scold the blundering Greek back to his corner. With both the Whip and Tolos flat on the mat, Eady slipped into the ring and placed the Watson body atop that of the supine foemen.

Pakistan Faces Tough Job

BIRMINGHAM (Reuters) — Pakistan faces a tremendous task to avoid defeat against England in their first home match. When bad light stopped play a half-hour early Friday, Pakistan were 78 for five as reply to England's 544 for five declared.

A third-wicket stand between brothers Hanif Mihammad, and Saeed Ahmed appeared to be resuscitating the Pakistan effort. They had put two for 30 early in the innings.

Earlier England, resuming at 388 for four, rammed home its advantage with an unbroken sixth-wicket stand between Peter Richardson, 101, not out, and David Allen, 79 not out.

Canadian Horse Looks Good

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — Canada's big race hope galloped the full Epsom Derby distance today in a training spin and trainer Sir Gordon Richards pronounced himself "fully confident."

Prince D'Amour, a bay colt by Tantieme out of Princesse D'Amour, went through his paces at Sir Gordon's stables.

"He went very nicely," said the former champion jockey. "He's a good looking colt and I think he will have a very good chance in the big race next week, considering what an open year this is."

Sir Gordon added:

"As a jockey, it took me 33 years to win my first Derby. I hope it won't take me that long as a trainer."

LIKES HIS OWNER

The little man whose skill in the saddle drew comparisons with such great jockeys as Steve Donoghue, Fred Archer and Harry (The Head Waller) Wragg said he is pleased to be acting as trainer for Calgary sportsman Max Bell, an old friend of mine."

Bell is one of the parties in Alberta Ranches, the stable that recently acquired Prince D'Amour from Parisian owner Suzy Volterra for a reported $30,000. Mrs. Volterra retained another derby candidate in Le Castillen, medium of heavy betting at 11 to 1.

Prince D'Amour slipped from 20 to 1 to 14 to 1 in the latest betting exchanger. About 30 horses are expected to go to the post in Wednesday's race.

Sir Gordon said the colt is a "beautiful mover" with an "absolutely straightforward" temperament.

"In fact, he wouldn't look at all out of place in the winner's enclosure next week."

There is no Irish Sweepstakes on this race.

Suns Edge Crackers, Leafs Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It took an unearned run to do it, but Jacksonville Suns managed to break their four-game losing string and hang on to a four-game lead after the International League standings.

The Suns got the winning run on an error in the bottom of the ninth inning Friday night in a 3-2 victory over Atlant Crackers. The second - place Buffalo Bisons kept pace with an 8-6 triumph over Syracuse Chiefs. Toronto Maple Leafs rocked Rochester Red Wings 6-3 and Richmond Virginians edged Columbus Jets 4-3.

The Suns had men on second and third with none out in the ninth when the Crackers threw wild past Buddy Barker who dropped a sacrifice bunt down the third-base line and cracker third baseman Joe Hyer let it made a wild throw to first, allowing Joe Curry to score from second.

Dennis Gonzalez (5-6) went the distance for the Suns and got help from Duke Carmel's solo homer in the fourth inning.

Pancho Herrera drove in five runs with a homer and double and John Herrnstein had three singles and a triple in leading Toronto's attack. Bobby Locke (2-5) scattered six hits in going the distance. Bob Hale crashed a three - run homer in the eighth inning to bring Richmond a comeback decision over Columbus. Charlie Leonard had put the Jets in front 1-0 with a two-run homer in the seventh. Bob Veale, the losing pitcher, struck out 12 men.

Lou Johnson, winning pitcher Steve Blateric (4-1) and Steve Demeter hit home runs that brought Toronto its third straight win over Rochester.

Ridzik tired in the eighth inning after a one - hit, single, double and two walks to a Rochester run after two men were out. Dwayne Raymond replaced Ridzik, hit a batter to force in the second Rochester run and then retired the last four Toronto batters in order.

Hilda drew up seven hits and struck out six in making his record 5-1. Art Quirk suffered his first loss in two decisions for Rochester.

Grid Star Seeks Redress

BALTIMORE (AP)—Lenny Moore, all - pro halfback of Baltimore Colts, testified Friday that two injuries he received in competition had affected his play in the National Football League.

Moore appeared before the Maryland workmen's compensation board which has called a hearing to determine the nature and extent of the injuries.

Moore's lawyers withdrew the claim concerning the head and left hand injuries Friday.

Moore, who in his claim said he had an average weekly salary of $400, testified he injured the ring finger of his right hand while trying to catch a pass in the opening game of the 1961 season.

He said the finger has been "numb and both a nuisance" since, and he no longer has the strength and flexibility in his right hand that he has in his left hand.

Dr. Edmund J. McDonnell, testifying for the state accident fund, said survey indicated there will be a permanent swelling of the finger.

Canada Third in Tuna Race

CAT CAYS, The Bahamas (CP) — Canada failed to make a catch Friday but held its standing to third place in the latest-finish new tournament with 2,080 pounds.

Dick Sykica, the tournament leader, increased its edge over second - place Bermuda with a 675-pounder, giving a total poundage of 2,052. Bermuda's position was unchanged at 2,216 pounds.

Argentina jumped to fourth place with a pair of catches putting it at 2,040 pounds.

The United States team is in fifth place and Venezuela is sixth, followed by Puerto Rico, the Bahamas and Mexico. The tournament ends today.

Now They May Take Their Horses

There has been a bit of confusion as to whether or not since owners of the new National League club purchased the $500 outfit, he will wear at the start of the season.

About 10 players did not wear the western garb Monday on a trip from Cincinnati to Chicago.

The Stetson garb was the subject under discussion Thursday in Chicago as manager Harry Craft held a closed door session with his players.

Craft refused to discuss what took place but he did say:

"They voted 100 per cent for the western suit before the start of the season. I said:

"We will wear the suits," said Hal Smith, catcher and player representative. "We voted to, wear them. That's all there is to it."

Some players had said they were a bit sensitive to such airport and stadium remarks as "Where is the rodeo?" and "Where's your horse?"

CHAMP BEATEN

HALIFAX (CP) — Eastern Canadian middleweight champion Gerry Richardson of Glace Bay, N.S., won a unanimous decision over Ralph Hogan of Moncton, N.B., in a non-title bout before about 5,000 spectators last night. Their third meeting, each having won once previously.

Hogan Withdraws From Open

Hogan, scheduled to make his first qualifying test since 1940 at Pittsburgh, backed out because of bursitis in his shoulder. Turnesa was to have qualified in the New York area.

Because both Hogan and Turnesa were exempt from the local qualifying last month their places in next week's sectional qualifying will be taken by Rochester, N.Y., and Philadelphia sectionals.

Fraser Looks for Net Sweep

PARIS (AP) — Rod Laver, the wiry Australian champion who is aiming for a sweep of tennis' big four tournaments, took another step towards the goal Friday by defeating fellow countryman Neale Fraser in the semi-finals of the French tennis championships.

In the completion of a match halted by darkness Thursday with the two Davis cup teammates tied at two sets each and 5-all in the fifth, the red-headed Laver cracked Fraser's service in the 12th game and won 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 7-5.

The big four contests of the Australian champions h i p, already won by Laver; the French; Wimbledon, won by Laver last year, and the United States, won by Emerson in 1961.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The father and son combination of Bill and Jack Herbert of London drove two winners at Western Fair Raceway Friday night.

The biggest victory was with Tami Herbert, driven by Jack, in the featured eighth race, a C1 pace for a purse of $600. Canetown, driven by Bill Harvey, and Tami Herbert wheeled out of fifth and sixth position at the three-quarter mark and ran neck-and-neck on the outside. Jack Herbert judged his drive well and Tami defeated Canetown by a head.

Bob Newhart Wins Prizes But No Renewal of Show

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How do you figure it? Bob Newhart gets all the prizes except the most important one—a renewal of his television show.

The former Chicago accountant has had reason to ponder this strange turn of events. He won an Emmy for best achievement in the field of humor.

But as of now he is bereft of a sponsor for his second season.

Yet he isn't bitter about the pull-out of his backers. "I think they deserve a lot of credit for sticking with us," said Newhart, "just as the sponsors of The Defenders deserve credit for letting the show do some pretty controversial subjects."

Newhart himself never sidestepped controversy with his humor and therefore became a target of the letter writers.

"We drew a lot of angry mail from the critics," he admitted. "There are a lot of nuts who like to write in with protests. But we also got a surprising volume of mail from those who appreciated what we were trying to do. And I must say that the sponsor wasn't discouraged by the mail."

Newhart also conceded that some mistakes were made with program planning, especially in the last half of the show. I don't think I'm a particularly good sketch artist, and that's what I was trying to do.

"Dono's show has that great look," he remarked. "Our show called for comparison of production values.

"Fighting Naked City was also unfortunate, since it appeals to the same kind of audience. And the lateness of the hour was against us. I'm told we had a big teen-age audience, but a lot of teen-agers couldn't stay up that late. I think we should have done better at an earlier hour."

Runs At Compton Meet

Kidd Faces Stiff Foemen

LOS ANGELES (CP-AP) — Bruce Kidd tonight runs for his second straight 3,000-metre win in the annual Compton track meet, but he likely won't find it the bowl of cherries he did last year.

Running against the University of Toronto student will be Murray Halberg, the fleet-footed New Zealander who has come within an ace of tying a world record for the event.

Although the majority of the bets will be on Halberg, some Canadian officials are privately saying Kidd, 18, will give the New Zealander a run for his money.

Last weekend at the California relays, Kidd turned in a time of 8:41.9 for the two-mile event, nine-seconds-o-lo Halberg—is United States track history. Halberg ran the distance in 8:40.6 last year at Stanford.

Kidd's last 3,000-metre race was at the Compton relays a year ago tonight. He took an easy victory in 14 minutes, 46.8 seconds, a time that disappointed the Canadian runner, who said after the race he didn't feel too well.

MAY HAVE TO WORK

If Halberg is up to form, Kidd will have to do far better tonight. The New Zealander last year came within two-tenths of a second of tying the world mark of 13 minutes, 35 seconds, held by Vladimir Kuts of Russia.

It will be the second meeting for the two. On Feb. 11 this year, they tangled in the two mile and Halberg won easily in eight minutes, 42.5 seconds. Kidd was a far-distant third in 9:00.7.

Another Canadian entry is Bill Crothers of Toronto, who will run in the 880-yard event.

Has Stroke Lead

Player Tops At Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Gary Player, South Africa's golf ace, while of the professional golf circuit, held a one - stroke lead today as the $40,000 Memphis open tournament entered the crucial stages.

Player warmed to his game on the back nine on Friday's second round and carded a 33-31 — 66 over the 6,501-yard, par - 70 Colonial Country Club course. The round gave him a 36-hole total of 131 and a one-stroke lead over Don January, who fired a 67 Friday.

In a third - place tie at 133 were Bruce Crompton, Tommy Aaron, Dave Littler, Don Whitt and Jay Hebert.

Arnold Palmer, the pre-tournament favorite still feeling a bad cold suffered last week, faded farther behind with a 71 to go with his first - round 71 for 142.

Al Balding of Toronto, one of the first-round contenders with a 66 Thursday, jumped to a 73 Friday for a 139 total.

EQUALS RECORD

Crompton from Australia, leaped into contention by racking up a 33-30—63 in the second round, equalling the course competitive record. After going over par on the third hole, he settled down to four birdies and two eagles.

Both eagles came on delicate iron play. At the 499-yard 13th hole, Crompton chipped from a trap and holed out. On the 18th, he laid an iron shot within nine feet of the pin and the putt was dead.

"That's about as good a round as I can shoot," he said.

The round cut the 140-man field to 90 for today's play. The cutoff came at 146. Only the low 40 and ties will start the final 18 holes Sunday.

NOTICE

TO ALL SCOUT TROOPS AND OTHER NON-PROFIT YOUTH ORGANIZATIONS OF A SIMILAR NATURE:

As many of you know, we have been serving 2-gallon cans of milk to your organizations at no charge. This has been done quietly and has therefore been unfair to those who did not know of it.

We now propose to advertise this service so that everyone eligible may take advantage of the opportunity. We will now make a small charge for each 2-gallon can.

We feel that this plan is much more fair and that the cost of the service will be more prompt and still avoid your having to collect from each parent.

We invite group leaders to accept this offer and trust we can help in a worthy cause.

Wilma's Chances Are Slim

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Wilma Rudolph Ward's coach said Friday he was "awfully pessimistic" about the Olympic star's chances of running in the big track meets this summer.

"She is a long way from getting ready," said Ed Temple, track coach at Tennessee A. and I., where Mrs. Ward, "the fastest woman in the world," is a student.

"A virus got her down last January. Various ailments have plagued her ever since. Now she is 15 to 30 pounds overweight."

Temple said there is an outside chance she will compete in the women's AAU meet at Los Angeles July 7-8.

Mrs. Ward, holder of the world's record of 11.3 seconds for the 100-metre dash, recently resumed her conditioning routine.

World Tournament

Soccer Refs On The Spot

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Referees in four World Soccer Cup matches to date in the field today with instructions to blow the whistle at first sign of rough play.

The International Federation of Football Associations made the decision to curtail unnecessary roughness following a spate of injuries in earlier matches and criticisms of the handling of the games by the referees.

All today's four matches are vital ones and will help decide whether the teams advance into the quarter - finals of the championship.

England, Yugoslavia and Italy especially will be out to win. Losses for any of these three would almost certainly put them out of contention in the 16 - team tournament.

LOST FIRST MATCH

Uruguay and Yugoslavia both lost their opening - round matches. Italy was held to a scoreless draw with West Germany. England fell before Hungary 2-1, and Brazil to Yugoslavia's 2-0. The other five teams played today won their opening matches.

The 16 teams are divided into groups of four for round-robin play. The top two teams in each group enter the quarter-finals.

Albert Dusch of West Germany, critically ill at his home in Duisburg - Yugoslavia match on Thursday, will be linesman in the Uruguay - Yugoslavia match. The referee will be Galba of Czechoslovakia.

All the referees are Europeans. That could cause trouble at games involving Latin American teams. European soccer is play a harder game with more physical contact that the South Americans.

130 KILLED IN CRASH OF FRENCH JET

STRUCK BY SIGN — Don Gillis, Progressive Conservative candidate for Nickel Belt riding in the June 18 federal election, is bitten on the head with a placard during a demonstration at the Northern Ontario mining centre of Chelmsford, Saturday. Gillis was riding on back of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's car on route to a political rally at the union hall of the Independent Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.), Local 598, when the incident occurred. (CP Wirephoto).

Campaigning Gets Tougher As Election Date Nears

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Campaigning was never more rugged for Prime Minister Diefenbaker than on Saturday, with an ugly demonstration in the Sudbury area and another noisy session with hecklers at an evening speech at Pembroke, Ont.

They were the latest in a series of similar incidents, which have been deplored by other party leaders.

New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas said Saturday the demonstrations at Diefenbaker election rallies show that the prime minister no longer is a "knight on a white charger" to Canadians.

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson had a quieter time at a coffee and doughnuts party Saturday night in Brockville, Ont., where he said Canada "cannot pick quarrels" with its allies but must work closely with them on trade and political problems.

Social Credit Leader Robert N. Thompson spoke Saturday in Alberta to criticize time and burden resulting from pensions and other government payments. Again Sunday in Montreal to outline his party's proposal for a "guaranteed income plan for the aged and needy."

Today is nomination day in all but 21 constituencies, where candidates were named two weeks ago.

The four party leaders, with personal nominations already filed, are travelling today—the prime minister in Saskatchewan, Ontario ending up tonight at Peterborough; Mr. Pearson in southern Ontario with an evening speech at Kitchener; Mr. Douglas flying east for a night speech at Sydney, N.S., and Robert Thompson in northwestern Quebec at Bourlamaque and Noranda.

Among other weekend political speeches was one by Defence Production Minister O'Hurley on nuclear weapons—a statement stronger than any so far by the prime minister. "As long as Mr. Diefenbaker is in Ottawa, there will never be nuclear bases in Canada," Mr. Canadian planes will not transport these monstrous machines," Mr. O'Hurley said Sunday at St. Apollinaire, Que.

The hectic events of Saturday for Mr. Diefenbaker began at Sudbury airport where his four-engine chartered airliner had joined a runway collision with a light plane that had landed moments earlier.

Later at Chelmsford, 12 miles away, he ran into a violent demonstration by some 150 persons as he arrived to speak at a union hall. It was aimed primarily at Progressive Conservative candidate Don Gillis, former mayor of Sudbury district local of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.).

Mr. Gillis has severed relations with his union Canada's headquarters and is a key figure in a jurisdictional battle between Mine-Mill and the Canadian Steelworkers Union (CLC) for control of the nickel workers local he heads.

The violence was hit on the neck with a stick and bitten on the head while he was sitting in the car with a shirt belonging to Mr. Gillis.

GOVT. CLAMPS QUOTA SYSTEM ON LAKE TROUT

No More Renewals

'Dormant' Licences

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government has clamped a quota system on Lake Superior's commercial lake trout fishery, all but wiped out by the depredations of the sea lamprey.

In a further step to save the industry, there will be no further renewal of "dormant" licences —those that have gone unused for two years.

The new curbs were announced in a weekend letter to licensed commercial fishermen from Lands and Forests Minister George H. Spooner, who told them bluntly:

"It now is evident that the lake trout fishery of Lake Superior has collapsed. It should not be pushed even the most optimistic cannot foresee even a minimal lake trout fishery established on Lake Superior before 1970.

"In the meantime, we can expect very restrictive quotas to be set each year under these circumstances."

TURN TO OTHER JOBS

"Instead of encouraging fishermen to buy boats and equipment to stay in the fishery, it should be discouraged. It is in their own interests to encourage them to leave it and, turn to other jobs, such as a way of livelihood."

The quotas were set by international agreement through the Great Lakes Fishery Commission—60,000 pounds this year from United States waters and 75,000 pounds from the Ontario side.

The quota will be divided among districts where the fishermen are licensed — 11,000 pounds at Port Arthur, 6,000 pounds at Geraldton and 25,000 pounds at White River and Sault Ste. Marie communities.

The remainder has been left for summer whose total catch is estimated not to exceed 4,000 pounds.

CAN'T TAKE TROUT

Once a quota has been reached, commercial fishermen in the district will have to quit fishing for lake trout and "fish such a way or in such locations that lake trout will not be taken in incidental catch while fishing for others."

Added Mr. Spooner: ...

"While there is every optimism that the lamprey will be controlled in this year, our hopes that the control would be effective before the lake trout population reached the point of collapse have been disappointed.

"Needless to say, my department is very reluctant to limit the fishing effort when it appears to be necessary in order to re-establish a good lake trout population and fishery in the lake in the shortest time possible."

DAMAGE IS DONE

The lamprey, a parasite which attaches itself to the prey by a sucker-like mouth, and rasps through the skin to the eventual death, is being eliminated rapidly by poisoning in tributary streams where it has spawns. But it is apparent the damage has been done.

First U.S. High-Altitude A-Test Fails as Missile Malfunctions

HONOLULU (AP) — A Thor missile carrying a nuclear device was destroyed today 100 seconds short of detonation in the first U.S. attempt at a high-altitude blast in the current Pacific test series.

A safety officer said the missile was destroyed without a nuclear detonation.

The Atomic Energy Commission in Washington reported that the missile was destroyed because its tracking system was malfunctioning.

The debris from the device fell into the ocean within a safety area previously designated.

There was no danger to personnel.

There was no official explanation for the apparent failure.

The subnegation device was to have been exploded from an altitude from 50 to 60 miles.

The explosion was to have occurred over Johnston Island, 700 miles southwest of Honolulu.

The blast was scheduled between Friday and Saturday—presumably because of cloudy weather.

The blast was designed to blow a hole in the ionosphere, a layer of electrically charged gas above the stratosphere.

The hole was to close after the scheduled shot the Soviet Union charged that the high-altitude test would be a dangerous step that will "carry the nuclear arms race into outer space."

Russia said in a broadcast distributed by Tass News agency in Moscow that the United States would have to take full blame for any harm to other nations as a result of the explosion.

Victims Mostly From Georgia On Way Home

Two Hostesses in Tail End Flung to Safety

CP from Reuters-AP

PARIS—Air France officials today rejected a suggestion that the giant Boeing jet that crashed and burned on takeoff Sunday was overloaded. A total of 130 persons — most of them leading Georgia residents—were killed in the worst single-plane disaster in aviation history.

The company issued a statement that said this type of aircraft could have easily transported 20 more passengers in addition to several tons of freight.

The mayor of Atlanta, Ga., was due here today to bring home the bodies of most of the dead who mainly were from Atlanta and environs.

Mayor Ivan Allen set out on his sad journey as investigators questioned the pilot, second-in-command and flight engineer of Air France's Atlanta agent.

All the passengers were Americans and most were members of the Atlanta Art Association who were returning with happy memories and mementoes after a three-week tour of European art galleries and cultural sites.

SAVE HOSTESSES

Two Air France hostesses — posted in the tail end of the Boeing—were flung to safety in the flaming crash at Orly Field outside Paris. The stewardess was pulled alive from the wreckage but died later in hospital.

Pretty Francoise Aubrie, one of the hostesses, said: "It was so fast. So sudden. I didn't have time to realize what was going on."

Witnesses said Capt. Roland Boube, one of Air France's most experienced pilots, apparently tried frantically to halt the airliner after engine trouble developed as it roared down the runway, but the plane was going too fast.

Police sealed off a large area of the field as the flames were stream while investigators began collecting evidence on possible causes of the crash.

ARE THROWN CLEAR

Witnesses who also survived were at their regular takeoff stations in the rear of the plane and were thrown clear when it plunged into the ground among the rose-covered homes of the village of Villeneuve le Roi fringing the airfield.

Eyewitnesses said the four-engined 36,000,000-pound plane took the length of the runway, lifted off the ground, slewed to the left, then to the right again and then "dropped like a stone."

The plane plowed its way through rose gardens for 300 metres before bursting into a mass of 150-foot-high flames.

The airliner came to rest within 10 yards of a villa where an elderly couple were having dinner.

New Brunswick Admits Facing Financial Woes

FREDERICTON (CP) — The New Brunswick government conceded today that it is facing an economic and financial dilemma.

It told the royal commission on provincial finance that the province's expenditures are rising steadily, and that with a revenue deficit in the only way to carry out this spending is to place increasingly heavy reliance on borrowing.

This pattern is bound to raise borrowing costs and thus add to the strain on revenues and increase the pressure for more borrowing, the province said in a brief to the commission. There would be a "situation limit" on borrowing, with an ultimate restriction of provincial services.

The solution rest with the fiscal policy of the federal government—Ottawa's taxing and spending policies, the province said. If New Brunswick was to provide at least average levels of public services to its people, there would have to be changes steps to improve the provincial economy and to recover until then.

The only alternative to this is continued retardation leading to the economic and cultural disappearance of the province as a part of Canada," the brief said government of Premier Louis Robichaud said in its 50-page brief.

Prime Minister Has Most Hectic Day of Campaign

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker had the most hectic day of his election campaign Saturday.

These things happened, in this order:

1. At Sudbury airport, his four - engine chartered DC-6B plane just missed a runway collision with a light, single-engine plane which nearly taxied into its path.

2. At Chelmsford, 12 miles from Sudbury, there was an ugly demonstration by some 150 persons at a union hall during which Mr. Diefenbaker followed one of the crowd pressing around her and the prime minister.

3. At Pembroke, Mr. Diefenbaker encountered another barrage of heckling which at times nearly drowned out his speech.

At Sudbury, the prime minister's plane had just touched down when the light plane piloted by John C. Diboll of Cincinnati began to taxi across the runway. Diboll, who had just landed, saw the big aircraft at the last second and braked sharply, blowing a tire.

He estimated that the light plane was 50 to 100 feet off his starboard wingtip when his plane shuddered at about 80 miles an hour.

Capt. Wells said that even had there been a collision there would have been no injury to anyone in the prime minister's plane.

There is no control tower at Sudbury, Capt. Wells said Sudbury radio had informed him there were no other planes in the area. Diboll had not been in contact with Sudbury radio.

The demonstration at Chelmsford was aimed primarily at Progressive Conservative candidate Don Gillis, president of the breakaway Local 598 of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

Mr. Gillis was hit on the side of the neck with a stick and had his shirt ripped by the demonstrators in the melee outside the union hall. Nobody laid a hand on the prime minister or Mrs. Diefenbaker though there was a good deal of pushing and shoving around them.

The prime minister had been informed the previous night there would be trouble at the meeting. Aides said afterwards he was deeply disturbed by the incident.

The organized demonstration began as soon as Mr. Diefenbaker arrived for the meeting. The crowd pressed around his car and that of Mr. Gillis. A few persons shook their fists in the prime minister's direction as a few were shouted out of their tongues. Others banged on the top of his car with their hands.

The crowd rocked Mr. Gillis' car and it threatened to turn turtle. Mr. Gillis got out and walked beside Mr. Diefenbaker's car as it inched forward through the crowd.

Members of the throng beat at Mr. Gillis with placards they were carrying. These placards called Mr. Gillis a "traitor" and proclaimed "Honest John and honest Don collect twins." Another placard said: "No strippers here, just mad miners."

Mr. Gillis jumped on to the trunk of Mr. Diefenbaker's car. It was at this point he was hit across the neck. He did not appear injured.

The crowd surged closely around the prime minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker as they emerged from their car. There was shouting and booing.

JABS HIM IN RIBS

Mrs. Diefenbaker jabbed with her elbow at a demonstrator and he fell back. "I didn't know my own strength," she said afterwards.

Four policemen escorted the prime minister to the hall.

Monty Joins Battle to Prevent Britain Joining Common Market

LONDON (CP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery today swung into the battle against British membership in the Common Market with a full-page advertisement in six national papers.

His statement, entitled "I say we should not join Europe," appears in The Times, Daily Telegraph, Daily Herald, Guardian, Daily Mirror and Daily Mail.

It includes a footnote saying it was paid for "by Lord Beaverbrook's Express Group."

Montgomery says he is opposed to Britain joining "mainly on the grounds of sovereignty grounds, a side of the argument which seems to have escaped the attention of the government."

The intention behind the Treaty of Rome, the so-called Market, Montgomery says, "is constitution of the Common political unity, a federation on the model of the United States.

"We could not possibly take part in that; it might well mean that we would have our laws made for us by Europeans and not by our own Parliament. What a frightful idea!"

Brutal Slaying Of Nurse Is Being Probed

SASKATOON (CP) — Police Saturday assigned 14 men to investigate the brutal slaying of an obstetrical nurse whose partially-nude body was found in a shallow river-bank grave Thursday night.

Police said there were indications that 23-year-old Alexandra Wivchaurk was killed by blows to the head, possibly from a concrete slab found on her chest.

The registered nurse had been missing for two weeks before her body was discovered by boys fishing.

French Objections to U.K. Entry Into Market Erased

PARIS (AP) — A two-day meeting between President de Gaulle and Prime Minister Macmillan has wiped away many French objections to Britain's entry into the Common Market.

A joint communique issued after the talks ended Sunday said the community of interests linking the two countries should influence negotiations between Britain and the six continental states on Britain's membership in the economic community.

The French officials indicated the talks, which placed new emphasis on British-French friendship, left no room for the doubts of France's partners about bringing Britain into the Common Market.

British sources confirmed this as Macmillan left Paris for London. They expressed satisfaction that the reaffirmation of the long-standing community of interest between the two nations. France likely will put up none of the hurdles in negotiations for Britain's membership expected. De Gaulle has insisted British would have to accept the obligations of the Treaty of Rome and set up the Common Market.

LOWER BARRIERS

France and her partners in the economic community—Belgium, West Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and The Netherlands—are lowering tariff barriers to each other's products while erecting a common tariff wall against outsiders. Commonwealth members fear their exports to Britain will lose their preferred status once the British enter the Common Market.

A softer French attitude was indicated in the communique which said:

"After comparing views on the problems of the moment in the world, they (de Gaulle and Macmillan) confirmed their agreement on the importance of the interests between France and the United Kingdom. They expressed the intention that this accord would animate them in the consideration of the great problems with which they have to deal. It was in the same spirit that they embarked upon and intend to continue the negotiations now proceeding in Brussels."

Officials said the two statesmen also discussed the general world situation, including West Berlin and U.S. efforts to find a new approach.

French officials said they did not discuss nuclear armaments or de Gaulle's determination to build France's own nuclear striking force despite U.S. objections.

23 PRISONERS ESCAPE FROM JAIL AT REGINA

Flee Into Darkness After Gate Broken

REGINA (CP)—A mass sit-down demonstration at the Regina provincial jail took a startling turn Sunday when 23 of the disgruntled prisoners broke open a recreation yard gate and crept into the Prairie darkness.

By early today eight escapees had been put up again on an extensive hunt was on for the others. None of the prisoners was considered dangerous.

The break at the minimum-security jail came at 2 a.m. CST, east of the nearest residential area of the province after the institution's 96 prisoners, all short - termers, had staged a sit-down protest to present unannounced grievances.

Some 23 disgruntled prisoners suddenly headed for the gate and vanished. Jail officials said no attempt was made to stop the men because of the darkness. The escapees apparently scattered over the countryside.

73 STAY

The 73 other prisoners—all were in a four-acre recreation area in a fenced-in area—made no attempt to leave the jail. About two hours after the break, all the men were inside the three-storey, brick jail.

No official explanation was given for the demonstration. J. L. Mather, director of the provincial correctional branch, said one of the men had presented a petition of suggestions and changes wanted by the prisoners.

The jail, built in 1912, has 126 cells; a 33-cell addition is about 75 per cent completed. All the prisoners are serving terms of less than two years and are under the Prairie province.

Mr. Mather said the jail superintendent, Morgan E. Bubbs, had talked to the demonstrating prisoners after the petition was presented. Mr. Mather said the superintendent had said the petition could not be considered until order had been restored.

Mr. Rubin had made no promises, Mr. Mather said.

Senior, Junior Graduates Guests of Honor at Banquet Held at Albert College

By GLADYS WARD

Guests of honor at a banquet in Albert College Saturday evening were the Senior and Junior Graduating classes of Albert College. The tables were tastefully decorated with blue candles in silver holders and bouquets of gold-colored iris at the graduates' table. At each place was a small pocket-bound hat with a tassel, bearing a simulated scroll with a list of the graduates' names. The other tables had yellow candles in green glass holders, and centrepieces of mauve and yellow iris. Around the wall, the enlarged silhouettes of the Seniors were cut from black paper and mounted on colored posters. Below each picture was a verse describing that person. Corsages for the Senior girls and buttonnieres for the boys were provided by the Dean J. MacKay while the Junior girls and boys were presented with the same thing from Mrs. Murray Leeder.

Class President of the Seniors, Charles Johnston officiated and the ceremonies were assisted by Elizabeth Love of the Junior class. After the dinner, Dean J. MacKay proposed a toast to the graduating class.

"You are surely expecting words of wisdom." Mr. MacKay said the speaker, "but there is nothing more meaningful that I could tell you than the advice my father gave to his son, 'My boy, remember the three bases and you will be all right, wishbone, jawbone, and backbone.'"

WEEKEND SUCCESS

Mr. MacKay listed some of the various things the grads were wishing with personal regrences to some particular grads. He assured them the faculty was wishing them success in their examinations. The lessons were to be used for asking questions, hoping to find the right answers and the backbone was to stand them long after their purpose in life. The regrets of the teachers would be watching their progress behind them and told them they must learn how to live or their education was in vain.

Elaine Smith responded for the students saying they felt proud, grateful, ambitious and nostalgic. "Albert College is not merely a place," she said, "it is a way of life. The traditions for which it stands means more than the passing of exams, it has given us priceless memories. If we have profited by our experiences here, those ties have been twisted. My hope is that we will all become the kind of citizens our teachers will be proud to say they have taught. We hope to return the favors we have not been in vain."

TOAST TO SCHOOL

Donald Isherwood proposed the toast to the school, stressing the theoretical purpose of Albert College. They strive for scholastic excellence with fully qualified teachers who do everything in their power to help the student succeed; they encourage and stimulate healthy exercise and they provide the opportunity for spiritual maturity. The students had been shown that religion was vital and should be the most significant part of their lives.

The headmaster, Rev. J. Alistair Haig replied for the school, stating that it was the duty of teachers that every student when he leaves the school look back with ever-increasing thankfulness and joy. Mr. Haig reminisced about events of the past year, the football games, the hockey slaughing, the gracious teas given by Dean of Women, Mrs. Leeder, Mrs. Ayers, and other happy memories.

There were many things one could think of with appreciation about the school. "Don't forget to become active as well as passive," the principal concluded.

Mr. A. O. Drysdale brought greetings from the board of governors, wishing the graduates success and hoping that with the influence of Albert College they would take them in their future in this great country.

School pins were presented to the junior and senior grads, ates by Principal J. Alistair Haig, assisted by principal-emeritus, Dr. C. E. Howard, and vice-principal Mr. Bert Simpson.

President Johnston expressed appreciation to the Senate for providing the dinner for the class; to Dean MacKay for his leadership in the past weeks, and to Chef Hugh Brown and his staff. This year, the College yearbook "Albert" has been dedicated to Chef Hugh Brown.

PRIME MINISTER

More policemen were called in and five arrived on the scene.

The hall was already packed with some 300 Conservative supporters. A 200 or so demonstrators got into the lobby. Three policemen blocked the doors at the main entrance and the door splintered in the pushing and shoving. Eggs hit the building above the outdoor loudspeaker while Mr. Diefenbaker was inside.

About 1,500 persons milled around outside the hall during the meeting while the demonstrators and supporters were booed when Mr. Gillis came or any time his name was mentioned.

Some of the demonstrators carried signs with Liberal Leader Pearson's photograph. At one point, there was a chant of "Pearson, Pearson."

Mr. Diefenbaker said later at Pembroke in reference to the Chelmsford incident that too many carried the banner of Lifestalin.

Mr. Gillis said at the Chelmsford meeting that the demonstration was not entirely sponsored by the Mine-Mill union.

"I am sure there is political money behind it," he said, without naming any party. "Any political party, Several thousand dollars had been spent on it, he added.

Mr. Diefenbaker's wife and daughter were in town said: "As long as there is a drop of blood in my body, they can't stop me from talking."

Mrs. Diefenbaker said the minority must realize that every Canadian also has the right to be heard.

"Freedom under law is the essence of democracy," he said. "Freedom is the right to be heard and to be free from Communists countries, there was only one name on the ballot.

During the prime minister's speech, there was banging on the doors by demonstrators trying to get in and the booing outside could not be heard in the hall.

As Mr. Gillis emerged from the hall, with two policemen walking beside him, someone yelled "Lynch Gillis." The cry was not taken up.

With the demonstrators walking at his back, waving their signs, Mr. Gillis strode down the dusty street. The situation quieted off considerably and though police moved to escort Mr. Diefenbaker through the tightly-packed crowd, there was no repetition of the arrival scene.

When the crowd inside rang God Save the Queen, some of the demonstrators outside sang O Canada.

It was the second wild demonstration in a week at a prime ministerial election appearance.

At Vancouver Wednesday, police broke out in the centre aisle of the Vancouver Forum and dragged Mr. Diefenbaker's speech was largely drowned out by the stamping, shouting demonstrators.

The difference between the two incidents was that at Vancouver there were active supporters tangled with the demonstrators, At Chelmsford, some of Mr. Gillis' supporters raised a hand to help him.

About 1,200 persons heard—or tried to hear—the prime minister in the Pembroke Armories Saturday night.

Mr. Diefenbaker ran into heckling right at the start when he said "I have known you over the years."

"You don't know any of us," the chief heckler shouted. He sat in the fourth row of seats directly in front of the prime minister.

At one point, Mayor Angus A. Campbell of Pembroke left the platform to remonstrate with the heckler. It didn't do any good.

Two men came from the back of the armories to stand near the heckler.

"I want to go to the washroom without two escorts," he shouted.

"If I had my way I'd have given you an escort a long time ago," Mr. Diefenbaker snapped.

Later, the prime minister said: "A small group of irresponsible has come here for the purpose of carrying out the instructions they received."

"They're afraid of the truth," he said of the interrupters at another point.

He said the reason for the heckling in recent days is that everywhere Canadians are talking of altering the government in the last five years has given the country good government and that it will be returned June 18.

One heckler was hit over the head with a purse by an elderly woman who sat behind him. He subsided.

There were shouts of "Change the record" and "Hot air" from other hecklers. One referred to Mr. Diefenbaker as "that thing."

Chiang Kai-Shek Is Still Looking Forward to Fight

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Nearing the age of 75, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek is still looking forward to a fight.

Reports of discontent and a threat of famine on the Communist-ruled China mainland have raised the hopes of the Chinese Nationalist leader that the day for a comeback is approaching.

Chiang has been sounding the same call since the Communists drove him and remnants of his defeated army out of the Chinese mainland.

Many foreigners have long regarded as a pipedream any hope of return to the mainland, but Red China's problems, including the flight of thousands of refugees, have lifted this at least a semblance of support.

BOASTS SUBSIDE

Meanwhile, Communist boasts of spectacular gains — such as across 100 miles of water—have subsided in recent months with the Communists apparently too occupied with domestic problems.

Chiang has been bolstered by more than a $2,000,000,000 American military and economic aid.

The Chinese Nationalists have an army of 430,000 men that American advisers say is ready to go. The Nationalist Air Force 80,000 men and 400 jet fighters make it one of the finest in the world. The navy has 60,000 men and several hundred landing craft.

Chiang probably could throw no more than a division in a frontal amphibious assault, however. That likely would be suicidal against overwhelming Communist forces on the mainland.

More likely would be hit-and-run commando raids or parachuting of guerrillas in an attempt to touch off an uprising before the launching of an assault by sea.

A Chinese Nationalist attack from an American - protected sanctuary without U.S. support could bring a rift between Washington and Chiang but the American go-ahead could come, however, should the Red Chinese launch almost any aggression in Southeast Asia.

Nationalist sources say Chiang might be spurred into action against the mainland if he felt there was danger of Russia taking over China's seat in the United Nations.

The United States has succeeded in beating back attempts by Red China to join but the Communist regime has gained increasing strength among UN members.

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Jean-Paul Jacques, 22, was shot to death early Sunday when three men tried to beat a Sherbrooke policeman with iron bars.

Held for questioning about the attack are Jean-Guy Jacques, 20, brother of the dead man, and Renaud Gosselin, 25.

Constable Barbin Blais was called to a downtown restaurant where three men, apparently drunk, were creating a disturbance after being refused admittance.

He said they went away to Gosselin's home and returned with iron bars.

Former Principal of Albert, Dr. McKenzie, Speaker At Baccalaureate Service

By GLADYS WARD

For their Baccalaureate service, Albert College joined with the congregation of Bridge Street United Church in an occasion of impressive dignity and marked reverence. The chancel was arranged with Easter lilies and by two standards of white gladioli and chrysanthemums.

Entering the church in procession with the clergymen present were the Board of Governors were followed by the members of the Faculty, then the candidates for graduation wearing blue and gray gowns with mortarboards, and the students of the school.

Mr. Alec Gordon presided at the organ and the beauty of the service was enhanced by the fine musical offerings. Mrs. Hazelnna Reid contributed a solo "Lord Come Away", and the full choir sang anthems in the anthem, "Gloria in Excelsis" by Mozart. The organ prelude was "Grand Chorus" and the postlude was "A Safe Strong Hold is our God".

Rev. H. M. Davis gave the invocation and read in the responsive reading of the 23rd psalm. The Scripture lesson was read by Mr. Gordon Hall, Chairman of the Board of Governors, and Rev. Bert Howard, Principal of Albert College Bible College offered prayer.

Rev. Harry Davis, Minister of the church, extended a welcome to all visitors, especially parents, relatives and friends of the students. Mr. D. Baxter hoped the service would prove a great inspiration to all who shared in it, and told the students that the prayers of all would follow them wherever they might go when they left Albert College.

Principal of the school, Rev. Alastair Reid thanked the minister and the members of Bridge Street church for their hospitality. His special duty, Mr. Haig spoke of the "co-operative group of students and devoted faculty, and welcomed back two beloved and respected former principals and their wives, Rev. Dr. A. E. MacKenzie, his immediate predecessor, and Rev. Dr. Bert Howard.

BRINGS GREETINGS

"Since no man is an island unto himself, and we are a part of all we meet, Albert College will always be a part of us," Dr. MacKenzie said, "It is a great delight to hear that all is going well at Albert College, and the new principal is giving splendid leadership. In speaking of the work to which the church has called me, I feel that I am in the front line of the church's battle against the forces of evil which are stronger than I had realized. I have discovered in the past ten months that the battle is joined with the church of Jesus Christ against the forces of evil.

"Headlines in the daily papers are often most interesting," the speaker continued, "and one said that Astronaut Major Titov found no God in space. I should like to ask you three questions. Should we expect to find God in outer space? Did Major Titov know how to look for God in space or elsewhere? Do we recognize God when we see Him?

"In the Old Testament the nearness of God was taken for granted. The travesty of our generation is the tendency to leave God out, denying to our children their one eternal birthright in our day to worship and serve many minor gods. Yet we find that these gods have their own demands, require sacrifices, but in the end leave us unsatisfied and restless in spirit. Some of these gods are materialism, secularism, pleasure, satisfaction of various appetites, and a place in the sun. Life today for many people is a wild scramble, and their emotions and hearts are disturbed. The words tension, frustration and confusion were never heard so often. We are going, we know not where, and we are going.

"Our attitudes toward work are changing. We are ceasing to look upon work as creative and satisfying. Dr. Bell, who conducts the Alcoholic Foundation, says that addiction is a deeper, basic problem than alcoholism. Dr. Bell says we are the most drug addicted generation in all history. Why can we not learn to govern our emotions and have quiet and calm spirits?

WHAT IS SOLUTION?

"We are in danger of losing the most precious gift of God, communion with God, not because He is withdrawing, but because we are shoving Him aside. The worship of small gods was not carefully planned. It seemed to have just happened. We are on a mad merry-go-round. What is the solution?

"We must take a good look first in the mirror, and discover what we are really like. Then we must return to a love communion and fellowship with God. There is one God, the Father of us all, and He is in us and around us. We must take the gospel of the Fatherhood of God into the world and accept justice, goodness and mercy as our standard. Christ's map, however wise, suffers the loss of time. What we need is assurance that God is his Father and we are brothers. This calls for the industry and honest effort of all parents and teachers in the realization that God is seen with the eyes of the spirit and to translate this is the job of this generation."

Garnett, Mrs. A. G. Drysdale and Mrs. D. Williams. The refreshments were served by some of the girl students. The guests were received at the door by Dr. and Mrs. A. and Mrs. Haig, Mr. J. MacKay, Dean of studies and Mrs Meyers, Dean of Women, Mrs. Alec Gordon and Mrs. J. A. Haig convened the tea.

RCAF Women Auxiliary Closes Op-Shop

TRENTON — The RCAF's Women's Auxiliary closed the doors to its "Op Shop", May 31. Auxiliary members will continue to co-operate with the town's welfare agencies in the distribution of used clothing to those in need.

The Opportunity Shop, set up ten years ago at 63 King Street, has served a long and useful purpose in the community. Used clothing, washed or dry-cleaned by local cleaners gratis, was sold for a token sum. Here, one could buy dishes and small items of household furniture. Second hand books and magazines were popular with the patrons. Proceeds were used to maintain and equip the nursery wing at Trenton's hospital.

Two years ago, the shop was moved to Dundas St. West, near the town bridge, where business was carried on as usual. However, with the formation of the Community Assistance Association this spring Auxiliary members felt that one organization would meet the ends of the other and the decision was made to discontinue the shop.

The auxiliary is planning on suspending operations for the summer. On June 4, the last meeting of the season will be held in A/C/M Breadner School auditorium and election of officers will be held. Under the leadership of 1961-62 president Mrs. J. E. Lutz, the auxiliary will close the pages of another successful year of operations.

Water Safety Week

This is Water Safety Week in Canada. Here in Belleville the week is being held under the sponsorship of the Quinte Water Safety Council, of which D. D. Hickson is chairman. The Council was formed to co-ordinate the activities of such agencies as the Red Cross, St. John Ambulance and Y.M.C.A., all of which have their own programs pertaining to the safe enjoyment of various activities on, in and under the water.

In this city the Police Department has played a major role in water safety work, through its safety officer, Sgt. R. Blatchford. While he is primarily concerned with traffic hazards, Sgt. Blatchford has distributed pamphlets, films and other safety material dealing with water hazards. The Water Safety Council is also interested in promoting the inspection of boats for safety equipment and their safe operation, in which phase of the work it seeks to assist where possible other police forces, the Ontario Provincial Police and the Mounties. Both these police forces will have patrol craft in this area during the week.

Later this month the Water Safety Council will organize a swimming demonstration at the popular Kinsmen's pool.

In this area, water safety is of greater importance than in many parts of Canada, because of the abundance of opportunities which exist for every one, young and old, to enjoy almost every kind of water sport. From the aging fisherman in an old punt to the muscular scuba diver with the latest equipment, all need to know something about the hazards which can face them, and how to avoid them. Two attitudes must be avoided, over-confidence and fear. Over-confidence promotes accidents. Fear prevents proper steps being promptly taken when a mishap does occur. Pool-haddiness before an accident and panic after it are the two handmaidens of disaster. The time to learn how to avoid an accident, and what to do if one occurs, is before it happens. There is no better time to do this than during Water Safety Week.

Strange Helpmates

It is a mad world.

In the bad old days, people whose beaks had been scratched were known, upon occasion, to scratch a back in return. Back-scratching, of course, was a form of currying favor in those days.

Old-timers, however, made a distinction between a scratched back and a clawed torso. Not so today. Truckers' strikes have been figuratively clawed by the railways' piggy-back operations, appear to have played at least a minor role in easing the itch of railroad employees for a fatter pay envelope.

The CNR has just agreed to grant trainmen an increase in pay. Somehow we cannot escape the conviction that the truckers' strike against the effects of piggy-backing, which has sent freight tumbling into every old box-car the railways can locate on even the most out-of-the-way siding, may have exerted some influence on the decision of the CNR management. They must have listened to the thought of a strike preventing them from mining this bonanza.

Then, too, it is just possible that certain people outside the transportation business, who have lively interests in the state of the nation at this particular time, may have been less than enchanted with the prospect of a railway strike being added to a truckers' strike before June 18.

Stupid Cupid

Holy Loch, the Scottish inlet where an unholy row was raised over the arrival of Polaris-armed, nuclear-powered submarines flying the U.S. flag, has been invaded and conquered—by Cupid. More than one hundred crew members of the U.S. supply ship Proteus have fallen in love with local lassies and sought permission to wed.

This leads the London Free Press, throwing out "Omni vincit amor" as a Latin smoke-screen, to suggest that if arrangements could be made to base an allied ship in a Russian port, "the Iron Curtain might melt away in the warmth of love."

Ye gods! Have they never heard of inlaws way out there in the wilds of Western Ontario?

G. K. Chesterton was of the nature of greatness—physically, mentally and spiritually. He was tall—six foot four—and of large proportions, with a fine head and delicate hands. And he himself said, "I always enjoy myself more than most. There's such a lot of me having a good time."—Dorothy Collins, who worked for G. K. Chesterton for several years.

Difficult Problem

Montreal Gazette

What is the responsibility of a doctor when the realizes that his patient is no longer fit to drive an automobile?

It is the doctor who is most likely to be the first to know when a driver is no longer competent.

The issue was raised this month at the annual conference of the Ontario Medical Association by guest speaker, Dr. Harold Boshes, Montefiore, Associate Chief of the Metabolism Clinic of New York University's College of Medicine. He said that doctors should urge patients medically unqualified for driving to give up their licences.

But what if the patient declines to accept his doctor's plea that he drive no more? Has the doctor done his full duty simply by doing what he can to be persuasive? Should he then proceed to report to the patient's incapacity to the licencing authorities?

This is a very difficult question, because it would violate a fundamental ethic that what a doctor learns in treating a patient must remain a secret between them. It cannot be disclosed without the patient's permission, except in such cases as this the consent of the patient is most unlikely to be given.

This problem was considered at a recent meeting of the British Medical Association. Dr. Peter Dawson, speaking for the Association's Council, said:

"It is in the interests of the patient as well as of the community that the right to drive should reserve his right, if he really conscientiously thinks so, to take away from a man the dangerous driver off the road."

This statement apparently from the Council was accepted by the Association. There remains the difficult question of whether the right to drive should depend on the judgment of a single doctor. The suggestion has been made that such cases might be left to a board of independent referees for final decision.

Whatever the final adjustment or procedure may be, it would seem that in the age of the automobile the medical profession must play a valuable role in preventing the incapacitated from driving. Though such a commitment may be felt against the doctor by a final decision, if the patient had been taken away, this would be greatly lessened if the doctor were known to be under the obligation to make his report to the authorities.

Mint Scent For New Glue

Windsor Star

A new glue has turned up in the office gluepots, those essential but often smelly adhesives unpleasantly smelly aids to getting out a newspaper.

In place of the familiar old glue odor, the new glue has a delicate but unmistakeable odor of mint. Some say it's peppermint, others say its whatever mint is used in creme de menthe, but all agree it's mint.

Who is responsible? Was it the manufacturer, trying out a major breakthrough on a test market? He's destined for dazzling heights of commercial fame. Was it the office copy girl intent on making life better for the old hard-boiled men in the newspaper business. Was it a survivor, a mistake in the glue factory? Perish the thought.

Move over, you heroes of the publishing business. You're about to be joined by the benefactor of mankind who invented the scented gluepot.

This problem was considered at a recent meeting of the British Medical Association. Dr. Peter Dawson, speaking for the Association's Council, said:

"It is in the interests of the patient as well as of the community that the right to drive should reserve his right, if he really conscientiously thinks so, to take away from a man the dangerous driver off the road."

This statement apparently from the Council was accepted by the Association. There remains the difficult question of whether the right to drive should depend on the judgment of a single doctor. The suggestion has been made that such cases might be left to a board of independent referees for final decision.

Whatever the final adjustment or procedure may be, it would seem that in the age of the automobile the medical profession must play a valuable role in preventing the incapacitated from driving. Though such a commitment may be felt against the doctor by a final decision, if the patient had been taken away, this would be greatly lessened if the doctor were known to be under the obligation to make his report to the authorities.

Can Re-sod Bald Scalps

Modern Medicine

Balding men and bald spots is the latest "new look" in the common — both can be repaired with transplants. Dr. Norman Orentreich of New York University, speaking at the annual convention of the American Academy of Dermatology, described an office procedure by which hair is taken from areas. A skin biopsy punch is used to take small plugs of skin and hair from the posterior scalp to bald areas. The grafts are placed in such a way that the transplanted hair can be confused with normal surrounding hair spaces. Healing requires two to three weeks. New hair, identical to that from the donor site, appears two or three months after auto-grafting.

REFLECTION ON AN IMPORTANT MATTER

What is culture?

There are a few ridiculous people in the world who believe it has to do primarily with accent, and they shake themselves ridiculous by trying loftily to talk and look like the people whom they regard as cultured. Culture is something vastly more than accent. The word "culture" comes from a Latin word which means to cultivate. It involves refinement of taste, and it stands for respect that to include the achievements and learning which certain races, nations, and groups have built up. We speak of Greek culture, Roman culture, Germanic culture. We are creating a culture in the modern nations in which we live, and this culture will someday stand to be judged before the bar of history.

What kind of culture are we really building up in this North American continent that is so rich beyond the dreams of antiquity. We have comforts which all the riches of former cultures could not have purchased. We have an ease and luxury as were our forebears, yet two World Wars give us a jolt from which we have not yet fully recover.

Our scientific knowledge is prodicious and magnificent. We have higher aspirations for ourselves and the world than previous generations have had. We have not yet produced a culture — we are in the process here in North America of producing one. What will it be like? Will it stand up well with the cultures of Greece, Rome, and the European Renaissance?

Here's something to think about.

Columnist Says God Is No Big Magician

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"I wish I were God," said Michael the other day. I asked him why. "Because God can do anything," he said simply. "And I like to be able to do anything I wanting to."

Of course, every child wishes to be omnipotent, and some of them grow up to be God-like. But what interested me in my son's remark was not the commonplace desire but the utter misunderstanding we have about God — not only among children, but among most adults as well.

It would shock the great majority of Christians (and others believers as well) to be told that God has no free will, while people have. But this is absolutely the case. God cannot do evil — and free will is the power to do good or evil.

He cannot be tempted in a contradiction. He cannot be less than perfect. He cannot change the past. He cannot relinquish His power. He cannot change His mind. He cannot because things a child can do that God cannot do. He is completely and irrevocably bound by His nature.

There is no point, of course, in telling say-so this to a child. But many adults are not aware of it. They look upon God as a super — magician, performing feats with the scientific revelation. This is a superstitious view of God, not a religious one.

Michael's God — for all young people are pagans at first — is an old man with a long white beard who lives in Heaven and has unlimited power. He can create and destroy. He can change whatever he likes in the universe. This reminds me of Solomon, the God of most people, no matter what they call themselves.

And when such people, in moments of grief, exclaim, "How could God allow such a thing to happen," or invent the theological ignorance at the core of their belief, they really think that God belongs in the class of divine thermostat to automatically regulate the heat and temperature of the universe.

St. Thomas tells us that all we can say about God is about God are negative things, not positive things. We can know what He is not, rather than what He is; and this is what the science of theology tells us find out, so that our beliefs will not be mere superstitions and magical incantations.

Atheists and agnostics are often closer to God than so-called believers, as many theologians will say. I admit. The man who denies the existence of the magical god is nearer reality than the man who affirms it. Where the atheist and agnostic go wrong is in assuming that the god of superstition is also the god of theology. In religion, however, even agree on what we are disagreeing about.

Fully two weeks earlier than in the normal year the first of the season's homegrown strawberries were offered on the local produce market on Saturday. As far as is known this is the first instance that strawberries have been offered on the market so early in the season. They were priced at 35 cents per box.

Upholding its reputation of being to the forefront in response to humanitarian appeals, the village of Deloro has again answered in a magnificent manner, the appeal of the Red Cross. One of the severest electric storms of the year visited Madoc and vicinity shortly after midnight on Friday. The severest damage was done in the village, but Mr. Thomas Bell, Clarke, Carney, farmer, residing near Union Church had the misfortune to lose the barn and cattle. All were found lying lifeless in the barn where they had grouped for shelter.

Too Much Money Spent On 'Food Supplements'

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that it is essential to take minerals along with vitamins? A representative of a company is selling a combination of the two and we intend them together. — B.W.

No. It's not true.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is making vigorous efforts to curtail the immense amount of money being spent by the public on "food supplements" they don't need.

Of course we all need vitamins and minerals. But just read two paragraphs from the government's pamphlet on "Food Facts and Fallacies."

I quote: "Our food supply is unsurpassed in volume, variety and nutritional value. By patronizing all departments of a modern food store we can easily supply all of our nutritional needs."

And from another page of the same pamphlet:

"Nutrition authorities agree that the best way to buy vitamins and minerals is in the packages provided by nature — vegetables, fruits, milk, eggs, meat, fish, grains and flours for their home in Edmonton, Alta.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that it is essential to take minerals along with vitamins? A representative of a company is selling a combination of the two and we intend them together. — B.W.

No. It's not true.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is making vigorous efforts to curtail the immense amount of money being spent by the public on "food supplements" they don't need.

Of course we all need vitamins and minerals. But just read two paragraphs from the government's pamphlet on "Food Facts and Fallacies."

I quote: "Our food supply is unsurpassed in volume, variety and nutritional value. By patronizing all departments of a modern food store we can easily supply all of our nutritional needs."

And from another page of the same pamphlet:

"Nutrition authorities agree that the best way to buy vitamins and minerals is in the packages provided by nature — vegetables, fruits, milk, eggs, meat, fish, grains and flours or enriched bread and cereals. A good diet should include such a variety of foods that most persons can hardly fail to have an adequate and reasonable supply of the essential food constituents."

Only when there is some radical departure from normal diet do we need special sources or supplements of vitamins and minerals.

The Food and Drug Administration points out that "one competent physician will not overlook such important deficiencies during pregnancy, or Vitamins C and D for babies and young children."

And above all don't be misled by any commercial that is "essential" that minerals be taken along with vitamins. It is not so. The only important thing is that you get them — preferably in the amounts in perfectly normal, well-balanced diet.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had various veins for 30 years. My doctor advised me that I be stripped but said it must be my decision. My friend said she'd never do it again; however she had it done because she was afraid of a stroke. I have a greater danger of clots if they are not removed? — Mrs. H.H.

Certainly! Varicose veins, clots, and of varicose ulcers, and of swelling, and thrombophlebitis. One friend says yes, another says no. Your doctor "advised" that you have it done? That's two to one.

Now you've asked me and the vote becomes three to one, because doctor; don't advise surgical procedures without having a good reason. Certainly it's your decision. No doctor has a right to order you to have anything done. All he can do is advise — but he should have a good sound advice.

It would take a week of columns to discuss the whys and wherefores, but I've rounded up that much information, and more, in a booklet, and I think your mind would be made up by getting a copy and reading it.

"For a copy of "How To Deal With Varicose Veins," send 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 138, Dundee, Ill., for your copy of the booklet, "How To Take Care Of Your Heart," enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope. Be sure to ask for cover cost of printing and handling.

Food-Lovers' Outlook Dim

Vancouver Sun

So human nature doesn't change! Well, if calling is natural, there comes stories that out over the press wires on a recent day about a Mrs. Hicks in the nature of this human habit.

New York, anthropologist Dr. Margaret Landis, who calls herself a people-watcher, records the progress of the billion-dollar piecemeal eating business. Americans eat hot dog, the hamburger stand and the vending machine, she says. North American child picks up a bit here and there and does most of the eating between meals than at them.

The habit lasts when he grows up, and the adult is considered a nibbler, a snacker and the TV dinner. As a result, says Dr. Landis, American eating habits are more confined to set imperfectional meal diet, specifying chiefly of a few standard, quickly prepared and generally acceptable foods, bland and uninteresting.

In California (as in British Columbia) modern housewives would recoil with horror if they saw a chicken on a roast off a plump, mature, grain-fed specimen. Like others there report their beef is killed young, pampered, petted, fed on milk and/or whipped and never chased or worried to run.

Before he is slaughtered, the California steer is now allegedly given a massage, tenderizer with a hypodermic and his blood stream he is tenderized all over.

And in Seattle, Boeing Company executive Dr. Joseph A. Stern, announced that soon every TV dinner will be served by an automatic fully timed package of dehydrotron-ic pressed-food for space-saving meals.

The sun shone for about 1,800 Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Wolf Cubs, Brownies and St. John Ambulance Cadets and Cadet Nurses who paraded in this city Sunday with bands from RCAF 6 RD, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and the Salvation Army, at the annual Sunday Service and Parade.

The parade assembled in the playing field of Belleville Collegiate before two o'clock and Frank Lancaster, chairman of the Sunday Service and Parade Committee introduced the officials present. Mrs. Mary Haig Quinte area commissioner for the Girl Guides and Mrs. D. Stewart, Belleville district commissioner of the Guides, Percy Pickering, president of the Belleville District Council of the Boy Scouts and M. G. Maw, District Commissioner of the Boy Scouts, Mrs. Acton, Salvation Army area commissioner, John L. Hodgins, superintendent of the St. John Ambulance Division, Mrs. Lillian Ashley and Provincial Cadet Commissioner.

Mr. Lancaster thanked Northern Electric who supplied the public address system and Dick Tilley and Dave Mackie who installed and operated it. He also thanked Jack Bevins of CJBQ, who handled the publicity. He told the parade that the Boy Scouts were now officially known as the Boy Scouts of Canada, and the Guides as the Girl Guides in Canada.

Mayor A. M. Haig, representing the civil authorities addressed the parade. He paid tribute to the size and power of the Scouting movement, with a short summary of their history. He paid the first tribute to the graduating St. John Cadets, pointing out that their organization dated from the Honorable Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem, which dated the discovery of Amerika by about 400 years.

PARADE MOVES OFF

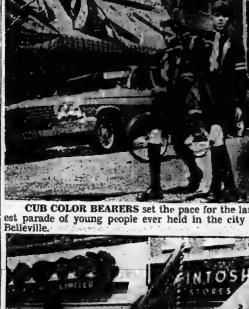
At about 2 p.m. the parade moved off north on Church Street to Victoria down Victoria to Front Street, south to Bridge Street East to Church Street and north to Bridge Street United Church and St. Thomas' Anglican Church. St. John Cadets and corpsmen were on duty along the route of the parade, and crowds, equal to those lining the Santa Claus parade lined the route.

On Front Street, salutes of the different organizations were taken by their officials were taken by their officials. In the Brownie and Guides marching competition, the 1st Belleville Brownies were adjudged Best Brownies and the 2nd Belleville Guides won their division.

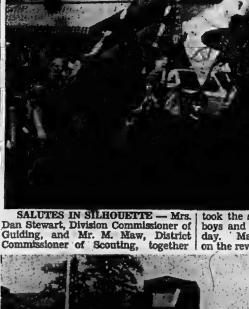
"In Bridge Street United Church, Rev. D. Davis introduced Miss Millessa Howard, a missionary of 30 years' service in Africa to the Brownies and Cubs. Miss Howes entertained the healthy, well fed young Canadians to her own, often undernourished charges.

She set out to give the children an idea of life in Africa, with examples and demonstrations. Three Brownies, assisted by three dolls, helped her in a demonstration of how the African mother carried their children on their backs with sashes.

The service, under instruction, demonstrated the use of twigs as toothbrushes.



At St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Canon A. S. McConnell spoke to the Cubs and Scouts on examinations and their relationship to school and everyday life. He emphasized the direct connection between the Scouting movement and Christian living.



SUNDAY SERVICE AND PARADE COMMITTEE chairman Mr. Frank Lancaster introduces Mayor A. McLean Haig and Mrs. Lillian Ashley yesterday afternoon at the Combined Scouts and Guide Parade, which fell in at the BCIVS campus.

CUB COLOR BEARERS set the pace for the largest parade of young people ever held in the city of Belleville.

SALUTES IN SILHOUETTE — Mrs. Dan Stewart, Division Commissioner of Guiding, and Mr. M. Maw, District Commissioner of Scouting, together took the salute of approximately 1,800 boys and girls on Front Street yesterday. Mayor and Mrs. Haig were also on the reviewing stand.

HOLDING HANDS the Brownies kept their files straight as they marched down Victoria Avenue enroute to the special Sunday Church Service.

Takes Relatives Away From TV Sets for Day

LONDON (AP)—Jack Ford hates television so much that he spent £100 ($306) to separate his relatives and close friends from their sets for a day.

"The telly (TV) has ruined our family life," said bachelor Ford in an interview. "I hardly ever see my relatives these days and I put it all down to the telly."

So, feeling this way about the goggle-box, he began saving his money for a special cause.

Last week his savings reached £100.

He hired a bus, issued invitations, bought prizes and organized outdoor games. Sunday was the day of his party.

YOU'RE EVERY PENNY

"It was worth every penny just to see their smiling faces —out in the sunshine," he said.

He took his party of 45, including his mother, to the seaside.

Ford, 37, a decorator, said he also invited close friends.

"They'd been sitting around their telly too," he added, "and I hadn't been seeing them either."

Ford's away-from-the-TV party began at 8 a.m.

"I called it a mystery trip and I offered prizes to the ones who came closest to guessing our destination."

The prizes ranged from an electric clock to kitchen ware.

He said that when relatives and friends returned to their homes Sunday night many of them said they were too tired to watch TV.

"That's two ways of keeping them away from the sets," commented Ford.

Counterblast To Euromart Is Expected

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A counterblast to the European Common Market is expected from a top-level meeting of Comecon, the Communist bloc council for economic mutual assistance, opening Wednesday.

Western and Communist sources predict the meeting will be attended by party and government chiefs of member countries. They say the Soviet Premier Khrushchev's proposal last week for an international conference to set up a World-wide, non-discriminatory trade organization.

Making his proposal, Khrushchev climaxed several weeks of press criticism here against the Common Market by calling it a "state monopoly agreement in the finance oligarchy of Western European countries to the vital interests of all peoples—the cause of which is dear since the aggressive quarters of imperialism use it to strengthen NATO and step up the armaments race."

Usually reliable sources said the meeting of top Communist leaders—the first since the Soviet party-bred congress last October—may also produce new moves in the Berlin question.

Newspapers here have recently made strong criticism of the Western negotiating position on Berlin, particularly the demand that Western troops must remain in West Berlin.

The eight members of Comecon are Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Romania, Hungary, Albania, Poland, East Germany and the Soviet Union. Albania has boycotted such meetings lately.

Fire Rating Medium In District

The fire danger rating in the Tweed district of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests was "medium", as of this morning the report stated.

An official stated there was only one fire over the weekend, a brushfire which was extinguished today.

Low temperatures over the weekend had an effect on traffic to the northern areas, the official stated.

The mercury dipped to 37 degree in Bancroft and 46 in the Dacre area, he said. The high in Tweed was 70.

Rainfall over the highways to the north showed the smallest number this year.

Rail Laborer Facing Charge Of Murder

TERRACE, B.C. (CP) — Police apprehended an unemployed railway laborer in this north-central British Columbia city Sunday and charged him with capital murder in the killing of a young woman and her five-month-old child.

RCMP said a tip led them to a residential area of Terrace where they arrested Kenneth Raymond Van Horn, 27. He was charged a short time later in the slaying of Myrtle Gurbich, 27.

The bodies of the woman and child were found Saturday night in a two-room shack by its owner, John Harrison. Carson said he noticed flames inside the structure, found the bodies and put out the fire.

The woman had been stabbed in the chest and struck on the head, apparently with a bottle. The infant had been slashed so badly police said they could not determine the sex.

Terrace is 80 miles east of Prince Rupert and about 500 miles north of Vancouver.

Knife-Wielding Bandit Sought At Hamilton

BURLINGTON (CP)—An Oakville-style bandit has been broadcast for a knife-wielding bandit who terrified unsuccessful clerk in a Burlington service station operator early today.

It was the fifth time in 13 years that someone has tried to hold up Jack Costigan, proprietor of the service station on York Boulevard at Wolfe Island.

Mr. Costigan thwarted the attempt when he slugged the man with a pop bottle after being threatened.

"Give me your money, I'm going to cut you up," the man told Mr. Costigan, Mr. Costigan said police the man last night using a knife with an eight inch blade.

When he was threatened, Mr. Costigan picked up the bottle and hit the man on the shoulder. A short struggle followed and the would-be robber fled after knocking the service station proprietor down.

Police throughout the province have been alerted to look for a dark blue Chevrolet, 1960-60, driving a 1953 green Buick. He is believed to be approximately six feet, one inch, 210 to 220 pounds, wearing a dark navy blue suit and a pink shirt.

'SELLOUT TWINS'

The hall was filled with some 300 Conservative supporters but the demonstrators outside could be heard shouting and booing during the Conservative leader's speech.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the minority must realize the good economy he can also has the right to be heard.

He said he again had trouble being heard the same evening at Pembroke where he ran into a steady stream of heckling that largely disrupted his speech to some 1,200 last night.

The prime minister called them "a small group of irresponsibles" who were "carrying out the instructions they received."

He said the reason for the recent heckling is that everybody knows the people feel that his government has done a good job in the last two years and will be returned June 18.

Referring to nuclear weapons, he said the presence at Winnipeg of the nuclear club as long as their is there, the possibility of maintaining peace or discussion among the "nations.

IMAGE 'TARNISHED'

Mr. Douglas made his comments about the anti-Diefenbaker demonstrations at an airport reception at Winnipeg. Later in Toronto he told newsmen unsuccessful Mr. Diefenbaker "has tarnished his image by displaying the temperament of a Hitlerian dictator and the manners of a Chicago gangster."

The NDP leader said that Mr. Pearson hasn't made much effort to get people to vote for him.

In Brockville, Mr. Pearson said that in a "tense and dangerous" world situation Canada must work with the U.S., the United States, Britain and France.

He added that he hoped Canada under a Liberal government would have "more effective leadership than we have been in the last five years."

At Hanna, Alta., on Saturday Mr. Thompson again outlined the Liberal credit stand adopted at public debt and high interest charges and said Canadians today enjoy such things as pensions and prairie acreage payments at the expense of children not yet born.

DEBT OF DEBT

"Canada has been launched into an orbit of debt with a debt of debt to pay to stand the heat of re-entry."

Mr. Thompson said in Montreal Sunday, he told an audience of 1,700 that his party's social welfare "must start in the program for progress."

Mr. Thompson promised a voluntary health insurance program for the aged and needy not already covered under existing private health care plans, and extension of family allowances to the age of 20 for children remaining at school.

Social Credit Premier Bennett of British Columbia, campaigning with Mr. Thompson, predicted their party will elect more members of Parliament than ever before in their history.

Former Liberal health minister Paul Martin, speaking at Port Arthur, Ont., Saturday, criticized Conservatives for claiming the institution of the national hospital insurance plan as a Conservative government accomplishment. The plan was brought into effect by the St. Laurent government.

John Brazier, former national Conservative leader from 1942-45, was a candidate for a speech in the Ottawa area in which he said "no government has ever tried so arbitrarily, so discretely, so effectively, to help the Canadian farmer."

B.C. Will Have First Dental Insurance Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first dental health insurance program in Canada will be launched next year in British Columbia, Dr. Jack Lewis, president of the B.C. Dental Association, said today.

The prepaid, non-profit plan has been approved by the provincial government and the Canadian Dental Association, Dr. Lewis said, and will be started with a pilot project for a voluntary group of children.

Details for the plan, to be called Dental Services Association, are still being worked out. Statistical surveys are being made to find the probable dental costs for various groups and the number of dentists who would participate.

Dr. Lewis said the pilot plan will be conducted with children because full dental health care is preventive, difficult to conduct on adults in a short period.

Picton News

Conservatives Have Increased Canada's Trade

PICTON — A trade deficit of $713 millions inherited from the previous Liberal administration has been turned into a 179 million dollar surplus by the Progressive Conservative government, contributing to the growth of Canadian employment for Canadians, stated Hon. William Hamilton, Postmaster General for Canada, addressing 225 voters at a rally in Picton parish hall, Friday night. He told of the aggressive sales programs which had made this possible, and predicted an even brighter future.

"One of the most hypocritical stands in the present campaign is being taken by the Liberals in criticizing the Conservative finance of the last," declared the spirited speaker, as he quoted glowing speeches by Walter Gordon and other Liberal economists. These were to the effect that devaluation of the Canadian dollar was the best way to assist Canadian industry and make employment.

"Now we are going to see more tourists in this district than ever before," the minister added in commenting on the value of the dollar being pegged. "It will encourage support of Canadian goods, encourage industry and employment for Canadians; it will result in greater purchases of Canadian goods," he said. While it may hit those who travel in the USA, it may encourage them to see Canada first.

"The parade of gloom and doom by the Liberals is hurting our country. In parliament, the Liberals opposed, but voted for all government legislation. Now they are only criticizing everything. Their actions do not make them appear to be trustworthy of forming a government.

LACK SKILLS

"We will never be satisfied until all who wish to work are employed", declared Hon. Mr. Hamilton "Many lack the necessary skills to fill the vacancies which do exist. In one Montreal paper there were 18 columns of want ads for help, but hundreds of unemployed registered. Steps are being taken to retrain men and to provide skills through the 167 new technical schools for which the federal government will pay 75 per cent of construction and equipment.

"We had a government been more concerned with social justice than a party like the Diefenbaker, said the speaker as he announced increases in payments to the aged, the blind, the disabled veterans and the unemployed as well as hospitals and the winter works programme.

The Liberals used a slide rule to determine if pensions and other help would go to those in need; the Conservatives used human beings. It has been the government with a heart.

"The Liberals promised a nation hospital scheme for 40 years and it took the Conservatives less than five to implement a good one.

"We are going ahead, we are giving leadership, and we expect industry and individuals to do their part. We have shown there is a sale for all products we produce and we will continue to see. There is every indication of a trade surplus of $1,000 million dollars this year", said the Minister.

CANDIDATE HEARD

P.C. candidate Douglas Alkenbrack pledged himself in support of the government policies for a prosperous Canada, emphasizing that problems peculiar to the riding will have his diligent effort. He asked that agricultural organizations, councils and others support their requests by him for action.

Welcome guests were piped in by Piper McNevin of Napanee.

After civic greetings, Mayor H. J. McFarland stated he felt there would be much less unemployment if more were willing to work. He thought that of those on the unemployment rolls today, not 50,000 would show up for like jobs.

Warden of Lennox, Reeve Joe Shelley of Adolphustown, and Warden of Prince Edward, John Fox of Hallowell, extended welcomes and spoke briefly in appreciation of the aid given municipalities by the governments.

President of the Riding Association, Barney Hepburn, presided.

Hon. Mr. Hamilton was introduced by Clarence Millagan and thanked by George Tustin.

PC Candidate Honored on 50th Birthday

PICTON — Saturday was a momentous day in the life of the Progressive Conservative candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox, Douglas Alkenbrack, former Napanee mayor. In the afternoon, he and Mrs. Alkenbrack attended the graduation exercises of Hotel Dieu hospital at Kingston when their daughter, Eleanor, received her diploma.

In the evening, when he entered the village hall at Wellington, he was reminded that the day was also his 50th birthday as the crowd greeted him with "Happy Birthday" and "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

"And we baked a cake," said Mrs. Walter Nind, president of Prince Edward Ladies, as she sreed a humorous poem pegged to the candidate, while Mrs. S. Tripp presented a decorated and suitably iced cake lighted with candles.

"But the best present we do not plan to present until June 18—that of the office of Member of Parliament," Mrs. Tripp commented amid cheers.

Though visibly surprised at this demonstration, Mr. Alkenbrack expressed his appreciation and pledged himself to further the interests of everyone in the riding, and in turn to present them with benefits they desired.

The meeting was addressed by Mr. Alkenbrack; Walter Whitney, MPP; Barney Hepburn, constituency president; Mrs. Ethel Hepburn, president of the associating; Mrs. Hillier, president of the ladies' group; Phil Dodds, D. R. Reynolds, Kenneth Wood, Hillier Association president, and H. G. Patton, Wellington Association president.

A free dance at Demorestville hall was sponsored for Thursday night. Buses will take supporters to a garden party at Napanee, Saturday night, to hear Health Minister Waldo Monteith.

Liberals Put Emphasis on Home Meetings

PICTON — Few meetings have been held by the Liberal party in Prince Edward-Lennox, with the emphasis being placed on the parties in the homes. Another of these was held Friday night at the Committee rooms when about 94 people dropped in to meet the candidate, Lloyd Wenaas, and Mrs. Wookey. The candidate spoke briefly as did organizer Malcolm Dulmage and Mrs. Harry Slaven, president of the ladies' section.

One place where the Liberals lead in Prince Edward-Lennox is in signs. The riding is plastered with them and supporters soon intend on cars.

The Liberals are using a car with public address system; the Conservatives have a panel truck which is brightly painted. Doug Ashenhurst designs; NDP candidate Howard Weese is also using a sound truck.

Liberals are looking forward to a visit by leader, Lester Pearson at a chicken barbeque; the Conservatives will be supported by George Hees at a Picton meeting soon and Picton will have Prime Minister visit the town.

There is lots or evidence that an election campaign is in progress, but so far there is little excitement.

Norris Whitney, MPP, said a Conservative member at Ottawa to work with a PC member in Toronto was most effective and urged that Mr. Alkenbrack be elected as a member of the Diefenbaker government. Organizers D. C. Reynolds, Prince Edward, and Major Charles Sills, Lennox, and Mrs. Walter Nind, president ladies' section, urged organization to ensure the vote is recorded.

SHANQUE — IRVINE

Peter Murphy officiating.

Baskets of pink gladioli and white daisies were placed on the altar of the church, while white satin bows designated the guest pews.

St. James CWL Honors Rev. F. J. O'Neill

STIRLING — Ascension Thursday of 1962 will hold pleasant memories for the Rev. Father O'Neill of St. James' parish, Stirling for many years to come.

He was greatly surprised after Mass Thursday evening in the full parishioners' reception to leave the church premises instead of hurrying home as is the usual custom. He was even more puzzled when Robert Mellroy told him he was wanted at the rectory. On his arrival there, he was greeted by some 60 adults and children who had gathered together to help him celebrate the 15th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

To make the evening complete Father O'Neill's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. O'Neil of Belleville were present in Stirling to be with their son on this happy occasion.

Chairman for the evening, Mrs. S. Meeks, welcomed the guests and on behalf of the parishioners extended congratulations to Father O'Neil.

For the program Rose Anne McAvoy sang two solos, accompanied by Mrs. J. Forestell at the piano. Little Misses Lana and Sandra La Chapelle each did a solo tap dance accompanied by Rose Anne McAvoy. This was followed by a reading by Mrs. John Ryan.

Mr. J. R. Donohoe read the address and the presentation of a clerical cope was made by Mrs. J. Doran.

Father O'Neil thanked everyone for their kindness and generosity in making the evening a real surprise and especially for the thoughtfulness of having his mother and father help celebrate with him.

Mrs. Meeks thanked everyone who helped make the evening such a fine success.

Refreshments were served by the ladies and a social hour enjoyed by all.

Soup And Garden Stuff

by Mary Moore

Some loose ends from last Fall are about to be tied up.

I told you in November that little Dewey helped me plant some Dutch tulips and hyacinths. Spring would tell whether sidewise-planted or upsidedown-planted bulbs grow.

They do. These were wine-covered parrot and yellow beauties from Holland. Being now they flowered late in May. They were a double satisfaction for Dewey was here again (still is) to appreciate his own efforts. They bloomed after the early May heat wave so lasted a long time after the early tulips were faded and gone. An added dividend was that some of the reds were still in bloom when the lilacs came and I was able to arrange my favourite bouquet — purple lilacs and rosy red tulips — for our market on Victoria Day.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Meat Cakes Baked in Tomato Sauce; Oven French Fries; Julienne Beets; Celery Hearts; Lemon-Layered Angel Cake; Coffee.

I do not know if you have tried some of the new dried soup mixes. The manufacturers have reached new highs in attaining and retaining true and pure soup flavors in these dry mixes.

One that rates 100% with me is the dried onion soup mix. You are directed to add 3 cups of boiling water to the contents of the little can. It is fine that way but I did it one better. I added some boiling hot chicken broth made with bones, leftover meat from a roasted chicken, instead of boiling water. I also put a little round of toast on top of each bowl of hot onion soup and passed grated Parmesan cheese at the table for sprinkling over. It was the closest to genuine French onion soup I have been since I was in Paris. I hope the venturesome hostesses in this audience will try this for their next guest meal when soup is on the agenda.

The dried cream of chicken and dried chicken noodle soups surprised me for they contained pieces of chicken — plenty of them and the flavor is good that Dewey and I ate a whole potful. It is supposed to serve 5 or 4. Another time I added chicken broth to the cream of chicken to see if I could extend the flavor to make 4 good servings. I could and in did. When I used the chicken broth I left out the 1 cup of milk which is recommended. I suppose the variations are endless and limited only by your imagination.

Parole Board Member Takes Sides

OTTAWA (CP) — Those who criticize improvements in penal institutions aren't aware of the constant reminders to a prisoner that he is not free, says Mary Louise Lynch, only woman member of the National Parole Board.

Speaking in an interview in defence of efforts to improve living and working conditions, she listed some of the things a person doesn't see until he has been exposed to them.

Most important was the inescapable fact that a prisoner wasn't free.

Then there was the food, wholesome but nevertheless with a certain monotony.

And the lack of privacy in a penal institution was something the ordinary person seldom experienced to the same degree.

Even when a prisoner got out on parole, Miss Lynch said, some of the controls remain. A parolee required permission to get married, buy a car, obtain credit, move from one place to another, change jobs. He had to report periodically to a supervisor or the police, and abstinence was usually a parole condition.

Guy S.—My life is peaceful now. Why look for trouble?

Mr. A.S. — My children can't believe a woman is sincere about me.

* * *

Guy S. — Well, I met a new sucker my dad. He's 65 and has been a widower for 15 years, making his home with me and my family.

About six months ago, a 45-year-old widow made her appearance in our apartment house. Somehow she made Dad's acquaintance and, before long, they were meeting downstairs in front of the building for long evening strolls together. In warm weather they join the klatchers of the neighborhood on the sidewalk and it's disgusting to hear her call him Clark for Clark Gable. He eats it all up. She has him thinking he's 35 again, and a lady-killer.

The truth is he looks more like 75 and all those compliments shouldn't blind him to the fact that her eye is on her money, not on him. At the rate she's going, she'll get both. He's thinking of proposing to her, and he'll be sorry.

* * *

Mr. A.S. — I believe Rae is sincere. My children are suddenly looking at me with new eyes since Rae is on the scene. They're trying to see what she sees in me and so far they can't find anything but cash. That's their problem, not Rae's and mine.

She seems to enjoy just talking to me by the hour. My children shut me up after two words. When she invites me to visit her, she prepares a steak dinner fit for royalty, with homemade sponge cake and all. But when I want a fancy meal with my son and daughter and their families, how do I get it? By taking them all to a restaurant and tooting the bill!

Rae brings sunshine into my life. She's a wonderful companion who makes no demands. It's too bad Guy can't see only one angle to this. Why does he assume it's impossible for Rae to appreciate me as a person?

* * *

The Council: If Guy follows the fate of Broadway musicals, he'll note that several of them this season revolved around money and business, yet the only one to succeed was the one which highlighted the fun, foolish and frolic behind those frenzied pursuits. Rae may be real. Time will tell. Meanwhile, she's putting on a good act, emphasizing ego-building (For Mr. S.) boy as the bull's eye for tired businessmen of all ages.

While we won't dare to dub Mr. S. an old fool, nor even a young fool, we'll go along with his son in the matter of caution. What proof have you, Mr. S., of Rae's basic character, aside from the pre-production? Have you met past associates, friends and family who can fill in the blanks of background? It's more important to know how Rae stands up in times of stress, how cheerful she is when the chips are down, than how charmed she can be while husband hunting!

Let us suggest that Mr. S. all low himself time to see Rae under varying circumstances, to test her safeguard reflexes when faced with hard work or unpleasant facts. In the course of conversation, for example, he could test her reaction to the idea of a legal prenuptial agreement, quite common in second marriages, limiting her share of his estate if he married and predeceased her.

For, a large part of Guy's and the family's opposition to this flowering romance is based, undoubtedly, on "dollar diplomacy". Does the thought of Wages the money? Is surmounted to the children's satisfaction, they may be able to see Rae as a pleasant partner for their dad. And by viewing him from a different angle, possibly painting a bit, they may find a bit of the old charm which attracted their mother years ago, and now leaps out toward Rae.

There are many men who are not Clark Gables and yet achieve happy second marriages. Rae is a woman of merit, she's looking for a man with fine qualities. No amount of money would attract her. Guy, if the suitor were obnoxious. As for "Clark," your dad has an inside track!

SPEAKING of MANNERS

WHEN CHILDREN CRASH THE PARTY

Many a wise hostess who has done her job well by providing enough napkins, hors d'oeuvres, silver, saltshakers and liquid refreshment, stumbles badly over an unexpected-social obstacle — her own children.

The tiny, blond-haired beauty of three who wanders into the living room minus the bottom half of her pajamas may look quite fetching for a few minutes, but, like all party-crashers her age, she doesn't know when to go back to bed.

Also, like other children, she has an uncanny instinct for the strategic time to make her grand entrance, usually when the mother is in the kitchen frantically trying to put together another tray of cheese puffs.

Naturally a mother must be firm — but before the party. If necessary, she should call a council of her children to lay down the law on what they can and cannot do when she has guests. Perhaps, if the party is early enough, they might be allowed to help with the greetings and possibly share in a glass of ginger ale.

Thereafter, the rules are hard and fast. The child will politely be asked to adjourn to the television room or to bed, and no nonsense.

Incidentally, guests must respect the hostess' wishes, too. Children who are torn between strong pre-party instructions and an invitation from a doting relative to stay a few minutes longer usually want to stick with the party.

Children are great social creatures, but they should practise togetherness with others of their own age group.

At parties this more courteous of guests if children are impressed with the fact beforehand that they should neither be seen nor heard past their bedtime.

Kingston Parole Board Member Takes Sides

OTTAWA (CP) — Those who criticize improvements in penal institutions aren't aware of the constant reminders to a prisoner that he is not free, says Mary Louise Lynch, only woman member of the National Parole Board.

Speaking in an interview in defence of efforts to improve living and working conditions, she listed some of the things a person doesn't see until he has been exposed to them.

Most important was the inescapable fact that a prisoner wasn't free.

Then there was the food, wholesome but nevertheless with a certain monotony.

And the lack of privacy in a penal institution was something the ordinary person seldom experienced to the same degree.

Even when a prisoner got out on parole, Miss Lynch said, some of the controls remain. A parolee required permission to get married, buy a car, obtain credit, move from one place to another, change jobs. He had to report periodically to a supervisor or the police, and abstinence was usually a parole condition.

57 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traffic accidents and drownings together accounted for all but three of Canada's fatalities during the first June weekend.

A Canadian Press survey of accidental deaths from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday, showed a total of 58 fatalities from 25 road deaths, 25 drownings and three miscellaneous mishaps.

Ontario, which led the count with 22 dead, had 11 drownings, nine traffic deaths and all three unclassified deaths, the result of an elderly man by a freight train.

Quebec had the next highest toll with 20 dead from 11 drownings and nine highway fatalities, while Saskatchewan's eight deaths—all on the highway—gave the wheat province the third worst record.

The list includes deaths resulting from normal weekend activities but excludes slayings and known suicides.

SPEAKS TO YOUTH

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth Sunday urged young people throughout the Commonwealth to work with honesty, truthfulness and courage "to achieve the peace and sanity for which we all long." Her message for Commonwealth Youth Sunday, read in churches throughout the Commonwealth, called for youth "to treat all men, of whatever color, creed or culture as we ourselves wish to be treated by them."

VICTIMS MOSTLY

Sunday lunch. Two other bodies, empty for the day, were damaged.

Airport officials said, however, that the Boeing did not leave the ground.

The blast from exploding fuel tanks startled the village residents. Mrs. Robert Metterlich who was in her kitchen, said:

"Flames flew in all around us. Fire flew up the side of the house. I ran out the back door but had to get back in immediately because of the flames."

ON BRIGHT DAY

The takeoff just before 1 p.m. was in clear, bright weather—one of Paris' sunniest days this summer — and everything seemed normal as the plane warmed up for the Atlantic crossing.

The recording of the pilot's last words with the control tower at Orly Field was sequestered by the district magistrate who left the investigation of the crash. The magistrate said the pilot's exchange was routine—asking the tower for permission to take off and getting the go-ahead.

First investigations showed skid marks running for about 350 yards at the end of the two-mile runway, suggesting that the pilot had been trying desperately to lock the wheel brakes and put the engines into reverse as the plane skimmed along at an estimated 180 miles an hour.

Pierre Loiseau, a member of the Orly tower control staff, said: "The wheels of the Boeing's undercarriage started smoking about 800 yards before the end of the runway.

"I felt immediately that the plane was in trouble. Then I saw it go up in flames at the end of the trajectory."

WORE SAFETY BELT

Stewardess Jacqueline Gilles, who escaped with only a black eye and minor burns, said:

"I was sitting with my safety belt fastened in the rear seats together with the other air stewardess and a seward.

"Suddenly I found myself lying on the ground among the flowers in a garden. My clothes were burning. I picked myself up and dashed for safety from the burning wreckage."

She told doctors it was her second escape from an air crash. She was in a Boeing 707 which had to make a belly landing last year in Hamburg, West Germany.

The party included 81 women 39 men and one child. Among them were 28 married couples.

LARGEST TOKYO CRASH

The death toll of 130 was the worst in a single-plane crash in aviation history—exceeding by one the number killed in a 1958 crash of a U.S. Air Force C-124 Globemaster near Tokyo.

In the worst of all air accidents 134 persons were killed when a United Air Lines DC-8 jet and a Trans World Airlines Super Constellation collided over New York City.

The U.S. Civilian Aeronautics Board Sunday sent a jet expert to Paris to assist French and air force officials in the investigation of Sunday's crash.

It was the fourth crash of a 707 since the big jet went into commercial service in October, 1958. The Boeing Airplane Company, builders of the plane, said it has delivered 289 to 26 airlines and they now fly 5,000,000 miles a week, carrying 310,000 passengers. The company said the 707 has "the best safety record of any airplane ever introduced into commercial operation."

CANDIDATE VISITS TYENDINAGA FAMILY—Robert Temple is shown above as he visits with George Maracle (centre) and Mrs. Maracle. Mr. Maracle is a councillor on the Tyendinaga Reserve and was interested in discussing the problem of unemployment which a few of his people have had to face.

Liberal Candidate Listens to Mohawks' History and Problems

TYENDINAGA — Robert Temple, Liberal candidate, recently spent the best part of a day visiting a number of families on the Mohawk Reserve. Fulfilling his belief that a candidate must know the people and their problems in every part of Hastings South, Mr. Temple discussed at length both the problems and the background of Mohawk people.

There were many points in the history of the Mohawk tribe which the Liberal candidate found stimulating, especially the career of Dr. Martin who, during the 1800's, ran a children's hospital on the reserve and was well known by the royalty of the day for his work.

There were also items of a more serious note which were discussed. One was the fact that this election will be the first federal contest in which many of Tyendinaga's citizens will be voting. Another was the concern of some over the unemployment which has connected them during the past four years.

Considerable talk centred on local products produced on the reserve and the efficient use of the land available to increase the productivity of the community.

Mr. Temple spoke on the Liberal Party's health plan whereby children up to 16 years of age, unemployed people and retired persons would receive free medical care. For those who were employed there would be a small annual payment for services received. This payment was required as a safeguard against unreasonable demands for attention, Mr. Temple explained.

Actually the major portion of medical costs would be met by the federal government following determination of a practical or doctor's organizations in co-operation with the provincial governments and the medical or doctor organizations in each province, he concluded.

He concluded that the eventual goal of the Liberal medical care policy was to extend it to include such other health expenses as drugs and dental services. This phase could be implemented once the initial plan was operating properly.

The candidate also discussed the Liberal plan for aid to students.

Boy Friend Says 'Get a Job'

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I am a widow and have a widower for a boy friend. We are both forty-four. I told him I would not marry again until my children were grown up. He has talked about this right along.

The youngest is fifteen and will be on her own pretty soon. I like to keep doing something and now he tells me to get work and be independent like some others.

I feel I could not stand now to punch the clock or what-have-you. As I have no education for an easy job, I would have to take whatever there is, maybe scrubbing, and I am not used to that.

He does not want for money. I am sure he loves me. Please tell me how to handle this.—WAITING.

DEAR WAITING:—Sounds like stalling. Have you both waited too long?

Give him the benefit of a doubt until you know better. Perhaps you've said once too often that you like to be doing something.

If you don't want a job; if you want marriage, it is your turn to say so. It will be "doing something," and something well worth while, to make a happy home for him.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I am 13 years of age, in grade 8, with top marks. My problem is my social standing. My parents, especially my mother, think me not a "nice girl," although I love her very much and try to please her.

My friends think me crazy and although they like me do not ask me to join them. My appearance is neat and I am clean and do not smell. My hair is quite curly and my face is quite drawn, although not thin. I am loud and stubborn and do not know how to overcome this. I have no way to get to local dances because I live far away.

I do not hang around with hoods. I have tried almost everything, including joining all school activities and throwing parties. I am becoming more popular every year, but can you help me speed up the process? Also I would like to have some advice on how to help overcome being . . . LOUD AND STUBBORN.

DEAR LOUD:—You're too bright for your age. Surprised? Once you catch up socially and physically, you'll be all set.

Desperately you barge in where you don't know how to act, all because you are in a class where most of the pupils are older than you are. They have had more practice mixing.

Physically you are growing unevenly, making your movements awkward. This is bewildering to you. In frustration about gracelessness and awkwardness you shout to make yourself heard; act stubborn and insist on having your way—at least some of the time.

So folks draw back instead of coming closer. Soon you will learn that making less noise, being friendly and ladylike can draw more agreeable attention.

Talk to your mother alone and enlist her help.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I would like to take a course in practical nursing and perhaps spend part time in a home for senior citizens, as I am told help for such places is hard to get.

Could you tell me if there is a home course in practical nursing in Canada, or if one has to take the course in a hospital? Also length of time required to complete course, the cost, age and education, etc. Or if you could advise me as to where to write to acquire the information.—SALLY.

DEAR SALLY:—I do not know of any course in practical nursing which can be taken at home. It is more important to be shown how to do things than to read about them.

The best thing for you to do is to make your enquiry of the Department of Education for your province, as courses differ in length and educational background required in various parts of Canada.

* * *

TO MRS. D. McRAY—Thank you for your note. I have forwarded the information about the Queen's pictures to Bessie and you may be hearing from her direct.

* * *

TO MISS A. V. K.—Please write again, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and I will send you the pamphlet on skin blemishes.

* * *

(Don't just muddle along. Talk it over with Doris by writing to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

Progress Plan Outlined by Socred Leader

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Thompson, national Social Credit leader, says a federal government of his party would expand family allowances to students under 20 years of age and establish a voluntary health insurance plan for the aged and the needy.

Mr. Thompson outlined the Social Credit Program for Progress at a rally of some 1,700 persons in Montreal's Atwater Market Sunday. He was accompanied by Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia, beginning a cross - country speaking tour in support of the Socreds' federal election campaign.

The Socred leader said students under 20 need family allowances to continue their studies. No Canadian under 19 had enough education to meet the stiff requirements of modern industry, yet there were 600,000 of them in the labor force.

A Social Credit health plan would be aimed at the aged and the needy not covered by existing private plans.

WOULD BE VOLUNTARY

The plan would be voluntary. Persons needing coverage would apply for a government voucher which they would use to buy health insurance from the private company of their choice.

Standards of basic coverage would be set by the federal government, and the government would redeem the vouchers.

Mr. Thompson said Canadians do not want the government to be their doctors. Canadians want to pay their own bills, he said, and a Social Credit government would make sure they had enough money to do so.

The federal government also should help the provinces establish scholarship and loan funds for university students.

Such loans would bear no interest during the university years and would be repayable 5 year after graduation.

HAS SUPPORT

Mr. Bennett told the rally that Social Credit now enjoys the support of every racial, religious and economic group in B.C.

After a brief review of his provincial government's record, Mr. Bennett said "what was done in British Columbia through Social Credit philosophy and principles we can do 100 times in the national government."

He predicted at an earlier press conference that Social Credit will form the largest group in the House of Commons after the June 18 election.

The B.C. premier said his party will win twice as many seats in Quebec as the most enthusiastic Social Crediters forecast.

"Nobody will vote for the Progressive Conservatives and not for the Liberal party which the people already have kicked out."

Suggested Canada Isn't Pulling Full Weight in Providing Aid for Needy

Canada is in the anomalous position of being the second richest country per capita in the world but with only one-fifth of one per cent of her gross national product devoted to foreign aid," said Coffin, deputy administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Writing in the Washington Post, Coffin said Canada made progress last year by approving a $200,000,000 export credit program and establishing an external aid office and then added: "Canada has much more to offer a real free world aid movement."

Coffin is a former Maine congressman who made a special report on Canada-U.S. relations five years ago, criticizing Americans for being ignorant of Canadian affairs and accusing the United States of adopting a "patronizing" attitude toward Canada.

In Ottawa, H. Q. Moran, director of Canada's external aid office, said he thought Canada's aid efforts to date were creditable and had been according in the amount given.

Moran also maintained that accurate comparisons among the contributing countries are difficult to make because there is no common system of recording various national programs and because countries differ on what constitutes aid.

Coffin estimated that of the top 10 non-Communist countries providing economic aid, France led in 1960 with 1.39 per cent of her gross national product—the value of all goods and services produced. Britain was in fourth place with .96 per cent, the United States, fifth with .59 per cent and Canada 10th with .21 per cent, rumbling behind the Netherlands, Japan and Italy.

Dodgers Stumble, Now Trail Giants

Lose Pair To Phillies

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Feeling run down and need a tonic? New York Mets will pick you up.

Both Paul Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers have been on the Met diet recently.

The Giants and Dodgers won 13 of the 15 games that the Mets have lost in a row. Both clubs left the Polo Grounds with new health and wealth.

The five Met dates in New York with the Dodgers and Giants drew a total of 197,302, a brilliant financial coup. But the price was steep. After knocking heads in California and New York with two front-runners, the Mets are embedded in 10th place with a sorry 12-34 record.

The Giants completed a four-game sweep Sunday with a 6-1 victory that left them 2½ games in front of the Dodgers, who stumbled in Philadelphia both Saturday night and Sunday after winning 13 in a row. The Phillies came from behind and dumped the Dodgers both day 7-5.

Cincinnati Reds, Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals, running third, fourth and fifth, all lost Sunday. The Reds bowed 6-3 by Chicago Cubs, now tenth at 6th. Pittsburgh, winner of seven in a row, bowed twice to Houston Colts 10-8 and 10-3 and dropped eight games back. St. Louis lost its eighth straight, bowing to Milwaukee Braves 6-4, and fell 12 games behind the leaders.

METS TRIED HARD

The Mets gave the Giants a good fight for six innings. Bob Miller, a non - winner, had struck out eight men and allowed only one run on Willie Mays' two-homer until San Francisco broke through with five runs in the seventh. Miller walked winning pitcher Juan Marichal with the bases loaded, forcing in the tie-breaking run.

The Phillies, who shot out the Dodgers 7-0 Saturday night behind rookie Dennis Bennett, socked Los Angeles again Sunday after trailing 4-0 at one stage. Johnny Callison came through with four straight hits and three runs batted in while the Dodgers were unable to capitalize fully on 13 hits. Chris Short was the winner although Paul Brown finished up with five scoreless innings, and Johnny Podres, knocked out in the five-run fourth, was the loser.

WILLIAMS STAYS HOT

Billy Williams, the hot shot in the batting race with a .359 average, and George Altman powered the Cubs' offense over the Reds, getting a five-game Chicago losing string. Williams hit his 11th homer and Altman his 12th as rookie Cal Koonce beat Moe Drabowsky.

Milwaukee hopped on Bog Bob Tiefenauer and Ken Johnson, who went the route. It was the first double defeat for the Pirates this year.

In other games Saturday, the Giants beat the Phillies 5-4 and 10-1 and 8-4, Cincinnati edged Chicago 2-1, Pittsburgh defeated Houston 9-2 and Milwaukee broke with four hits in the seventh, Joe Torre's single

Horse Pays $70,10 To Win

By GEO. H. CARVER

In a hard-driving finish a pacey stuck a velocity nazzis out two lengths in front of the of its second-place rival — and two bettors went home $70 richer.

In what is said to be a district betting record, Lucky Rhumba Grattan, owned and driven by Tommy Orser, Kingston, won the first heat of the "B" Classified Race at the fairgrounds Saturday night and paid off at $70.10 to win.

"Dr. Baker Jr.," owned by Hogan, Wells Island, finished second to the race winner Argyll Jimmy in the second heat and paid off a place price of $15.90. Five bettors hald the lucky ticket.

Rhumba Grattan finished fourth.

The meet was the first of a seasonal eight of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club which was marred by part-interested betting system here for the first time.

It was a decided success," club president Phil Stewart said after the meet. "There were nearly 500 paid admissions and the bettors placed over $2,200 on the races. There was a little confusion at first but we did not understand the system but once bettors informed it led to the opening of the betting booths it went smoothly."

The weather was fine and the racing was good. Every heat was run off without any driving finishes and augering well for future meets.

"Dominion K. Bomb" owned by the Keyes of Gananoque, won the D Classified race in two straight heats, paying $5.40 and $2.60 and $6.20 and $3.70. "Sundown Direct" of Sprucedale finished 3-3 paying $3.20 to show. "Hanny Grattan," owned by Moorehouse of Kingston paid $18.70 to place in the second heat.

"Princess Day" and "Country Doll" were involved in a slight collision in the second heat and did not finish. Nobody was hurt.

"Greg C" of Gananoque and "Ace III" of Brighton battled it out in the "C Classified" with the first-named horse winning in straight heats. Dooley's "Tripper Grattan" finished third to both horses. The winner paid $5.60, $3.80 and $9.50 in the first heat and $2.50, $3.00 and $4.20 in the second.

Two well-known Kingston hockey brothers took their turns in the sulky, Reg Mulholland driving "Pat Malone" and Sam guiding "Miss Cheer Grattan."

The pari-mutual betting system was supervised by Mr. Sid Pratt, chief of the race track betting system of the department of agriculture. He was assisted by three RCMP officers.

Lorne Carpenter was the presiding judge with Evan Mills of Morton, the starter. Assistant judges were Jack McArthur, J. Garvin and Leonard Reid. The timer was Jack Rush and the announcer Harold Bunnett. Patrol judges were Herman Locke and Clif Geraline.

Leafs Take Two From Syracuse

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jacksonville Suns maintained their four-game lead over Buffalo Bisons in the International League Sunday when both teams split doubleheaders.

The Suns, sparked by Valmy Thomas, defeated Richmond Virginians 5-0 in the opener but fell behind in the Vees' Frank Carpin 4-0 in the nightcap.

Rochester Red Wings snapped their six-game losing string with a 7-4 victory in the opener of a twin bill against Buffalo, but Syracuse Chiefs defeated the Bisons in the second game.

Toronto Maple Leafs went on a hitting binge, getting 25 in a 12-1 and 4-0 sweep against Syracuse Chiefs and the last-place Columbus Jets defeated Atlanta Crackers 4-3 before dropping the second game 5-2.

In Saturday games, Jacksonville overpowered Richmond 13-5, Syracuse shut out Toronto 8-0, Columbus blanked Atlanta 1-0 and Buffalo defeated Rochester 5-1.

Brazil, Russ Held to Draws

SANTIAGO, Chile (CP-AP)—Defending champion Brazil and co-favorite Russia lost some of their glamour to competition for the World Cup Soccer championship during the weekend.

Brazil's star player, inside forward Edson (Pele) Arantes, suffered a leg injury and bedridded in pain throughout the Brazilians' match with Czechoslovakia Saturday. The game ended in a 0-0 draw.

Sunday, the highly-rated Russian team could manage only a 4-4 draw with underdog Colombia, which wiped out a 4-1 deficit within eight minutes of the second half.

The teams have a rest today and Tuesday. Eight games were played during the weekend in round-robin competition within four groups of four teams each.

ENGLAND WINS

Besides the Brazil-Czechoslovakia match Saturday, England defeated Argentina 3-1, Chile beat Italy 2-0 and Yugoslavia beat Uruguay 3-1. In other matches Sunday Hungary whipped Bulgaria 6-1, West Germany beat Switzerland 2-1 and Spain edged Mexico 1-0 on a last-minute goal.

Keep Reds Five Years In Cincy

CINCINNATI (AP) — Owner Bill DeWitt Wednesday reluctantly handed control of Cincinnati Reds' board of trustees back to the Crosley Foundation and agreed to keep the National League team here at least five years.

The move Sunday completed the multi-million dollar sale of the team to DeWitt last March for $4,037,500.

The next move is up to Attorney-General Mark McElroy of Ohio, who said last month he would investigate sale of the Cincinnati baseball nine to supervise charitable foundations such as the Crosley group.

DeWitt said Sunday he has written Mrs. Stanley Rees, who heads the foundation, giving his pledge to keep the team in Cincinnati at least five years.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Cyprian Cat, a 9-to-1 shot, clipped a full second off the track record Saturday in the featured $10,000-added Eclipse Stakes at Old Woodbine Race Track. He was clocked in 1:49 1-5 over the 1¼-mile route.

Cyprian Cat won easily over the 6-to-5 favorite, Strouhov, from the J. E. Prowse Sesgram Stable of Kitchener. The winner paid $20.20, $6.60 and $4.20. Strouhov returned $3.70 and $3.

Windy Ship was third.

WALKS TO WIN

TORONTO (CP)—Nick Mazzone, 37, of Montreal's Palestre Nationale Club, Sunday won the Canadian National AAU 20-kilometre walk. He came from behind after Olympic walker John Allen of Buffalo had opened up an early lead of nearly 200 yards. Allen was second.

Unbeaten Foxboro extended its win string to four on Saturday defeating Read 4-3 on the Foxboro diamond.

Outhit 8-6 the winners clustered hits in the fifth innings to score three runs that sailed away the victory.

They scored one in the third while Read had single runs in the second and sixth.

Four errors afield did not help the Read cause although the winners bobbled three times.

Gerry Mann went the distance on the mound for Foxboro giving up eight hits and walking four. He hit a batter and was credited with one wild pitch.

Four of Milligan's hits came in the fifth when Foxboro added by then Read errors scored their three runs.

Glynn Reynolds with the double and triple paced the Foxboro offensive with Gary Little, Glen Clarke, Keith Dickey and Gerry Brennan collecting singles.

Gerry Brennan, Percy Milligan and Carmen Milligan each had a pair of hits for the losers. Dick Webb and Doug Hall had singles.

Twins Crowd Leaders

Tigers Nip Tribe, Yanks Share Top

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

While the rest of the ellis in the American League's derby have been all but marking time on a two-week layoff, Detroit's onrushing Tigers have been making up ground like a jet-propelled Casey Stengel on his way through a pack of tiring front-runners.

The Tigers gained another length Sunday, outlasting Cleveland Indians 4-3 for their fifth victory in 15 starts—a profitable span that has enabled Detroit to pick up four full games in the race and advances from seventh place to fourth, just one game off the pace.

Meanwhile, New York Yankees moved into a share of first place with the Indians by beating Los Angeles Angels 6-3 on some heavy hitting by Elston Howard, and Minnesota Twins further tightened things up with a 7-5 decision over Washington Senators that left the Twins only half a game behind the co-leaders.

Chicago White Sox got by Baltimore's skidding Orioles, 2-0 in the day's only contest slated for action. Red Sox and the Athletics were rained out, leaving the other four clubs in the first division—the Indians, Yankees, Twins and Angels—all barely clinging above .500 with .8-7 marks.

Detroit took a 6-0 lead behind Don Mossi Sunday but the left-hander needed a lot of help before his fourth straight victory was clinched. The Indians staged a four-run uprising in the eighth inning against Mossi, Bob Kline and Terry Fox, making it 7-7, but rookie southpaw Ron Nischwitz struck out Willie Kirkland and Mike de la Hoz grounded into the third out, leaving two runners stranded.

The Tigers nicked Pedro Ramos for a run in the first, then roared him with a five-run second. Chico Fernandez led off the inning with a homer, two walks and Billy Bruton's single loaded the bases, and Mossi and the fleet Jake Wood both scored on Charley Maxwell's 410-foot sacrifice fly. Norm Cash then capped the inning with his 10th homer off Barry Latman.

Fernandez singled home what stood up as the winner in the fifth, and Wood's single and double beat Jerry Walker relief by Bruton produced another De-troit run in the eighth. Latman and Willie Tasby homered for Cleveland.

Howard belted a pair of two-run homers in teaming with John Blanchard to spark the Yankee offence. The Yank catcher connected off loser Ed Rakow in the second and again off Art Fowler in the eighth, both times following singles by Blanchard. Howard, who also doubled, whacked each of his homers with two on board. The first going to right and the second to left.

Hebert Wins Playoff At Memphis

MEMPHIS (AP) — Lionel Hebert won the $40,000 Memphis open golf tournament Sunday, edging National Open champion Gene Littler and South Africa's Gary Player with a clutch birdie on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff.

The playoff was forced after Hebert had blown a three-foot putt on the last hole of the 72-hole tournament that would have won it for him. But he made up for it on the 19th, ramming down a tricky 30-footer.

Player, who dislikes sudden-death playoffs, was on the 19th green in two but ran his putt past the cup. Littler patted his ball right up to the edge, where it hung half in, half out.

The victory was worth $8,400 to Hebert, Littler and Player split second- and third-place money, each pocketing $5,600.

Jay Hebert, Lionel's brother, had started the final round with a one-stroke lead in the tourney, a stroke behind the top three-some, tied with Bruce Crampton of Australia. Each won $2,050. Don January and Tommy Jacobs were $1,250 apiece richer, picked up $1,850 each.

Harrington Wins Over Scott

NEW YORK (AP)—Although he was floored in the first round for the first time in his career, Hawaii's Stan Harrington came on strong and gained a split decision over favored Charley Scott of Philadelphia in a 10-rounder Saturday night. Harrington weighed 146½, Scott 148.

An 8-to-5 underdog, Harrington swept the first three rounds handily with sharp left hooks and solid rights to the head. But the 25-year-old Philadelphian opened up with a series of left hooks to the head and body that hurt Harrington.

Another left hook that had all of Scott's power behind it sent Harrington to the canvas face down. He barely beat referee Barney Felix's count as he staggered up at nine.

Then, to the cheers of the slim crowd of less than 1,000, Harrington tore after Scott and battered him in the last 15 seconds.

Both Felix, 5-4-1, and judge Bill Recht, 6-2-2, had Harrington the winner. Judge Thor Rood scored it for Scott 5-4-1.

It was Harrington's sixth straight victory and his first outside his native Honolulu. His record is 41-8-1. Scott's record is 30-19.

Take 6-5 Thriller

Kenmors Shade Kingston

KINGSTON — Belleville Kenmors straightened out the Lakeshore Baseball League's senior division Sunday when they edged the Kingston entry 6-5 in a league thriller.

As for now, three of the four teams, three regular and one interlocking, have identical records of one and one. The Petes have lost two.

Kingston whipped Peterborough 16-2 in their opener and the Petes thumped Belleville 13-2 in their initial clash. Port Hope, the interlocking club, walloped the Petes 7-0 and yesterday Belleville took the measure of Kingston.

The Kenmors won yesterday's tilt with a three-run outburst of four counts in the fifth inning while they were leading 2-1.

Kingston came back with a single in the sixth, then exploded for three runs in the eighth but the Kenmors nipped it in the bud to come home with the narrow margin victory.

Kingston had the tying and winning runs on base with two out in the bottom half of the ninth but Billy Latchford bore down to strike out the next batter to preserve the win.

The Kenmors belted two Kingston starters for nine hits, two of them doubles, with Kingston touching a duo of Kenmor flingers for seven counts.

Larry Soden started for the winners, giving up six hits for five runs in seven and two-thirds innings. Latchford took over and stopped the losers with one hit over the rest of the route.

Kingston started for Kingston, giving way to Charlie Pester in the fifth, after yielding eight hits for five runs. Pester stopped the Kennies with a hit and a run in three and one-third innings.

The Kenmors scored the big three in the fifth on doubles by Asselstine and Mavely, and Moxon singles.

Three walks and singles by Lemmon and Senior accounted for the three Kingston runs in the eighth.

The Kenmors showed a big improvement over their first outing committing but one bobble and hitting in the clutches. Kingston erred three times.

Gary Goyer with four singles paced the winners. Asselstine had a double and single, Mavely a double and Hunter and Moxon singles.

The Kenmors open the season here at home Wednesday night with Peterborough as the opposition. Manager Ken Soden has planned a gala night and a big crowd is expected to usher in senior baseball here. Game at eight o'clock.

Kingston — Follwell, Asselstine, Goyer, Hunter, Mavety, Moxon, Locke, Urch, Soden Latchford.

Kingston — Earl, Senior; Tony Petit, Pester, Quinn, Lemmon, Osborne, Tommy Petit, Sokolowski.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor.

The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union's last week embarked on a campaign to promote college sport on a country-wide basis. Approved was a plan to stage interdelegate competition including hockey, basketball and football.

The next step probably would be to stage track and field, swimming and other sports.

This is something that is long overdue and it could ultimately make the colleges world-wide providers of Olympic, British Empire and Pan-American Games and other international sports festivals. And it is something that the non-professional sports administrators could back without fear it should bog.

The colleges will need money to finance their projects and they've already indicated they will go to the Ottawa council for support. It couldn't hive come at a better time.

FUNDS FOR RALLY

What's holy grave going to a fiasco such as Toronto on Sept. 3 and just a few days ago it was announced the federal government would donate $50,000 toward expenses. The cash would come out of the government's $5,000,000 - a - year contribution to promote physical fitness and amateur sport.

That $50,000 gift is a bit of money for a project — a brain-child of Toronto advertising executive Harry Boyle — which that has a scent of commercialism to it.

The festival, which one council official described as being a "three-ring circus," will be held at the waterfront grandstand of Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition on Labor Day.

The CNE probably will get lots of newspaper ink out of it, and its contribution to the festival is a meagre $12,500.

Basically, the festival is a laudable effort but it can turn out to be more of a three-ring circus than a demonstration of muscle-flexing by young Canadians from across the country.

PLANS VAGUE

The fitness council apparently is vague about plans for the day. Right now, they'll throw in the various other spots over the province a $50 - acre CNE grounds, youngsters will run, square dance, play handball and do all sorts of calisthenics.

But more than 300,000 paying customers are expected to visit the CNE that day and the crush of spectators alone is enough to create a mob scene. The idea of the rally—to focus attention on "fitness—could be lost.

The best plan, possibly, is to stage a regimented plan of calisthenics and gym n a s t i c s with possibly 400 or 500 youngsters from across the country. Put them in one spot and let them show their stuff.

If the government donated $50,000 to the CNE scheme, it certainly couldn't turn the colleges down.

Canadian-Born Child Star Gets Little to Spend

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A Canadian-born child star who plays the title role in 40 Pounds of Trouble almost lived up to the title when her first teeth started molting in the middle of production.

"My teeth fell out," says tiny Claire Wilcox, five-year-old star of the movie. "But what that's all right. I got some false ones." The six teeth are fitted into her mouth and she looks as a movie moppet should.

Claire is putting her tiny feet into the shoes once occupied by Shirley Temple, who starred in the role originally in Little Miss Marker.

Her natural, expressive face got her modelling jobs at a tender age when television commercials. She was the third of 200 dolls to test for 40 Pounds of Trouble, finally got the nod from producer Stan Margulies.

"She's the one I want," he said her mother, Mrs. Anthony Wilcox. "She doesn't have to talk about her work at home."

Claire herself discussed work and parents with candor and finances. "Did you know that at one time I had $700 in the bank?" she asked.

I said I didn't, and she explained that she will be saved for her to spend when she's older. Right now she gets a nickel a week for helping her mother with the dishes. What does she do with it?

"I either put it in the bank or spend it on candy," she said.

And love parents?

"I don't care: I'll just get more false ones," she said.

Scientists Want to Tame H-Bomb or Fusion Reaction To Produce Electric Power

After years of incredibly sophisticated effort, scientists have been rewarded with the evidence that they may eventually tame the H-bomb's fusion process in a two - part series on the peaceful atom, an Associated Press science writer explains how they hope to control the type of power and why this fast would eliminate a serious drawback to the application of atomic power to industry.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

Scientists see new possibilities of hope in their present quest to imitate the sun.

They want to tame the H-bomb or fusion reaction—the same process which makes the sun burn—to produce controlled heat and electric power.

The future of civilization could rest on the outcome.

If they succeed, it means hydrogen fuel taken from the oceans could supply all the world with all the electrical power it could use. That thus supply is inexhaustible, for at least 1,000,000,000 years.

Russia's Prof. I. A. Artsimovich says: "I think we'll see it in 15 to 20 years and my health is a little shaky."

But such power has a handicap. It creates radioactive ashes or wastes which can last for thousands of years and the atomic age could produce a dangerous litter of them.

If, for example, all the electric power now produced in the United States were to come from atomic energy, the radioactive waste each year would equal that from 200,000 atomic bombs, Dr. Richard Post of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, Livermore, Calif., estimates.

Nobody has any existing means of safely storing the wastes.

But the fusion or H-section plant is free of radioactive wastes, or very little.

ATOMIC SPLIT

In fission, atoms are split into smaller pieces and some of the original mass is converted into heat and other energy.

In fusion, two lightweight hydrogen atoms are fused and some of the original matter is transformed into energy.

The sun burns this way, consuming 4,000,000 tons of hydrogen per minute.

An H - bomb fuses billions and billions of hydrogen atoms in a split second. It takes the trigger of an atomic explosion to create the heat and pressure to make them fuse.

The trick for controlled fusion is to produce and confine a hot "plasma" of hydrogen ions—electrically charged atoms—scooming about in all directions and colliding with enough force to make them fuse.

That calls for heat of 350,000,000 degrees, to keep the reaction going, and a plasma containing billions of ions. This container mustn't leak.

Any ordinary container would get torn to shreds. Forging iron would hit any solid walls and soon be weakened, or lose speed and energy.

The solution is to create a magnetic field—a magnetic bottle within the machine or device. The powerful magnetic field can—it is hoped—keep the long flying back and forth and fusing without touching the solid walls of the machine.

GREAT ENERGY NEEDED

It requires tremendous electrical energy to create such magnetic fields. Any successful fusion device would need more energy than is fed into it.

Researchers are working on four main basic machines. One is the stellarator, using a twisted tube to confine the plasma. There is the pinch effect, by pinch pleasure together magnetically. There is magnetic mirror reflecting ions back and forth between two mirrors and the cusped or picket fence approach, using magnetic fields of different strengths to keep the ions pushed toward a center.

There are some encouraging signs.

A plasma has been confined for several minutes before the heat has disappeared, by the method of the "stellarator" for 30 seconds, a record. But that time was far from being dense enough.

A more powerful machine is nearly ready for further experiments.

SCIENTISTS EXCITED

Scientists are excited over this developments. They are supercharged with energy for conducting materials and magnets.

This means small magnets, chilled to almost absolute zero, which create such strong magnetic fields using little electricity. Such magnets, properly cooled, mean doing away with costly generators and a Niagara of power needed to be used to produce the magnetic fields required for mind.

Some experts predict the problems of confining plasma and reaching fusion temperatures for sustained fusion might be achieved within five to 10 years.

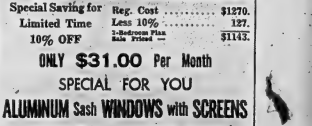
Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and relieve pain and itching—without surgery. Thousands have been relieved with this healing substance—many right in the privacy of their own homes—without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, doctors observed "amazing results" as the healing substance was applied directly to the affected parts. Most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in many cases during a test period that were continued over a period of many months!



In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of even the severest type!

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind! The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of which was published in scientific journals. Bio-Dyne is being used in a new way in suppositories or ointment form under the name Preparation H. Both are now available individually at most drug counters. Preparation H Suppositories or Ointment. Use exactly as directed with special applicator. Preparation H is sold on a money back strictly satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Chronical of a Long Day In Life of Scott Carpenter

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Capt. Howard A. Mingers, a United States Air Force surgeon, gently shook the sleeping form of his lower bunk.

"All right, commander, it's time now."

It was 2:15 a.m. EDT on Thursday, May 24, at Cape Canaveral. Already men had been at work for more than two hours in Complex 14, getting the huge Atlas missile ready for another run along the route pioneered by John H. Glenn Jr.

In the Mercury control building, a few miles further down the cape, a clock was steadily ticking off the hours, minutes and seconds.

Lt.-Cmdr. Malcolm Scott Carpenter, the man for whom the count-down tolled, quickly showered and shaved in his quarters in Hangar S.

BIG BREAKFAST

He sat down to a breakfast of filet mignon, soft egg, buttered toast and jelly, orange juice and coffee, and was joined by Lt.-Col. John Glenn, for whom he had been backup pilot only a few months ago, flight surgeon Dr. William K. Douglas and Dr. Mingers.

At 4:06 a.m., technician Joe Schmitt helped the 36-year-old astronaut fit his bean, hard body into the cramped and confining 30-pound aluminum space suit.

The clock in Mercury control ticked on. Workmen battened down the hatch door on the Aurora 7 capsule atop the Atlas booster, gave the windshield a service station "lick and a prayer" and rolled the giant gantry back from the silver Atlas missile.

Dawn was just breaking over the cape. In a little pink house 10 miles further down the beach, 33-year-old Rene Carpenter sat listening to the wash of the sea. Nearby, the four Carpenter children were curled in sleep. Suddenly the telephone rang.

After a momentary hold at T (launch time) minus 19 seconds, the countdown kept going: "... 5, 4, 3, 2, 1, 0 — ignition, liftoff."

HE'S OFF

It was 8:45 a.m., and beneath Scott Carpenter the powerful Atlas came to life.

He streaked around the world at 17,532 miles an hour.

The first orbit had gone well.

On the ground, there was some anxiety when Dr. Stanley White, the flight surgeon sitting at an instrument panel in the front row before the big map in Mercury control, was unable to get an accurate blood pressure reading and received a false radio signal that the astronaut, already having trouble with the cooling system on his space suit, had a body temperature of 102.

As he passed over the Indian Ocean tracking ship noted he was using up the hydrogen-peroxide fuel that controlled the spacecraft's attitude (its alignment with the horizon) at a dangerously high rate. Most of it was flowing out of the automatic control system tanks, a separate fuel unit from the manual controls.

For an extended period, Carpenter had to turn off all his controls. He found he could alter the altitude of his capsule simply by moving his arms and legs. By the time he reached Hawaii for the second time the fuel situation was good enough for officials on the ground to decide on another orbit.

Troubles mounted for the space pilot. His bite-sized food particles crumbled in their plastic bag and floated about the cabin. The space suit began to heat up again.

Passing over Hawaii for the third time, Carpenter was busier than ever. He was preparing for re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

OUT OF FUEL

Through an oversight he left both the automatic and manual fuel systems pumping and wound up the last leg of his journey in the same fuel-less state as John Glenn did.

The voice of Mercury control now had an ominous ring on the pubic address system: "Our data at this time indicates that it is distinctly possible that the Aurora 7 spacecraft may land considerably downranges than it was planned. Our present estimate of his landing point may be as far as 200 miles down range."

After this, no further word of Carpenter for 41 minutes. In these agonizing minutes, when it wasn't known whether Carpenter was dead or alive, whether he had been burned on re-entry or drowned in the sea.

U.S. Navy bombers and air force rescue planes flew out from bases in Puerto Rico, the West Indies and carriers in the area. Dozens of ships altered their courses to head toward the suspected impact area at engine-straining speed.

Spotted within a half-hour after plopping into the ocean 125 miles northeast of Puerto Rico and 250 miles from the planned landing area, he bobbed about his raft for nearly three hours while awaiting rescue by jet helicopters from an aircraft carrier.

Carpenter's day began at 2:15 a.m. and ended at 5:43 p.m. on the deck of an aircraft carrier.

Biggest Field Of Candidates Ever Entered

1,018 Seeking Seats In Coming Election

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

All-out bids by the Social Credit and New Democratic parties to become powers on the federal political scene have resulted in the biggest field of candidates ever to contest a Canadian general election.

Their standard-bearers flocked to returning officers, particularly in the key provinces of Ontario and Quebec, to push the cross-country total into four figures for the first time. Some 1,018 candidates were in the running for the 265 Commons seats when nominations closed Monday. They qualified to go before the voters June 18 by filing papers and $200 deposits before the 2 p.m. local Standard Time deadline.

The figure compared with 836 in 1958, when Prime Minister Diefenbaker's Progressive Conservatives rolled to a record-shattering majority. The previous mark for candidates was 954 in 1945, when the Commons held only 245 seats.

CLOSE IN 242

The slate was rounded out Monday when nominations closed in 242 ridings, two of which elect two members apiece. Elections were held in the remaining 21 constituencies, where geographical problems make communications difficult, May 22 and 70 candidates qualified then.

Here is the lineup for June 18, with 1958 figures in brackets: Progressive Conservatives 265); Liberal 264 (265); Social Credit 252 (81); NDP 219 (208); Independents and others 30 (35).

Last-minute entrants helped swell the total. Advance completions had left official at least 895 candidates would enter the field, but seven more Social Crediters and six NDP candidates came forward before the deadline.

A dozen additional Independents, of varying political persuasions, mostly in Quebec, also filed papers. The Communists had only two candidates left who failed to file in Alberta riding nominations at noon on Aug. 12.

An additional Independent, Edmond Poupart, entered in Restigouche-Madawaska but withdrew a couple of hours later on the advice of his campaign manager. Poupart forfeits are likely on voting day, when any candidate who fails to get half the votes of the winner in his constituency loses the $200.

When Parliament was dissolved in the spring, the Conservatives had 208 members, Liberals 51, the CCF-NDP group 8 and there were four vacant.

SC TIRES COMEBACK

For Social Credit, it is a strong comeback effort to come back from the 1958 debacle which cleaned all their remaining members out of the House.

In Quebec, where party support could have been campaigning hard between elections, they have entrants in all 75 ridings Diefenbaker won in the province. They are trying for 71 of Ontario's 85 seats as against 18 four years ago. They also have seats in Alberta (17) and B.C. (20).

The New Democratic Party is

No Conclusions Reached at Labor Parley

WASHINGTON (CP) — The central labor bodies of Canada and the United States Monday grappled with the problem of which body should rule over jurisdictional disputes involving International unions in Canada, but reached no firm conclusions on this sensitive issue.

Donald MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress, said he is satisfied "some progress" was made at the Haslam meeting with the American Federation of Labor-Congress of Industrial Organizations. But an AFL-CIO official who was at the conference talks said both sides agreed it was a sensitive issue which should be explored thoroughly but that no conclusions were developed.

Cartage Firms Strike Possible

TORONTO (CP) — Employees of 22 cartage firms in the Toronto area threatened Monday night to go on strike if their demands for wage increases are not met.

Local 419 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.), representing 400 employees of the cartage firms, authorized the strike, if necessary, although the group still is in the conciliation board stage.

The union said is not part of five Teamster locals engaged in a province - wide strike against 81 transport companies.

Jack Robinson, president of Local 419, said the union wants a wage increase to bring rates up to those at Bacon Cartage Limited, with which it has become a separate agreement.

SAYS DOCTORS' STRIKE WOULD INFRINGE LAW

'Implied Contract' Would Be Broken

BIRCH HILLS, Sask. (CP)—Attorney-General A. R. Walker of Saskatchewan says doctors face prosecution under the Criminal Code on charges of criminal conspiracy if they break "an implied contract" with patients.

Mr. Walker told a weekend meeting that the Medical Professions Act makes it a matter of disciplinary action for "improper conduct when a doctor becomes a party to anything binding him an opportunity to refuse the services of another physician."

Under the act the responsibility to act on complaints of improper conduct is vested in the College of Physicians and Surgeons and if it doesn't carry it out the legislature could consider whether to vest the power in some authority better able to do just as good an interest in an objective manner."

He added the doctors could be convicted of criminal conspiracy and sentenced to up to five years if there was proof that doctors had made an agreement among themselves to break their contracts.

Mr. Walker said some doctors had been reported to have told their patients they would not be giving service after July 1, the date scheduled for the start of the province's compulsory pre-paid medical care program.

HUMBOLDT, Sask. (CP) — The 75-bed hospital in Humboldt, Sask., may have to close July 1, Sister Hildegarde, the institution's administrator, said Monday.

Sister Hildegarde said one of five doctors in the district has resigned as of July 1 and the hospital "is doomed if there is no change in the provincial government's medical - care plan, they also will resign.

Two Main Party Leaders Take Shots at Each Other

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Who's worrying about the June 18 election outcome?

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson on Monday night both described each other's campaign tactics as "desperate."

Mr. Pearson told a Kitchener audience the Conservatives have switched desperately from saying how good things are to another "line" of how good they will be.

The Progressive Conservative leader in a TV interview outlined broadcast on the CBC television network accused the Liberal opposition of being desperate over what it called its "cry to anything to misrepresent and downgrade Canada."

Mr. Pearson said the Conservatives have made the most fundamental decision denied despite a clear record of unemployment, chronic deficits and higher taxes, higher prices and interest rates.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the economic trend now is towards "one of the greatest booms" and job upsurges in Canadian history" and said that by summer's end Canada would have "virtual full employment."

New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas, speaking in Toronto, said the party has than 3,600 persons, said it is "nothing short of criminal" that one out of every four workers in the Cape Breton area is unemployed.

In northwestern Quebec, Social Credit Leader Robert N. Thompson ended a day of campaigning with time left only for a three-minute speech at Val d'Or, Que., where he said Social Credit strength "is growing east and west."

Meanwhile Social Credit Premier Bennett of British Columbia, campaigning in Toronto, told a press conference the election will splinter the old parties and Social Credit will form a minority government after June 18.

Mr. Pearson at Kitchener said there is little evidence for the Conservative claim of future economic improvement. Even with the devaluation of the dollar's exchange rate to 92½ cents U.S., Canada's export industry was having difficulty maintaining the U.S. market.

The New Democratic leader, Hon. Glare Bay, repeated that an NDP government would control with a year of taking office, "we will have a single well-paid person in Canada is without a job."

John Bassett, Conservative candidate in Toronto Spadina, Monday night said Liberal supporters have been responsible for "recent violent demonstrations against Mr. Diefenbaker.

Don Lang, chairman of the Liberal campaign committee in Club but he did not know of any OPP officers having been accepted as members.

Feeley was to be the first of the 20 persons testify at the commission's second day of hearings following a week-long recess which ended yesterday with a witness being excused of wrongdoing. He was Joseph Lamorie, who resigned from the provincial police when he was suspended for associating with gamblers. Lamorie in 1960, denied the allegations but later admitted in a closed session under fire from Liberal party counsel D. J. MacKinnon, Q.C. At one point Mr. Justice Roach also told the former policeman he did not believe part of his evidence.

Carman Lawrence, who quit the OPP with Lamorie under similar circumstances, also informed Mr. MacKinnon with pleasure when he denied that Feeley and McDermott paid him $1,000 to avoid prosecution charges they made to one of Lamorie's employers following their resignations.

Lawrence specifically denied Mac.Kinnon's accusation that he and Lamorie had been paid for the gamblers for their "services," and that this explained why they were able to sell Toronto lawyer David Humphrey collect when they left here for a holiday after their resignations.

They testified earlier that they never were billed either for calls or for legal advice sought from Humphrey when they were under fire after a police undercover agent had reported alleged links between the OPP anti-gambling squad and two gambling bosses.

Counsel for Two Gamblers Claims Persecution by OPP

TORONTO (CP)—Counsel for gamblers Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley barraged Monday night police authorities with claims of "persecution" when their clubs, near Windsor and Toronto, were persistently raided in 1954 and 1955 by the OPP commission on crime was told today.

Louis Herman, Toronto lawyer who represented the pair at the time, was testifying as a certain-raiser to the expected testimony of the alleged overzealousness of anti-gambling squad members in raiding the Roseland Club near Windsor and the Centre Road Club near Cooksville, then operated under charter from the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association.

Tweed District Fire Rating

The fire danger rating for the Tweed District of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests was described as "moderate" this morning. No fires are being patrolled at the present time.

The report added that only a fraction of an inch of rain fell on the district last night and had no bearing on the fire rating.

Treatment Clinic Needed In District Rotarians Told

It a major accident, such as a plane or a bus crash, were to occur in Belleville today many of those involved would die and many would have to be treated in the streets since the Belleville General Hospital is now operating at 120 per cent capacity and has no room for emergency cases, Dr. Harold Williamson told his fellow Rotarians at their weekly dinner meeting yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Quinte.

Dr. Williamson, an orthopedic surgeon with the local hospital was fulfilling a threefold function as the club's guest speaker. He was giving his classification address as a surgeon specializing in treating injuries or deformities to the skeletal structure of children. He was giving a brief statement on the medical profession's attitude toward government medical care plans and he was giving his fellow Rotarians a worthwhile goal to get their teeth into as a club project.

It is relation to his remark concerning the overflow of patients at the local hospital Dr. Williamson was commenting on the need for a treatment or rehabilitation clinic for children, and also adults, in this district to which the effect could have in helping to relieve some of the congestion which afflicts the hospital.

He noted that this area of concern fell directly within the pall of the Rotary Club which has been so active in providing the Crippled Children Camp. The major need for a rehabilitation centre, complete with proper equipment is to help those afflicted with physical defilities so that they could shorten their convalescence through physiotherapy, he advised. He also explained how this could not only lessen the effects of their illness but could, in some cases, even save lives and change afflicted lives into useful ones.

In talking on the attitude of medical profession to various schemes he emphasized that doctors were in no manner opposed to prepaid medical care but did object to politicians committing the profession to certain obligations without consulting the members of the profession beforehand.

GRATIFYING WORK

In speaking on his profession, Dr. Williamson said that he felt nothing was more gratifying than treating and helping deformed children. He dwelt on the various types of deformities and afflictions and also on the various methods of treating them.

Basically an orthopedic surgeon must seek to improve the efficiency and use of the deformed limb rather than to "straighten it if possible," he added. He noted some of the substitutions, such as artificial joints, grafting of living tissues and physio, speech and occupational therapy, as aids to patients, which were helping patients. He stressed the need for more physiotherapists and centres with necessary treatment equipment to assist in this work.

Dr. Williamson, a Queen's graduate, was introduced by Robe Freeman and thanked by Bill Gummow.

Guest student for the meeting was Alan Barclay, editor of the BCIVS year book the "Elevator", who gave an interesting account of how a yearbook is created.

It was announced that the club's Easter Seal campaign had brought in $6,894.37 to date. It is hoped that a goal of $5,000 will be reached.

President Virgil James presided at the meeting.

Ratepayers Will Hear More About Sewers

Aldermen Jack Ellis, Chairman of the City's Special Sanitary Sewage Treatment Committee, and Reeve Arthur Parkdale Ratepayers' Association meeting on Wed., June 5, at 8:30 p.m. in the Community Hall. With him will be City Engineer Ross Hall, Plumbing Inspector Keech of the Public Works Department.

The guest will provide further information concerning the pending sanitary sewer installations in Parkdale, with special stress on the technical engineering side of the Parkdale installations inside houses.

"We are very pleased to be able to meet with Parkdale residents again", declared Mr. Ellis. "In fact I am sure that many of the current mis-conceptions and rumors can be cleared up."

Ratepayers' Association President John Morson also announced that Mr. Allen Bill, representing the Belleville Minor Sports Association, will attend the meeting and give a short address.

"Mr. Bill is anxious to explain the formation , aims, and progress of the Minor Sports Association", noted Mr. Morson, "and all interested parents should be present to hear the views".

The Ratepayers' president announced that residents of Parkdale who are not Association members but wish to attend, will be most welcome.

Nomination Day Quiet Affair At City Hall

It was a quiet official nomination at city hall yesterday as the returning officer for Hastings South, William A. Northgrave and his clerk, sat it out for two hours patiently waiting for additional nominations that failed to materialize.

All three of the candidates named by party supports as their standard bearers in the June 19th Federal election had previously been out their nomination papers and yesterday was merely the formality of handing in the completed and minute nomination.

Candidates for Hastings-South in the up-coming election are Leslie Bigby, New Democratic Party; Lee Grills, Progressive Conservative, and Robert Temple, Liberal.

Plumbing Inspection Rates Increased by Town Council

TRENTON — New plumbing inspection rates governing Trenton, approved at last night's council meeting. H. S. Pane, the town's plumbing inspector, told council last night that the present rates, $3 per house with an additional 50c per fixture, didn't cover costs. Under these rates, he says, he collects about $3 on most houses, but has to make at least two visits.

The new rates are to be $5 per house and 75c per fixture. Rates on larger buildings will be made up about the same amount. Sewer laterals, uninspected before, will be inspected under the new rate structure at 75c per inch of diameter. Modifications will be made to the town's plumbing inspection bylaw, to apply the new rates, and the revised bylaw will be presented at the next council meeting.

A bylaw was passed at last night's meeting of the council to provide for Trenton's co-operation in the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization. The Organization, including also Belleville and the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward, is intended to prepare the Quinte area to resist nuclear attack.

A resolution to back the "Georgetown resolution," for its place of origin, was passed, advising on the provincial government to give grants for the education of crippled children equal to those given schools educating normal children in the province. Present grants to these schools responsible for retarded children are not on the basis of standard educational grants.

A letter from the Chamber of Commerce urging the appointment of a public relations man for the town was heard and considered. The letter, signed by George Reed, president of the Chamber, pointed out the benefits that full publicity for the public image of the Chamber, and suggested that the appointment of Bert Gibson as public relations manager for the town previously been out their nomination papers and yesterday was merely the formality of handing in the completed and minute nomination.

The letter suggested that council demonstrate its faith in the Chamber by appointing a representative of council to the Chamber board, by donating land for the construction of a Chamber of Commerce office, by allowing the Chamber to be the sole representative of the town to the potential industrial developers and by meeting the $1,000 budget with financial grants. Attendance of Mr. Bonter, O. W. Larry, Trenton's clerk, and Councillor Lloyd Worrall was suggested by Mr. Reed, of the Chamber of Commerce regular Thursday meeting. Council decided that Mr. Bonter, Mr. Larry and Mr. Worrall should meet with the Chamber Thursday and report the result at the next council meeting.

The assessor brought up an interesting problem. The Heating and Cooling Distributors Ltd. of Balsam St., had applied for a reduction of their assessment on the basis of the expansion in Balsam St. blocking the entrance to their yard and causing them delay in loading and unloading their trucks. The concession has been placed on a by dealer who serviced cars in the street. Council decided that no action be taken but pointed out that it is illegal to service a car in the street in Trenton.

Subdivisions and annexation came into two discussions during the meeting. A letter from Lawsubdivider W. Dicker, asking about progress on the annexation of one of his subdivisions, was bypassed pending an answer from the Ontario Municipal Board on the town's query.

And a letter from C. C. Robinson, asking how the $200 figure for bills for sewer service to residents in the newly annexed town area was arrived at was read. The letter asked if the figure was intended to force residents' support of annexation, and pointed out that Mr. Robinson had already indicated his approval. Mr. Robinson had already paid the $200 amount asked.

Council wasn't too sure how the figure had been arrived at. Councillor Ross Burtt thought it was unfair, and pointed out that few apartments were within the town to pay this much. Other users outside town, it was pointed out, were not so hard hit.

Councillor Duncan MacDonald suggested the figure might have been arrived at as the difference between the taxes paid by the residents of the area to Murray township, and the taxes they would pay to Trenton after annexation.

And as for the difference between the $200 paid by residents of DeVere Gardens, and the installed but much smaller amounts paid by some other out-of-town users, council had a solution. They approved a motion to suspend all agreements with out-of-town users, under the terms of the agreements. The new agreements will be on the basis of a fee of $200 per year per user.

How dear the memories are;
Sadly we miss a loving mother,
The world can never fill.
—Always remembered by daughter Jean, Reuben and grandchildren.

McILROY. — In loving memory of my dear wife, Olive McIlroy, who passed away June 3rd, 1937.

We mourn for her in silence,
No eyes can see her,
But many a silent tear is shed,
While others are asleep.
Never remembered by her husband Mac.

BUSH. — In loving memory of a wonderful mother, and grandmother, Annie Bush, who passed away June 3rd, 1951.

And while she lies in peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep;
Loving remembered, Ethel, Clare and grandsons.

BUSH. — In loving memory of a dear wife who passed away June 3rd, 1951.

Her memories will linger forever;
Time cannot erase them, it's true;
Years that may come cannot sever.
Our loving remembrance of you.
—Sadly missed by husband and family.

Elect An Active Representative

Duty of Active M.P. As Seen by Robt Temple

Liberal candidate Robert Temple has been keeping up his fast-pared tour of as many of Hastings South's business firms and industries as possible in order to find out the problems of both the employees and the managers in the riding which he hopes to represent in Parliament.

Mr. Temple firmly believes that any elected representative or candidate for such a position should be fully apprised of the possible knowledge of the people and the events which take place in the riding which he expects to represent.

Towards this end the Liberal candidate has personally visited every plant which has welcomed him and has obtained first-hand accounts of just what people of this riding expect of their federal representative.

Where his personal experiences and observations have not covered fully some phase of the life of Hastings South, Mr. Temple has formed committees such as his farm committee, of prominent individuals, regardless of their political feelings, to advise him of the most pressing problems and hopes of their group.

Such committees, Mr. Temple firmly believes, will ensure the prompt attention and recognition of any circumstance affecting any person, or group with which he is not personally acquainted in this fashion, and will add to his personal contacts. Mr. Temple is determined to provide each and every citizen of Hastings South with the most effective and responsive representation in Parliament possible.

As a firm believer in the freedom and rights of the individual, the Liberal candidate feels that it is only by personally finding out how, what and why Canadians feel, need and want that he can effectively represent them.

The first duty of an elected representative is to be aware of the state of affairs in his constituency and take immediate action on things as they arise rather than to wait for the citizens to make delegations and representations, Mr. Temple said.

Is Volkswagen changing?

Have we decided to replace our familiar beetle-shaped car?

No.

Are we going to stop making it? Definitely not. In 131 countries around the world, Volkswagens are still being sold faster than we can make them. Once more our factories are being expanded so that production can be increased.

No, we are not discontinuing "old faithful". But we are changing our one-model policy. From now on you will have a choice of two models—our famous 1200 model and the new VW 1500.

IS THE VW 1500 REALLY A VOLKSWAGEN?

The VW 1500 is like its stable mate. It has an air-cooled engine in the rear, of course. It has a solid platform chassis. It has oversize wheels and tires. And it is independently sprung front and rear by torsion bars. In other words, the VW 1500 has all the features which have made the VW 1200 a world success.

THE VW 1500 IS A BIGGER, MORE POWERFUL CAR.

There is no doubt that our new car is a Volkswagen. But it is bigger, livelier, and offers more comfort. Once you have driven the VW 1500 (not just around the block, but over a longer distance) you will discover that it offers a whole new standard of driving performance. It has the responsiveness and road holding qualities of a sports car, and yet it has the comfort and convenience of a full-size family sedan.

The transmission, (synchronized in all four gears) is a pure delight to shift. Bucket seats (only recently rediscovered by so many automobile manufacturers and delivered as an option at extra cost) are standard equipment and can be adjusted to 49 different positions.

LUXURY APPOINTMENTS INCLUDED IN THE BASIC PRICE.

The VW 1500 is loaded with extras: heater, windshield washer, padded dashboard and sun-visors, armrests for all four seats plus a comfortable centre armrest in the rear, and many other items for which you would expect to pay extra. But they are all standard equipment. And you can trust us not to re-style the body each year to make your VW 1500 obsolete.

You can also expect to find the high standard of quality for which the VW 1200 is justly famous. After all, you don't build five million cars of one model without learning how to do it the best way. It is this constant improvement, rather than change for its own sake, that has made Volkswagen the third largest automobile producer in the world.

HOW VOLKSWAGEN HELPS CANADA'S EXPORT TRADE.

Volkswagen play a very important role in the trade relations between Canada and West Germany. Every Volkswagen sold in this country helps Canada to sell more goods to West Germany, and in this sense the additional Volkswagen model will make another contribution to the flourishing interchange between two good trading partners.

SEE THE VW 1500, AND DRIVE IT.

Our 346 Volkswagen dealers, already service trained and supplied with parts for this new model long before the arrival of the first vehicle, are eager to show you the new VW 1500. If you would like to meet a car which combines sensible design, excellent roadholding and low operating cost, test-drive the VW 1500 soon.

Parrott Will Appeal to Supreme Court

John M. Parrott, local land developer who several weeks ago rallied in his application to have city Alderman Don J. Whalen unseated from council, will appeal the case to the Ontario Supreme Court, it was learned today. It is expected that the case will be heard at some time this week.

Mr. Parrott's application, to have Alderman Whalen unseated was based on the grounds that Mr. Whalen as a council member had tendered to purchase city-owned park property. The sale, however, was not completed.

The case was heard by Hastings County Judge J. C. Anderson who dismissed Mr. Parrott's application.

Three Charged On Remand, No Pleas Taken

City magistrate's court was filled to capacity here this morning.

James F. Nevery of Belleville appeared before the magistrate on a charge of breaking, entering and theft from Booth Radio and TV, Front St., Belleville, and remanded one week. Bail was set at $5,000 cash or property.

Robert V. Orr, also of Belleville, appeared in city court on a similar charge of breaking, entering and theft from Booth Radio and TV.

Orr was remanded on bail till obtained, for one week.

Charged with being in possession of a quantity of cheese, the property of the Black Diamond Cheese Company, was Allan Roy Bennett, also of Belleville. He was remanded until June 12.

No plea was taken by the magistrate from the three men, and no election of trial was made.

Graham will appear in court today to face four charges of breaking and entering and two charges of theft.

At about 3.40 a.m. Sunday, a window on the back wall of the Quinte Co-operative Oil Heating workshop, on Front St., was forced and the building entered. Nothing was stolen, according to police. This is the remaining portion of the building burned more than a month ago. Arson was suspected in the original fire. When a house trailer was moved in to serve as the company office, after the fire, the trailer was broken into, office machinery and money were stolen, and the trailer was burned.

At about 4.00 a.m. Sunday, police patrolling on Front St., found a window on the north side of the Van Leuven Furniture store had been forced, and the building entered. An undisclosed sum of money had been stolen.

An attempt had been made to enter Carr's Electric, also on Front St., but entry was not actually gained.

The Beaver Lumber Company office in Trenton was entered the same night, and money was stolen.

Gone But Not Forgotten

The noose ended the life of one of the 20th century's most misguided murderers in an Israeli prison last Friday.

Adolf Eichmann, a man credited with implementing the death of 6,000,000 people, paid his debt to the Jewish race and to the human race. He will not be forgotten or, more precisely his deeds will not be forgotten. This is as it should be.

Mankind should never forget the deeds of such persons as the Nazi Party bred in Germany. It must always be on the lookout for this type of disease, whether it is in an individual or in a group, and defend itself against them.

This sort of defence is of a nature where offence is the best variation, as early as possible before the cancer spreads and the cure required is either more drastic or affects more people.

The warning signs are not hard to perceive. They run to a form and are easily catalogued for ready reference. The maintenance of a government by force of arms, the discrimination against a particular race or group of people by a government, the curtailing of individual liberties and freedom of the press, these are all signs of this disease having advanced to an intermediate stage of development.

The early stages are, perhaps, a bit more difficult to perceive usually because they are deliberately obscured by fine words and false promises until those promoting this cancer have gained a firm foothold. They can, nevertheless, soon be recognized.

The use of a particular people or group as a scapegoat for a nation's ills is bound to be revealed somewhere in the early stages of development. The building up of fear or hate in a people against some other person, thing or race is the prime tool of embryo Hitlers. The gullible will usually fall for this line and it is the ignorance of the majority which allows this.

This is where the free man requires knowledge and insight. He must be able to recognize the ultimate penalty involved in the rantings and ambitions of a Hitler, Mussolini or Castro. They are ready to take immediate advantage of any weakness or ignorance displayed by supposedly free men.

Knowledge is then a prime responsibility for the citizens of a free country. The lack of it can be a dangerous thing.

This is why we must not forget Adolf Eichmann and his deeds. If we ever do we can fully expect a repeat performance of the extreme horror which sent him to the gallows.

A Quinte College?

Fifteen years ago there were three universities in Ontario. Today, with the recent announcement of the approval of Trent University in Peterborough, there are now 14 degree-granting universities in our province.

The increase may appear staring—almost five times as many universities but then the province's need has also increased and the original three, despite extensive expansion projects, were unable to cope with the situation.

This trend cannot be expected to wane. It will continue and in another decade or two the present 14 universities will undoubtedly require the assistance of additional institutions.

The Quinte area is an ideal area for consideration when it comes to the establishment of a school of higher learning. With over 100,000 people living in this district and with many more expected both from natural increase and by the industrial expansion which appears to be favoring our area, it would not be amiss to promote the founding of a junior college in the Belleville area.

Such could be used in the very near future if the rate of expansion and enrolment of our secondary schools is any indication of future needs. In the many other centres where universities have been established it has been through the sacrifice and determination of a group of enlightened local citizens willing to accept the responsibility of carrying through with such a proposal.

The success of such a group could also be a very logical stepping stone toward the eventual establishment of a full university in the same fashion as Waterloo College in Kitchener-Waterloo or Carleton College in Ottawa became fully fledged, degree-granting institutions.

Such a project would be the ultimate in the discharge of the responsible citizen's duty to make his community a better place for his having lived in it and to provide for the advancement of future generations.

If a man accepts applause when people like what he does, he should be man enough to accept hissing from people who don't like it.—Conductor Leopold Stokowski.

Back-Room Boys Share Too Much Work and Woe

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Met any of the Back-Room Boys yet? Interesting characters.

They're the guys behind the scenes.

They're the paid party organizers, and while their politics may widely vary from Left to Deep Right, they all have one thing in common . . . work and trouble, and too much of both.

You must have at least three and perhaps four in your area, one for each party leader.

They're responsible for the campaign mechanics in the one central and the several surrounding constituencies there.

Of course, the party leaders have their Back-Room Boys, lined up, four deep, here in the national campaign headquarters.

But they have their counterparts all across the country indicating — more correctly, especially — in the key, and thus time so vital centres of Hometown, Ontario.

ORGANIZED CONFUSION

For six weeks and more now, they have been working a 16-to-18-hour day to be well-organized amid confusion of televisions, without a leader to steer-ses, never stop jangling telephones, attend strategy conferences . . . continuous meetings . . . and other higher mountains of detail-work.

They still have another two weeks to go . . . and if you ask them, they will probably tell you they wonder if they will ever make it.

Days when all the work has got done have been rare, and in these final hours, there's some more than collector's items.

And when the campaign finally ends, they will be bone-beat, pounds lighter and like the political leaders, they will look at the end of their rope of physical endurance.

But like punchy fighters, they swear they love the ruggedness of battle, and the excitement they take as the Fall-Guy "Lovin' 'em" Boys.

So what do the paid organizers do?

It's a little of everything that goes into campaigning.

They help plan the party, dope out travel and speech itineraries, line up those interminable coffee luncheons, arrange publicity themes, churn out press releases, boss the organization, direct fund raising, hold the candidate's hand and keep him up for everything that goes wrong . . . when it goes right, the candidate gets the credit . . . maybe a little undue credit that is the way it goes with organizers.

JOE OF ALL TRADES

The Back-Room Boy from advising Mr. Big on the local and even regional issues, to helping the candidate get issues in his mind what colors he is going to use on his campaign posters.

But mainly the organizers are the detail men and the intermediaries between the party's top brass and the army of volunteer campaign workers.

The pressure is unrelenting, because everybody works too fast or too slow, or not enough or enough time, nor money, to do things right.

So nerves fray and tempers snap.

The worst day is when the Party Leader comes into the constituency campaigning.

It means, first, last and always, a crowd . . . bigger than the Other Fellow's crowd had, or if he hasn't called around yet, so big that the party's possibly match it.

It means the organizer has to bribe and bully everybody in the organization within reach to round up what he hopes will be headlined a "Record Crowd."

It means everything has to be checked and double-checked, from the public address system right up to the second the Party Leader speaks, to the ordering of flowers for his wife.

It means, in short, all those many, many things, the responsibility for which has been turning the hair prematurely grey of your area into the most thoroughly exhausted man for miles around.

He asks you to vote for his man . . . give him a big hand, cheer, even if you don't really mean it . . . so if he dies, he dies happy.

When a 'Mr.' Is 'Esquire'

Montreal Star

Should it be "Esquire" or plain "Mr."? In the old tradition the man who got his letters addressed to John Jones, Esq., was presumed to be somebody. The strict usage is that meant that Jones was a landed proprietor, the son of a knight or the youngest son of a peer.

Nowadays these distinctions have gone out the window. In the United States they have all but developed "Esq.", although some lawyers insist upon it. In this jurisdiction it is common practice to acquire unmerited "Esq." and to be especially nice to him. "Mr." does for everybody else.

The British when they continue to take these matters seriously, a timely correspondence has been going on in The Sunday Times. One of the letter-writers is Mr. R. D. Blumenfeld, who suggests that in certain quarters the distinction between "Mr." is purely a financial one, based until recently on an income of £2,000 a year.

According to Mr. Neal, "Her Majesty's Commissioners of Inland Revenue address the surtax payer as "Esq." but for demands for tax paid at the standard rate a "Mr." suffices. There'll always be an England.

Today in History

BY THE 'CANADIAN PRESS'

June 5, 1962 . . .

The Marshall Plan, a program of economic stability supported by the United States, was signalled 15 years ago today—in 1947—in a speech by State Secretary George Marshall to Harvard University Alumni.

The plan, which helped put Europe back on its feet after the Second World War, was authorized in December that year.

1817—The first steam-operated vessel to ply the Great Lakes, the Frontenac, was launched for operation between Kingston and York, now Toronto.

1718—Edward Teach—Blackbeard—Thatch made the discovery that led to the invention of the lightning rod.

Freer Hand

Montreal Star

The tragedy is that there are in the West Indies many political blackbirds in the fear of them hold office. The men in the drivers' seats trade on a personal appeal to an electorate which has little comprehension of policy. Some of them have already demonstrated they are not really interested in the development of a new nation — unless it is theirs. The West Indies experience seems to mean to most is a freer hand in the trough for personal aggrandizement.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

NEAR THE JUNGLE

There is still a lot of the beast in us. But almost anybody in a set of environmental circumstances, which arouse his terror, or his anger, or his passion and he can — and frequently does — in the twinkling of an eye, become a primitive savage. The primitive level as rapidly as does the individual who steps off the roof of a ten-story building.

This is one of the reasons why we all need religious faith and the values and self-control which the highest practice of religion produces. A man can even shed his religion in one of those crisis moments which results in a plunge downward. But he is less likely to shed his religion in such crises than he is to shed his education, his culture, his sense of refinement and good breed-ing.

Because we know this about ourselves, because we have observed that we, and the other members of the human family, are always walk along the edge of a precipice, we do not dare and let us be on our guard lest we cast aside the jungle or the jungle dart out and encompass us. In the second place, let us continually develop by quiet meditation, prayer, and practice of the presence of God those qualities within us which will steady us in the hour of danger. Tomorrow we shall try to explain to ourselves the meaning of the term "practicing the presence of God."

Several Books Published With Same Title

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

This spring, in England, three different books were published all with the same title, "On A Darkling Plain." The phrase is from Matthew Arnold's popular poem, "Dover Beach."

Nobody seems to know where titles come from — and most of them come from traditional sources: the Bible, Shakespeare, favorite poetry, "Dover Beach" has been the origin of dozens of book titles, for instance, this year Rupert Croft Cooke's new book is called "Twelfth Night," which is the last line of the poem — and the same title as a play by Clifford Odets a dozen years ago.

When my second book of collected columns, "Majority of One," was published, it was followed a few months later by the play bearing the same title, both the playwright and I had gone to an essay of Thoreau in which he said, "Any man more than his fellows hears the distant drum of a different cadence."

It is not commonly known that titles cannot be copyrighted. I could write a novel and call it "With the Wind," if I liked, so long as it did not use the same story or characters as Miss Mitchell's famous book.

Her book, by the way, was called something totally different when it was submitted to publishers. The title was changed by Macmillan's, who felt it was a distitute a majority of one

True to Tradition the Sun Shone on Convocation Day Held at Albert College

By GLADYS WARD

It is a matter of comment every year at Albert College that the sun always shines on Convocation days, and true to tradition, the sun did shine on Monday afternoon, on the lawns, glowing green, on the tried walls and bright flower beds. The picture of youth with its unfulfilled promise is always a moving and poignant sight that is renewed each year on Convocation day.

The girl students entered Memorial Chapel first, looking charming in their long white dresses with Bertha collars of lace, and long white gloves, each carrying a nosegay of sweetpeas centred with a rosebud, in a paper frill. The young men were navy jackets, grey flannels, and the school tie striped with black, gold and green, the school colors. They were followed by the faculty members, wearing gaudy hoods, the Board of Governors, special guests, and the clergymen.

The academic procession entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's March of the Priests, played on the organ by Mrs. Harold Keefer of Trenton, a member of the Board of Governors. The invocation was given by Rev. Bert Howard, B.A., principal emeritus of the school.

EXTENDS WELCOME

Principal and headmaster of Albert College, Rev. J. Alastair Haig extended a cordial welcome to all those present, particularly the parents of the students. "There are many people here today who have grown to love Albert College," the principal said, and proceeded to quote some of the statements students had made. In one gift it was the beginning year of her life. She had profited in her religious life; in relationship with others, and had enjoyed classes. This was typical of the comments by students.

"There are many young people here who have grown very fond of Albert College, and Albert College has grown very fond of them. How desolate this place will be in a few short hours. To those of you who will be leaving us for wider fields, I know I speak for my colleagues when I say we have really taken you into our hearts, and we hope that the years ahead will see you return to your College frequently to visit us. May God's richest blessing rest upon you of Albert College attend you always."

VARIED PROGRAM

Vice-president of the Board of Mr. A. O. Drysdale brought greetings from the Board, stating that the prime purpose of the Governors was to provide an environment for learning, both intellectual and spiritual. He hoped the students would be happy, well-adjusted citizens when they left the school.

Musical numbers were given by the Girls' Quintette, "The Humbugs", who sang, "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You" and "When You're Smiling"; and by the school choir who gave a splendid rendition of "Battle Hymn of the Republic", Dean J. H. MacKay was master of ceremonies.

Miss Jane Craig gave the Valedictory address, reviewing for many of the events of the past year, which started with their initiation. Miss Craig mentioned the football games, the "At Home", Lit. night, Halloween party and the trip to Toronto to see "Spring Thaw", which the Seniors had taken. Miss Craig then told of life's environment, and our days at Albert College has added to our experience. This has been "a memorable year, we have been a happy family group. Since this will be the last time we are all together as a group, it is a time to say thank you to the teaching staff, Principal, who have listened to us and been so helpful; to our parents who made many sacrifices for us. We hope our efforts have pleased you. We are caught between two conflicting emotions, looking back and looking forward into the future. We have fought a good fight, we have run the course, now it remains to be seen if we have kept the faith. We must understand that success does not come without hard work, and we must dare to excel".

The presentation of a plaque to record the names of Senior class Presidents was made by class President Charles Johnston, to the school. Miss Elisabeth Love, President of the Junior class presented two offering plates for use in the chapel. Principal Haig accepted both gifts on behalf of the school.

DEDICATED TO CHEF

The school yearbook, "Alibi" this year has been dedicated to the chef, Mr. Hugh Leslie John Brown. Two members of the editorial staff Myron Maxted and Lynda Robertson presented Mr. Brown with a copy of the annual, and read the dedication which said in part that Mr. Brown had been born in Wales, worked as a chef on deep sea ships, came to Canada in 1932 as manager and chef in the University of Western Ontario. His hobby was gardening and the growing of dahlias, and for a long and faithful service to the students of Albert College, the book was respectfully dedicated to their friend. The students gave Mr. Brown a standing ovation. Mr. Brown thanked the students for the honor they had given him. Principal Haig estimated that Hugh Brown prepared 18,000 meals every year and said wholeheartedly that the meals were good.

Recognition was given to Mr. Roy Smith of Detroit, as a golden anniversary graduate of 1902. Although Mr. Smith was not present, the honorary certificate will be sent to him.

Principal Haig presented the trophy table as a gift from the children of the late Mr. Jack Ellsworth, in memory of their father. White gladioli and yellow mums made up the beautiful bouquet.

Rev. J. Alastair Haig introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Roy G. De Marsh, B. Sc., General Secretary of the Student Christian Movement for Canada, outlining his career and aptitudes. After receiving his higher education at Mt. Allison University, Rev. De Marsh became a personnel officer for Ballmurfy Paper and Twine Co. then to Pine Hill Divinity Hall for theological training. He later attended the University of Toronto and for five years served in a number of churches. Rev. J. A. Haig described the speaker as a man of great integrity and courage.

REACH SECOND STAGE

"Today you have reached the second stage of your education," said Rev. De Marsh. "This is a particular institution to be present at a graduation. I suggest that we take a personal look at your social environment outside the school. I suppose that since the days of here has ever been continuously hungry, has ever been home as long as there are those has ever been without medicine when it was needed as so many in a sick world have. Very few have known the burden and anxiety of unemployment, or the crushing burden of heavy toil. You have known instead the miracles of travel and television. These blessings make it harder for you to get a perspective on the world outside. It is unbelievable to think that some grads will be looking from the moon at the earth.

TOLD TO BE FRUITFUL

"In the book of Genesis, God told the people to be fruitful and multiply, to replenish the earth and subdue it. There is a profundity of expression here As the population increases, the task is to provide freedom from brutality and hunger, from want and war.

"This is an age of revolution. There is a nightmare of hunger, the gap in the human family is growing, and there must be a sharing and increasing of resources.

"These are sombre times. When you recall that 500 million are occasionally literally starving; that two - thirds of the human family are not getting marginal nourishment; that 55 percent of the world's children over 10 have never been to school, and that 200 million children will receive no education; that two-thirds of Latin America live in unfit homes and many are homeless; and that in India the life expectancy is only 22 years while ours is 67 to 70, you can see that hope lies in the fact of the revolutionary idea that material progress is possible. The poor countries have noticed that the getting rich trick needs huge amount of capital, and a vast number of teachers, scientists, engineers and technicians. This secret is known, and they know they must get fabulous amounts of money or a regimented government such as Russia and China, to overcome the scourge of poverty.

"An exciting development is that students are volunteering the overseas service. The United Church sends more technically trained men than our department of overseas aid. They have discovered with their hearts and minds they are needed. This is the great challenge of our times.

ONLY HOPE SERVICE

"Famine and disease wiped out a great part of the population in the past years, but now medicine health and sanitation are having babies. This is a problem medical science must cope with and so must the church. The church is the only advocate we have come before modern economics are considered. Our only hope is sacrificial service.

"There is a peril in nationalism and racism. Over 600 million colonial people have refused their freedom in the past six years. They believed that national freedom was the first step to better living, and many have been disillusioned. We mean shun the evil of racial prejudice in our lives. The Lisbon-Christian faith leads us into a new sense of partnership.

"The peril of war is always close. It seems incredible that on this day six or 40 satellites are circling the earth; that there are 100 megaton bombs in existence with their utter destructiveness; that there are biological weapons and chemicals so powerful they could wipe out the world population.

We need to pray for the peacemakers of earth who are laboring to discover a way of control and disarmament. It is a grim picture, enough to shake you to the core.

"What is the extent of your responsibility in the face of the world's need? God intends us to have mastery over nature, to go on from dependence to interdependence. We must have concern for each other and faith in God the Father. There is a temptation, to be fully occupied in everyday life, our responsibilities seem all we can person can handle. Is it enough to be law-abiding citizens and men of goodwill? God calls us to involvement, to accept responsibility in the family of nations. God's world desperately needs you. As you go forth may God grant you faith, hope and love. You will need all three in the days ahead."

EXPRESSES THANKS

Vice Principal Bert Simpson expressed appreciation to the speaker for his address which he said, clarified in its presentation of facts, but which should appeal to the spirit of adventure in the hearts of all young people.

A reception was prepared in Ackerman Hall by the Albert College Women's Guild where the students, parents and guests had an opportunity to visit and enjoy a social hour. Principal J. A. and Mrs. Haig, and Vice Principal and Mrs. Simpson received the guests at the door.

An official school picture was part of the personalities and many amateur camera fans were busily recording the events on film. Good-byes were said, trunks and gear were packed into cars, and exams for the students who are writing departmental papers, another school year was over.

Chi Rho Entertains Old Folks

Spirits were warmly enlightened last Wednesday evening at the County Home for the Aged. The success of this entertainment evening was due to the fine amateur talent contributed by the Christ Church Chi Rho.

Starting off the program with a piano solo, was lovely little Miss Elspeth Teed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Teed. Elspeth gave a beautiful performance with her selection of "Minuet in F."

Marjorie Butler and Ken Stapley gave a change of tune and style when they sang together with Ken strumming the guitar in a professional manner.

The results were entertained next with a comedy skit acted out by Mr. and Mrs. Rod Grainger. Fine acting on the part of this couple made "Breakfast in John and Blanche" seem real to life.

Another piano solo by Miss Elspeth Teed "Long, Long Ago," fitted the occasion well.

For a really big showing on the program and the introduction of "The Chi Rho Nuts." Decked out in straw sombreros and ponchos, Michael Caswell, Mr. Herb Cavaller, Mr. Allan Gardiner, Ted Preston and last, but not least, Mr. Richard Howbottom all of whom sang and played their musical instruments to "Jamaica Farewell," cleverly managing to get a few voices humming along.

The closing number on the agenda was Norma Cavalier and Bill Crozier giving a lively finish-up dance routine of the "Charleston." Appropriately dressed were Norma in drop-waist and long beads, her partner, Bill, in his stylish raccoon coat. They received wonderful applause. Memories must have crept back to one elderly lady as she stood up to get a better view.

Following the show ice cream was served.

Appreciation and thanks were expressed to the Chi Rho on behalf of the residents for the fine evening.

A few members decided to treat themselves, so made their way to a restaurant, but reports appeared at the Plaza. At this time, Allan Gardiner reminded members that the next meeting on the every form of a bowling party, when on the 23rd. would be in the Chi Rho will visit the new Plaza and enjoy the automatic five-pin bowling alleys.

It is hoped that all members can come out and, of course, a hearty welcome to anyone else who is interested in the Chi Rho Fellowship.

27 Women to Contest Seats in Coming Vote

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Five women members of the last Commons will be joined by 22 others seeking seats in the June 18 general election.

All provinces but Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan were represented by women candidates at closing nominations closed Monday. The 27 compare with 21 nominated for the 1958 election, 30 the previous year, and 48 in 1953.

Leading three other Conservative women in their re-election bid will be Immigration Minister Fairclough, the only woman member of the cabinet. Mrs. Fairclough is running against Steve Hogg in Hamilton West.

Judy La Marsh, the Liberals' only woman member of the last House, is running again in Niagara Falls. Both she and Mrs. Jean Casselman in Grenville-Dundas have another woman among their opponents.

NEW RECRUITS

The other women sitting in the last Parliament were Miss Margaret Aitken in York Humber and Mrs. Margaret Macdonald, who won a 1961 byelection to succeed her late husband in Prince Edward Island's Kings riding.

The breakdown of women candidates shows seven each for the Conservatives and the New Democratic Party, six Liberals, five Social Creditors, an Independent and a Communist. There were 14 in Ontario, nine in Quebec, three in Manitoba, two in B.C. and one each in P.E.I., New Brunswick, Alberta and the Northwest Territories.

Miss La Marsh, 37-year-old lawyer, is opposed by Conservative MP Gen. Douglas who is making her first political bid. Also in the riding are male Social Credit and NDP candidates.

Pineapple Bars Today

Busy mothers will clear me and not the least of these is Marianne.

Bar and square cookies — pan cookies of any shape and thickness — are a staple in her household.

So I suspect my motive today. I think I worked on these pan cookies for Marianne to make to put in Herbie's lunches. If so, I hope he enjoys them and I hope you do too.

The crumb part of these bars has an addition of finely chopped nuts which increase their deliciousness and instead of the perennial date fillings these call for pineapple filling.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

French Onion Soup (with Croutons and Grated Parmesan Cheese); Cold Plate: Sliced Headcheese, Liverwurst, Salami; Deluxe Potato Salad; Thin Buttered Rye Bread; Old-Fashioned Mustard Pickles or Dills; Rhubarb Betty with Cream; Tea.

NOTE:

These have another purpose. They may be used for dessert and here is how. Bake them in a pan 9 x 9" — smaller than directed. Give below. While warm cut into nine 3" squares and serve under a small scoop of ice cream or large dollop of unsweetened whipped cream. I did this and it was a smash hit. I was backed into a corner behind mountains of cookies when unexpected guests arrived. I cranked up a tired memory and recalled sight of the painful of Pineapple Bars. Why not use them for dessert? No sooner asked than decided.

PINEAPPLE BARS.

Reminiscent of Matrimonial Squares but with new filling and a change in the crumb mixture.

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking soda, ½ cups raw quick-cooking rolled oats, 1½ cups dark brown sugar, well packed, ½ cup finely chopped walnuts, 1 cup melted good quality shortening (or use half butter and half shortening).

Sift flour with salt and baking soda. Add quick-cooking rolled oats, brown sugar and walnuts and mix thoroughly. Add warm melted shortening (or shortening and butter) and stir in until well mixed. (Eleanor did this mixing and did it with her finger tips.) With palms press half of these crumbs into a 12 x 8 x 2" pan, pressing firmly to make top smooth. Cover with cooled pineapple filling. Cut and one-half cups canned crushed pineapple, 4½ teaspoons cornstarch, 6 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice. In small saucepan mix together sugar and cornstarch. Stir in canned crushed pineapple and lemon juice and cook, stirring over medium-high heat until thick and boiling. Reduce heat and stir 1 minute longer. Cool. Spread over bottom layer of crumbs packed in pan. Spread remaining crumbs evenly over and pat down with palms to make firm without squeezing out the pineapple filling. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 35 or 40 minutes or until firm to touch at centre. Do not brown this any more than absolutely necessary. Cool in pan. Cut into squares or bars with sharp knife when cold.

Next Tuesday see my recipe for Plain Gingersnaps.

PIN MONEY

The term "pin money" stems from 14th - century England, when women gave up to buy pins, sold only on the first two days of the year because of their scarcity.

Question: A friend has offered to lend me her mink stole to wear to a formal dance. I'd love to use it, but I would like to know what it cost, just in case something should happen to it. Would it be inappropriate to ask such a question? — Mrs. A.D.L., Trenton, N.J.

Answer: No. If the stole is lost or damaged, you'll have to make good, so if wiser to find out what the liability would be, even if it means asking a direct, personal question. Also ask if you could correctly send a note to your hostess' disappointment. However, if it means taking a direct, personal question. Also ask if you could correctly send a note the stole is insured. THE FAMILY COUNCIL

JANE G. — This year I'd like to plan something for all of us during Mark's vacation.

MARK G. — I'd rather send the kids to camp and then just follow our fancy.

• • •

Jane G. — We have three children. The boys are eight and 13 and Lily is 11. Mark gets a full month off this summer and we can't agree on what to do with it.

This is the first year when we have a real choice, because now our baby is eligible for camp. That means we can either send all three there and scoot off somewhere by ourselves, or use this time to be together, the five of us, on the same outing. We've never been able to go places together, due to the kids being too young, or Mark being on an overseas assignment, or no car, or something.

I feel we should grab this chance and plan a camping-trip, or some sightseeing.

• • •

Mark G. — It's true we've never, all five, spent my vacation together. Last year Jane and I stayed home with our youngest while the two others were at Scout camps. We just went to the beach or to short trips to visit the family.

But I think we'll all enjoy the month more if we split up into two parties, we and the kids. They'll love being together, and also having plenty of other youngsters to team up with for overnight camping and outdoor fun. And Jane and I will probably sit around the house a few days, pinching ourselves, to see if the new freedom is real. Then we'll take off to, well, wherever the open road leads!

• • •

The Council: Over 2,000 years ago a Roman poet named Horace advised people to seize the present moment, not to postpone. We'd repeat those hackneyed Latin words now to Mark: Carpe diem. You have a chance to give your children a family summer to remember. You can't take it for granted that you'll have another.

Why not straddle the issue via a compromise? If possible, sign up the kids for a two-week stay while you and Jane luxuriate in a no-responsibility Eden (at home or anywhere). And then set forth on a well-planned be-together, see-together and laugh-together journey.

Granted that en-masse touring can't guarantee complete satisfaction for each member of the party, it can give the G. family certain over-all bonuses that going separate ways would deny them. First, there's no anxiety. Jane's not wondering how the kids are. She sees. And Lily and her brothers don't have to wait for mail and packages to know Dad's thinking of them. He's right alongside them.

Then, there's the matter of shared joys acting as a binder among the five. All through the year they share other experiences, some heavy and difficult. Here's their chance to be united in breathtaking adventure, moving and majestic settings and memorable encounters.

For example, there's the Seattle World's Fair this year, running on to October 21. Since the G.'s don't live far from that area, Mark might find something for everyone there.

One of the attractions, we learn, is a Children's World with no adults admitted. (But they can watch from an upper-level vantage point.) They'll see electronic tricks, such as 400-page books reduced to the size of a postage stamp, and made readable through projectors. And the whole family will have their imaginations jogged with previews into the twenty-first century.

Or else, there are the National Parks, the Civil War shrines, the historic reconstructions (Williamsburg, Va.; Old Mystic, Conn.), and other spots to remind us about together all through the year, and years. To Mark we say, this is a fleeting chance. Grab it!

Action! Not Words!

AREA HEADQUARTERS REMAIN IN BELLEVILLE — Thanks to the efforts of Lee E. Grills, many local railway office workers have been able to continue living in Belleville. Under administrational re-organization there was talk of the Rideau Area Headquarters being moved to Kingston, but the decision to keep it in Belleville also resulted in many key personnel being moved here. Above picture taken at Belleville station shows Mr. Grills (right) telling city alderman Walter T. Elliott, how, as member for Hastings South in the last government, he was able to convince railway officials that the Rideau Area headquarters should remain permanently in Belleville. South Korea Will Not Take Part SEOUL (AP) — South Korea today rejected the idea of forming an all-Korea team for the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo.

The chairman of the ruling military junta's subcommittee in charge of athletic affairs said his government "would not form any mixed delegation of North and South Koreas athletes" for the Games.

Brig. Gen. Soka Chang-Kyo, who heads the subcommittee on education and social affairs, made the statement commenting on a Moscow dispatch that the Olympic committee advised South Korea to form an all-Korea team.

South Korea might be ousted from the International Olympic Committee unless she agreed to form an all-Korea team, the dispatch added.

that's the beauty of A-100 Latex House Paint

A-100 goes on so smoothly, so swiftly, you'll call it automatic. Yet the wonder of Latex gives you lasting protection—puts money in your pocket by postponing repainting for years. And —never mind the weather man—A-100 is so dry in 30 minutes, weather won't harm it. Defies bugs and dust, too—no time for them to settle!

But more, much more! A-100 has absolutely amazing resistance to blistering because its special texture lets the woodwork "breathe".

Easy clean-up too—just wash your brushes as you do your hands: in soap and water.

The pioneering research facilities of four famous companies have produced this final word in paint for outdoors.

Whatever the outside surface, the first time you use A-100, be sure to get all the benefits. You will, if you follow your dealer's instructions.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It all goes to show that you never know how the cookie will crumble, or as they say in other circles, how the ball will bounce, until the last goose hangs high, and everything is over but the shouting and weeping.

For instance, that side-wheeling bangtail who carried two of my hard-earned simoleons on his Roman nostrils Saturday night looked good in the warmup. I overheard what looked like two experts talking over possibilities, and I paid the penalty of eavesdropping. Those guys were as questionable as a mongrel pooch's ancestry.

They thought this Wandering Minstrel or Prodigal Son of whatever its name was, would romp home with the gold and glory. As a matter of fact it hasn't romped home yet. It was last seen grazing in a pasture field down Shannonville way. That nag didn't have the decency to walk home under the wire. It was probably afraid it would get mixed up with next Saturday's meet.

The same thing apparently applies to baseball. In the scalier division of Lakeshore Baseball League, after the first two or three ballots were in, it looked as though it might be a repetition of last year's situation. Not much competition.

The Kingston entry stepped off in a blaze of batting glory and clobbered the Peterborough Fannings 16-2. A somewhat cocksure Belleville Kenmors trekked to Peterborough for their baptism of fire and came home with a 13-2 shellacking hanging from their tails.

Out of a blue sky, the Fort Hope Ontarios, an intermediate-rated squad, whipp playa an interlocking schedule with the three senior clubs, slapped an 8-5 defeat on the Peterborough squad, and eyebrows began to raise.

"Wait until you meet Kingston, brother, you will get your combs cut." This from a Peterborough third-base coach, who was under verbal fire from the Kenmore bench, and who said it for the lack of a better answer.

The Kenmore came up with the answer on Sunday when they slipped by the Kingston club with a 6-5 victory that puts a different light on the possibilities of this newly-formed senior circuit.

The Soden-Forster crew had apparently regained their baseball sea-legs after that stage-frightly exhibition in Peterborough. They knuckled down, played good baseball afield and came through with the clouts when they were needed.

As matters look now, the group should be productive of some closely fought battles this summer. Fort Hope, by virtue of their defeat of Peterborough, do not appear to be any pushovers. This Peies squad looked good against our side on that first time out.

With four or five games under their respective belts, the clubs in the senior set-up could make a dog-eat-dog affair of the circuit before playoff time. As of now Belleville and Kingston have a 1-1 record, Peterborough has a 1-2 mark and Fort Hope has won its only start.

The Kenmore make their home-town debut here tomorrow night—and the stage is set for a gala evening. The Peies, smarting under two setbacks, will be the opposition and Manager Bill Crowley has his Littlockers set and primed for a victory.

The Kenmore, too, are victory-minded and Coach Forster has the crew ready to go out and do their best for the home-town fans. There should be lots of color. Manager Soden has the flashy team all coming out and there will be free treats and whatnot.

Arrangements have also been made to hold the draw for the Pepsi's Booster Club TV set at the game. This was a project started during the hockey season and the lucky winner has a choice of cash or the TV set. Some tickets are still available.

Forster has a seven-man pitching staff at his disposal but at this writing there has been no announcement of the starting assignment. Thus far Larry Soden and Bill Latchford have been the workhorses of the mound staff.

They call it "Baseball Night in Belleville" and a good turnout of fans is expected. The game gets under way at 8.15 at the Fair Grounds.

NHL Snuffs Out Major Rule Changes

Few Trades In Offing

MONTREAL (CP) — As far as the National Hockey League is concerned, bedding amateur hockey players must work their way under professional regulations.

The big pro circuit so reminded heads of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Monday as it opened a three-day annual meeting.

At a session of the joint rules committee — bringing together heads of the four pro leagues and the CAHA—the NHL also all but snuffed out several major rule changes suggested by the CAHA.

In reference to non-conformity of rules in general, NHL president Clarence Campbell said he feels the difference in rules used by United States colleges "has down-graded the prospects of players reaching the NHL."

Campbell said there are 75 Canadians now attending U.S. colleges on hockey scholarships —players are formerly played on NHL-sponsored teams in Canada.

Since NHL clubs sponsor many junior and lower-rank professional clubs, it is "the ridiculous to pay money for sponsorship and not develop players in the way we want trained."

CHANGE RULES

Earlier the NHL rules committee met and came up with several changes.

An effort was made to add drama to the penalty shot. Wandering of goalies will be restricted when a slow-whistle penalty is called and face-off men in the end zones will be placed alike instead of seven feet apart.

Today's morning schedule calls for a meeting of the NHL publicity directors and a session of the joint relations committee of the pros and the CAHA.

Later the inter-league draft—when the NHL drafts last from Western Hockey League and the Eastern Professional Hockey League—will be held. The draft price from the minors is $20,000. A meeting of owners and players' representatives will also be held, and it is pro. NHL clubs must file their lists of protected players in preparation for Wednesday's inter-league draft.

Outside the meeting rooms there were hoddler galore and deals involving NHL clubs were reported on the fire.

TRADE TALK SOUNDS

General manager George Imlach of the Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs said he had a deal under way that involves a minor leaguer.

"We're ready to talk trades for fringe players, not our established players," said Imlach.

Boston Bruins and New York Rangers also were reported talking trades.

At one stage during the joint rules committee session, Campbell declared bluntly he felt that the amateur heads, in many instances were "more concerned with autonomy than with the rules themselves."

The most contentious proposals brought up by the CAHA dealt with icing the puck, the penalty shot and the centre-ice red line.

Bob LaBel, chairman of the CAHA rules committee, said the representatives of the four pro clubs themselves had suggested the amateurs try out some of these proposed rule changes.

But in most cases the pros vanished no part of the proposed changes.

STARTS AT CENTRE ICE

Under the NHL's new penalty-shot rule, the player taking the shot will start at centre ice instead of the defending team's blue line. The new rule permits him to go into a great windup, skating behind his own net if he wishes before he sails in on the unprotected goalie. But once he crosses the defending team's blue line he must keep skating or forfeit a shot.

The league felt that goalies have been capitalizing on slow whistle or signalled penalties by moving up into the play as the puck carrier, knowing that when an opponent touches the puck play will stop.

Under the change a goalie must remain inside his own blue line or suffer a minor penalty. If he skates off the ice for a substitution after the slow whistle is signalled, he must go direct to the players' bench.

The change in the rule regarding face-offs in end zones was considered necessary to minimize interference by the face-off players.

27 Remain In Running For Derby

LONDON (AP) — Twenty-two horses remained in yesterday's Epsom Derby after the three-day forfeit stage Monday.

Taken out of the field were Mr. Jones, Pindaric, Silver Credit, 16 to 1; High Noon; 18 to 1; Escort, Lackaday, 20 to 1; Cocoon, Valentine; 22 to 1; River Chanter; 25 to 1; Prince Monour, Tocsin, Lochinvar, 33 to 1; Romulus, Peter Jones, Tribune; 40 to 1; Rockefella; 100 to 1, King Canutie II, Pavot, Sparkler, Mr. Lee, Pannhills, Ribobo; 200 to 1, Romanoff, Persian Fantasy, Changing Times; 500 to 1, Cap of Fun.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Lester Piggott, one of Britain's top jockeys, was barred from riding in the Derby. Lord Cadhame, senior steward of the English Jockey Club, made the announcement after an inquiry into Piggott's riding in a race at Lincoln last week.

Piggott, who has won the Derby three times, was barred for the remainder of the Lincoln meeting and the matter was referred to the Jockey Club stewards.

13 Whiffs by Koufax

Los Angeles Two Away From Top

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

If anything fits Sandy Koufax to a T, it's a fast ball.

The 6-foot-2 southpaw symbol for a strikeout, appeared 13 times in the Philadelphia batting record Monday night as Los Angeles Dodgers whiff king set the Phillies down on three hits for a 6-3 victory in the only game played in other league.

The triumph, moving second place Los Angeles within two games of the leading San Francisco Giants boosted Koufax' record to 8-2 and further propelled the 26 - year - old lefthander along the road to what he would that—a 20-victory National League campaign.

"Strikeouts are nice to have," says Koufax, who I wouldn't trade a 20-victory season for all the strikeout records in the book."

Koufax holds the league record for 269 strikeouts in one season and has fanned 10 or more 36 times during his eight-year career. But his 18-13 record last year was the closest he's come to hitting 20.

FIGURES IMPRESSIVE

His effort against the Phils gave him a total of 128 strikeouts in 101 innings this season, marked his fourth consecutive complete - game triumph and gave him a string of 10-1/6-30-13 over the four-game span.

The Dodgers quickly allowed a leadoff single to Tony Taylor in the first inning, then retired 17 batters in order before Taylor walked in the seventh. He tired in the ninth, allowing John Callison's single, a walk to Roy Sievers and a pinch-hit homer by Jack Davis with two out.

The Dodgers pulled ahead to stay against Art Mahaffey (5-7), wildest in seven starts against Los Angeles, with a run in the first on Maury Wills' single, his steal of second and base singles by Willie Davis and Tommy Davis. The Dodgers chased Mahaffey in the second when Wally Moon and John Romano singled consecutive homers leading off the inning.

TACKLE BUCS NEXT

The Dodgers move over to Pittsburgh tonight for a twi-nighter with the Pirates while top spot by winning 11 of 12, the Giants, who have held the will be at Chicago for a day game. Cincinnati Reds are at St. Louis, Milwaukee Braves at Houston and New York Mets at Philadelphia for other night-ers on a full program.

It'll be Dan Williams (5-4) and Don Drysdale (5-3) for the Dodgers against Earl Francis (3-3) and Bob Friend (5-6). The Giants will send Jack Sanford (6-4) or Billy O'Dell (6-3) against the Cubs' Bob Buhl (3-3).

The American League spotlight falls on New York, where Cleveland's surprising Indians and the defending world champion Yankees open a three-game series that will determine first place in the tight race bracketing five teams within 2½ games of the lead.

The Indians will start Jim Grant (3-0), on furlough from the army, while Ralph Terry (6-4) will take the mound for the Yanks. Grant defeated Terry and the, Yankees 7-1 with a five-hitter in an earlier meeting. Cleveland has taken five of the seven games between the two clubs, but the Yanks have with 27-19 records.

The Chicago White Sox and Minnesota Twins a half-game back of the leaders, will be trying to gain ground on the Indians by defeating Kansas City Athletics. The White Sox's Juan Pizarro, 1961 only one game out of first are at Boston, the fifth-place Los Angeles Angels are home to Chicago White Sox and Washington Senators are at Baltimore.

SUES STADIUM

Mrs. Dolores Darga of Detroit says in the suit the puck came over a plastic shield Nov. 13 during a game between Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens.

Miles Claimed

Calgary Wants Veteran

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders claimed veteran backfield star Rollie Miles from Edmonton Eskimos Monday under the Western Football Conference's player equalization list.

General manager Jim Finks said the club has paid $1,000 for, and has started contract negotiations with, the 11-year Eskimos veteran.

The claiming of Miles ended a three-week controversy about the terms of the draft. Edmonton disputed Calgary's original claim and contended the Stampeders had misrepresented provisions of the plan.

The president called Calgary was entitled to draft one player from Edmonton and gave Edmonton until Monday to take Miles off the list of unprotected Canadians and put him on a list of 12 who couldn't be drafted.

DECLINE REVISION

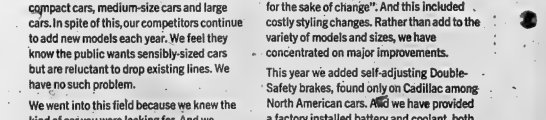
When the dispute blew open, general manager Joe Ryan of Edmonton said the draft provided that a team finishing 10 or more points behind another club could draft up to two Canadians from the higher-placed clubs. No team would be forced to give up more tan two players. There was a seven-point spread between Edmonton and Calgary.

The motion approved at last Thursday's meeting said teams finishing 10 or more points behind the first-place Winnipeg Blue Bombers will be allowed to draft players from the equalization pool.



Calgary was awarded one selection and was obliged to contribute one player to the equalization pool. B.C. Lions and Saskatchewan Roughriders were awarded two selections. Each claim costs a club $1,000.

Miles, 32, is a graduate of St. Augustine's, N.C., College. He is naturalized Canadian and both he and his wife teach school in Edmonton. The couple have seven children.

Miles has been named to a record eight conference all-star teams as either an offensive halfback or defensive cornerlinebacker.

Rambler American Custom 4 Door Sedan
Rambler Classic "400" 4 Door Sedan
Rambler Ambassador "400" 4 Door Sedan

When other major manufacturers have so many sizes and models why does Rambler offer only 3?

The market has been flooded with cars of every shape and size. There are small cars, compact cars, medium-size cars and large cars. In spite of this, our competitors continue to add new models each year. We feel they know the public wants sensibly-sized cars but are reluctant to drop existing lines. We have no such problem.

We went into this field because we knew the kind of car you were looking for. And we continue to build only sensibly-sized cars because we believe in them. We offer only three Ramblers. The economical American, Canada's lowest priced compact, the all-purpose Classic with $1,000 worth of extras and the luxurious Ambassador V-8 that gives you top performance. We believe that from these three you may choose the car you want and need.

From the introduction of our first Rambler, we have stressed maximum usefulness to the user. Our guiding policy has been "no change for the sake of change". And this included costly styling changes. Rather than add to the variety of models and sizes, we have concentrated on major improvements.

This year we added self-adjusting Double-Safety brakes, found only on Cadillac among North American cars. And we have provided a factory installed battery and coolant, both guaranteed for two years. In addition, we have been able to substantially reduce our prices while giving you these extra values.

For an outstanding example of sanity in the showroom, visit your Rambler dealer soon. Take a test drive in Rambler, Canada's best all 'round car value.

Joyces Top Rollins 12-3

BY GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Joyce Real Estate strengthened their grip on the B. and D. softball league's top spot and trounced Rollins Construction Jumbo a little deeper into the basement with a 12-3 victory under the lights at the Fairgrounds last night.

The second-place RCAF Flyers will try to snap Joyces' four-game winning streak in an 8.00 p.m. fixture at the same park tonight.

Joyces scored three in the second and fifth innings, four in the sixth and two in the ninth to win going away. Southside slug Bob Butterfield burled no-hit ball for the winners over the first five frames, then faltered and gave up all three Rollins runs and nine hits in the final four innings.

Butterfield stayed the distance and struck out 11 batters. He issued four free passes but received excellent support from his mates.

Bobby Ethier started and lost Nine Runners' hilltop. He was tagged for eight runs off seven hits, fanning two and walking two, in the first five innings plus. Don Holloway finished up, allowing four more hits while striking out one, walking two and hitting one batter.

Chuck Kingston, who drove in five of the winners' runs, fashioned the club's record-breaking rally with a drag-bunt single. Elliott lined another base hit and Faulkner's single to left was booted to make it 2-0. Kellar grounded out to plate another marker.

A walk and two infield hits loaded the bases in the fifth and Kingston belted a long blast to centre field. Locke went deep to haul in down and two runs crossed the plated after the catch. An error made it 6-0.

Back-to-back doubles by Kellar and Place scored one run and chased Ethier to open the sixth. A walk, hit batter and Kingston's bases-loaded triple topped the scores to 10-0.

Duggan doubled over third to snap Butterfield's no-hit bid in the fourth and Locke and Reid-tallie followed with singles. Passed balls helped plate two runs, hits by Locke, Reid-tallie and McGuire netted Rollins' final markers.

Kellar's base knock and two more Junior bobbies completed the scoring.

Chuck Kingston with a triple and single, Terry Kellar with a double and single, Bert Faulkner and Teddy Batchelor with two singles each, sparked the winners' attack. Ralph Place and a double, Jackie Elliott and LeRoy Wannamaker a single apiece.

Guy Duggan had a double and single, Rickey Locke and Don Robitaille two singles apiece for Rollins. Don Gardner, Pug" Kellar and Billy McGuire also collected safeties.

Will Not Tolerate Dirty Play

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)— Warnings went out to World Soccer Cup championship players today that anybody guilty of dirty play will be "punished severely."

The admonition came in an announcement by the International Federation of Football Associations. It said Italian inside forward Ferrini has been suspended for the next game against Switzerland Thursday.

Ferrini was one of two Italian players sent off in the brawl against Chile Saturday. Italian fullback D'Avalo was the other player sent off, was reprimanded.

The games Wednesday and Thursday will decide which two teams from each of the four groups will advance to the quarter-finals for the Jules Rimet trophy.

The federation met for 2½ hours Monday night discussing the Italy-Chile match. The representatives to David and Chilean right winger Leonel Sanchez could mean automatic suspensions if they run into trouble in future matches.

All teams had another rest day today.

TAKES OVER CUBS

Harvey Resigns

Family Reasons Given For Quitting Rangers

By W. B. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Doug Harvey, one of the greatest defencemen the National Hockey League has ever seen, has resigned as playing-coach of New York Rangers after one season with the club.

Harvey said he is not prepared to continue shuttling his family around, necessitating frequent changing of schools. He said he has also thought out to his future hockey status.

Announcement of Harvey's resignation was made late Monday night by Rangers general manager Jims Patrick in his hotel suite. Harvey was present.

Patrick said "we regret Harvey's resignation most sincerely, and I still hope this isn't his final act and that something will change the situation so he will reconsider."

"There is no thought yet of any replacement. I feel I could convince Doug to continue with us."

WONT RUSH DECISION

Patrick indicated no move will be made about a replacement for at least a month and declined to comment on any possible successor. The 37-year-old star who went to New York after 10 seasons in the Montreal Canadiens.

There was speculation among hockey men, however, that the job might go either to Red Sullivan, former New York centre now coach of Kitchener-Waterloo in the Eastern Professional Hockey League, or to ex-goalie Emile (The Cat) Francis, coach of Guelph Royals in the Ontario Hockey Association.

Canadiens were agreed regretfully a year ago to part with Harvey, almost a perennial winner of NHL trophies as an individual star, saying nothing should be placed in his way when he had the opportunity of an NHL coaching job.

Harvey signed a three -year contract with the Rangers. The terms were not disclosed, but his salary has been estimated at $27,000 or $28,000 a season.

Patrick said that under the contract Harvey had a right to "declare himself" after the first season—regarded as a successful campaign for the Rangers, who finished fourth and entered the Stanley Cup playoffs for the first time since the 1951-52 season. They were eliminated in the semi-finals by Toronto Maple Leafs, who went on to win the championship.

RULES OUT TRADE

Asked if in view of Harvey's decision there would be any possibility of trading him now for a deal, Patrick replied:

"Harvey will not play for anybody except for New York in my opinion.

"If somebody offered me a deal I would now accept it; that's the ethics of hockey."

Patrick said there is a possibility Harvey might be placed in some other position such as scouting or other duties, and the Ranger organization, such that "he could come back as coach or player if he wanted to."

Harvey's intention to resign was made known to the Rangers at the end of the season. He was asked to reconsider.

But he finally wrote his formal letter of resignation May 31.

Harvey is a native of Montreal. He has five children and is in business here with his brother, Theodore. They deal in aluminum equipment for buildings.

He first broke into the NHL all-star teams in the 1951-52 season. Since then he has been named to the all-star first team in 10 of 11 seasons, missing in 1956-59 when he was named to the second team.

Since the Norris Memorial Trophy, awarded to the league's top defenceman, was first offered in the 1953-54 season, Harvey has won it seven times.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Roman Anna and I Recall won the two richest races of the $1,000 Adams Stakes as Woodbine's 36-day summer meeting opened Monday. The second division actually was won by Vase but she was disqualified and placed fifth after the stewards had examined the film patrol picture.

Roman Anna charged through the homestretch to defeat Calsden Belle by 1¼ lengths in the first division. Caprirez was third, beaten by four lengths by the winner, which ran the six furlongs in 1.11 4-5.

Vase, ridden by the veteran Jack Hamilliard, made a tremendous run from last place to win the second division. However, she bumped several horses as she bulled her way through the bunch in the final 100 yards. Due to the traffic jam, she required 1.12 to cover the six furlongs. The second money went to Lavelli and Happy Chat was third. I Recall, the favorite with the crowd of 7,551, paid $5.10 to win.

Hoagsdale Qui Miss Su and Star Capper won the first two races and combined for a daily double of $261.80.

Windkin, still eligible for the Queen's Plate, won the final race of the day, running the 1 1-16 miles in the good time of 1.45. She is owned by Frowde Seagram of Kitchener.

NEW YORK (AP) — He's Rod Kanehl, a pint-size nonentity in the minor leagues who couldn't possibly have made the major [illegible] there were too many talents in New York Mets.

He's the one Yankees farmhand of whom manager Ralph Houk once said: "It's too bad he doesn't have more ability; he's the kind of guy you like to see playing in the big leagues."

He's the guy Mets' president George Weiss has been trying to unload but manager Casey Stengel has been fighting to keep.

"He can't play, said Stengel Sunday after the 25-year-old utility player scored the Mets' only run on a 15th straight loss to San Francisco Giants, "but he busts his back for you and I'll bet he'll be all right."

His teammates call him Lucky. Kanehl, because he seems to bear a charmed baseball life. Like Eddie Stanky, of whom Branch Rickey once said: "He can't run, he can't hit, he can't field; but all he does is beat you." Kanehl plays the game to the hilt.

What some call luck, Stengel marks down as sheer determination, fight, and all-out hustle. It wasn't luck Sunday when Kanehl was caught off second base but managed to scramble back safely when Chuck Hiller missed the pitcher's throw. It was Kanehl's hard slide and flashing spikes that forced the Giants second baseman to err.

BROWN STREAK

It wasn't luck when Kanehl scored from second base on a passed ball in a game against Philadelphia early this season, but sheer hustle. It wasn't luck that enabled Kanehl twice to steal second base in the role of a pinch runner but ability to get a good jump on the pitcher.

The former Drury (Mo.) College all - around athlete looks awkward at the plate but he's leading all the Mets in batting with 14 hits in 37 times at bat for a .378 average. He looks crude in the field but so far he's filled in at first, second, third, short and left and right field.

"Where," asks Stengel, "do you find a better utility infielder? And when the others go lousy you better play him."

Casey played him in the "s'ixteen" seven games against the Dodgers and Giants from Wednesday through Sunday. All he did was collect nine hits in 16 times at bat, score four runs, drive in two, hit his first major league home run and a double and steal a base.

Yet Kanehl felt he let the club down. He was most unhappy about his strikeout by relief pitcher Stu Miller of the Giants in the ninth inning of Friday night's game.

"The first two pitches were tight," Kanehl said. "I should have taken it on the seat to get on."

Brundage Will Fight Red Effort

MOSCOW (AP)—Avery Brundage of Chicago, president of the International Olympic Committee, says he would fight renewed Soviet efforts to reorganize the movement along national lines.

Brundage said Monday the Communist proposals would throw the whole Olympic movement into politics."

The leader of the top international amateur sports authority said the Russians had given no notice they would submit their proposals at the next meetings of the committee here this week.

Brundage said the Russians are pushing for a rule change that would make presidents of all Olympic committees and leaders of international sports federations members of the committee. The proposal, he said, would increase the committee's membership from 70 to around 200 persons and "destroy the independence of the committee."

Television Is Trying Hard To Stay Close to Reality

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Doctors watch television's medical dramas, alert for technical mistakes. Lawyers snort angrily when "dramatic license" turns a courtroom drama into sheer fantasy. Newspaper folk laugh at those "stop the presses" and "tear up the front page" sagas, but television, where so much of this sort of inaccuracy is likely to be found, has been trying hard to stay close to reality. In the cases of the current doctors and lawyers, it has done a job.

Recently, however, Ernest Lee Jahnke, head of the NBC's bureau of standards and practices which rides herd on program content, found himself in a curious situation: Ordering revisions in a program because they seemed implausible but were actually authentic.

The program is the pilot film of a new fall series, Ann Benedict, based on the real-life exploits of a colorful, unorthodox lawyer named Jake Ehrlich. Jahnke found the fictional character of Sam was doing two things forbidden in California courtrooms where the action took place. Ehrlich, consulted on the show, claimed he had actually done both of them. Jahnke, however, was dubious.

"One of the things—making it an insinuated speech against capital punishment within earshot of the jury—in the middle of a cross-examination of a witness appear unethical and you can't do that," said Jahnke. "And the other thing, having to do with a poll of a hung jury, would have seemed ridiculous because it is not allowed.

'How the West Was Won' Is Finally in the Can

By BO ETHOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) MGM has finally won the west, but it took a couple of years and $15,000,000.

Now the West Was Won is finally in the can, as the saying goes in these parts. The man most responsible for putting it there is producer Bernard Smith, who shepherded this unique film project from idea to two hours and 36 minutes of expensive celluloid.

It is the biggest western ever made—by several million. But it might not be safe to term it a western in Smith's presence.

"I would call it an epic," he corrects. "Any saga of the migration of a people is something more than a western."

He also put the record straight on a couple of other matters:

That the film is episodic—"there are five main sequences, but the stories are connected, and several figures reappear."

That it went overboard in budget—we expected to spend $12,000,000 and we spent $15,000,000."

"We went over budget for two reasons:

"1. Natural delays like weather; we had 17 straight days of rain in Oregon. Also we were working in Arizona with wood the only steam train left west of the Mississippi; when it broke down, we just had to wait until it was fixed.

"2. We shut down in the four winter months when we couldn't shoot anyway and threshed out a continual decision on whether to make the last sequence a relatively quiet one or go all out with spectacle. I won out for spectacle, and we've got the darndest total runaway sequence ever filmed."

The film will open this fall in London and other world capitals, but won't be shown in the United States until after the playoff of the other new Cinerama feature, The Brothers Grimm.

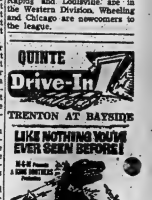
As for the stars—they worked for their regular weekly salaries; sorry, no percentages, and to avoid contract problems, they listed alphabetically, from Carroll Baker to Richard Widmark.

Akron Pros Taken Out Of League

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Akron Pros have lost their franchise in the Eastern Division of the Unified Football League and Toledo Tornadoes have replaced them.

The change was made Sunday when league officials met at Wheeling, W.Va. George Garoff, league commission, said:

"The Akron team is not ready to make a go of a real shaky situation. Toledo drew well last year and we decided it was better to make a change now."



Toledo played in the American Football Conference last season and finished second with a 13-2 record. Akron failed to win a game.

Toledo is bracketed in the Eastern Division with Cleveland, Columbus and Wheeling. Chicago, Joliemspole, Grand Rapids and Louisville are in the Western Division. Wheeling and Chicago are newcomers to the league.

Rookies Aplenty In Loops

BOSTON (AP)—Who has the inside track for American League rookie honors this year —Bo Belinsky, Manny Jimenez or some other bright new comer?

League headquarters, not wanting to seem partial, left the answer up to fan discussion today when it issued a report on the 62 rookies on squad rosters.

Southpaw with Belinsky of no-hit fame appears the current choice on the defensive side of the ledger. The gifted Los Angeles hurler has a 6-2 record and a gaudy 2.51 earned run average to go along with the league's first no. - hitter since 1958.

Offensively, Kansas City outfielder Jimenez heads the race for the batting crown. The Dominican Republic native is batting .362 and has mastered the art of hitting to the opposite field.

Switch - hitting rookie Tom Tresh handles shortstop as well for New York Yankees there is talk precedessor Tony Kubek will be an outfielder after he returns from army service. Tresh has socked home 37 runs with his workmanlike .270 batting average.

More powerfully, outfielder-first baseman Joe Pepitone has blossomed into a dangerous slugger for the defending world champs with 10 extra-base blows and 10 RBI to show for his hits.

Second baseman Bernie Allen of the right-handed Washington Senators, Joe Koppe of the Boston Red Sox and Lee Stange get a major assist in helping the surging Minnesota Twins' remain close, to the pace. Allen is a steady glove man and gets in extra mileage out of his .247 average. Bonikowski has a 4-4 record and Stange (1-0) has struck out 29 in 35 innings.

Baltimore's Rich Spiller, hitting .335, is not classed as a rookie although he had only 17 at bats in 13 games last year. Reason: He accumulated more than 45 days on a major league roster during the period of the 90-player limit.

Though temporarily sidelined by a leg injury, six-foot-five John (Boog) Powell of Baltimore is a strong contender. The Orioles rate him the best ever produced by their farm system and point to the fact that in the 37 games he's played, Powell has hit six homers and driven in 21 runs while hitting .268.

Russians Hold Lead In Chess

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao (CP)—Two Russian grandmasters, Tigran Petrosian and Efim Geller, drew their 11th-round match in the international candidates' tournament Monday night and remained tied for the lead.

Paul Keres of Russia, previously tied with Petrosian and Geller, adjourned his match with Russia's Victor Korchnoi and dropped back temporarily into third place although he appeared to have the stronger position.

In other matches in the 28-player competition, Tal Senior, of the United States drew with Mikhail Tal of Russia and Bobby Fischer of the U.S. appeared to hold the advantage in his adjourned match with Miroslav Filip of Czechoslovakia.

The standings:

Geller and Petrosian 11-6, 10½-5½, Korchnoi and Fischer 8-8, Benko 8-9, Tal 5½-

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) —Better depend on your own ability today, not promises of others. Express appreciation to loyal ones, fellow workers of those who have been of service to you.

If today is your birthday . . . it would be wise to try settling down, completing tasks, finishing details, for indications are then next month finds you traveling or engaged in new activity.

General Tendencies: Day when disputes flare up because of minor irritations. Stress should be on diplomacy, but this is not apt to occur. Instead, all sides seem to forget meaning of that word.

COUNSEL

shown as gambling kingpins in previous testimony before the commission, have been convicted with Robert J. Wright, former and - gambling squad constable, on charges police information illegally from the OPP underworld squad chief, George Scott, "They are on bail pending an appeal.

Lawrence Lamoria in Monday's hearing variously blamed their own and each other's memories for what Mr. MacKinnon contended were discrepancies in their stories.

Lamoria had earlier testified lawyer Humphrey had directed him and Lawrence to Gordon Rocleskopa, another Toronto lawyer, when they needed to file affidavits of innocence of association with gangsters in 1960.

Lawrance had said it was their own idea, not Humphrey's, and Monday Lamoria said he also could recollect Humphrey's involvement.

"Don't weasel out," snapped the Liberal counsel. "You have you not been talking to in the last seven days that you're starting to change your story?"

"No one," the witness replied. But under questioning from the commissioner he changed again and said he believed it was Humphrey's suggestion after all, though he couldn't say why.

Mr. MacKinnon suggested the advice was given for the benefit of Feeley and McDermott.

"I don't see how it would benefit them," the witness protested.

"They would have you nailed to your statement," suggested Mr. Justice Roach.

CRIMINAL CONTEMPT

The commissioner and Mr. MacKinnon also jumped on Lawrence when he said he had met with OPP Commissioner W. H. Clark and Assistant Commissioner Kelly Gerrard during the time of his suspension.

The commissioner said Lamoria told them he was refusing to talk on the advice of counsel but would talk to Gerrard and Monday the decision was his own.

"I believe these two men," Mr. MacKinnon said, "and I don't believe you."

"That's tough," the witness retorted.

"It may be tougher for you," said the counsel, who earlier tossed out a remark the jury carries a 14-year maximum penalty.

Interjected Mr. Justice Roach: "It's his answer, and I don't believe it either."

PHONES LAWYER

Under questioning as to whether he had blared to any lawyers during the week-long lapse he claimed said he telephoned lawyer John Agro of Hamilton, asking him to represent him. He said he told him he was busy in courts.

Mr. MacKinnon noted the Hamilton lawyer had acted for Johnny (The Enforcer) Papalia of Hamilton, now being held in New York on charges concerning a planned $500,000 slot machine smuggling ring. The commission is expected to take evidence from Papalia later.

Ontario, said it was "utter nonsense" to say the district nurses had been brought in by Liberals. His party wouldn't do anything "so low" as to try to get a campaign to make a martyr out of their leader.

Former Premier Leslie M. J. Caldwell, now honorary NDP president, said at a press conference he was sorry about the trouble the prime minister has been having, but said NDP supporters in Vancouver specifically were told not to misbehave at Mr. Diefenbaker's meetings.

Finance Minister Fleming, speaking at a Montreal rally, said the Liberals have "saved the dollar's devaluation was "unnecessary and a mistake" and "monstrous hoax." He quoted several recent statements by Liberal spokesmen calling for a lower exchange rate.

T. H. Pickersgill, former Liberal immigration minister, said Mr. Diefenbaker can't solve the unemployment problem "because he doesn't know the situation exists. He thinks there is a boom."

fighting its first general election as a political party, the Conservatives have an offspring of the old CCF and the Canadian Labor Congress. It sent one member to the House of Commons via the by-election route—Walter Pitman of Peterborough, who sat with the seven-man CCF group.

This year it has candidates in all provinces; full slates in the Prairie and British Columbia ridings, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island; and is fighting for 81 seats in Ontario and 30 in Quebec.

LACKED COMMON SEATS

Neither Social Credit Leader Thompson nor CCF Leader Douglas had seats in the last House. Mr. Thompson is running in Red Deer in Alberta and Mr. Douglas, who resigned as Saskatchewan premier to lead the party, is Regina City.

Mr. Diefenbaker was nominated May 22 in Prince Alberta and is leading his entire cabinet in a re-election bid. Liberal Leader Pearson is entered in Ontario's Algoma East and is the sole party leader with only opponents—no party nor area in four-way fights.

There are no acclamations. Five ridings, three in Newfoundland, are straight two-party fights and elsewhere the number of candidates ranges from three up to seven in Halifax, a two-member constituency.

He said that in about 25 cases of remote areas such as The Congo, representatives of establishes wrote to commanding officers asking that a list be made.

Conservative head quarters had used these lists to mail individual messages from the Diefenbaker and also a second pamphlet which in most cases came from the Conservative candidate in the serviceman's home constituency.

Mr. Grosart described Mr. Gordon as "an alleged efficiency and management expert" and said he would find "the press release prepared for him is nothing more than an attempt to cover up the ineffiency of his own organization."

Tories Switching To Another Line Says Pearson

KITCHENER (CP)—The Progressive Conservative party is switching desperately from one election line to another—from how good things are to how good they will be, Liberal Leader Pearson said Monday night.

For election purposes, the most fantastic claims have been made despite a clear record of unemployment, chronic deficits, higher taxes, prices and interest rates, Mr. Pearson said.

Investment was lower with production increasing at a slower rate than the population.

The government's claims have worn thin "so now they are switching desperately to as an other line—they're telling us how good they think things are going to be."

But there was little evidence for the new claim either. Lack of confidence caused a forced devaluation of the dollar to 92.5 cents in terms of United States currency. Up to May 3 the support of the dollar had cost $800,000,000.

HARD TO HOLD?

Even with pegging the dollar at 92.5 cents, there had been difficulty to maintain that level, the Liberal leader told a public meeting.

"Quite what's been happening isn't very clear. There's a mysterious $62,000,000 of aid that has come in somehow to help out, it seems, to be some temporary loans from foreign central banks."

If that is true, Canadians can be grateful but also ashamed because Canada's management of its affairs used to be the envy of the world, Mr. Pearson said.

"And now we have to be helped out. That's what five years of Tory government have done to this country."

DEPLORES OBSTRUCTION

Earlier, at Galt, Mr. Pearson deplored the use of "organized obstruction" to prevent free political speech.

Lamenting a 3½ - day tour through 18 Western Ontario constituencies, he said that's freedom of speech is one of the first things that the Communists would threaten and destroy in Canada.

Without mentioning details, he said he deplores "groups here and there who use organized obstruction and who have denied to Prime Minister Diefenbaker the full, fair and friendly hearing that I am getting here this afternoon."

Mr. Pearson said that kind of thing "is expected in totalitarian states" but not in a free democracy such as Canada.

Mr. Pearson had flown Monday from Ottawa to Toronto by chartered plane and then begun his intensive Western Ontario barnstorming by car. His remarks about free speech followed his introduction at Galt by Donald M., Shaver, a Galt poultry raiser who is the Liberal candidate for Waterloo South.

Mr. Shaver, a late starter in the June 18 election campaign because of business pressure, said he had been doing his political homework overseas on a recent business trip behind the Iron Curtain.

SPOTS ANTI-AID

A Communist official had spotted some Liberal anti-Communist material and had told Mr. Pearson a compliment, Mr. Shaver said.

The Communist had said "we have great respect for Mr. Pearson. At the United Nations he was always one who fought us most."

Mr. Pearson said he was glad to have that sort of reputation among the Communists because a free speech was one free world way of life that they would destroy if they could.

His first stop Monday was at Hespeler (population 5,000) on Galt's outskirts. At the Eventide Home for the Aged he met Alexander Fleming, 91, and greeted him as a man who writes him letters. Mr. Fleming told reporters he had written Mr. Pearson that the "cost of running the government just has to be reduced."

The 24½ days in Western Ontario will be the most intensive campaigning of the Liberal tour so far. There are 23 seats considered to lie in Western Ontario and only one stayed Liberal in 1958—Paul Martin in Essex East.

Mr. Pearson stayed overnight with Ontario Liberal Leader Winkworyer, who met him at the outskirts of Kitchener.

RESERVES RISE

LONDON (Reuters) — British's gold and convertible currency reserves rose by £19,000,000 during May, the treasury announced Monday, bringing the total reserves to £1,259,000,000. The increase was the fifth successive rise, the reserves having gone up by £74,000,000 since the beginning of the year.

Prime Minister Heaps Scorn on Top Liberals

By ROBERT RICE

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker heaped scorn on the top men in the Liberal party Monday, calling them "economic novelty men with their bag of tricks."

Heading into the final two weeks of the June 18 election campaign, the prime minister blistered the Liberals in a speech to 1,500 persons in Victoria Park in this historic Northumberland County town.

About 700 crowded inside the park pavilion, while another 800 listened outside to car-top public address systems.

Mr. Diefenbaker also criticized Liberal Leader Lester Pearson's campaign pledge to establish a task force of the best brains of the country to advise him on problems of economic growth and unemployment.

The prime minister said it would be a "brains trust" that would be a denial of cabinet authority — "a substitution of counsellors for the authority of Parliament."

But the main thrust of the prime minister's address was aimed at the men he said are behind Mr. Pearson — former deputy trade minister Mitchell Sharp, former deputy defence minister Gen. C. Ball and economic adviser Maurice Lamontagne, and Walter Kent, former Winnipeg Free Press editor who now is an aide of Mr. Pearson, and Eugene Forsey, one-time parliamentary leader of the CCF-NDP group who defected to the Liberals.

All except Mr. Kent are candidates in the current election campaign.

These are to be your masters," said Mr. Diefenbaker. "These are to be the power behind the shadowy throne."

He called them "an odd and mixed pack of pushers-about of people," and added:

"What a collection. It has never been seen outside a menagerie.

"There are the socialists like Argue, the suburbanites like Sharp, former deputy defence impractical economists like Lamontagne. These are the economic novelty men with their bag of tricks, discordant elements, a hodge-podg, a cacophony of political nonsense."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberal platform is "utterly irresponsible." He called it a "crazy quilt of impossible promises . . ."

"These promises are starting to react. People are saying who's going to pay for them. You're going to pay for them if they're elected to power."

For the first time, Mr. Diefenbaker mentioned the parties he believed were involved in the recent melee at Vancouver. He said the disturbances involved supporters of the New Democratic Party, the Liberal party and the Communist party.

"One thing is clear—the Communists aren't supporting us."

Former Ontario premier Leslie Frost joined the prime minister for Monday's tour of Port Hope, Newtonville, Newcastle, Bowmanville and Cobourg.

"I'm for John just 101 per cent," said Mr. Frost at Cobourg. "After June 18, John Diefenbaker will still be prime minister of Canada."

"Mr. Frost has made his prediction," said Mr. Diefenbaker. "I am going to help him."

At Bowmanville, Mr. Diefenbaker also referred to Saturday's meeting at Chelmsford, where Conservative candidate Don Gillis was struck by demonstrators carrying placards.

He said he supports the right to disagree, but ordinary amenities and the common decencies of civilized man must be maintained.

He said he received 15 messages in Ottawa Sunday from people who had been disturbed by the demonstrations. They had not planned to vote, he said, but would as a result of the disturbances.

Mr. Diefenbaker also said he has spoken of "tremendous changes" in the last 15 days in the thinking of people everywhere. He did not say what the change meant; but he said it was due to "irresponsible promises" made by Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson.

Some Liberal promises are detailed, he said, "Your income tax will go up 30 per cent and he's just started. He's got two full weeks left."

Would Halt Layoffs if NDP Elected

- - Douglas

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP)—A New Democratic Party government would order industry to stop laying off coal and steel workers in the Maritimes, T. C. Douglas pledged Monday night before a cheering, foot-stomping crowd of more than 3,600 in this coal town.

The NDP national leader delivered a blistering criticism of unemployment during an hour-long speech in a hockey arena, capping a highly successful day of campaigning in the jobacious Cape Breton Island area.

Mr. Douglas said "it is nothing short of criminal" that coal out of every four Cape Breton workers is out of a job because of coal mine closures and reduced employment at the Sydney mills of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation.

He repeated the NDP election pledge that within 12 months of taking office he would see to it "that not a single able-bodied person in Canada is without a job."

The cure for Cape Breton was to bolster its coal markets by establishing coal - fired power plants in the area. This power would be fed into a national hookup to supply industry of power-hungry Ontario.

Mr. Douglas said Ontario now is producing thermal power and by 1970 will be spending $100,000,000 a year on United States coal for that purpose. It would be better to put the plants in Cape Breton. "This island of coal"—and assist the whole Canadian economy.

Cheers and applause from the crowd almost drowned out parts of his speech, which followed a performance by a girls' pipe band and some impromptu step-dancing by two members of the audience.

The former Saskatchewan premier, who quit that post last year to take on the NDP leadership, flew to Sydney Monday afternoon and drove the 12 miles to Glace Bay at the head of 400-car motorcade more than a mile long.

Mr. Douglas took issue with a statement attributed to Labor Minister Starr last week at Vernon, B.C., in which labor rights under the economic planning proposed by the NDP were compared to Russia's restrictions on labor.

Whenever either of the old parties was unable to counter NDP proposals "it resorts to the old smear of talking about Russia and communism.

Socred Leader Campaigns in North Quebec

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

NORANDA, Que. (CP) — A born-booking 100-car motorcade led by R. H. Thompson, national leader of the Social Credit party, into this northwestern Quebec mining town Monday night, climaxing a day of vigorous campaigning in Villeneuve riding.

Mr. Thompson told a crowd of 500-including many young people—in a Noranda hall that Canadians are "a family of people."

He pounded away at the theme of French - English "brotherhood" in Canada during an eight-hour tour that took him through most of the towns in the riding.

Real Caouette, Social Credit Candidate in Villeneuve and Gerry Gilbert, M.P. for Nipissing, accompanied him through the long day of handshaking, informal chatting with groups of people, and finally the windup in Noranda.

SAYS IS STRONGER

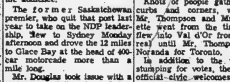
"We've had a tremendous time today," Mr. Thompson told the Noranda audience. "Social Credit in this area is growing in East and West. Perhaps there is more enthusiasm in Quebec than in some other provinces, but everywhere there is discontent, a sort of refugeeism with the old parties."

He said Canada needs to rediscover "the lost spirit of Confederation that once brought us together.

"Social Credit stands for Canadian unity, but unity doesn't mean union and sameness. It means a family spirit.

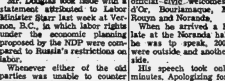
"We are French and English and all other ethnic groups, must work together as brothers to bring a new harmony and purpose to Confederation."

PEOPLE WANTED



Knots of people gathered on courts and corners, wherever Mr. Thompson and Mr. Caouette went from the time they left Val d'Or to Sydney Monday afternoon until Mr. Thompson left Noranda for Toronto.

In addition to the work of stumping for votes, there were official - duty welcomes in Val d'Or, Bourlamaque, Malartic, Senneterre and Noranda.



When he arrived a half-hour late at the Noranda hall where he was to speak, 200 people were outside and another 300 inside.

His speech took only three minutes. Apologizing for having to take the floor, he left to the sound of cheers that lasted almost as long as his speech.

Thirty-Seven and Very Shy

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I am a farm boy 37 years old and would like very much to be married. My problem is in meeting girls as there seem to be very few girls of my age around this area. The ones that are here I have difficulty in getting acquainted with, because, I am a quiet type of person, and just a little backward at making the first date.

I prefer the quiet, intelligent, friendly type of person and would be happy to be a mother. I sing in the church choir.

Any suggestions as to how I might meet more girls of my age and a little advice on overcoming my shyness about making the first date would be very much appreciated.—LONESOME AND LEFT OUT.

DEAR LONESOME—Not only lonesome, but choosy. There must be girls in that choir who would like to be driven home. Invite two, if you are too shy with one.

A friendly gesture will not commit you for life! You are a few years late in learning to mix but you can still learn. Sometimes poise comes through learning a new skill, like ballet speaking or tennis or golf. Or through dressing better. Or both.

Don't be too sure the One and Only has to be quiet. If you don't want to live in a morgue, the mother of your children will have to make up for her shy husband.

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster universities, and has had broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problem, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

Living Costs Turned Lower During April

Decline of Two-Tenths Of a Point Registered

OTTAWA (CP)—Living costs turned lower during April as the consumer price index fell to 130.1 on May 1 from 130.3 on April 1.

The decline of two-tenths of a point in Canada's price gauge, reported today by the bureau of statistics, was the sharpest monthly drop since early last year.

The May 1 index level of 130.1 — based on 1949 prices equalling 100 — compares with 129.8 a year ago.

The price index was stable for four months after last Nov. 1 when it leaped forward six-tenths of a point during March, to the record level of 133.3 at April 1.

Declines in food and clothing for the April period were offset for the April downturn, offsetting higher costs for housing, transportation, health and personal care, recreation and reading. The tobacco and alcohol index was unchanged.

FOOD PRICES FALL

The food price index tumbled to 134.4 from 125.8 as butter fell to 56 cents a pound from 61 cents, eggs, 44 cents from 49 cents, and lower prices also prevailed for eggs, fats, chicken, fresh fruits and vegetables. Prices were higher beef, some pork, lamb, veal, apples, canned fruits and juices.

Housing costs, which represent 32 per cent of the household budget, rose by the consumer price index, rose a half-point to 134.3 from 134.0 as home ownership costs moved higher while rents and household operation costs remained unchanged.

The price index of 30 industrial raw materials advanced to 223.6 from 249.6 between April 22 and May 22, in the same period the index of Canadian farm products, at terminal markets rose to 224.2 from 219.7. Both indexes are based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

OIL COMPANIES RAISE PRICE OF GASOLINE

Devalued Dollar, Cost of Crude Cause

TORONTO (CP)—Two large oil companies Tuesday raised the wholesale price of their gasoline in a move said to be the result of a series of price adjustments." Most spokesmen said the devalued dollar and a rise in crude oil prices were responsible.

British American Oil Company Limited announced a cross-country raise of seven-tenths of a cent in the wholesale price of gasoline, diesel and heating fuel.

Shell Oil Company said it had increased its retail prices by one cent a gallon in 150 stations in the Toronto area, but its prices did not change in the rest of the province. In Toronto spokesmen for Shell, Imperial Oil Company Limited, and Texaco Canada Limited would only say their price structures were under study and did not announce cross-country increases.

A Shell spokesman in Toronto said the wholesale rise would not increase the retail price of gasoline anywhere in Canada by more than a cent a gallon.

"We do not influence dealer prices, but their margins or profit are such that any profit increase will have to be passed on to the consumers," he said.

A seven-eighths-of-a-cent increase was also announced in Saint John, N.B., by the Irving Oil Company Limited for its retail outlets in the Maritimes and Quebec. A company spokesman said the price of fuel oil would go up but did not say when.

The increase will bring prices in Saint John up to 67 6-10 cents a gallon for regular and 72 6-10 cents a gallon for premium grades. The Halifax price will be 68 6-10 and 73 6-10 cents.

In Vancouver a spokesman said Tuesday the industry raised the price of crude oil to maintain oil exports to the United States market after the Canadian dollar was devalued.

He said the devaluation put Canadian crude at a price advantage that could flood the U.S. market at "politically dangerous" volumes. He added the present relatively unrestricted export to the U.S. of Canadian crude producers raised prices.

Otherwise, he said, "we might have lost a good part of the U.S. market, if not all of it, completely," adding a strong oil lobby in the U.S. is pressing for the exclusion of Canadian crude.

Former Figure Skating Champ Killed in Crash

GUELPH (CP) — Mrs. Gary Ritchie, 20, of Galt, a former Canadian Olympic figure skater, died in hospital here Tuesday of injuries suffered in a car accident.

Mrs. Ritchie's car collided with a vehicle driven by James Wilson, 20, of Rockwood, Ont., on No. 7 Highway here.

Mr. Nichol was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital here.

Mrs. Ritchie, the former Sandra Dunbar, competed in 1956. She was a member of Canada's Olympic team at the Cortina games. She placed first in the Canadian trials in September, 1955, and fifth in the trials held at Squaw Valley, Calif.

Mrs. Ritchie was expecting her first baby in two or three weeks.

She had been married to Gary Ritchie since March, 1961. At the time of their marriage, he was employed in the advertising department of the Chatham News and subsequently transferred to the advertising department of the Galt Reporter.

Badly Burned Body Is Found In Barn Debris

BRANTFORD (CP) — Police said today that one of the charred reis of double-barrelled shotgun found Tuesday in a burned barn in the Simcoe area had been fired. The other barrel contained an unfired shell.

The shotgun was found in the barn along with an unrecognizable burned body. The body and shotgun were sent to the Attorney-general's laboratory in Toronto.

Police were looking for the farm's owner, Thomas McPherson, 76.

The fire in the barn, police believed, and two smaller fires in bedrooms of the nearby farmhouse were deliberately set.

Death Claims Liberal Nominee In Stormont

CORNWALL (CP) — Albert Lavigne, Liberal candidate for Stormont in the federal election, died in hospital here Tuesday night.

Mr. Lavigne, 53, suffered a heart attack last Sunday.

Mr. Lavigne's death forces indefinite postponement of the vote in Stormont.

The Liberal candidate, who served as Liberal MP for Stormont from 1954 to 1958, entered hospital last weekend after suffering a heart attack.

A native of Cornwall, he was a retail fresh merchant before he entered politics, serving as chairman of the greater Cornwall industrial commission in 1954.

He was defeated in a bid to retain the Stormont in the 1958 general election by Progressive Conservative candidate Campbell.

OTTAWA (CP) — A deferred election will be held in the Ontario constituency of Stormont Monday, July 16.

The Canada Elections Act also provides that nomination day for the deferred election will be July 9.

A deferred election has been made necessary in Stormont by the death on Tuesday night of Albert Lavigne, who had been nominated as Liberal candidate for the June 18 federal election.

Nixon Easily Wins Primary For Governor

SAN FRANCISCO (CP-AP)—Richard M. Nixon easily won the Republican nomination for governor of California Tuesday in a primary election and will face Governor Edmund G. Brown, a Democrat, in the general election in November.

Republicans chose Nixon as their nominee for governor by a margin of about 7 to 3 over Joseph C. Shell, a wealthy state assemblyman.

Best-Educated Are Most Likely To Favor Fluoridation of Water

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of Alberta professor said Tuesday a survey indicates that the better educated are much more a voter seems to favor fluoridation of his water supply a check-book decision.

Prof. C. R. Castaldi said the survey of voters in the Ed monton after a plebiscite to fluoridate the city's water was short of the necessary 60-per-cent majority by two per cent.

Prof. Castaldi, here for the annual meeting of the Canadian Dental Association, said in an interview the survey indicates that the voter favoring fluoridation is likely to be under 50 and have a high school education.

Voters objecting to the measure tended to be over 50 and to

Leaders Starting to Hurl Heated Words in Campaign

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

T. C. Douglas injected an international flavor into the election campaign Tuesday night. The New Democratic Party leader said that if he formed the government after June 18, Canadian economic aid to underdeveloped countries would be boosted to $600,000,000 a year —10 times the present figure.

Even if it meant sacrifices, he said on a CBC television and radio broadcast, "the Canadian people would make those sacrifices willingly."

Social Credit Leader Robert N. Thompson, at a Toronto rally, lumped Progressive Conservatives and Liberals together and said both parties are married to a deficit finance policy as outdated and ridiculous as the bustle and high-button shoes."

Meanwhile Prime Minister Diefenbaker, at Trois-Rivieres, accused Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson of "unworthy" tactics for having suggested Monday night that Canada's foreign exchange reserves had been raided by a "mysterious" $62,000,000 in loans from foreign central banks.

The prime minister, speaking to about 1,500 persons in an overflow meeting at the Trois-Rivieres Armouries, said Mr. Pearson had taken "a desperate political gamble" and had struck at Canada's financial integrity.

Mr. Pearson, campaigning in southwest Ontario, returned to the unemployment issue in a speech at Walkerton.

He renewed his statement that a report prepared by government experts for a special inquiry on unemployment insurance indicates an average 535,000 jobless in 1964, compared with 480,000 in 1961.

One of the targets of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's campaign attacks, former deputy trade minister Mitchell Sharp made a reply in Hamilton Tuesday night.

"Few people had ever heard of me before — but to be attacked by John Diefenbaker at

Gamblers' Counsel Denies Knowing of Any Gambling

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto lawyer who has acted for gamblers Vincent Feeley and Joseph McDermott said Tuesday he had no knowledge of any illegal gambling at clubs he has represented.

Lawyer Louis Herman was testifying before Ontario's royal commission on crime. He spent most of the day describing the character and extent of legal services for Feeley and McDermott.

B. J. MacKinnon, Liberal MP for Cornwall at the hearings, asked the witness whether he had heard of McDermott's and Feeley's reputation for character.

Mr. Herman replied he heard rumors they were gamblers after he had been retained as their counsel. He said he became so worried at the rumors that he went with a Jack McNamara to a Cookville club the pair were supposed to have been operating.

He had found 40 to 50 men of the club listening to a lecture on aircraft observation. The remark provoked laughter.)

French Assembly Rejects Move to Censure de Gaulle

PARIS (Reuters) — The National Assembly early today rejected a right-wing motion censuring Premier Georges Pompidou's plans for an independent Algeria.

The motion received only 111 votes, less than half the 51 per cent needed for passage in the 538-seat assembly.

The motion, as well as condemning de Gaulle's Algerian policies, attacked the government's "repeated" violations of the constitution and its foreign policy.

The motion was sponsored by 57 legislators, including known sympathizers of the outlawed European terrorist Secret Army Organization.

Votes in favor of the motion were slightly more than originally had been anticipated by the government of Premier Georges Pompidou.

This was credited to a speech by Pompidou shortly before the ballot that provoked angry shouts of protest from Conservative legislators, many of

JOUHAUD STAVES OFF EXECUTION FOR TIME BEING

Appeals for End Of OAS Terrorism

PARIS (Reuters) — Former Gen. Edmond Jouhaud today had apparently staved off his execution for the time being with an appeal to the terrorist Secret Army Organization to end violence in Algeria immediately.

Jouhaud, former No. 2 man in the Secret Army, appealed in a letter to his imprisoned chief, former Gen. Raoul Salan, to order "OAS action to cease as soon as possible." Salan's reaction to the letter was not known.

Full dawn broke over Fresnes prison without an announcement that Jouhaud had been executed.

The Supreme Court rejected Jouhaud's appeal against the death sentence, only President de Gaulle has the power to save Jouhaud. There was no sign that he would grant clemency. But with the dawn, the traditional hour for executions in France, it appeared that Jouhaud's hopes had at least won him more time.

LETTER HELPS

There was almost unanimous reaction by legislators in the National Assembly lobbies that the Algerian-born Jouhaud had saved himself from the guillotine by having written the letter.

The text of the letter, sent by Jouhaud's counsel in defence, Me Isaac Salan, sentenced to life, was released Tuesday night. By Premier Georges Pompidou's office where it was believed to have been held since Saturday.

The letter also called on the government to grant a "political amnesty" in an attempt to persuade the Secret Army to cease its fight. It was the first time a call against French plans for an independent Algeria.

MUST GIVE IN

Jouhaud, sentenced like Salan to death by the OAS and the abortive Algiers militant coup in April, 1961, told his former chief:

"It is not without deep emotion, a brutal break with a while these lines, but one must give in to realities, even if they are not those of strategy.

The former air force chief of staff said the realities of the Algerian situation now ruled out the possibility of "maintaining part of France "for which we are all ready to die."

Algerian independence, Jouhaud said, "is an accomplished fact, which cannot be undone. It sounds the knell of our hopes that should be faced up to with realism."

He called for an end to "blind attacks against Moslems" which until recent days had claimed about 20 to 30 murders a day.

AGREE TO DIVORCE

PARIS (Reuters) — Actress Brigitte Bardot, 27, and her husband Jacques Charrier have agreed to a divorce, it was reported here today. The newspaper France Dimanche quoted M. Charrier, 25, as saying "everything has been arranged and we are going to begin the procedure at the end of the summer."

Toronto Rebels Set Stiff Terms In Truck Strike

Teamster Union Heads Meet to Study Demands

TORONTO (CP)—Leaders of five striking Teamster union locals will meet today to consider demands made by the Toronto local Tuesday to have a 72-cent - package considered the basis for settlement.

About 1,000 members of Toronto local 938 went against the advice of the local's executive Tuesday and voted to press for a 40-hour week and a wage and benefit increase equal to 72 cents an hour.

Ken McDougall, president of the Toronto Local said the tough line was spearheaded by a group named FWD (Forward with Democracy) but will have to be approved at today's meeting.

Final terms for settlement are expected to be reached today as leaders from locals in Windsor, London, Hamilton and Kingston meet with the Toronto officials.

About 65 trucking companies involved in the strike and sign drivers in Ontario are reported holding firm on their offer of a 9.4% cents-an-hour package in a three year settlement.

VETO PLANS

An FWD member exulted that the Toronto meeting successfully "slaughtering the executive." Moderate opposition was gested by the executives but the members voted to press ahead for a 65-hour week and a three-cent wage package.

Tuesday's meeting was told that about 50 employees of M and P Transport Company had threatened to return to work Friday if an agreement wasn't reached by then with the employers.

"We started on a joint basis and we are going to finish that way," said Mr. McDougall. The Teamsters' five-local committee will be the final arbiter of what the settlement demand, he added.

Earlier Tuesday, strikers gained allies when non-striking brothers in the mechanics wing of the union refused to cross picket lines set up by Toronto drivers.

Private Firm May Be Hired To Collect Bills

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's new consumer protection proposal to let a private company act as go-between in billing patients.

MDP Services Limited, an accounting and billing company designed for doctors and dentists, says the method has worked out after discussions with Dr. J. C. Dawson, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario; Dr. Glen Sawyer, president of the Ontario Medical Association, and Dr. G. W. Myiks of Kingston, chairman of the province's ethics committee.

MDP says it is not a collection agency nor a finance company. It would deduct 13 per cent of the bill as a service fee. After six months without payment, unpaid bills would be returned to the doctor for his decision on further action.

Hospitals Request Federal Govt. Pay Depreciation on Buildings

EDMONTON (CP)—The Canadian Hospital Association wants a number of federal government policies changed to allow hospitals to increase revenues.

Resolutions designed to bring about these changes were passed Tuesday by the association at the annual meeting here.

Four resolutions concerned payments of the hospital care insurance plans set up in all provinces as a result of the 1957 Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act.

The assembly asked that the federal government pay depreciation on buildings and interests on capital debts owned by hospitals. It asked that these payments be included in the amounts given hospitals by the government under the Federal Hospital Insurance Act.

Under the act, hospitals are reimbursed a certain portion of their expenditures annually by the federal and provincial governments.

The assembly voted that the federal government should not consider revenue from hospital parking lots and out - patient diagnostic services "taxable revenue," to be deducted from the amount given to the hospital by the federal government under the act.

Another resolution objected to hospitals being named sole beneficiaries of the legal sweepstakes established in Canada. It did not come up with a policy statement but asked the board to instruct member hospitals to refuse money from sweepstakes.

The assembly reaffirmed that the association did not want hospitals to be forced to provide unemployment insurance for their staff. Under an arrangement with the Unemployment Insurance Commission, hospitals can provide coverage voluntarily.

Small Boats Major Source of Water Accidents

Small boats are the first and major source of water accidents and fatalities with as many such incidents occurring during the months of April, May, September, October and November as during the "boating season" of June to August, Ernie Taylor of the safety committee branch of the Ontario Safety League told local Kiwanians at their regular weekly dinner meeting in the Kiwanis Centre yesterday afternoon.

Small boats, he emphasized, are very frequently used by people who know little or nothing about boating other than to connect a powerful engine to a boat regardless by power, overloading it with people and gear and then starting off on a trip.

The speaker classed boats of 16 feet and under as small boats and engines of 10 horsepower or more as being useless and dangerous on the type of boats mentioned above, arising in the message is either brought methods."

He drew them through the shock treatment or by sugar-coated pills. Considerations have made successful inroads against this apathy or reluctance, however, he advised. The Safe-Boating courses conducted by the Red Cross and the YMCA, the small boat handling courses given by the Ontario Safety League, and the canoeing courses conducted by the Canadian Power Squadron and the Canadian Small Boating Federation are outstanding examples of people taking an active and vigorous stand on water safety, he said.

In giving out a few hints on water safety in small boats, Mr. Taylor emphasized that with the design of many modern boats a good anchor was at least 50 feet of line was often more practical as a safety measure than were two oars or paddles.

The speaker also noted that new water safety regulations regarding boats are a part of the Criminal Code and peace and officer is obligated to enforce them. This will help to curb the activities of the ignorant and dangerous boaters but, he suggested, a form of criminal code is needed to aid the police in this work.

In conclusion the speaker urged Kiwanians to step in and do something when a safety problem or a need for a safety campaign occur.

Dr. Harold Craig, past president of the Quinte Water Safety Council, introduced the speaker and Kiwanian Roy Dulmage thanked him.

S. Sharrer; A.S.M. and Mrs. R. Carey; A.S.M. and Mrs. Ray Sisser; A.S.M. A.C.M. and Mrs. L. Dalpee; Bill Hynes.

Mr. Cooper expressed appreciation to Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, the C.W.L. Ladies' Auxiliary, and Holy Name Society for their help in preparing a room in the basement of the church where the Cubs and Scouts can hold meetings.

Father Murphy stated he thought the Scouts a wonderful movement. "You are to be on your honor at all times and be loyal," he told the Scouts. The Scout law reaffirms the Ten Commandments of God, everybody must work together." He thanked the leaders for their untiring efforts.

Mr. Cooper then introduced the guest speaker, Assistant District Commissioner Sharman, who said he had a very pleasant duty to perform first, and presented A.C.M. Dalpee with a Certificate of Basic Training and his Assistant Cubmaster's Hat Badge.

RAPID ADDRESS

A.D.C. Sharman stated that since his first visit to 3rd Belleville in October, the Scouts have progressed so rapidly that they are now second to none in Scouting. Their ability was proven at the recent Jamboree when they received one "A" Badge and three "B" badges, which is not an inconsiderable achievement. All Scouting takes place in Scouting leads to world peace. There are now eight and one-half million Scouts in fifty-five countries throughout the world. Scouting originated in Canada, and in particular around Belleville, has everything to offer the boy so he can enjoy camping and freedom in the country, but it is good to see them taking advantage of Scouting training. The boys realize their duty to God and loyalty to their country. When parents should fight for Scouting in their community. At the World Jamboree, each day every race and creed work together without prejudice. They can't we" He concluded by having all Scouts stand and renew the Scout Promise.

A.D.C. Sharman then led in an enjoyable singsong.

The next item on the program proved a big moment for the Cubs present, when their bird house project was judged. This was quite a difficult task for the judges, Mr. Wardhaugh, Mr. E. Grimson, and Mr. L. Farrell, as there were many interesting and novel designs, some of which bore a "For Rent" sign. The decision was as follows: 1st, Peter Brown; 2nd, Richard Bleck; followed by prayer and inspection by S.M. Addison, A.S.M. Carey and A.S.M. Flynn; semaphore by A.S.M. Flynn; and Flag Break by Cubmaster Brunner; Kim's game, and additional points by Cubmaster Steve as a Scout, and of Bill Hynes as a Scout to enable him to get his Scout Badge as an Assistant Cubmaster. The parents were invited to ask any questions concerning the meeting. The meeting then closed with Auld Lang Syne, which everyone enjoyed a short film on "Survival in the Woods."

And thus another enjoyable evening of Scouting as the Scout year was brought to a close.

Fish Stocking Completed in North Hastings

Fish stocking in North Hastings streams was finally completed last week with the second flight, a distance of 1,000 muskellunge fry into Baptiste Lake. "Muskies" appear to be maturing at a faster degree in water in spite of a well established population in adjacent Stephenbark Lake. The large bodies of water comprise one large lake with an estimated length of 20 miles.

Approximately 80,000 speckled trout were planted in this Chief Ranger Division. In the "put, take and see" method of introduction has been used in stocking some lakes, with the hope that these lakes could support the 'specks' during the critical months when oxygen supply is generally low. With oxygen testing equipment now available Conservation Officers can ascertain whether a lake is suitable at all times and perhaps with further study it may be estimated the approximate number of fish a given lake may support.

It was found in August 1961 that speckled trout lakes in the Herschel-McClure Operating Area had adequate oxygen below 10 feet of the lake's surface Big McGerry Lake, with an area of 60 acres and 100 feet depths up to 40 feet, could support a small supply of trout within the upper 7.5 feet — the remaining 25-30 feet a "barren waste" of water, contaminated by gill-netting lent support to this when it was found that no fish were taken below the 10 foot level.

Further studies are proposed in these lakes. Perhaps the information gained from their studies will influence present stocking methods in this area.

LARKSPUR

daric, was the first of the thrown jockeys to get back to the starting gate.

"It is a terrible sight," he said. "When I left the other jockeys, they were all in a state of unconsciousness.

WAS "TEAR RIDER"

Spectators, including women in summer dresses, clambered over the track and tried to help the injured riders until ambulances arrived.

It appeared that the pileup started when Romulus ran under the heels of the rear horse of him and was the first to fall.

The winner, Larkspur is a son of Never Say Die, a Kentucky stallion which won the Derby in 1954 and now stands at the stud in England. Never Say Die was owned by the late Robert Sterling Clark of New York when it won.

The Irish trainer, Vincent O'Brien, saddled Larkspur, which cost about $35,000 as a yearling. Larkspur's dam is an English mare named Skylarking.

WEATHER GOOD

Warm sunny weather drew thousands of people to the race course near London.

The open hill overlooking the track early in the day was already a vast mass of people in casual vacation attire waiting for the start of the race.

A heavy cold kept the Queen from the track and her traditional ride up the course before the race.

The carnival atmosphere of the boisterous classic was in full swing by late afternoon with ferris wheels, lilted reels, beer tents, tipsters and Gypsy fortune tellers.

IT MAY BE WRONG TO WAIT!
Perhaps you've been saying, "One of these days we'll look for a house — when we get around to it."
If so, let us caution: the prospect is for tighter money in the Spring — not easier. And right now, interest rates are heading higher, too. Why not, then, find it difficult to obtain a loan.
So . . . why "wait and wish," only to risk waiting for less home, at a higher price, later on? It makes more sense NOW, while proportion of funds are available!

Beaver Plays Important Role In Income

During the 1961-62 trapping season 370 beavers, 158 mink and 21 otter were taken by trappers in the area north of Tamworth and Verona. This group, harvested in surrounding farmlands indicates that these marginal lands have a value that is often overlooked.

The fur crop value not included in muskrat would be in the proximity of $15,000. The muskrat harvest in the same area approximates $10,300 bringing the total fur harvest value for the last year to $25,000 per annum, thus adding considerably to the economy of the area generally.

In addition to this the numerous ponds created by the beaver have in turn created many good wildfowl shooting areas, as well as forming reservoirs for fire control.

The beaver, although it has been often considered a nuisance in recent years, still plays an important role in adding to the income derived from poor to marginal farmlands in South Eastern Ontario.

RCAF CROSS-CANADA FLIGHT COMPLETED — Air Commodore R. J. Lane, right, Air Officer Commanding Air Transport Command, greets Operations Commander Captain D. J. Williams on completion of the first Cross-Canada flight by a Yukon turboprop transport of 437 "Husky" Squadron. Looking on, left, is Squadron Leader C. R. Simmons, Aircraft Commander. The 15-hour flight started Monday in Vancouver, B.C., and covered a total of 2,640 statute miles. The route covered both Territories and all ten provinces, and the average air speed was 385 mph.

Supreme Court Has Dismissed Parrott Appeal

TORONTO — Mr. Justice D. R. Morand yesterday dismissed an application by John Marcus Parrott of Belleville, to unseat Donald Joseph Whalen as a Belleville alderman.

Mr. Parrott alleged that Mr. Whalen, a real estate agent, was disqualified from sitting on Belleville council because he had an interest in a contract with the City of Belleville.

Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, dismissed Mr. Parrott's application on the ground that there was no contract between Mr. Whalen or his agent, W. E. Brewster, and the City of Belleville covering city-owned lands for which Mr. Brewster had tendered.

Mr. Parrott appealed, and Mr. Justice Morand dismissed the appeal. His Lordship held that the approval of Municipal Affairs Minister Frederick Cass was necessary before the sale was through and the minister had withheld approval except at a higher price. Mr. Justice Morand said this was a counter-offer, and Mr. Parrott's application must be dismissed.

"I am not condoning the actions of the aldermen herein."

Mr. Brewster had offered a total of $10,900 for properties on Smith Crescent, and Victoria Ave., Bradgate Road and Elizabeth Crescent. The lands had been conveyed to the municipality under the Planning Act, and Belleville Council had accepted Mr. Brewster's tender subject to the approval of Mr. Cass.

Historic Flight of Yukon Across All Ten Provinces Provides Variety of Thrills

By EULA BONTER

TRENTON — A hundred Bay years ago, the confederation of Canada's provinces was an almost-realized dream.

On Monday and Tuesday of this week, Yukon aircraft, the largest aircraft in RCAF service, spanned the continent, symbolically linking up Canada's two northern territories and the ten provinces.

Aboard the RCAF's "Queen of the Sales," were a crew of ten and a number of newspaper, radio and television representatives. Actual take-off time for the flight was 3 p.m. Monday and the Yukon skimmed down the runway at Vancouver's Sea Island airport, almost right on the button. A voice over the aircraft's intercom informed us that we were cruising along British Columbia's west coast at 20,000 feet.

SEE PILOTS HALO

We discovered that rainbows begin at 20,000 feet, for somebody saw one: a rainbow "circle," that is.

One of the RCAF public relations men explained that this phenomenon was called "a pilot's halo," and was rarely seen.

As we approached the boundary between British Columbia and the Yukon Territory, Squadron Leader C. R. Simmons, captain of the aircraft, told us that he had established radio contact with Watson' Lake, near Whitehorse, and that when we actually crossed the border, he would ask on behalf of the crew and passengers, relay greetings "from the East" to "the Land of the Yukon Territory." This was done, with due solemnity, the actual crossing being announced by Group Captain D. J. Williams, Operations Commander.

From Watsons' Lake we turned south and started the eastward approach to Great Slave Lake. We had "picked up" a tail wind and our speed was 450 miles per hour at 26,000 feet. Below we could see the Mackenzie River, with the Mackenzie highway running along in close proximity.

Great Slave Lake, when we got there at 6.24 p.m. (local), 9.24 p.m. Trenton, was nearly ice covered, although the ice is breaking up now.

SUN STILL BRILLIANT

The sun was still brilliant in the sub-Arctic sky. As a case in point, nearly four hours was made in bright sunshine.

At 7.05 p.m. we crossed the Alberta border, on a southeast course bound for Mc-Murray.

Right after passing close to Reindeer Lake, Saskatchewan, we experienced "dusk." Most of us curled up in our blankets, using a pillow at one backs and snoozed. We were on the long stretch between Reindeer and Churchill, Manitoba, on the shield of Hudson Bay.

Squadron Leader Russ Bowdery, public relations head at RCAF Station Trenton, introduced the pilot, S/L Simmons. The captain said that when we left Vancouver, we were carrying 77,000 pounds of fuel. This was being consumed at between 4,500 and 5,000 lbs. an hour. The freight-load board weighed in excess of eight tons," he said, "and passengers and baggage were a plus factor in the overall weight picture."

Introduced by S/L Simmons, several crew members gave a run-down of their various jobs.

At Churchill, when we got there we was blanketed by fog. Tail winds, experienced earlier, had disappeared and in their place, an argumentive jet stream had taken over. Speed was diminished. F/L Barker said that it was almost as if the winds were fighting us.

59 BELOW IN LABRADOR

Fort Chimo, Que., was passed at an altitude of 26,000 ft. Goose Bay, Labrador, the temperature was 59 degrees below zero, we were told.

Near Moncton, New Brunswick, we descended and skimmed along at 1,000 feet. The Checkerboard contrast of green and red of the fields was something to see. Here too, we saw the ocean, giving us a glimpse of the Pacific and Atlantic within a ten-hour time span.

At 8.31 a.m.-we passed over Belleville, Ontario. Our objective had been reached. We had made the non-stop flight from coast to coast; touched all ten provinces and the two territories. Because of the vagaries of the winds, we were behind the scheduled 14 hours, thirty minutes for the flight But the flight had been made within Incident Crew and passengers had been as safe in the air as they are in the sky as they would have been in their own living rooms

When we landed at Trenton, we had 7,000 pounds of fuel left. We could have flown approximately two more hours of flying time. We had covered 5,640 statute miles. The average miles of our flight in something short of 15 and a half hours.

Group Captain Williams and Squadron Leader Simmons delighted, in the absence of Air Commodore R. J. Lane and commended for a job well done.

Accused Elects Trial by Judge, Jury

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, East Northumberland, of 86 Division St., charged with breaking, entering and theft in two cases, breaking and entering in one case and attempted breaking and entry in another, was remanded until next week, when a preliminary hearing will be held. Graham has elected to be tried by judge and jury

Magistrate T. Y. Wills has postponed a decision on a charge of receiving stolen goods, illegally, against the same man. Originally, Grahame was charged after a number of items of office equipment were found in a trailer which was being used by the Quinte Plumbing, Heating and Electrical Company as an office, following a fire this spring which gutted the company's Front St. plant. Following the theft of the equipment, the trailer was gutted by a fire of undetermined origin. Grahame was charged in connection with the four latest incidents after the discovery, early last Saturday, of break-ins at Quinte Plumbing, Van Leuven's Furniture Store, Sweet Lumber and an attempted break-in at Carr's Electric.

Ann Copeland of Trenton and Donald James Moon of Brighton, charged with breaking, the scene of an accident, were both fined $100 and asked to pay $25 costs.

Warner Enright, 20, of Trenton, charged with the theft of a coin can containing $262, was fined $50. The can was being used by the company's Trenton Memorial Hospital's Women's Auxiliary raffle.

Magistrate Wills termed the incident "worse than common theft" in levying the fine.

Beaver Plays Important Role In Income

During the 1961-62 trapping season 370 beavers, 158 mink and 21 otter were taken by trappers in the area north of Tamworth and Verona. This group, harvested in surrounding farmlands indicates that these marginal lands have a value that is often overlooked.

The fur crop value not included in muskrat would be in the proximity of $15,000. The muskrat harvest in the same area approximates $10,300 bringing the total fur harvest value for the last year to $25,000 per annum, thus adding considerably to the economy of the area generally.

In addition to this the numerous ponds created by the beaver have in turn created many good wildfowl shooting areas, as well as forming reservoirs for fire control.

The beaver, although it has been often considered a nuisance in recent years, still plays an important role in adding to the income derived from poor to marginal farmlands in South Eastern Ontario.

The Fiction Fanatic's Viewpoint

A public library must attempt to be all things to all people. It is an impossible task for ought but the biggest. Smaller libraries, forced to cut their suit to fit their cloth, must make some choices.

The Corby Public Library is an excellent one. We suspect that its facilities for research, its stock of technical and scientific works and its general selection of non-fiction books are well above the average for a library its size. Its work in encouraging reading amongst the young is worthy of the highest praise.

Many, and they will probably be in the majority, will feel that the Library thus discharges its main duty. A public library, they will argue, is primarily interested in serving "serious readers" and if, once having discharged this duty, it offers a catholic choice in fiction to meet the needs of the less serious minded, it is doing all that can be expected.

There will be some dissenters. Most of these will be people who say they read "to relax" or "for pleasure"—as if the more serious readers did not enjoy their books. We think a library does right to resist pressure to spend an immoderate amount of its resources catering to those looking for "light reading." It should do as well by this group as it can afford—and that is how the Corby Public Library seems to treat them.

There remains a small group whose quarrel with the idea that fiction is of secondary importance in a public library is more than fundamental. This group's bias—and all the fictions are regarded by the others as biased—runs in the opposite direction. Members of this group believe that "the proper study of man is man" and that this is best undertaken by reading the fictional accounts in which gifted authors create characters to exemplify their views on human learned of life, of history, geography, psychology, philosophy, religion, social customs, political institutions, love, hate, courage, despair, folly and wisdom.

From their standpoint, the fiction department of the Corby Public Library leaves much to be desired. They will argue that it is too small. They will argue that some of the best books are not out on the shelves, where the browsing reader may easily discover them, but stored in the basement. They will argue that the fiction department would be the better if some effort were made to sub-divide it, in the same careful manner as non-fiction works have been classified. Classifying fiction is admittedly much more difficult. But several possibilities suggest themselves. There ought to be one section for current best sellers. Another section could be devoted to books by Canadian authors. Perhaps books by English and American authors could be devided, with a separate section for books translated into English from another language.

Does Punishment Fit the Offence?

A major in the Canadian Army is fined $500 and allowed to keep his rank, with a reprimand that may bar him from further promotion, for smuggling gold while a member of an International Truce Commission in Indochina.

The man was either innocent or guilty. The military court found him guilty. The maximum punishment available to the court was a dishonorable discharge. This would have left the man with no pension, no job, and a stained record.

Should mercy always temper justice? In this case, the man was representing the government and people of Canada, and was partially responsible for peace in Southeast Asia. Canada's honor has been tainted, and the Indochinese might well be expected to lose some faith in the commission. The matter is far more serious than a few dollars' profit for a gold smuggler.

Sabotage of the truce might be argued without stretching the imagination.

When a Canadian officer, living in a foreign country in a privileged position makes use of that position to break the laws of that country for personal gain, unusual measures are required to repair the damage.

It would have been a gesture of good faith to have turned the man over to the offended government for trial and punishment.

What is a minority? The chosen heroes of this earth have been in a minority. There is not a social, political, or religious privilege that you enjoy today that was not bought for you by the blood and tears and patient suffering of the minority. It is the minority that have stood in the van of ever moral conflict, and achieved all that is noble in the history of the world.—John Ballantine Gough.

Frenchmen Like Mustard

New York Times

Among the stories the French like to tell American visitors is the one about the waiter on trial for killing a customer. The victim — naturally an American — had ordered a steak. He and the waiter had had an earnest discussion about how it was to be prepared. The proprietor himself, who was also the chef, had come out of the kitchen with a tray of prime beef, from which the American had selected a well-aged Chateaubriand. The chef had then served and departed. A short time thereafter, the waiter promptly brought the steak. The American looked at it, tasted it appreciatively and asked for some mustard. "And then . . ." the judge prompted. "Then, Monsieur," the waiter said, "I slew him." Verdict, justifiable homicide.

A Frenchman who relish this story over the dinner table sighed with anticipation as his own steak arrived, accompanied by a small yellow crock spooned onto his plate a generous dollop of Dijon mustard.

The French, who are under the impression that they invented eating, are very firm about the rules. Ketchup is an unthinkable sin. Anything but mustard — even Dijon mustard — is suspect. And all but the stoutest taste buds will — mainly out.

Mustard is ubiquitous in France and the French eat it with a zest that would satisfy dishes. Not all French mustards are as overpowering as Moutarde Fort Dijon. It is only fair to concede. And even in Dijon itself, that citadel of fortified mustard, not all the mustards are equally authoritative, though it takes a discriminating (as well as fireproof) palate to detect the gradations.

Dijon, complain an honored name as the gastronomic map of France, has only one rival: the mustard capital of Burgundy.

The French, while not disdaining firepower, have developed only connoisseurs of mustard — reading into a thumbprint of pungency. The artistry of roasted gold wine is an ancient one. The word itself, after all, is a distortion of "moust" — new wine, or unfermented grape juice, one of the original ingredients.

The French, with characteristic grandeur, have put mustard in a step further by developing a champagne mustard. In recent years despite the frontdragging of conservatives, they have also been experimenting with the spectrum. The standard yellow and brown have been given way in some of the more daring households, to green mustard and even purple mustard, made with a tomato base. The connoisseurs, of course, have probably been rapfscorer-ed—withe them made from avocados. Gertrude Stein Youngor sited acorn a curry and that the Vinci of mustard-makers is the fourth of the Dijon firm of Maille, had already invented more than 80 varieties.

Strictly Personal

Most Talked-to Lectured-at, Civilization

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Clubs, associations, and organizations of all sorts are continually looking for program material. We are probably the most lectured-to people in history, with civilization in the history of the world.

Most of these lectures are not worth giving, or listening to. They either say what is all too obvious, inflate the trivial, or paint the lily of truth with the gilt of artificial color.

One of the few worthwhile ideas for a club program has just crossed my desk, unbidden, and I'd like to pass it along to program chairmen all over the country. It ought to provide more meat for discussion than a dozen addresses put end to end together.

Cinema 16, a film distributor, will rent out the original version of "Operation Abolition," American-produced defense of anti-Communist propaganda film of the decade, produced for the House on Committee on Un-American Activities.

This film, running 42 minutes, purports to "prove" that the San Francisco student demonstrations against HUAC recently were "Communist-controlled."

An American Legion film, "like-use of newsreel footage, and natural sound, the judges re-arranged it really-fast, with a lot of editing and narration, took upon the purpose of the propaganda film problem."

At the same time, as a joint effort, the film company has sent out "Operation Correction," the famous "answer" to "Operation Abolition," produced by the American Civil Liberties Union of Northern California, which utilizes the same footage, but an entirely different narration.

Readers of both these films, which cost approximately $30 and run a half hour each, will also receive free copies of two publications, which are theoretically opposed viewpoints: a booklet by the Committee on Un-American Activities, and a 40-page analysis published by the National Council of Churches.

I can scarcely think of a better way for a club to spend an evening than watching these two documentary films, and then discussing them with a panel discussion and question-period about them. This, in a modern version, is what the old town meeting used to be: one of the fast disappearing arts of contemporary life.

Propaganda is daily becoming more powerful and more prevalent in our increasingly mechanized society. It seeks to enslave us psychologically, which is the first step toward political enslavement. The best way to counteract its baleful influence is to observe it, to learn to discuss, such phenomena as "Operation Abolition" and its antidotes.

Pretty Scheme

Toronto Star

The Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons has a bizarre scheme for keeping medical graduates in Canada and ensuring a good supply of doctors. The proposal: Don't let them write exams for five years after graduation and apply full income tax rates only after eight years. Such a preposterous proposition would drive the cream of the highest-earning profession in the country. But we doubt that quacksalvers, who operate from store clerks and others, taxed from the moment they get their pay envelope, would be unduly enraptured. They are not included in the pretty scheme.

To Your Good Health

Not All Kidney Problems Require a Diet Control

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had nephritis (kidney disease) for a long time. About eight years ago I was told that one kidney was functioning about 40 per cent and the other 60, and my doctor said to be sure to have protein at each meal.

Now another doctor has advised a low-protein diet and to go easy on meat because of the nitrogen content — just the opposite. Could you explain this contradiction? — Mrs. K.J.

This apparent contradiction, I suspect, is understandable.

You see, not all nephritis cases require diet control. In fact, if there is albumin in the urine, but no retention of nitrogen in the blood, this indicates a loss of protein through the kidneys, while at the same time meaning that the body is not getting too much protein.

In such cases, the patient is encouraged to eat more protein, not less, and to drink lots of water.

If, however, a rise in nitrogen in the blood develops, then the opposite becomes true, and treatment of protein is advisable.

In your case, it is impossible for the kidney situation to change, and what once was right now becomes wrong.

That's why you should not be concerned over the apparent contradiction.

Diet in this condition (as well as in so many others) needs to be tailored to the patient. We don't have a standard diet suits everybody. And your doctor, knowing your exact condition, is the one to decide what's best for you.

In passing, let's keep in mind that a low-protein diet isn't a no-protein diet. Some is required for your basic nutritional needs.

Likewise the amount of salt in your diet and the amount of liquid you consume cannot be taken from any set of rigid rules. It is based entirely upon the presence of swelling, and other indications as to how well your kidneys are handling the removal of fluids for you.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will Vitamin A help my eyesight to see clear, the skin of blotches? Is it possible to take an overdose? If so, what is the symptoms? I am a teen ager and others are wondering the same things. — S.

Not long ago I wrote about acne, skin blemishes, and yes, sometimes Vitamin A helps, but sometimes it does no good at all.

The reason appears to be that some individuals cannot absorb or utilize Vitamin A properly, so extra doses are a waste of time and money. Vitamin A is plentiful in yellow fruits and vegetables and in eggs, cheese, butter, milk, and fish oils.)

Overdosage of Vitamin A can cause yellowness of the skin, especially the palms of the hands. Reducing the dose lets this color fade gradually.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband and I are 65, A1 10 a.m. and again at 3 p.m. we each drink an 8-ounce cup of skim milk. How much water should we have in addition to stay healthy? — Mrs. W.S.D.

There's no fixed amount. Some authorities say an average adult needs about five pints a day, but remember, you get it from other sources. Half the three-quarters of your food is water (by weight). Fruits and vegetables contain a lot.

Therefore it's hard to realize how much fluid you are taking into your system. Meat mixture provides a wonderful regulator: just drink when you're thirsty. (If you prepare in hot weather, you'll be thirstier.)

What do you know about your heart? Simply, calmly, and plainly, Dr. Molner's new booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart," tells about the heart and heart troubles . . . from slipped beats to A-V blocks. Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. My Fair Lady Bowing Out

New York Herald-Tribune

Since — as an ancient and indisputable saying has it — all good things come to an end, it is not alarming to learn that the Broadway musical "My Fair Lady" has already announced its intention of terminating its run next July 7. Show business statistics will record the final figure for "My Fair Lady" will be 2,621 performances. Nearly a year ago the show passed the 2,212 mark of "Oklahoma," and every-since it has to be the longest-running musical in Broadway's annals.

What adds a little extra zest to the saga of "My Fair Lady" is that it represents a remarkable setting of a dramatic play which until has displayed a fair amount of staying power on Broadway and elsewhere — Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion." If some one were to add up the number of stage performances that eager elocutionist, Eliza Doolittle, both with and without music, has given, she turns out to be host durable of modern stage heroines.

Will we have heard the last of her when July 7 rolls around? Probably. There will be road companies, movies, revivals for a year to come, G.B.S., like Pygmalion himself, treated a masterpiece, and Messrs. Lerner and Loewe seem always to hit the right music at the right time. So whichever way it goes, Miss Doolittle is likely to be around for a long time, pegging her flower girl's wares, her consonants, and charming her audiences.

What Difference?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

As long ago as 1825, Robert Lyrd, the English essayist who wrote in the New Statesman under the pseudonym "Y.Y.", made this observation:

"Liberty is not a way of working out men's destinies for them but a way of enabling them to work out their own destinies."

No doubt this sentiment has been expressed before. Maybe Plato or Aristotle mentioned it. But nobody quite got it down so neatly as Lyrd, and I remember quoting it out of the paper and carrying it in my wallet until it was shreds.

And all the time I carried it, looking at it reading it, lived through the years of the riot, and in some cases the death, of political systems dedicated to the search for human liberty. Lyrd's words were not always kind over; body and britches. Many working out their destinies for them.

The concept of liberty as being a way of enabling men to work out their own destinies flies in direct conflict with each new regulation, of which there appears to be 365 every year.

Maybe it is something other than liberty that we are in pursuit of.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

PRACTICING THE PRESENCE

We stated yesterday that we would try to explain to ourselves the meaning of the expression, "practicing the presence of God."

We believe — because our religion encourages us to believe — that God is everywhere: in heaven, throughout the universe, in this world, and in the very centre of our hearts. We do not understand this because it involves concepts of time and space which are beyond anything we ascribe to our creatures know. But by an act of faith — confirmed, we believe, by reason — we accept as true the teaching that God is everywhere.

But simply to believe this is not enough. If this belief is going to do us any good, we must get it to operating in our lives.

We do this through many of the practices of religion, but particularly by taking the thought that God is everywhere, and holding it in our minds for at least some period every day. With the passing of time we begin to experience a sense of God's presence. Some of the great and saintly souls have had this power to such an extent that it became a continuous experience for them from the time they opened their eyes in the morning until they closed them at night.

For that common-garden variety of folk which most of us are, the experience may be occasional and fleeting. But practice in this as in all things brings results and results bring peace and a sense of inner power.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

A BIG ONE—Earl Thompson and Mrs. Thompson proudly display the 30-pound-four-ounce northern pike caught by Mr. Thompson in Kennebec Lake.

Fishing in Kennebec Lake, Local Man Gets 30 lb. Pike

Earl Thompson of this city, associated with the T. J. Holland Plumbing of Pinnacle street, didn't know he would hook a "monster" when he cast his line into Kennebec Lake the other day.

Kennebec Lake is near Arden. It gave up a northern pike that tipped the scales at 30 pounds, four ounces.

Mr. Thompson said he put the fish on a scale with a maximum of 25 pounds and the "thing" went to the bottom with a thud. A sister later weighed the fish. It was 42 inches in length.

Eighty-three year-old "Dord" Wright of Kennebec, Mr. Thompson's uncle was with him when he hooked the hunker.

Mr. Thompson used a "Gibbs Tobeyson" lure. He said the big fish put up a tough twenty-minute battle before it was boated.

Fish and Game Club officials here said this morning they would make efforts to have the big fish mounted.

The pike is the largest of its class to be caught in this district in some years. The largest caught in Ontario last year weighed 34 pounds.

Highway Work Crews Make Progress on Many Projects

Highway construction crews at work on overpass structures on the Highway north and east of Belleville are making rapid progress toward completion of their various projects.

North and west of Belleville on the road to Wallbridge, the H. J. McFarland Construction Company is rapidly nearing the completion of the interchange at Centenary. The overpass structure is being raised for surfacing while the ramps to the overpass end entrance and egress roads have been in place since last fall.

At the Sidney Street overpass the contractor is preparing the detour route in readiness for ramp placement and building of the overpass structure. No entrance or exit from 401 is planned for Sidney Street.

East of the city in the Marysville area, the cloverleaf structure on the Marysville county road is also nearly completed, while bridge and culvert structures on the Marysville creek are completed and ramps are ready for paving.

Work is also well advanced on the Wyman's Sideroad overpass, two miles northwest of Marysville.

Grading of the "missing link" of 401 between Marysville and Odessa, is being rushed this summer with the Ontario Department of Highways having scheduled the opening of the south lane of this stretch for late this fall.

Large Nesting Of Ducks in P.E. County

General patrol and reports from others in Prince Edward County, indicate a large number of nesting ducks.

Although it is not wise to count ducks before they hatch, it does appear that there will be a good population this fall, providing environment factors continue to remain satisfactory.

An unusual sight for this time of the year at West Lake is two pair of Blue Bills and one lone Redhead. They have been around all spring, feeding close enough to shore to take good snaps of them.

Picton News

Some Portions Of Streets Will Be Paved

PICTON — Portions of streets to be paved within the limits of the construction budget, as recommended by the street committee were passed by town council. These include Downs Ave., Barker St., Paul St., Prospect Ave., Maple Ave., Gladstone Ave., Washburn St.

The Utilities Commission is to be requested to instal necessary water mains and services in these areas.

The town is to purchase a paint spraying machine for street marking at a cost of $700.

Surface treatment on town streets done in co-operation with the County program, through the County Council, was recommended. Reeve B. Hepburn said this was done in Napanee and made a saving possible by purchase of materials in quantity. Entire council was in favor of having street work done in this way instead of the town calling for its own tenders as formerly.

4 Candidates Give Talks to Kiwanis Club

PICTON — All four candidates in Prince Edward-Lennox addressed the Kiwanis Club meeting Monday night. They were Douglas Ahlenbrack, Progressive Conservative; Wilbur Crandall, Social Credit; Lloyd Woolsey, Liberal and Howard Weese, NDP. Each outlined their party's platform and later answered questions.

A fifth "candidate" was proposed in the person of Rev. R. B. Wright with the label, New Social Democratic Liberal Conservative Party tag. The minister reminded that membership in the family of God comes before membership in any party and their responsibility is to Him. Mr. Wright urged voters not only to mark their ballot but to actively support the party program, and pray that correct decisions are made.

POLITICAL NOTES

The Conservatives announced yesterday that Trade and Commerce Minister, Hon. George Hees will speak in Picton at three o'clock next Monday afternoon in support of Douglas Ahlenbrack.

Many Liberals went to Napanee Tuesday night to attend a chicken barbecue at which Hon. Paul Martin was speaker.

The Conservatives held a well attended rally at Cherry Valley Tuesday night.

Buses will take many to a garden party at Napanee Saturday night when Minister of Health, Hon. Waldo Monteith will be his speaker.

All candidates have been invited to address a meeting of county teachers in Picton Thursday night.

Conservatives will switch from meetings to a free dance, to be held Thursday night in Demorestville hall. This is arranged by the Young Conservatives.

The Liberals have paper hats to promote their candidate, but meet strong opposition in the Conservatives' free doughnuts and coffee at the committee rooms.

ADVANCE POLLS

Advance polls will be held in Picton, Redmerville and Wellington from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. next Saturday and Monday. Anyone expecting to be absent on June 18 may vote, if qualified.

Redmerville poll is at the home of Walter Holmes; Wellington poll at the home of Dr. O. Bradley and Picton poll at Hepburn's office. These are for the immediate areas.

No Holiday

Although the Liberals secured a Progressive Conservative, in County Warden John Fox, to make their plea, there will not be a school holiday when Liberal leader John Diefenbaker visits Picton next week. It was pointed out that school examinations are in progress and a holiday at this time would not be feasible.

STURDY CABLE

Nylon hawsers, product of Newfoundland, have a tensile strength of 250,000 pounds, twice that of a 12-inch manilla rope.

C of C Endorses Resolution

PICTON — Licensing of non-resident, transient persons who, for gain, go from place to place, or door to door, to solicit subscriptions or sales for magazines, books or printed matter is favored by Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce. Directors endorsed an Oakville resolution to this effect at a meeting on Tuesday.

The Municipal act at present does not permit such licensing.

The Chamber was advised the Antique Car Club would visit Picton on July 17.

Chief Enforces By-Law No Races Allowed

PICTON — Town Council took no action concerning the enforcement of a by-law which resulted in outboard races on Picton harbor being cancelled last Sunday. This by-law limits speed in the inner harbor to five miles per hour. Chief of Police, George Pitt advised the club on Saturday that there had been complaints registered and he would enforce the by-law. Fans who came were disappointed.

For the Outboard Club, John Sillsbourg admitted the bylaw existed but there had been an "understanding" for some years and there had been no objection to the races which draw from 500 to 1,000 spectators. He felt the races provide entertainment and helped advertise the county. The club will explore the possibility of holding the races elsewhere though the protected waters of the harbor are best suited for the small, fast craft.

Hospital Gets Federal Grant

OTTAWA (CP) — The Belleville General Hospital will receive a $7,400 grant to help pay the cost of renovating its training centre for laboratory technicians, the federal health department announced Tuesday.

COSTLY FISH

NIPIGON, Ont. (CP)—One of the most expensive catches of the season was made here when works superintendent Bill Church pulled a five - pound pickerel out of the town's water intake. The repairs and shutting down the system cost $400.

SPOON-FED ROBIN — Margaret Lewington, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lewington, 57 Sinclair Street, has a pet baby robin that delights in being spoon-fed. Margaret found the robin two weeks ago in nearby church yard. Since bringing it home it has become tame and gobbles up fish bits and worms at an alarming rate. It has now learned to fly but always returns home for feeding and to pass the night in a budgie cage—for protection against the neighbor's cat.

Injured Man Will Not Lose Crushed Leg

PICTON — A report from the Prince Edward County Hospital yesterday was to the effect that Alfred King, injured on Friday, is progressing favorably and there is indication that the severely crushed leg can be saved. Mr. King was injured when the tractor he was driving was in collision with a truck on Cherry Valley road.

to be made a friend of the people," said Mr. Sharp, Liberal candidate in Toronto Eglinton against Finance Minister Fleming.

"I'm beginning to think he doesn't want Mr. Fleming to win in Eglinton."

GO EAST, WEST

Today Mr. Diefenbaker carries his campaign to Quebec's Lake St. John region and Mr. Pearson continues his intensive bid for support in southwest Ontario, Mr. Douglas flies from Toronto to the Lakehead and Mr. Thompson heads west also, to Portage la Prairie and Minnedosa, Man.

Mr. Douglas himself was in Peterborough, where he told a spirited audience of 1,400 in a high school auditorium that the government has had to adopt a high-interest-rate, tight money policy to protect the exchange rate on the dollar, recently devalued to 92½ cents in U.S. funds.

It would surely result in higher unemployment, when Canada's "trying need" was for easy money to get the economy moving.

Both Mr. Pearson and Mr. Douglas cast scorn on Mr. Diefenbaker's prediction that Canada soon will have virtually full employment.

The Liberal leader said the forecast of 325,000 unemployed in 1964 was prepared for the special committee on the unemployment insurance fund headed by Toronto insurance executive E. C. Gill.

DENIES STATEMENT

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberal leader's statement about $62,000,000 in foreign help for Canada's exchange reserves after the dollar was pegged May 3 "is without truth whatsoever."

The money represented U.S. payments for defence purchases and exchange settlements for other purchases—"a purely routine transaction."

Mr. Thompson's Social Credit rally in Toronto drew fewer than 1,000 people to 2,700-seat Massey Hall to hear him attack economic policies of both old-line parties.

He said the increasing load of taxes on the Canadian consumer—46 cents of every dollar earned—has been accompanied by "an ever-increasing restriction of freedom and initiative."

FORESTRY AID

A machine capable of producing between 300,000 and 400,000 seedlings per hour has been devised by the British Forestry commission.

Roybrook Ace, four-months-old bull calf, brought the top price of $7,500 at the National Holstein Sale at Oakville. He was sold by Roy Ormiston, Brooklin, Ontario, and bought by two artificial breeding units, Quinte, at Belleville, and Eastern Ontario at Kemptville. These two units are at present in the process of amalgamation. Ace is sired by Lakefield Fond Hope who recently sold for the Canadian record price for a bull of $50,000, and his dam is the famous excellent two-star brood cow, Balsam Bree Pluto Sovereign, the All-Canadian Aged Cow of 1957. The $1,433 average at the National was the third highest in its forty-four year history.

Belleville Artist Showing At Mark Shawn Art Gallery

Author Has Written for 15 Years

WINNIPEG (CP) — One of Canada's most successful authors is an attractive housewife who lives in the Norwood district of Winnipeg.

Vinia Hoogstraten started writing 15 years ago with little successful short stories in a row. "By the time the first rejection slips came in, I had caught the bug", she says.

A true professional, Mrs. Hoogstraten says her main incentive to continue writing is the money she makes.

"I'd never write if I couldn't market my material."

With two novels now "in the works," Mrs. Hoogstraten already has had her short stories and articles published in McCalls, Good Housekeeping, Chatelaine and in magazines in England, New Zealand, Australia, Holland, France, Denmark, Italy, Sweden and South Africa.

Mrs. Hoogstraten says she "hates the craftsman" and has little time for the type of social activity usually associated with authors.

"You can't engage in all the social activities you'd like and still be a productive author, you know," she quipped, "and almost all extra social activity except the things I do with my husband and family."

She questions the value of Canada Council grants for persons like herself. She says she feels she already is subsidized by her husband.

"It used to be assumed that anything written by a Canadian wasn't much good," she says. "Fortunately this attitude has disappeared in the last 20 years."

Beginning May 30 and continuing to June 30, inclusive, a collection of paintings by Phillippa Faulkner, well known Belleville artist, will be displayed at the Mark Shawn Gallery, 504 Eighteenth Avenue, Ottawa.

Mrs. Faulkner received her early education at Bishop Strachan School in Toronto and a degree in advertising and design from Parsons School in New York. For eight years she was affiliated with the Robert Simpson and the T. Eaton Companies in their display departments.

Later, she attended the Doon School of Art, and studied with Carl Schaeffer, Frederick Varley and York Wilson. Her work was greatly influenced by Hans Hofmann in Provincetown and New York. She also spent one winter painting in Tobago, and the Barbardoe, B.W.I. and five winters in Mexico, and was awarded a two-year scholarship at the Institute Allende San Miguel, Mexico. A picture, which was awarded fourth prize at the second annual exhibition of San Miguel, judged by Carlos Merida, was reproduced in the April issue of the magazine, "Canadian Art."

For two years Mrs. Faulkner exhibited with the Color and Form Society at Hart House, Toronto, as well as showing in a group at the Hamilton Art Gallery.

Eastminster Couples' Club Tours Air Base

Approximately 30 members of the Eastminster Couples' Club were recently given a most interesting tour of the Pilot Factor at the Trenton Air Force Base. Tom Thompson assisted by two fellow service men, explained to the group the type of training to which potential pilots are exposed, and the general functions of the more common components of the airplane they will eventually fly.

"Month-to-Month Resuscitation" was title of film shown to the group following the tour and it was considered most appropriate and timely by the group now that summer weather is here.

Following the devotional and the business portion of the evening in a ball supplied by the hosts, the ladies provided an excellent repast.

Members are reminded that the June meeting will be centered around a "Cook-Out" to be held at Moira Lake, on June 25th.

U.C.W. Meetings

COLLEGE HILL UNITED CHURCH U.C.W.

College Hill United Church recently held the last general meeting until fall in the church. President Mrs. Bailey opened the meeting with the singing of the hymn "From All That Dwell Below the Skies". Everyone was asked to keep in mind the bale to be packed for Korea and to turn in their old rayons. A committee made up of Mrs. B. Moorcroft, Mrs. E. Hilts, and Mrs. D. Watson, was selected to visit mothers of the congregation with children under school age.

The worship service was opened with a call to worship by Mrs. Bailey.

Mrs. J. Townsend read the responsive reading and Mrs. C. Bailey led the group in prayer after which Mrs. M. Moorcroft gave a reading and a poem. Mrs. McMullin, and Mrs. Reid from Front Road Church, favored with a duet.

The worship service was closed with the singing of "Lord Speak to Me, That I May Speak," and the responsive closing.

The Rev. Duncan White, M.A., B.D., gave an interesting talk on the new curriculum. He explained how and why it will be brought out in all the different phases of Christian Education. He divided the ladies into three groups and gave each a different question to discuss and bring forward their viewpoints to the group. Everyone was invited to go to the Sunday School rooms where lunch was served by the afternoon unit.

KLASSEN — BERRIGAN

A lovely May wedding was solemnized in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville when Miss Maureen Muriel Berrigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonsus Berrigan, Belleville, became the bride of Sub/Lt. Joseph Bernard Klassen, R.C.N., B. Sc., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klassen, Calgary, Alberta. An escort guard of honor from the Royal Military College, Kingston, preceded the bride to the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional floor-length white organza de soie gown, the bodice fashioned in princess style with a scoop neckline, long lily-point sleeves, and a flowing back panel extending from the neckline to a full train. Her bouffant shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a small seeded pearl crown and she carried a cascade bouquet of white calla lilies.

Miss Margaret McGyan was maid of honor, Miss Carol Pendergast and Miss Joan Flinn, all 1960 classmates of Hotel Dieu, Kingston, were the bridesmaids. The petite junior bridesmaid was Miss Maryelle Davy, cousin of the bride. They were all gowned alike in street-length dresses of variegated copen-blue sheer print featuring tiered bodices and bell-shaped skirts. They wore matching accessories and carried crescent bouquets of white pom-pom 'mums and Tallamon roses.

Mr. Gary Gallelli attended the bridegroom. F/O John A. MacDougall, B. Sc. and Mr. John Berrigan, brother of the bride were the ushers.

The Rev. Peter Murphy officiated at the double-ring ceremony and the Rev. J. E. Brown, S.J. Regiopolis College was present in the Sanctuary. Standards of white gladioli and white shasta 'mums adorned the altar and sanctuary.

The Rev. Sister M. Joan of Arc, presided at the organ, and Mr. Roe Elmy was the soloist. Among the hymns rendered were: "Ave Maria" by Mozart; "Panis Angelicus" by Franck and "Ave Maria" by Arcedt.

Receiving the guests was the bride's mother wearing a gown of beige caramel imported chiffon over lace, with a corsage of Talisman roses and matching accessories. Assisting the bride's mother was the bridegroom's mother gowned in beige brocaded silk with matching accessories and a corsage of pink garnetia mums.

The reception was held at the Club Canara. A three-tier wedding cake centred the bridal table adorned by candelabra and the bridal bouquets.

For travelling to points east, through New England States, and Quebec City, the bride wore a Bordeaux gray wool knitted suit with red accessories and a corsage of red roses. The couple will take up residence in Red Deer, Alberta.

The pre-nuptial buffet luncheon following the rehearsal, was given by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. J. J. X Joncas and the bride's aunts, Mrs. Joseph Berrigan, Mrs. Eves Davy and Miss Jeannine Joncas, all of Quebec City.

Previous to the marriage, the bride was entertained by the nurses on Second Floor South, Belleville General Hospital; the nurses on St. Margaret's Floor, Hotel Dieu, Kingston; and the nurses of class 1960 Hotel Dieu, Kingston.

Among the out-of-town guests were: the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. L. Da Costa and Mr. and Mrs. B. Klassen, Calgary and the bridegroom's parents. Also guests were present from: Toronto; Kingston; Napanee; Ottawa; Boston, U.S.A.; Montreal; Weston; Elginburg; Carleton Place; Quebec City and Peterborough.

The Experts Say

Clothes for Travel Should Include Little Black Suit

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP)—"A well-planned wardrobe can be as rewarding as a well-planned itinerary," says a Montreal fashion consultant and travel adviser on what clothes a woman should take when going abroad.

Phyllis Dedekam of Scandinavian Air Services has been concentrating on the problems of the woman traveller for several years and says the Canadian woman today can "travel in fashion and comfort without sacrifice to costly excess baggage."

First, she says, you shouldn't take along so much clothing that you cannot handle your own luggage. And choose clothes that don't need much care—"good materials and easy colors avoid these difficulties."

Intelligent co-ordination of colors and materials is important, she says, emphasizing the advantage of darker colors. Such wardrobe staples as the "little black suit" could serve a variety of purposes through the day.

She recommends good English wool and pure silk as excellent travel materials because of the changeable weather in many European countries and because both fabrics require little care.

Man-made fibres were good for lingerie and blouses but "pure silk is the most crush-proof thing around."

Last year Meme Dyathe, Norwegian-born designer now in Montreal, designed a wardrobe for the airline and it has been brought up to date for 1962.

Most important item in the wardrobe, Mrs. Dedekam suggests, is the coat. This particular coat is reversible, oyster-grey and belted for daytime wear, and black for evening, with matching crushproof beret. Attached to the coat is a reversible stole that can be detached and worn separately.

Second part of the travel costume is a wool suit matching the coat. Under the suit a pure silk dress is worn, doubling first as blouse and slip, then serving as a travel dress while the suit is hung up for the end of the journey.

A sporty walking dress for low heels is another important item — in this collection with matching slacks and made of tergal, a man-made fibre from France.

The last innovation in Miss Dyathe's wardrobe is an Italian silk brocade sleeveless dress with matching coat. The bottom of the coat is detachable to make a cocktail suit and can be snapped to the cocktail dress to make an elegant formal.

"All these items can be worn with two pairs of black shoes—one dressing and one daytime," says Mrs. Dedekam. She also suggests a good basic handbag with lots of room and a small evening bag.

A final piece of advice is the old adage: "When in doubt, leave it out."

Spends Hours on Telephone

BORIS CLARK

DEAR BORIS:—My problem concerns my daughter-in-law's telephone conversations. She is pregnant and her doctor has advised her not to do any heavy work. She spends hours every day on the telephone, a party line she shares with two others.

One day recently while trying to do a big ironing, I had three calls from her, totalling over two hours. The conversations consists of complaints about her health, the lovelife of the canary, the news of her neighbors in listening in on her conversations, and other gossip.

My dishes often stay in the sink for hours. I'm ready to go out and she keeps me at home. I know she is lonesome during the day and that after the new baby comes she won't have so much time, but I don't know how I'll manage until then.

My husband tells me I'll have to tell her to stop, but she's a very sensitive person and I'm afraid to say anything to hurt her. We've always gotten along so well.—MAW-IN-LAW.

* * *

DEAR MAW-IN-LAW—Heavy work or no heavy work, she is still the mistress of a home and needs things to do. A daily walk to do her own shopping would be good for her.

Some girls would jump at the chance to learn a new skill or join a Y hobby group; to experiment with cooking or even catch up on reading. Something about child care would be appropriate!

Gossip and hogging the phone have nothing but disagreeable results. But this waiting time can be tough, so talk to your son about helping her to find new and satisfying things to do with her time.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I went with a young boy for almost two years, until my mother found out I was dating him steady. You see, this boy is a half-breed, and got in some trouble and was sent to a reform school for a while. We went to go together so very badly but mother thinks I'm too good for him.

I could have my choice of any guy around here, and I do date a lot mainly to get him off my mind. (Please don't think I'm just bragging). I try to pretend I'm having fun, but every time I see him my heart simply aches for him. I know he would like to go with me again, but I love my mother and wouldn't want to hurt her.

I feel so guilty, because my boy friend thinks I'm being so sincere. Oh, please, what can we do? Are we just silly teen-agers experiencing puppy love?—LOVESICK.

* * *

DEAR LOVESICK—It has all the earmarks! If you are under 18, I'd suspect puppy love.

Reform school, different nationality—your backgrounds are very different! Even if the attraction is strong and personality irresistible, I'd suggest resisting. You are changing, so is he.

True love will weather the storm. But it will probably surprise you just where your true love eventually turns up from.

* * *

TO DEBATER—I agree that the family is not a dying institution. Father may not rule with an iron fist any more, but this gives others a chance to chip in, a healthy sign, according to me.

Children have more say. In some cases too much. But we learn through trial and error. The important thing is for Mom and Dad to guide and stand by; to loosen their hold gradually.

In the strong family unit all members pull together on "the that matter. Just let trouble strike and you'll see where the strength lies.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—My age is 14 and I am very interested in tennis, but I have never played. Could you tell me if there are any tennis clubs I could join? I belong to the YWCA but there is no tennis there.—MISS D. S.

DEAR MISS D. S.:—Ask the counsellor at your YWCA to direct you to a nearby tennis club. She will be sure to know what is available in your community.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PICNICS SHOULD BE FUN

When is a picnic not a picnic?

When it's a picnic where everyone has to lug along dozens of things and hampers full of knives, forks, spoons, plates, cups, saucers and what have you, just for the privilege of eating a dribbly sandwich in the great outdoors.

Actually, the most successful picnics are the simplest. This means doing away with extra utensils and providing foods that can be picked up and eaten with the fingers.

Sandwiches, of course, are the mainstay of any picnic, but there are many other foods that can be grilled outdoors and still properly be eaten in the fingers. About the only extra equipment needed is a pile of paper napkins for clean-up detail.

Corn-on-the-cob and French-fried potatoes are tasty finger foods that can be wrapped in foil and cooked over a grille. Stalks of frozen asparagus can be treated the same way, and, providing they are not cooked too long, are crisp enough to be handled without benefit of knife and fork.

Hot dogs and hamburgers are natural picnic fare when served on rolls, and chicken, of course, is another familiar item on a picnic menu that can be eaten in the fingers. If spareribs are parboiled at home, they can be grilled in a decent length of time over a charcoal fire. They make an excellent addition to the list of meats that can be nibbled successfully in the fingers.

Tiny lamb and porn chops help vary the menu. A very famous restaurant in New York serves these as a hot hors d'oeuvre at fashionable private parties. They're eaten in the fingers by the kid-glove set and can easily be adapted for use in more rustic surroundings.

A salad is always a refreshing addition to a picnic, but it's simpler to serve the ingredients individually instead of tossing everything together and then have to use a fork to eat it.

Stalks of celery, endive leaves carrot and cucumber sticks, sprigs of watercress and tiny tomatoes make tasty finger food that can easily be prepared at home and brought to a picnic packed in foil so they stay crisp and fresh.

For dessert, it's easier to forego the gooey cake, and choose, instead, a good cheese (or crackers) or fresh fruit. Even a simple bunch of grapes is a delightful follow-up to a hearty meal.

As far as beverages are concerned, small containers of milk and straws eliminate excess baggage for the kiddies. For tea or coffee, either hot or iced, paper cups have to be used, unless anyone can find a better way out. If the men prefer beer, they will still use their hands and drink it straight from the can. Outdoors it's perfectly permissible, and as far as the men are concerned, it's really a picnic.

Question: My husband and I received an invitation to his cousin's wedding reception. His mother and father also were invited, but his married sister was not. We were told that the number of guests was limited. We do not wish to attend under these circumstances, although we want to send a gift. Are we doing the correct thing? A.C., Bronx, New York.

Answer: Whether to accept or refuse any invitation, whether it's to a wedding or dinner party, should never hinge on who else has been invited or not in this case. — who has not. Correctly, all members of the groom's family, and especially one who is so close, should have been invited. However, this should not influence your decision. If you want to attend the reception and are able to then you should accept. In either event, since you have been invited, you are obligated to send a wedding gift.

If you're fed up with "sky-high" heating costs ... here's an opportunity to do something about it!

Many customers of Lakeland Natural Gas have found they could save $20, $40, $60 or $100 per year when they changed to natural gas. You can do it too!

Because we know natural gas will heat your home more efficiently and economically, we'll let you "try" it for a year so that you can prove to yourself it actually does. Lakeland Natural Gas will install a conversion burner in your present furnace. You don't have to buy it! You don't have to pay to have it installed! All you pay for is the gas you use. At the end of a year, when you've discovered how much you've saved with natural gas, you can either buy the conversion burner, or rent it for only $20.00 per year. If you're not satisfied we'll take it out at no charge to you!

Will you really save on heating costs? Try it and see! You save because there's no furnace cleaning with gas. You save because there are no moving parts to be replaced. You save on service call costs because Lakeland provides FREE 24 hour service on all gas equipment. You save on hydro costs because natural gas does away with electric burner motors. And you save because natural gas does a more efficient job—heats your home better for less.

Don't put up with "sky-high" heating costs any longer. Have your Lakeland home heating specialist give you further details on Lakeland's free "home-trial" heating plan. Arrange to have him call, at your convenience, by returning the reply card mailed to your home, or use this handy coupon; or contact your local natural gas dealer.

TO SUPERVISE ELECTION — Miss Jeanne Bouchard, returning officer for Montreal's Cartier riding in the June 18 federal election, is the first woman to hold that post in Quebec. An elections clerk in the 1958 general election, she has been active in provincial politics for 30 years. —(CP Photo).

Most Notorious Political Hotspot in Election Has Lady Returning Officer

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP) — A woman has been given the job of supervising voting in one of Canada's most notorious political hotspots in the June 18 federal election.

Miss Jeanne Bouchard is Quebec's first woman returning officer in a federal election. Her charge is Montreal's Cartier riding, a small but explosive potpourri of nationalities on the eastern edge of Mount Royal.

"No one was more surprised than I when I received news of the appointment from Ottawa," she said, although she has participated in provincial politics for 30 years and was elections clerk for Cartier in the 1958 voting.

Election headquarters in Ottawa has expressed surprise at the so-far tranquil atmosphere of the riding, celebrated in the past for its wars' riots and goon squads, impersonations and committee-room raids.

Mounties were stationed in Cartier in the 1958 election and their investigations led to a judicial inquiry and conviction of an election officer for falsifying voters' lists.

ELECTED ONLY RED

The restless working - class community of 32,000 — Ukrainians, Jews, Hungarians, Greeks, Poles, Italians and French-Canadians among them — has been in a state of transition nearly all its political life.

In 1914 the Laurier government created the riding to give the Jewish population representation in Parliament.

Cartier has the distinction of having elected the only Communist MP. In 1943 and 1945 Fred Rose won on the Labor-Progressive Party ticket. Otherwise the riding has always chosen a Jewish Liberal.

Cartier is the perpetual scene of influx and exodus—newcomers moving in where they find their native tongue spoken and the ambitious moving north and west after a few years of hard work and saving. Leon Crestohl is conducting his campaign for re-election in eight languages.

One change Miss Bouchard notes is the loss of voters since 1958. Although the population has risen about 3,000, the number of eligible voters has dropped by 6,000. The reason is that many newcomers have yet to qualify for citizenship.

All has been quiet so far in Cartier, but as one politician remarked, "it may be the calm before the storm."

New Stamp Is Designed By Woman

OTTAWA (CP)—A new stamp that goes on sale Aug. 22 to commemorate the centennial of Victoria, B.C., will pack a lot of history in its tiny area.

Designed by Mrs. Helen Bacon of Victoria, the stamp will show a miniature version of the first stamps issued in what now is British Columbia. The 1861 stamp, a 2½-cent rose, bore the likeness of Queen Victoria and the words "British Columbia Vancouver Island."

The new stamp will also show the legislature buildings at Victoria, along with sprigs of cedar wood, the provincial flower of the province. It says "1862-Victoria-1962".

Mrs. Bacon, who designed her first stamp only three years ago, is already a veteran in the field, honored by the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, Cercles des Fermieres of Quebec, and other groups affiliated to the Associated Country Women of the World.

This five-cent stamp depicted a female figure kneeling beside a tree topped by a globe and it was the first Canadian stamp designed by a woman.

70 Neighbors, Friends Mark 25th Anniversary

Over 70 friends, neighbors and relatives called to offer felicitations to Mr. and Mrs. James Barnett, 128 McDonald Avenue on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary on Sunday, June 3rd.

Many gifts, cards and flowers were received by Mr. and Mrs. Barnett over the weekend.

Refreshments were served to callers during the afternoon and early evening by Miss Susan Barett, a daughter, Miss Harriet Fry, a niece and Miss Joyce Miller.

At night, members of the immediate family were served a delicious buffet luncheon. A three tier "wedding cake" made by Miss Barnett was a feature. Arrangements for the anniversary celebration were made by Miss Barnett and her brother Keith Barnett.

After a social time was enjoyed, Mrs. Burt was presented with many and useful gifts for the little newcomer to-be by the Misses Sandra MacDonald and Heather Young.

After opening parcels, Mrs. Burt thanked all her friends, after which a buffet lunch was enjoyed by all. Those who helped Mrs. Brown with the party were Mrs. H. Wright; Mrs. W. Young; Mrs. D. Taylor and Mrs. B. Head.

Club Activities

EGGLETON "MUSSENGERS"

MADOC JUNCTION — The regular monthly meeting of the Eggleton Messengers was held at the school with 12 present and three adults in attendance.

The president, Glenn Stapley, opened the meeting with prayer which had been prepared by Lois Dandord and Dianne Prest.

The theme song "Sing Faith Looks Up To Thee," was sung with Wayne McMullen playing the hymns.

The Scripture selection was Psalm 34, read by Dianne Prest.

A lesson on "In The Bible," was given by Carol While.

Little Michael Craft gathered the offering. This was followed by a lovely number sung by four senior girls, Sheila Clarke, Lois Dandord, Carol White and Dianne Prest, with Mrs. Reide playing their accompaniment.

A reading, "Feed My Lambs" was given by Sheila Clarke, describing the work done by an orphanage in Korea which cared for young children from babies up to age five years.

The leader, Mrs. Maurice Clarke, explained the Messenger objective, and told the pupils where the offerings would go. At a short service to be held some time soon (during an afternoon church service), two pupils were chosen to take the part. Kenneth Dandord to read the Scripture selection and Sheila Sandra Stapley to present the Messenger money to the Missionary and Maintenance Supervisor, Mr. Carl Bridged.

The Messenger motto, "This is God's Message . . . that we should love one another." 1 John 3:11, was written on the blackboard by Lois Dandord, so all the pupils could memorize it.

Dianne Prest passed a sheet of note paper for each one present to sign — this and a card are to be sent to Mrs. Dyson.

The pupils enjoyed singing a few favorite choruses.

Mrs. Clarke told an interesting story, "The Three Surprises."

During a short recreation period the pupils were divided into four groups with Terry Kovach, Billie Clarke, Eddie Stapley and Ronald Craft as leaders. All took part in a treasure hunt.

The "World Friends" papers were distributed by Carol Dandord, Lois Dandord and Billy Stapley.

Cookies and beverage was candy to be served after the meeting closed.

Annette B. — If I can't have romance, I'd like a good night's sleep.

Stanley B. — Instead of romance, nothing, poor boy, I get snores.

* * *

Annette B. — We've been married 26 years. Now that our son is married and has moved out, I think my husband should move into his room and stay up there all night if he wants to. Instead, he reads books in bed, plays the radio and keeps me up half the night.

I'm an early-riser, no matter what time I retire. I used to force myself to stay awake in order to be more companionable to Stan who regards midnight almost like the beginning of the evening. But now at our stage of life, marriage is more a matter of habit and convenience to each of us, than of romance. And since he finds it convenient to open a new book or turn on a special program when I find it convenient to turn off the light and call it a day, why not be practical and keep out of each other's way? I want him to use the empty room.

* * *

Stanley B. — Of course, I'd prefer the company of my wife to that of a book or canned music, but try and get it!

I thought after our son grew up that Annette would be more time for me. But I discovered she's fallen into a habit of Me I can't possibly share — turning in right after supper. After a heavy meal, I like to take a walk, sit around after supper. After a heavy meal, I like to take a walk, sit around and talk a while, read or watch a show. My wife, on the other hand, disappears into the kitchen, washes quick work of the dishes, and the next thing I know she's in the bedroom, snoring! At this time I haven't even begun to think of sleep.

I work hard all day. The evening is my big time to light up a cigar and relax. If Annette can't keep me company, I'll carry my radio and solo pastimes into the living out of our room, she should try to join me, or move out herself!

* * *

The Council: There are only two conclusions Stanley can draw from Annette's flight from his "morpheus" arms. Either she suffers from an insomniac urge toward sleep (some form of Narcolepsy) which should be investigated by a physician for a physical cause, or, she's avoiding him like the plague, which should be investigated by a marriage counselor.

But before permitting Stanley such a self-excusing out, let's see whether he and Annette can improve their stale relationship with a few do-it-yourselfers. If these don't work, the outside help mentioned above may then be enlisted.

Why is she so sleepy. If her health is good? She can doze in the daytime. Is her escape into the Land of Nod a defense against having to face Stanley? It seems to be.

After all, people marry for more than a few physical comforts, and financial benefits! How about sympathy, reassurance, fervent kisses, cozy talks?

The issue of the spare room may be serving a useful purpose here. It doesn't matter whether she falls asleep in the spare room or in the master bedroom. What does matter is that these two scourges the number of hours they enjoy in each other's presence, the area of overlapping interests and enthusiasms.

Suppose Stanley slips into the kitchen to help Annette with the supper dishes? That should open her drooping eyes, but wide! This might innervate her enough for that walk Stanley craves. Then, suppose Annette has spent part of her quiet day boning up on the same book Stan will be reading that evening? This should provide some lively conversational fodder for the way home.

This marriage needs the shot in the arm of deliberate effort by both parties. Let Stan bring home a small token some night, instead of the one old lunch box to be refilled. And let her practice staying awake by inviting friends over, or sending away for theatre tickets once in awhile. She can't snore standing up, Stan

H-S Assoc. Hears Topic on P. School Act

WELLINGTON — The annual meeting of the Home and School Association was held on May 29th in the school auditorium, with the president, Mr. Bev Gibson, in the chair.

He has spent part of his time at the Public School Act. Under this act there are to be more consolidated schools. They are now called Township schools. The name of this school will remain the same until made necessary to change. There will be no more annual ratepayers' meetings, and election of school board members will be held at the municipal elections. Mr. Snider also made some timely suggestions to aid the association.

Papuan Girls Look On Tattoo as Beauty Aid

PORT MORESBY, Papua — New Guinea (Reuters) — Thousands of Papuan girls are still inclined to look upon a good tattoo as a better beauty aid than cosmetics in their search for a husband.

Not all of them have any choice in the matter. Among some Central Papua tribes, tattooing is traditional.

Each design tells a story, and the grandpa — married girl will have many suitors. Everyone knows that a girl wearing an female all — covering tattoo has an important father and an important family.

"And we mark a "Y" on a woman's neck when she marries, to warn young men that she must now be faithful to her husband" — one Papuan said.

When old enough for the first tattooing, a girl is taken to the hut of the woman who is keeper of the clan's tattooing lore. The thorn of a native lemon is used as a needle.

If she has been brave, and shown no important family, a few quick lines are drawn on the forehead, on the chin and on the cheeks. A child may be tattooed on the centre of her face unless her father has been the leader of a successful and dangerous trading expedition in a canoe.

When the girl reaches puberty, her back is tattooed.

Her legs are tattooed only M some time to the history of the village. Her father has given a great feast.

Later, when she reaches marriageable age, the girl's thighs are tattooed.

Papuan men are tattooed only in exceptional circumstances.

'Newfoundland's Songbird' Made Singing Debut at Nine

By ELIZABETH BARRETT
Canadian Press Correspondent

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Mary Lou Collins is known as "Newfoundland's Songbird."

The 17 - year - old entertainer, who has just completed her 12th year at Memorial University, made her singing debut at nine and cut several records for Rodeo Records, a Halifax company, when she was 13.

In 1960 she competed on "Talent Carousel," a national CBC-TV show featuring local talent from each province.

"I didn't win, but I enjoyed it," she says. "They were such perfectionists. . . . They wanted everything just right and you might have to practise one song 37 times."

She now sings on a half-hour weekly CBC radio show and also appears at the Old Mill, a nightclub on the outskirts of St. John's, once a week.

"Singing relaxes me," says the pretty brunette. "I've never really been afraid of an audience."

Alternately bouncy and quiet, she switches from mood to mood in seconds. Her preferences are Dixie and folk music as "anything listenable" — and she likes to take old standards and dress them up. The Nearness of You and Once In A While are two Collins standards.

DECIDED TO STAY

Mary Lou graduated from St. John's Holy Heart of Mary High School last June and originally planned to go to Toronto to try to break into the entertainment business there.

A university scholarship changed her mind. A straight A student, she still intends to make a career of music.

The disappointments of professional entertainment don't bother her. "All you need is one good break."

She takes no mask lessons but perfects her sometimes gay, sometimes plaintive contralto by practising by herself at odd moments. Her ultimate ambition is nightclub work.

Because of singing and college, Mary Lou seldom has time to go out with friends. She dates when she has time but occasionally regrets the fact that she has missed a lot of growing up by being a singer.

Is marriage included in her future plans? "None of my future plans ever work out! I'd like to get married when I'm about 22 or 24."

She hasn't decided about the immediate future. "But I want to sing. I love it."

Strawberry Party Dessert

by Mary Moore

Brace yourselves for a barrage of strawberry recipes.

The first one which I am giving you today is new and recommended by no less than the self-appointed "expert on all things strawberry" Pete. He even pronounced it better than strawberry shortcake. I don't know about that but it is extra good. It may — it should — be made about 4 or 5 hours in advance.

STRAWBERRY MERINGUE:

Meringue: 3 large egg whites, 1½ cups granulated sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1½ teaspoons lemon juice, 1 cup water. Filling: ½ pint 35% cream, 1 quart fresh strawberries.

To the sugar add the baking powder and salt and mix them. In a large bowl, beat the egg whites until softly peaked then gradually add sugar mixture while beating, until meringue is very stiff. Fold in the vanilla, lemon juice and water. Butter a deep 10" pie plate generously. Turn meringue into it and with large spoon draw sides up high and make depression at centre. Bake at 250 deg. Fahr. for 1¼ hours. Turn off oven heat and leave meringue in closed oven for another ½ hour. Remove and allow to cool at room temperature.

Beat until stiff ½ pint heavy cream. Do not sweeten the cream. Spread over cooled meringue leaving about 2" uncovered at outside rim. Chill for 2 or 3 hours. At serving time cover whipped cream with 1 quart washed, drained and sliced, slightly sweetened strawberries. I sweetened the strawberries with 2 tablespoons of sugar only. Serves 7 or 8 and cut into wedge-shaped pieces.

Important Note: If you do not have a 10" pie plate, place aluminum foil on a cookie sheet. Trace a circle with the tip of spoon about 10" in diameter. Butter the foil. Heap meringue on circle, piling the edges to form a high border and making depression at centre. The meringue rises mightily with the baking powder in and expands to 12 or more inches across. Filled with the sliced red strawberries nestling in the white whipped cream it is a gay and impressive dessert. Ideal for a dessert party in June.

It will save time if I quickly run through the Strawberry Shortcake method: Use the Tea Biscuits Supreme dough: Two cups all-purpose flour (sifted but not sifted), 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, ½ cup good quality shortening or margarine or butter, 2-3 cup milk. Sift together into mixing bowl flour, baking powder, cream of tartar, salt and sugar. Into these dry ingredients cut the shortening or butter with pastry blender until the size of small peas. Add milk all at once and quickly stir in. Turn out on flour-sprinkled board, pat smoothly to ¾" thickness. With side of hands shape into smooth lopped round about the size of a layer cake tin. Carefully lift to buttered cake tin or cookie sheet and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 12 to 15 minutes. Cool. Split into 2 layers. Put plenty of sliced sweetened strawberries between, whipped cream on top and decorate with whole perfect berries.

The man for all Canada

LEADERSHIP that is firm in principle; Leadership on the side of the average man; Leadership dedicated to helping the weak and oppressed, ranged against the self-interests of the powerful.

After 22 years of Liberal rule, John Diefenbaker restored the Government of Canada to the people. His policies are devoted to the interests of the average man; his program means fair shares in the nation's growth and prosperity for all parts of Canada. His purpose is one Canada, united, free and independent.

John Diefenbaker brought a new era of Social Justice and Human Betterment to the Canadian people, putting an end to the Liberal "six-buck" mentality which, in an era of uncontrolled inflation, meant distress and suffering to tens of thousands of Old Age Pensioners, Veterans, Disabled Persons and their families.

Until John Diefenbaker restored Parliament as the free voice of the nation, "divine right" Liberals rode rough-shod over Canada's parliamentary traditions and powerful bureaucrats flaunted the rights of the people.

Until John Diefenbaker brought a new deal to Agriculture, the Canadian farmer was denied markets for his produce, while his income fell below subsistence levels. Mountains of unsold wheat once loomed over the Canadian economy; today, Canada is the largest wheat for cash nation in the world.

The dead hand of defeatism was removed from Canada's Trade and Commerce Department. In 1961, Canada sold more goods abroad than she imported for the first time in nine years... an overall change of nearly $900 Million.

The Diefenbaker Government gave Canadians title to their own natural resources. After years of Liberal neglect and default, the people of Canada are today rightfully sharing in the wealth of their own inheritance.

The Government of John Diefenbaker gave the Atlantic Provinces new measures of equality and opportunity. While leading Liberal centralists recommended the expulsion of "surplus" Maritimers from their native provinces, and advised cutting off further aid to the coal industry, John Diefenbaker acted on the just claims of the Atlantic area for a fair deal.

Canada's Prime Minister spoke out for the captive nations of the world, enslaved by Communist colonialism; upheld principle in the Commonwealth by standing firmly against racial discrimination; gave Canada's Indian population the full franchise... a basic right long denied them. His has been the consistent voice speaking for those who must be voiceless because of tyranny, discrimination and prejudice.

John Diefenbaker has the continuing trust of the Canadian people; his courage, principle, wisdom and compassion are the qualities of leadership Canada needs to achieve her national destiny.

For First Time in Years Quebecers Showing Few Signs of Political Favor

QUEBEC (CP)—For the first time in years during a federal election campaign, Quebecers are showing few signs of their famous political fever.

It's almost as if they have already made up their minds how they will vote June 18 and nothing the politicians say will sway them.

There appear to be no overriding issues that grip the voters and divide them along set lines. Political rallies have been comparatively poorly attended as more and more campaigning is done on radio and television.

That may be one reason why there have been few major public displays of political sentiment so far. Traditionally, too, as one party organizer recalled, the campaigns in many ridings warm up in the two weeks between nomination day — Monday, June 4, this year—and voting day.

The biggest rally in the first days of the campaign was a Social Credit meeting in Quebec City with more than 6,000 gathered to hear national leader Robert N. Thompson.

LEADERS TO RETURN

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal leader Lester Pearson both made short visits in the Eastern Townships, the mixed farming - small industries southeast of Montreal, and around Rimouski and Riviere-du-Loup, on the south shore of the Lower St. Lawrence. Mr. Pearson also visited Saguenay district.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, campaigned in Quebec City and in St. Johns.

All four leaders are scheduled to return later.

A point of particular interest in Quebec is the question of what bearing the Liberal administration of Premier Jean Lesage may have on the Quebec vote federally.

In 1958, when the Progressive Conservatives took 50 seats and the Liberals slipped to 25 from 67 in 1957, the Union Nationale's powerful organization gave its full support to the Conservative party.

Since then, however, the Union Nationale has met defeat in 1960—at the hands of a resurgent provincial Liberal party under Mr. Lesage, a former federal cabinet minister. The Union Nationale was wracked by dissension at the top echelon in the months following its defeat.

PREMIER NOT INVOLVED

Mr. Lesage is personally steering clear of the federal campaign — as is Union Nationale leader Daniel Johnson—but his organization, and some Liberals in the legislature are helping their federal brothers. One standout example is Maurice Sauve, a key planner of the federal victory in 1960. He is one of the party's top organizers now and is a candidate in Iles-de-la-Madeleine, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the country's smallest constituency.

The Liberals are campaigning on the theme that their 75 candidates form a team that should be sent to Ottawa to defend the province's rights under the constitution.

Leading party candidates include Lionel Chevrier, former Liberal transport minister, in Montreal Laurier; C. M. (Bud) Drury, Montreal businessman, in Montreal St. Antoine - Westmount; Maurice Lamontagne, economic adviser to Mr. Pearson, in Quebec East, and Jean-Baptiste Lemoyne, president of the Catholic Farmers' Union, in St. Hyacinthe-Bagot.

Mr. Drury, former deputy defence minister, and Mr. Lemontagne, who lost the traditionally Liberal riding of Quebec East in 1958, are both considered cabinet material, if they are elected and party wins.

The Progressive Conservatives are campaigning basically on the Diefenbaker record and personality. Their slogan in French Canada is "With Diefenbaker—there's no mistake."

Seeking re - election are Quebec province's six representatives in the cabinet. They are State Secretary Dorion in Bellechasse; Associate Defence Minister Sevigny in Longueuil; Mines Minister Flynn in Quebec South; Postmaster General Hamilton in Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace; Transport Minister Balcer in Trois - Rivieres and Defence Production Minister O'Hurley in Lotbiniere.

Hon. Paul Comtois, who resigned as federal mines minister last year when he was appointed Quebec's lieutenant-governor, was a member of the original cabinet team from Quebec appointed when the Conservatives took over in 1957. The Conservative seeking to succeed Mr. Comtois in Nicolet-Yamaska is Clement Vincent.

Progressive Conservative MPs in Montreal St. Jacques, Montreal St. Antoine - Westmount and Saguenay have retired from federal politics after a term. Party organizers say they have strong candidates in three Liberal - held constituencies: newspaper man, Clement Drouin, in Montreal Dollard; Robert Fleet, mayor of Sorel, in Richelieu - Vercheres; and lawyer Marc Lecoste in Montreal Outremont-St. Jean.

Two of the cabinet ministers were involved in controversies earlier this year. But the controversies have not figured in the campaign.

Mr. Dorion hired handwriting experts to prove he had not signed a letter written in his name thanking Quebec liquor police for help received in Bellechasse during the 1958 election campaign. Mr. Sevigny found himself the centre of argument as a result of statements later withdrawn— Communist activity in some South American countries.

Mines Minister Flynn, appointed to the cabinet only last December, is looked on by some as Mr. Diefenbaker's new right-hand man in the province. Transport Minister Balcer is being given much of the credit for the removal of tolls on the Victoria and Jacques - Cartier bridges in Montreal.

SOCIAL CREDIT SURPRISE

Postmaster General Hamilton is campaigning at bus stops and in the subways, a tactic he credited with winning him election originally in 1953. Production Minister O'Hurley while spending most of his time in his own constituency also is being called on to speak at party rallies in various parts of the province.

A surprise of the current campaign is the growing vocal support for the Social Credit party, especially in marginal farm areas around Quebec City, the Lower St. Lawrence and Northwestern Quebec. The party has a candidate in every riding, most of them unknowns but described as "new blood."

Real Caouette, 44, deputy national leader and candidate in Villeneuve in northwestern Quebec's mining area, is the only Social Creditor ever to be elected in the province. He won in a byelection in Pontiac - Temiscamingue in 1946 and was defeated in the general election in 1949.

Party organizers say their top candidates include C. E. Dionne, former secretary of a Quebec woodworkers' union, in Kamouraska; Gerard Ouellette, former boss on the executive of the Catholic Farmers' Union, in Rimouski; Dr. Guy Marcoux, prominent Quebec City doctor, in Quebec - Montmorency, and Laurent L'Esperance, provincial party organizer, in Pontiac-Temiscamingue.

Both the Social Crediters and the New Democratic Party have no effort to hide their lack of election funds. They pass the hat around at meetings.

Leaders of the Quebec Labor Federation, who have asked their 235,000 members to support NDP candidates, have never got out to collect donations from worker's coming out factory gates.

The 110,000 - member Confederation of National Trade Unions has not committed itself, but many of its leaders and local officials are working for the NDP.

The NDP, which expects to have between 40 and 50 candidates, is aiming its campaign at getting the vote of organized labor. Unemployment and constitutional reform are the two themes NDP speakers are hitting hardest.

Candidates include two McGill University professors, Charles Taylor, Montreal Mount Royal, a Liberal - held riding, and C. G. Gifford, running in Outremont-St. Jean against General Hamilton.

Jean-Claude Lebel, the NDP's provincial organizer, is running in Lake St. John. Two top labor organizers, Fernand Daoust of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, and Emile Boudreau of the United Steelworkers of America, are running in the Liberal-held ridings of Montreal Maisonneuve - Rosemont and Montreal Dollard, respectively.

No Official Conclusions For Commonwealth Parley Which Ended in Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Officially, no conclusions are reached by the Duke of Edinburgh's Second Commonwealth Study Conference, which ends here today.

But individually, the 300 delegates in the 10-day travelling seminar obviously have concluded it was a tremendous success and that more such conferences should be staged to promote international understanding.

"The conference is the answer to a lot of questions in the world today," said Michael S. Elder of Jamaica, one of several delegates interviewed in a random sampling of opinion about the effectiveness of the project.

"It proves how everybody — of different races — can look—can get together in harmony and discuss their problems, having their differences, of course, but coming to a reasonable conclusion calculated for the good of all."

Mr. Elder, a native of Lagos, Nigeria, said "the very idea of the conference is most laudable and should be carried on as part of our subject matter, the idea of getting together from all parts of the Commonwealth to settle, appears to be the most effective way of getting understanding among nations."

The conference was established at the suggestion of Prince Philip who was scheduled to deliver the closing address today, was built around the theme: Future consequences of the changing industrial revolution.

It brought delegates from 35 Commonwealth countries together in discussion groups and took them, together and in separate groups, to communities across the country.

These deliberations were held in private, but there was much encouraging unpublished debate, and a formal statement of the conclusions will be issued.

Delegates were to establish a Commonwealth Association of Industrial Management, along with the 40,000 tough troops now stationed in Tunisia and Morocco.

FIRMER HAND

They can be counted on to put down terrorism with a much harder hand "than has been used by the French-Moslem provisional executive now in control.

French officials say the military and political leaders of the Secret Army are seriously divided, with the politicians urging negotiations—with the Moslems and the military wing pressing for continuation of the terror campaign.

The exodus of European settlers, which averaged about 1,000 a day during April and May, now is reported running at more than 8,000 a day. Last Saturday alone 67 refugee planes took off from Algiers for Orly.

While this outflow could deal a damaging blow to the Algerian economy, now in European hands, it also indicates a leasing field in the Secret Army's chances of success.

CALL TRUCE

The encouraging of all, perhaps, was the Secret Army election last Thursday to call a truce — during the voting — to attempts to seek negotiations with the Moslem leadership even after the vote was expired at midnight Monday.

While its exact strength has never been known, some observers have estimated that it now has a nucleus of only 200 terrorists, actively backed by some 1,000 Europeans.

Only a few weeks ago, the Secret Army warned of an action "hard violent, terrible and definitive" against anyone "during the course of events" before the July 1 referendum.

Now there appears to be doubt as to whether the organization still has the strength to mount such an action.

APPOINT MAGISTRATE

VICTORIA (CP) — The B.C. government has appointed John Norman Nelson as stipendiary magistrate for Lower Post, a tiny mixed community of Indians and white miners near the Yukon border. Previously the town was served by a visiting magistrate from Watson Lake, 15 miles away, who described Lower Post as "a hell hole." Last month Rev. Yves Levasque of Lower Post came to Victoria to see a petition for fulltime policing.

John Bassett Of Telegram Is Denounced

TORONTO (CP) — The Telegram was attacked Tuesday night by Robert H. Thompson, national leader of the Social Credit party, and Premier Bennett of British Columbia at a party rally in Massey Hall.

Mr. Thompson included an attack on Telegram publisher John Bassett, Conservative candidate in Toronto Spadina riding, and the newspaper's coverage of Social Credit activities.

Mr. Bennett "challenged" Mr. Bassett to denounce a story that appeared in Tuesday's paper or quit the Conservative campaign.

Both were referring to a story which said the party's Ontario president resigned, accusing the party leadership of "Fascism."

Mr. Bennett waved a copy of The Telegram's first edition, with the banner headline "Social chief resigns."

"Why do they play it up?" Mr. Bennett asked "Because they're scared."

He said the resignation of A. D. Patterson took place more than a month ago, "and here's Mr. Bassett publishing a letter and a story that's more than a year old."

ASKS DENOUNCE

"I call on you, Mr. Bassett, as a Conservative candidate in Toronto and publisher of this paper, to denounce these attacks in equal headline . . . or as a Canadian challenge him and say he should withdraw from this election campaign."

Mr. Thompson asked Mr. Telegram story "cringe dishonor" on Canada's journalism.

"I guess Diefenbaker said to his basset hound, Dirk, and his barbers."

He said the story indicates the Conservatives "are running very scared."

"What can have made the resignation of somebody today, except for a chance to smear a political party that has become a power to be reckoned with."

PROMISE "NOT KEPT"

He said Mr. Bassett or the Telegram had phoned Social Credit headquarters after the first edition of the paper and they told us it would be omitted from further editions and the apology printed—but the promise was not kept."

He said later editions had continued to carry the story, with the statement that the investigation had just come to light.

The Telegram, he said, "has deliberately chosen to give us recognition to this party in this campaign."

Mr. Blebeaunu, 40, controller of staff and buildings in the Nigerian ministry of communications, said he thought the Nigerian ministry of communications, also, could benefit. he has learned some lessons in community development which will help his country—some of the urbanization problems Canadian communities have had.

Scott Carpenter Meets Kennedy, Gets Reception

NEW YORK (AP)—Astronaut Malcolm Scott Carpenter was welcomed home in Washington and New York Tuesday with a parade and hanging orbital flight of last month.

The 37-year-old navy lieutenant-commander was given a civic luncheon at New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel that future Space Flights "can bring you back riches in all fields of science unless you will stagger ,your imagination."

"Greater steps will be made in all fields of science unless possibly the discovery of fire," Carpenter added.

In the capacity luncheon crowd were former presidents Herbert Hoover and Harry S. Truman. The latter, with characteristic candor, told the audience of Carpenter:

"You has done something I wouldn't even have had the nerve to give me the moon if he could."

Earlier, Carpenter, his blonde wife, Rene, and their four children had flown from Langley Field, Va., to Washington to receive personal congratulations from President Kennedy.

Kennedy — men who have taken part in there flights," the president said.

"I cannot imagine better representatives of what we like to think our country stands for

Legion Gives Formal Approval For New Badge

HALIFAX (CP)—The Royal Canadian Legion Tuesday gave formal approval to its new badge, a design first passed with, out the stiff opposition expressed from the floor of the Legion's annual convention.

Although the new badge, which bears a fleur-de-lis motto and replaces a maple leaf design imposed on the Union Jack with a maple leaf on a plain field, was introduced two years ago, it had never been formally approved by the legion. Nearly 2,200 delegates gave this approval Tuesday with the proviso that the old badge "may be freely worn."

There were some brief words of opposition from unidentified delegates but the resolution was quickly passed.

The new badge bears at the base the word "Legion." The old badge had the words "Canadian Legion" on a ribbon which means "we will retain their memory" with the poppy superimposed on the shield. The new badge is surmounted by the imperial crown, as was the old one.

The Dominion command felt the word Canadian was made superfluous by use of the maple leaf, Brig. Gen. Sherwood Lett said the inscription should have been bilingual.

Male Fashion Show Put on For Commuters

NEW YORK (AP)—When a few of the girls on the 8:28 out of Stamford started giggling this morning, male clingly growled "shock it off" without looking up from his card game.

Another male commuter peeked out from behind his morning newspaper and gasped, "My God!"

For, strolling down the aisle of one of the New Haven Railroad train's 12 cars were four male models clad in Bermuda shorts and accompanied by former Yankee second baseman Jerry Coleman, an apparel manufacturer of which Coleman now is sportswear sales manager, was presenting a male fashion show.

As the manufacturer had figured, "in a market survey that has been made the New Haven commuters are among the company's leading customers for shirts and sportswear," said the announcement to the press) most of the passers-by looked.

"He's cute," said one woman, eyeing Coleman, who agreed about five minutes in each car describing the latest thing in summer sportswear.

"My knees are cold," said a model.

One Candidate Disqualified Because of Age

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Disqualification of a New Toundland Social Credit candidate because he was 20 years old has reduced the record field of 1,017 men and women for the June 18 Dominion election.

William Stoyles, returning officer for Bonavista West, said Tuesday a check of church records showed William J. Bowe, who fought he would be 22 Aug. 4, will be only 21 on that date. The constitution says 21 to qualify for election under the Canada Elections Act.

Earlier in the day a recheck of official nominations reported by Canadian Press reporters showed one New Democratic Party candidate's name had been omitted and a Social Credit candidate listed although he had not filed nomination papers.

The changes increased NDP's total to 218, of whom 40 are in Quebec. The Social Credit total moved to 226, with 72 of these in Ontario and one in Newfoundland.

Jean Philip qualified as NDP candidate in the Quebec riding of Terrebonne before nominations closed at 2 p.m. local Standard Time Monday but was not included among candidates reported at the time. Gordon Hughes, listed as SC representative in the Ontario constituency of Prince Edward-Hastings-Frontenac, did not file.

GAS WAR ENDS

BRANTFORD (CP)—A 10-day gasoline price war ended Tuesday as stations which had cut four cents of the regular price returned to the customary 39.9 cents a gallon and 44.9 cents for premium. Some highway stations outside the city still were charging 34.9 and 39.9 cents. It was low price that started the war in he city.

Time Appears Running Out for the Secret Army

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Secret Army Organization appears to be running out of time in its desperate campaign to keep Algeria French.

Less than four weeks remain before the self - determination referendum in which the 9,000,000 Moslems in the huge North African territory are expected to sweep the 1,000,000 or so European settlers.

The referendum is scheduled for July 8. This is the date the European associates of what is often called "Salan's own private army" are presenting a mass fashion show.

As the manufacturer had figured, "in a market survey that has been made the New Haven commuters are among the company's leading customers for shirts and sportswear," said the announcement to the press)

Fire Moderator For Remarks On Eichmann

MONTREAL (CP) — Radio station CKGM said Tuesday Herb Manning has been replaced as moderator of its program Mind following a controversy over Mr. Manning's remarks concerning the execution of Adolph Eichmann.

Mr. Manning, former Winnipeg and Toronto newspaperman and magazine writer, said after the station's action his views are that there is no "valid excuse for taking the life of a human being."

During the program, listeners telephoned the station to discuss topical questions with the moderator and special guests.

A crowd of more than 200 persons gathered outside the station Friday night after Mr. Manning, declaring his opposition to capital punishment, said he felt the execution of one man was a murder as was the execution of Eichmann's Jewish victims. A brick was thrown through a window of the station.

Mr. Manning's guest on the Thursday night program was Leon Cresrohl, prominent spokesman for the Montreal Jewish community. Mr. Cresrohl is a Liberal Dominion election candidate in Montreal Cartier riding.

Mr. Cresrohl suggested that Mr. Manning apologize to the Montreal Jewish community for his remarks on the Eichmann case and left the studio when Mr. Manning refused.

Bread Prices Will Go up In Near Future

TORONTO (CP)—The price of bread is virtually certain to increase during the next few days, bakery spokesmen said Tuesday.

Devaluation of the Canadian dollar was given as a cause of the price rise, along with higher wages.

Frank Riddell, a director of George Weston Limited, said: "We are shocked flour and when this runs out, what with a 25-week wage increase and an increase in the price of flour, bread prices are almost certain to rise."

John Mascarin, manager of Canada Bread Company, said bread prices will rise "a cent or two."

The president of Maple Leaf Mills, C. E. Soward, said devaluation raised the price of wheat and the increase will be reflected in the price of bread.

Canadian wheat is sold at an internationally fixed price in terms of U.S. dollars. Devaluation of the Canadian dollar increases the price of wheat in rise when purchased with Canadian funds.

Trans-Ocean Air Fairs Will Be Increased

OTTAWA (CP)—After July 16 Canadians will pay about eight per cent more for trans-ocean air fares.

Such a request by the International Air Transport Association, originally filed about three months ago, has been reluctantly shelved by the Air Transport Board, it was announced today, a board spokesman said Tuesday.

The increases are being brought about because of the Canadian dollar's drop in relation to the U.S. dollar. Basic agreements on international air fares are made in terms of American money.

The increases are roughly equal to the difference between Canadian and American money although the spokesman said some fares vary slightly from this.

A Montreal-London economy class return fare will cost $494.30 after July 16. The present rate is $457.20.

Fares between Canada and the United States are not affected. These fares are set by agreement between the two countries and do not come under IATA.

Air freight will be affected.

31,000 Persons Hear Graham In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham told a crowd of 31,000 persons Tuesday night his day night a "decision for Christ" be made while a person is young.

Graham, speaking to 31,000 persons in lakeside McCormick Place, said the youth of the U.S. has become restless and is "cynical of the phoniness of the plastic age."

"Throw a frog into hot water," Graham said, "and it will jump out. Put it in cold water, and gradually heat the water, and it will boil. It is that way with the people today by little you become hard."

KILLED BY TRUCK

TORONTO (CP) — Thomas Francis Hurley, 24, a Toronto newsvendor, was killed Tuesday when he was thrown under the wheels of a truck.

Civic Leaders Mark 150th Anniversary

BUFFALO (AP)—Civic leaders from both sides of the U.S.-Canadian border Tuesday marked the 150th anniversary of the start of the War of 1812 by hailing nearly 1½ centuries of harmony and peace between the two countries.

J. Keller Mackay, lieutenant-governor of Ontario, said such solidarity throughout the English-speaking world could be the basis for world-wide "democracy without vulgarity, excellence without arrogance."

The civic observance was sponsored by the Buffalo and Erie County Historical Society, the Greater Buffalo Advertising Club and Mayor Chester Kowal of Buffalo.

Kowal described relations between Canada and the U.S. as "the first great responsibility . . . based on the dignity and worth of the individual under the Fatherhood of God."

Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto said: "We should emphasize those things we have in common."

"We have developed bodies in both countries who work and are trying to make trouble."

The War of 1812, which lasted until 1815, was marked by many battles and naval engagements back and forth along the Niagara Frontier. At one point, a U.S. force burned Ville, which now is part of Toronto.

Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto said: "We should emphasize those things we have in common."

"We have developed bodies in both countries who work and are trying to make trouble."

But since 1815, the only military action between the two countries was the Fenian invasion of Canada in 1866. A group of Irish patriots crossed the river with the intention of capturing Fort Erie. The force, which was easily defeated in a brief battle, fled across the border to Buffalo, where its members were arrested.

Latin American Aid Plan Creeping Steadily Ahead Toward Signs of Trouble

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

MEXICO CITY (AP)—President Kennedy's ambitious and expensive Alliance for Progress is creeping steadily ahead—toward signs of trouble.

It is difficult to find anybody at any level in Latin America who will say he is optimistic about the program. Many are gloomy. Some see the alliance heading toward a state of emergency.

In some cases the alliance seems to be generating disgust, ignorance, disillusion and even fear that it will do more harm than good. The expectations it suddenly aroused are too great to be matched by performance. The program appears to have been vastly oversold as a U.S. effort and vastly undersold from the standpoint of what will be required from Latin Americans themselves.

EXECUTION TIMID

One of the best friends of the United States in Latin America told me:

"The concept of the Alliance for Progress was good. The president's proved to be timid, bureaucratic, slow and even-self-defeating. The slow approach by President Kennedy when he announced the alliance was revolutionary. But we see nothing but the same old stale tedium, the same old red tapegrams."

The alliance was announced by President Kennedy almost 18 months ago, At Punta Del Este, Uruguay, in August 1961, the charter was signed. The program envisioned spending $20 billion in public and private investment from the United States and Latin America in that period. The Latin effort was to be at least $80 billion of the $100 billion in that period. The charter pledged the participating nations to accomplish basic social economic reforms as a prerequisite for loans to speed development.

Are the reforms coming?

In capital after capital a reporter is told that there is agreement in principle that reforms are needed. There is even legislation drawn up. He is told there is a great deal of education that there must be land reform, tax reform, administrative reform and more equitable distribution of wealth.

LITTLE TANGIBLE DONE

For the most part, it seems to be lip service. Little tangible has been done. Laws get lost in congressional committees. Policies and political power go their way.

One hears, over and over, this criticism: The Yankees are running around in all directions getting other people to do what they should know how much money is available for what. Funds are "committed" but not disbursed." The money is dangled before governments as a sort of swifter movement on reforms, and while governments wait the program languishes.

The Americans reply that the people they are trying to help are the ones who are not ready. They point many of those people, representing mostly the wealthy classes who control most of the countries, have realized that the United States is wooing the left at their expense and that by operating what can become an uncontrolled revolution. Some of them suggest that the United States advance money without insisting upon immediate reforms.

BANK ABROAD

Yet, billions of dollars are denied to the governments of Latin countries because of their own wealthy classes lack confidence. The money is deposited mostly in Switzerland, Canada and European countries. It is not being invested by the Latins in their own countries.

Private sources estimate, for example, that from Colombia alone—a country of 15,000,000 people—the equivalent of $1 billion has been taken out of the country illegally in the last six years.

Mexico, considered one of the countries of Latin American progress, has $500,000,000 banked abroad by private citizens. There is no way of checking how much.

More and more one hears that the alliance has got off to a shaky start, that it is time to take a new look and start afresh.

RULES IS ILLEGAL

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Federal Judge Hector Vera Vallejo declared unconstitutional Tuesday night a decree by the military - directed government of President Jose Maria Guido nullifying Argentina's March 18 congressional elections. Vera Vallejo ordered the government to "cease and desist" from what he called repressive measures against Congress.

Business Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's index of the farm prices of agricultural products was estimated at 267.4 in April, up slightly from the March estimate of 266.6, the bureau of statistics said today.

The index is based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

Provincial indexes in April, with March index bracketed: Prince Edward Island 198.3 (176.1), Nova Scotia 216.3 (209.6), New Brunswick 198.6 (205.8), Quebec 274.7 (274.7), Ontario 285.7 (256.6), Manitoba 252.8 (252.8), Saskatchewan 220.4 (219.4), Alberta 239.9 (227.1), British Columbia 285 (281.9).

Production of skim milk powder packed in consumer-size containers amounted to about 3,871,287 pounds in April, up 807,717 pounds from February.

Factory sales of electric storage batteries and parts increased in April to 2,175,200 from $1,927,600 in the corresponding month last year.

Shipments in Canada of all kinds of fluid softwood increased in April to 27,167,475 square feet from 22,055,984 in April last year.

British Tories May Lose Two 'Safe' Ridings

LONDON (Reuters) — Voters in two northern England boroughs chose MPs in by-elections today with the ruling Conservatives given no more than 50-50 chance of retaining what were considered "safe" parliamentary seats.

Both the Middlesbrough West and the Dewsbury West constituencies were considered in danger of falling to either the Labor opposition or the resurgent Liberals.

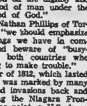
The seats were won by the Conservatives in the 1959 general elections by comfortable margins of more than 6,000 votes.

But heading into today's voting the Conservative stock was slipping badly in the wake of continued opinion polls and recent setbacks in other by-elections.

One opinion poll forecast a landslome win for Labor in Middlesbrough — but stressed it predicted the Conservatives would retain the constituency by a narrow margin.

The Derbyshire West, some 6 pollsters forecast, would go Liberal by a comfortable margin.

POPULARITY BETTER



The Liberals headed into today's voting buoyed by their seven seats in the 630 - seat House of Commons but their popularity had soared dramatically among British voters, discontended with the government's austerity measures.

The standing of the other parties under the by-elections were: Conservatives and allies 365 Labor 258, Independents 1 and vacant 4.

Before setting out—know your lake, and know your boat.

Boating Safety

By MATTHEW B. DYMOND, M.D., Health Minister for Ontario

The boating and fishing season is here and when a welcome thought after eight months away from the sights and sounds of our favorite waterways.

Your Ontario Department of Health would remind you of a few basic facts which have been widely publicized by the Ontario Safety League and other safety minded organizations. These can make boating more enjoyable and safer for everyone if observed:

Inspect your boat and all equipment to make sure that it is in good serviceable condition before putting it in the water. This applies to every type of craft: canoes, rowboats, sailboats or power boats. Be sure all safety equipment is there and usable. In any boat there should be a government approved life jacket for each passenger; even if you can swim, wear one. Government approved life saving cushions are particularly good for use in small craft which have no built-in upholstery. And don't forget the old-fashioned bailing bucket; it's still the surest and best way to bail water out of a boat. See that paddles or oars are in serviceable shape. Check navigation lights to be sure they are working if you intend to be out on the water after sunset.

The equipment mentioned above is required by government regulations in all outboard motor boats, 18 feet and under; so be sure you have it when the police check your boat. An approved fire extinguisher should be carried in all power boats and is required by law in many instances.

And a word of warning about over-loading; it is one of the common causes of boating fatalities. In June when the water is chilly and heavier clothing is still worn, don't load a boat to its full capacity; allow that margin of safety for emergencies.

Enjoy to the full our wonderful heritage of natural waterways; observe the time-proven rules of boating safety and show consideration and courtesy to all others on the water.

Now It Is Doctor Hope

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bob Hope, in cap and gown and smiling as ever as a gag-crasher, swished grandly into Georgetown University's commencement exercises and remarked:

"I get as out of place as President Kennedy at a meeting of the American Medical Association."

Thus, on the tree-shaded graduation day at Georgetown, Robert Hope — whose education was "thrown from high school in dancing school and vaudeville"—became an honorary doctor of humane letters.

It was one of the most rollicking graduation ceremonies in memory at the Roman Catholic university.

When Hope received the Latin citation of his degree, he quipped: "I can't wait until I get home and have my son read it to me."

CALLS TO SON

He called out to his son, Anthony, who was among the 1,506 receiving degrees: "Stump down, you make me feel like Alan Ladd."

The president of Georgetown, Very Rev. Edward B. Dunn, SJ, said the degree was awarded "for your salutary gift of laughter to an often-troubled world." The citation also called attention to his many trips overseas to entertain servicemen.

"The most profitable kind of education is that which makes a man happy in the knowledge that he is of some use to others," Hope told the graduates.

"... Give a little bit of yourself and it will come back in carloads. This is one of those comeback days for me."

As all commencement speakers, Hope had a few words of advice for the graduates.

Said Hope:

"My advice to young people going into the world: Don't go."

The nuclear arms amendment was advanced from the floor.

Alliance for Progress--Bah Rich Will Get All Money Say Latin-American Poor

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Juan Jose Benitez spat contemptuously on the hard dirt floor of his hovel.

"The Alliance for Progress! Yes, I have heard of it. But nothing will change. The ricos will get all the money. Always the rich (rich men) get all the money."

Juan Jose is better off than most heads of families living in the Barriadas — the vast slums which stretch for miles around the outskirts of Peru's capital. He is a worker of forman on an estate and he earns 80 cents for eight hours. On this he supports his wife and seven children.

His neighbors work eight hours for 20 cents. They are just peons—laborers.

Juan Jose Benitez and his neighbors are in the same boat as many thousands.

BIG SOCIAL PROBLEM

Slums are the plague of Latin America's cities, and housing an outstanding social problem.

Juan Jose Benitez' home is better than many because it has two rooms. Geese were wandering about inside the house. The only furniture was one big bed and a wooden table. Evidently the children slept on the dirt floor.

Barefoot Juan Jose did not own the house. It belonged to the landlord who owned the nearby hacienda. You could see the landlord's home in the distance, a picture of Latin American luxury.

Juan Jose can read and write, but he had hardly hope to put his children through school on what he makes. And he hates the ricos. "Gangsters, all of them," he told me, "like your own Capone."

"Who will win the election, now what will it mean to you?" I asked him. Perus national elections will be held Sunday.

HAVE NO SCHOOLS

"Who cares," he snapped. "We still will have no schools, no hospitals, no anything. It is all the same to us."

Lima is a city of 1,300,000 persons. Of these, about 500,000 live in the crowded slums. More leave it every day from the countryside in hopes of finding a better living.

In other areas the lower middle class lives in barracks-like slums where tuberculosis and other diseases are rampant. You can see piles of garbage in the streets, and children rummaging about in them seeking tidbits to eat.

There are homes whose water supply comes from outdoor public taps, one tap often supplying 25 or more families. You see bovels where there is scarcely any furniture at all—not even dishes for eating. Meat costs 45 cents a pound, so there is rarely any meat. They eat potatoes, corn and whatever they can scrounge cheaply for their meagre earnings.

Another day I visited some of the "callampas" in Valparaiso, a lovely Chilean city on the Pacific. The local storekeeper told me that two years he hadn't been able to save enough money to buy even the most elementary things. His wife and four children needed.

An elderly man told me: "Nobody in the government cares about us. How long can we go on this way?"

Valparaiso's slums are not as bad as many in Latin America, but still are bad enough to generate deep bitterness among a fairly sophisticated people who are becoming increasingly impatient.

Although Urged to Stay Home and Keep Quiet Monty Would Be Sorely Missed

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Most of the British columnists who impishly and persistently urge Viscount Montgomery to stay home and shut up would no doubt miss him if he ever heeded their advice.

His travels, his comments and his interest—some call it plain interference — in world affairs amuse his devoted fans, astound others and more often than not infuriate the people at the Foreign Office.

But his visits to world leaders —sometimes at his own invitation—and his facility for breaking a world crisis down into tasty, if not tactful, school-boy language makes him the delight of cartoonists, columnists and headline-writers.

His career can be turned in his wartime beret and baggy corduroy trousers for the scarlet and ermine of the House of Lords has been a rough one covering thousands of miles. His foes say he is completely naive politically; that he has no comprehension of the damage that statements by a man of his stature can cause in international affairs.

But many of his supporters, who remember him as Britain's great wartime hero, resent his treatment in the press and feel his prestige is unfairly depreciated by the comic, almost clownish, figure he is sometimes made out to be.

Emanuel Shinwell, Labor member of Parliament, once offered this rather qualified support in the House of Commons:

"It is not time, leaving aside the merits of some of the speeches made by the field marshal, that we stopped attacking one who is a fine soldier and an honorable man?"

Such support, quite possibly, is wasted on Monty. Once, drawing a distinction between professional and personal criticism, he commended:

"I, of course, suffer from both. I don't mind. I rather enjoy it, actually."

In 1959, when he termed the international situation "a frightful dog's breakfast," he hung on himself a catch phrase that still is synonymous with Monty and will follow his name into the obituary columns.

When he announced his intention to visit Moscow to "have a sit-down-round-the-table" with the "chaps" in the Kremlin, a wide circle of British officialdom expressed horror.

"As usual," wrote William Connor, columnist for the Daily Mirror, "few doubts enter his good-and-great mind."

Other newspapers joined in with headlines such as: "Come off it Monty" and "Monty! To an old and meddling soldier—fade away."

Said Connor, who writes under the name Cassandra:

"Field Marshal Montgomery has rendered his country great services. He can crown them with the final gift of silence."

Monty was undismayed. "I'm blowed if I can see why I should not go." And off he went.

For foreign office officials, still blushing over his then-recent television interview during a visit to the United States, the reasons were painfully clear. Monty, on that occasion, told the American people their leaders—Eisenhower and Dulles — were "not awfully well."

In world problems it was "a question of wisdom," he told the coast - to - coast audience, "and I would say that you have quite a bit to learn."

After Russia he went to Communist China and returned saying he found Mao Tse-tung "a fine chap" and that he would be happy to "go into the jungle with him." The humor writers had a field day with that one.

PRESCRIBES POISON

His most recent flash onto the front pages followed his comment that what Chancellor Adenauer of West Germany needs is "a dose of weed-killer."

"He's an old man and oversensitive," the 75 - year - old Monty told 400 senior officers at the Imperial College of Science. "A small dose would do."

In South Africa, where he went for a personal study of racial problems, he caused a stir by telling his white hosts that if they found themselves isolated in Africa from the north "I shall draw my sword and come and help you myself."

Not long ago he entertained the House of Lords by describing how a man is occupied during his 24 hours in the army. He spends seven years in bed, according to Monty's calculations, and three more years asleep "mostly in the afternoon."

Replied War Minister John Profumo:

"If we look at these statistics we could make a very strange interpretation of Field Marshal Montgomery's existence. Over the last 21 years the Field Marshal could have spent six months shaving, 3½ years eating and six years in telling other people what to do."

MONTY: UNDISMAYED — Viscount Montgomery's freely proffered pronouncements on touchy international situations often make him the butt of biting newspaper articles and cartoons. They don't appear to bother him, however, and he ignores their suggestions to stay at home and keep quiet. —(CP Photo).

British Columbia Voters Out of Step With Rest of Canada in Many Elections

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two federal elections ago, in 1957, one of Conservative John Taylor's supporters in Vancouver Burrard designed a campaign poster with two footprints and the words "Follow John."

The slogan caught on. Along with the plea to follow John Taylor to the victory he won, it was broadened to urge voters to follow John Diefenbaker, the national PC leader.

Today, as Prime Minister Diefenbaker campaigns for re-election June 18, his party is using the same idea with a twist —two footprints and the words "Keep in Step."

In point of fact, British Columbia voters have been out of step with the rest of Canada in nine of the 23 federal elections since the colony became a province in 1871.

The trend has become stronger in recent years, with more opposition than government members sent to Ottawa in seven of the last 11 elections.

EXCEPTION IN 1958

But tht in 1958, B.C. then sent 18 Conservatives to Parliament as part of Mr. Diefenbaker's record majority. The other four of B.C.'s 22 MPs were CCF.

Suggestions that B.C. voters are fickle are borne out by the fact that in the current campaign seven former B.C. MPs, in addition to members of the last parliament, are among the candidates.

In two ridings, where former Alberta MPs are running, the influence on B.C. politics of a steady influx of settlers from elsewhere in Canada is evident.

Jack Shaw, Social Credit MP for Red Deer, Alta., for years, is one of three former MPs trying to unseat Conservative Ged Pugh in Okanagan-Boundary. The others are CCF veteran Dean Jones and Liberal Elmore Philpott.

Hilliard Beyerstein, former Social Credit member for Camrose, Alta., seeks election in Burnaby-Richmond.

Several other former MPs were elected in the 1957 voting which turned the Liberals out and saw B.C. choose seven PC, seven, CCF, six Social Credit and two Liberal members.

ISSUES SIMILAR

The issues affecting B.C.'s decision are largely the same as those across the country: unemployment, fiscal policies, trade, national defence.

Particular emphasis on federal - provincial differences comes from the Victoria - Ottawa dispute over the Columbia River and how the international waters' power resources should be developed and paid for.

Few candidates mentioned the issue in B.C. in the early weeks of the campaign, indicating they may try to avoid it in order to prevent any incident that might delay settlement of the dispute. But few voters can be unaware of it following months of debate provincially.

Fighting between Victoria and Ottawa—whether those in power were of the same political stripe or not—has been common throughout B.C. history.

In the early years of Confederation the province fought with Ottawa over delays in the schedule of construction of the transcontinental line to the west coast. Since then it has had its federal governments over railways, freight rates, subsidies, immigration, social security and unemployment.

SOCIALISM IS FACTOR

Socialist factions have influenced B.C. politics, federally and provincially, since the First World War. The CCF has formed the official opposition at Victoria for more than 30 years.

Socialism continues as a factor in the current election, with the influence of organized labor applied through the New Democratic Party, formed through the unions' alliance with the CCF.

The NDP is running a full slate of 22 candidates, as are the Conservatives and Social Credits. The Liberals have 21. The Communist party has named a few nominees. As in the year, B.C. voters will have a wide selection to choose from.

And regardless of the national outcome, it's safe to predict little change in Victoria-Ottawa relations. B.C.'s personality, nurtured behind the Rocky Mountain curtain, will not be changed overnight.

Housing Co-Op Impresses Candidate Sees Local Industrial Expansion

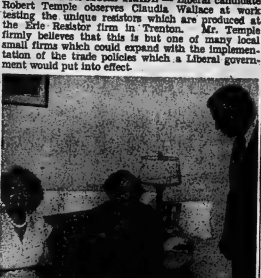
TRENTON — Liberal candidate Robert Temple waited both the young and the old of Trenton during one of his recent fact-finding trips when he visited several of the community's electronic components firms and the co-operative housing development for senior citizens.

The electronics firms — Erie Resistor and Essex Electronics were indicative to Mr. Temple of the vigorous new industrial growth which Trenton has been experiencing of recent years thanks to the encouragement, foresight and planning of the town's leading citizen, Liberal Senator William A. Fraser.

The Quinteview House development for senior citizens also was of great interest to Robert Temple, whose interest in the welfare of the senior members of the riding of Hastings South is well evidenced by him being chosen by the Liberal Party to announce their increased old age pension and portable pension plans on a recent coast-to-coast radio broadcast.

The elder members of the community certainly deserve credit for the initiative displayed in making this project a reality, Mr. Temple commented.

At the Erie Resistor firm, Mr. Temple was impressed by the firm's products especially the unique resistors which this firm makes for such specialized applications as satellite equipment. He firmly believes that this firm would establish a good market for its products if a positive governmental policy was taken regarding trade with the European Common Market.



The Liberal policy on trade is for freer trade with Great Britain, the United States and the Common Market countries, Mr. Temple advised. A positive approach in this direction could lead to the establishment of an Atlantic economic community in which Canada and Canadian industry would place an important part.

Liberal trade policy will also include tax incentives and adjustment grants for industries that expand to grasp new trading opportunities, the Liberal candidate advised. This sort of assistance is what has helped British and European industry to expand, he observed.

In addition a Liberal government is prepared to invite all other nations of the Free World to join in economic agreements to promote freer trade with Canadian industry, Mr. Temple stated.

ROOM FOR MORE TRADE — Liberal candidate Robert Temple observes Claudia Wallace at work testing the unique resistors which are produced at the Erie Resistor firm in Trenton. Mr. Temple firmly believes that this is but one of many local small firms which could expand with the implementation of the trade policies which a Liberal government would put into effect.

VISITS WITH SENIOR CITIZENS—Robert Temple, Liberal candidate for Hastings South, enjoys a chat with Mrs. H. M. Dow (left) and Mrs. Harry Coleman (centre) during his visit to the Quinteview House senior citizens' co-op development. The young candidate expressed admiration for the project and termed it an example of the goals which Canadian initiative could achieve through co-operation.

PEERS COMPETE

LONDON (CP) — Viscount Mackintosh of Halifax, chancellor of the new University of East Anglia, and the Earl of Hartwood, chancellor of the new University of York, are rivals in fund - raising. Lord Mackintosh promised to part with one of his prize Hereford cattle if York raises more money than East Anglia by the end of the year.

Publisher Says Papers Should Answer Critics

WINNIPEG (CP) — Newspapers should start answering their critics, Ross Munro, publisher of the Winnipeg Tribune, said Monday.

He advocated the establishment of a public-relations program to keep the public informed about newspapers.

"In short, we should advertise ourselves," he said. "We've been living on Cloud Nine in a rarefied atmosphere and it is time we came down to earth."

He told the triennial meeting of the Canadian Women's Press Club here that steps along this line are already occurring.

Fiery Skipper of Bluenose Campaigning for New Ship

By WALTER HAYES

LUNENBURG, N.S. (CP) — The thrill of a reeling deck and the sting of salt spray have long been lost to Capt. Angus Walters, fiery skipper of the famed Nova Scotia racing schooner Bluenose.

But the days of tall spars, sleek wooden schooners and the iron men who sailed them still hold a soft spot in the heart of the aging sea captain who traded his sea legs more than 30 years ago for a dairy in the sea-faring town of 2,500.

Capt. Walters, 81 on June 9, finds his memory still spread with pleasant memories of an era that has almost vanished from the Atlantic coast.

"It's sort of too bad it's all over," he said. "The ships are gone and many of the masters are gone too."

Capt. Walters is determined, however, not to let his era pass into history.

He derides his time between his dairy and a campaign for a new Bluenose. At the same time he is recuperating from a serious operation last winter.

TAKES IT EASY

Before the operation he appeared at his dairy every day at 6:45 a.m. The doctor says I've got to take it easy for a while and I can't come to work as early as I used to."

When the Bluenose was wrecked on a Haiti reef in 1946, four years after Capt. Walters sold her to Havana interests, he wanted to fly to the Caribbean to try to salvage her. He couldn't raise the money.

For a long time after, he kept asking the navy to send divers to the wreck every time they did during naval exercises in that area. "Just to ask what is left of the Bluenose or perhaps save some part of her.

During the last few years he has directed his efforts toward a campaign for a new Bluenose to be built at the same Lunenburg yard with the same plans as the original.

He said the time is nearing when the money-raising part of the campaign will begin. A new Bluenose would cost about $250,000.

Bluenose has become almost a legend in Nova Scotia and is remembered by yachting circles throughout the world. The sleek 143-foot schooner appears on the Canadian dime and was once featured on a stamp. The Nova Scotia Regiment carried her outline on its flag into battle during the Second World War.

She was launched at the Smith and Rhuland yard here in 1921 and was never beaten in official competition in four North Atlantic Fishermen's championships, although a fifth series ended in "no contest" because of a technicality. She was designed by W. J. Roue of Dartmouth, N.S.

Capt. Walters was born here of German - Scottish parentage in 1881, one of 13 children. He went to sea at 13 with his father Capt. Elias Walters. From a humble job slitting cod he worked until he obtained his master's ticket.

"The fishermen along the shore used to call me one of the worst of them all," he laughs. "But I never had any trouble getting a crew."

GAMBLING TOTAL

LONDON (CP) — Bingo addicts spent £35,000,000 last year, says the Churches' Council on Gambling. The council estimates a total of £762,000,000 was gambled in 1961, an increase of £79,000,000 over the previous year.

Business Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Stocks of creamery butter in nine cities of Canada dropped to 31,083,000 pounds June 1 from 60,122,000 pounds a year previous, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Stocks of cheddar cheese increased by 772,000 pounds to 23,453,000 pounds; and holdings of cold storage eggs rose by 2,000 cases to 15,000 over the same period.

Steel ingot production in Canada during the week ended June 2 was 130,407 tons a decrease of 77 tons from the preceding week's output. Production in the like week last year was 127,295 tons.

Canadian department store sales in the week ended May 26 were three per cent greater in value than sales in the corresponding week last year.

The federal government employed 337,083 persons in March, 333 fewer than in March last year. Earnings were $127,300,000 in the month, an increase of $5,095,000 from wages in March last year.

Canadians owed about $3,752,000,000 at the end of March to finance companies, department and furniture stores and to chartered banks for personal loans, an increase of $25,000,000 from credit balances owed at the end of March last year.

Government Overturned 8 Times by Canadians In 24 General Elections

By FRASER MacDOUGALL

OTTAWA (CP) — Eight times in 24 general elections, Canadian voters have overturned their government, voting one political party out of office and bringing another in.

Conservatives and Liberals, only parties ever to form a federal government, share the turnover victories with four apiece. The Conservative triumphs came in 1878, 1911, 1930 and 1957, the Liberal victories in 1872, 1896, 1921 and 1935.

Among provinces, Nova Scotia has been the most consistent follower of the country's turnover trend. Among constituencies, its capital city of Halifax leads the 40 that date back to Confederation.

Nova Scotia, in electing its members of Parliament, has switched with the trend five times in the eight turnovers. On two other occasions, 1896 and 1911, it chose an equal number of MPs from the two major parties. In turnover year 1930 it went Conservative but this wasn't a switch since it had been Conservative in 1926.

Prince Edward Island, which entered Confederation in time for the 1874 election and qualifies for consideration in seven of the turnover votes, went with the country four times. Twice it was involved in a deadlock—a tie in 1911 after being Liberal, and going Liberal in 1921 from a 1917 tie.

Manitoba followed the turnover pattern four times, Ontario and British Columbia three. Quebec, New Brunswick one. Each voided in all eight turnover elections.

Three provinces have never followed the country on turnovers. They are Saskatchewan and Alberta, which voted in five turnover contests since their first general elections as provinces in 1908, and Newfoundland, involved in one since it became a province in 1949.

Halifax has gone with the turnover trend 5½ times, the fraction coming about because it elects two members. In 1896 it defeated one Conservative, replacing him with a Liberal for the half turnover, but elected the other Conservative—Sir Robert Borden, later prime minister.

Three other Confederation constituencies run right behind Halifax—Pictou in Nova Scotia, Richmond-Wolfe in Quebec and Grey North in Ontario — each following the turnover trend nine times.

Five others have had four—Cumberland, N.S., Levis, Que., Montreal Jacques Cartier-Lasalle, Renfrew South, Ont., and Welland, Ont.

Two newer constituencies among the present 265—Brantford and York North in Ontario—have joined in four of the seven national turnovers since their establishment for the 1904 election.

Since Kent, established in 1892, joined in four of the six subsequent turnovers, Lambton-Kent, established the same year, has had almost the same showing, except that in 1930, when it voted Conservative with the turnover trend, it switched from Progressive rather than Liberal.

Kings in P.E.I. has followed the trend four times in the seven turnover elections in which it has been involved.

Algoma East, represented in the last four Parliaments by Liberal Leader Lester Pearson, has quite a turnover record if its antecedents are taken into account. The old riding of Algoma, from which Algoma East and Algoma West were formed for the 1904 election, joined the country in all three of the turnovers in 1908. Since 1904 Algoma East has made ⅓ in three of five.

Reports on Butter Sales, Production in May Not In

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal agriculture officials are paying extra attention to statistics on butter consumption these weeks as assessing the effect of the May 1 price cut on Canada's big butter stockpile.

A spokesman said today that unofficial figures show that housewives bought abnormally low quantities of butter in April as they waited for the 12-cents price drop to take effect.

The latest official figures show that as of May 1 the butter surplus amounted to 186,000,000 pounds, most of it in government-held stocks.

This compared with a surplus of 180,000,000 pounds a month earlier and 127,000,000 pounds at the start of 1962.

Bureau of statistics reports on butter sales and production in May will not be available until the middle of the month.

Even then, it will be still too early to detect clear trends that can be attributed to the government's action in lowering butter prices indirectly, the spokesman said.

The price cut was announced in mid-March as a measure aimed at boosting butter consumption, which has sagged in recent years while per capita margarine consumption increased.

The price drop was brought about by a $35,000,000 government subsidy to butter producers. Producers continue to get a 64-cent-per-pound support price, but the retail price has been slashed by 12 cents.

May 1 butter stocks comprised 82,000,000 pounds of butter and 82,200,000 pounds of butter oil, which is the equivalent of 104,000,000 pounds of whole butter. Butter is converted into oil after about one year of storage.

Officials say the oil can be converted back into butter.

Suns Hold Loop Lead, Whip Jets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jacksonville Suns are back in their rampaging form.

For a while last week it appeared the others seven teams in the International League might get a chance to catch up to the league-leading Suns.

Columbus Jets, however, found on Tuesday night that the Suns still are explosive.

Jacksonville broke up a 1-1 tie in a game at Columbus with five runs in the fifth inning, added another five in the next inning and went on to whip Columbus 12-2.

A pair of two-run homers by Ray Barker and a three-run homer by Duke Carmel paced the Suns' 17-hit attack against three Jet pitchers. Altogether Jacksonville banged out nine extra-base hits.

Veteran right-hander Ruben Gomez went the distance for his seventh victory without a loss. He limited the Jets to seven hits. Don Rowe, Columbus starter, was charged with the defeat.

In the only other game played Tuesday night, Richmond Virginians nipped Atlanta Crackers 3-4 on Jake Kline's ninth-inning single with two out.

The Crackers took a 3-1 lead in the fourth inning but Ben Mateosky's three-run homer in the eighth gave Richmond a 4-3 lead. Atlanta tied the score in the top of the ninth.

Two games were postponed because of rain—Buffalo at Toronto and Syracuse at Rochester.

Sports in Brief

ESKS SIGN WALDEN

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference announced Tuesday the signing of halfback Bobby Walden, 23, who came to the Esks last season from University of Georgia. He set a WFC record for kicking, averaging 46.8 on 63 punts.

LEONARD QUALIFIES

MONTCLAIR, N.J. (AP)—Stan Leonard of Vancouver was among the 33-man eastern sectional contingent that qualified at the Montclair Golf Club Tuesday for next week's U.S. Open. Leonard fired a 75-69 on the par 35-35—70 course for a 144 total that tied four others.

SIGN CANADIAN

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Minnesota Twins Tuesday night announced the signing of Allan Richards, a left-handed-hitting catcher from Penticton, B.C. Richards, 19, who attended Yakima, Wash., College, has been sent to Wytheville, Va., of the Class B Appalachian League.

CARDS, CUBS TRADE

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis Cardinals traded shortstop Alex Grammas and outfielder Don Landrum to Chicago Cubs Tuesday for outfielder R. C. Smith and shortstop Daryl Robertson. The Cardinals will option Robertson to Tulsa, Okla., of the Double A Texas League and purchase from Tulsa Del Maxvill, 23, a shortstop hitting .356.

BACK JOINS STAMPS

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders of the Western Conference Tuesday announced Robert (Bake) Turner, an offensive and defensive halfback and punting specialist, has signed a contract. Turner, 21, is from Texas Tech College and was 12th draft choice of Baltimore Colts.

Government May Arrange Wage Contracts

MONTREAL (CP) — Government directed management-labor relations may replace collective bargaining if management and labor don't find a way to get along together, Judge Alexander H. McKinnon, of Antigonish, N.S. said Tuesday in an address to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Canadian labor legislation, Judge McKinnon said, is traditionally influenced by that in the United States and the tendency there has been towards a greater degree of codification and towards state intervention.

"In a lesser degree," he added, "this has also taken place in Canada, but if past trends be an indicator, then we can foresee with some certainty that it will not be long until the different jurisdictions in Canada will regulate all aspects of management - labor relations through a codified body of laws administered and policed by the state, and free collective bargaining, which all of our labor legislation was enacted to foster, will be sacrificed on the altar of 'the public interest.'

IS U.S. POLICY

"This is not some figment of the imagination. It is at present the announced policy of the administration in Washington."

Name Building After Hayward

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A $200,000 branch of the YM-YWCA being built here is to be named after Bob Hayward of nearby Embro, who died last September when Miss Superior III flipped during the Silver Cup race at Detroit.

Hayward was active in the YMCA's public speaking classes in his youth. He took up speedboat racing and, driving Miss Superior III, won the Harmsworth Trophy for Canada three consecutive times.

Canada Outdoors

By RON MacDONALD

EDMONTON (CP) — The Rocky Mountain foothills of western Alberta are a big game hunter's paradise, says a government biologist.

What's more, says John Stelfox of the provincial lands and forests department, the game is under-harvested. The area is not only recently become generally accessible and its attractions had not been advertised well enough to bring them to the attention of many sportsmen.

He says there is a greater variety of big game on Alberta's lower eastern Rocking slopes than anywhere else in North America.

Those who had discovered the area had taken many animals in the world - record class but the biggest were still to come. More hunting would benefit the animals and those whose jobs depend on the number of people travelling into the region.

Taxidermist Clifford Wolfe of Edmonton has preserved many of the big heads that have come out of the foothills. The area had yielded some beautiful specimens, including the largest mule deer ever shot in North America.

RICH IN MOOSE

Stelfox says the foothills are rich in moose, elk, white - tail and mule deer, grizzly and black bears, cougars, wolves, bighorn mountain sheep and mountain goats. There were also woodland and mountain caribou.

The abundance and variety of game were the result of the varied habitat and the tendency toward less-harsh winters with relatively little snowfall. The milder winter weather was especially beneficial to the deer population which falls prey to the wolves and hunger when deep snow and cold hamper its movements.

The foothills provide burned-over acreage just coming up in grass and forage for elk, young brush cover for moose and deer, open coniferous forests and sub - marginal farming for bear. Abundant lichens in over-mature coniferous forests for caribou, mountain and rock for sheep and goats.

The land is largely crown-owned or leased and is well-mapped. Access by motor vehicle is on secondary roads built by oil companies engaged in exploratory work.

Stelfox recommends travel by horse throughout the area. Some parts must be approached by horseback in any case, and time and effort can be saved if horses are used everywhere, he says.

INCREASE SEEN

Outfitters can be hired at centres around Hinton, 180 miles west of Edmonton. They charge $100 a day in season, a sum they will supply horses, tent, food and other supplies, lead the hunter to the desired game and butcher it after it has been shot.

Stelfox says the outfitters can usually be taken into guiding an expedition for $35 a day during the off-season.

A substantial increase in the number of hunters was expected this year. It first started opening up about five years ago and last year 6,500 hunters took 4,000 animals with a total weight of 1,500,000 pounds.

SET VOTING DATES

NEW YORK (AP) — Voting for the players to represent the American and National Leagues in the two 1962 all-star games will begin June 22 and conclude June 26, baseball commissioner Ford Frick announced Tuesday.

The first game will be played in Washington July 10, the second in Chicago's Wrigley Field July 30.

As in the last few years the players will select the starting teams, exclusive of pitchers, in their own league. The only restriction is that they cannot vote for players on their own team. The pitchers and the remainder of the squad will be chosen by managers Fred Hutchinson of Cincinnati Reds and Ralph Houk of New York Yankees.

Players, Officials Warned

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—World Soccer Cup championship teams go into four crucial games today with a plea to play fair and save the name of the sport.

The official appeal was backed up by a warning of heavy penalties if players tried any rough stuff.

Referees were under orders to clamp down on rough play. Players were cautioned to watch their tempers. Team officials were told to stop coaching from the sidelines.

"Some of the matches have been brawls and incidents of bad behavior and bad sportsmanship have been many," Sir Stanley Rous of England, president of the International Federation of Football Associations, told a meeting of delegates Tuesday night.

FOUR BANISHED

"So far 16 games have been played in the world championship off the field because of rough play and fights.

About 20 players have been injured — some with broken bones, many with bruises and cuts.

Today's games will go a long way toward deciding which teams will reach the quarter-finals June 10. Officials were worried that in such vital games more displays of temperament could wreck the matches.

Today's matches: Uruguay vs. Russia; Brazil vs. Spain; Chile vs. West Germany and Argentina vs. Hungary.

The other certain starters are Jaipur, Crimson Satan, Admiral Voyage, Vimy Ridge and Daddy R. H. nine start the purse will be $154,550, the winner collecting a record $110,800.

Seniors Will Stick With Share Wealth

SARNIA (CP) — Lloyd Pollock, president of the Ontario Hockey Association, said Tuesday night the share-the-wealth plan for Senior League players must continue.

Pollock was speaking at an OHA Senior banquet. He expects to call an organizational meeting of the senior league for next week.

Ted Lindsay, former NHL great, advocated more money and stronger league backing for officials and the right for a player when he is 18 to sign with any team he choose.

Organization Sets Sights On Bringing Live Theatre To More Canadian Children

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP)—A year - old national organization has set its sights on bringing the excitement of live theatre to more Canadian children.

The Canadian Association of Child Drama and Theatre for Children was organized at a hastily summoned meeting held in 1961 in conjunction with the Dominion Drama Festival in Montreal.

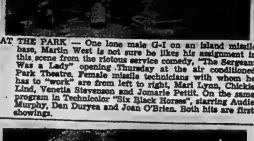
It emerged from the organizational stage at this year's drama festival in Winnipeg when it held a three-day conference that chose Donald Wetmore of the Nova Scotia department of education, Halifax, as president, and drew up a list of aims.

One of the 25 resolutions adopted called for action to ensure that Canada be represented in the field of theatre for children at the first Commonwealth Festival of Arts to be held in Britain in 1965.

It proposed a national competition to find an original Canadian play for the festival, expressed determination to set up teacher-training courses in the use of child drama in classrooms, and decided to investigate ways of obtaining scholarships for persons doing research and training in children's theatre.

SPARKED IN OTTAWA

The association's first chairman was Mrs. H. P. Hill of Ottawa, with a vice-president along with Mrs. John Thorne of Vancouver and Betia Anderson of Edmonton. Secretary is Betty Lowden of Ottawa and treasurer Mrs. Rhena Howard of Regina. Others on the executive are Mrs. Paul Foster of Vancouver, Olivia Hasler of Toronto and D. Harold Turner of Halifax.



Some of the impetus for the original idea came from the Child Drama and Children's Theatre Association of Ottawa which has set up drama courses for public school teachers through the local school board.

The ultimate aim would be to have child drama and theatre included in school curriculums in the same way that music and art are taught.

"Our aim is not theatre training for children but the cultural development of the child itself," Mrs. Hill said.

Creative drama gave children the chance to depict spontaneously a given situation. This was the most natural method of expression for children and was especially helpful when done under direction of persons with an understanding of children at various age levels.

Mrs. Hill has no formal drama education herself but runs the junior school work and writes scripts for the health and welfare department. Once a week the charming red-haired mother of five children and four step-children directs a class of 13 students at an after-school creative drama class in suburban Rockcliffe. Mrs. Hill says and they never miss a class.

Filmed in Berlin, in Panavision and Technicolor, Pamela Tiffin and Arlene Francis. 2nd feature filmed in color and CinemaScope stars Steve Reeves in the "Last Days of Pompeii".

Garry Moore After 27 Years In Radio and TV One of Biggest Money Producers

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas Garrison Morfit has a profound feeling of gratitude these days.

The reason: Thomas Garrison Morfit—better known to millions as Garry Moore—recently reached an historic milestone in a fabulous career. He personified in his 5,000th national network broadcast.

"All I ask is to be allowed to continue," remarked Garry, who quit school in Baltimore back in 1935 to become a radio announcer.

There is no immediate hurry for the industry to dust off a place on the shelf for Moore. He remains, after 27 years in radio and 12 in television, one of the biggest profit-producing performers in the U.S. entertainment field.

MAKES MONEY

His shows are estimated to bring to CBS an annual income of between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000. This puts him on a par with, or ahead of, such other all-time network money-winners as Arthur Godfrey, Lawrence Welk, Dave Garroway and Ed Sullivan.

"I must be extraordinarily fortunate," remarked Garry. "I have never had as much fun as I'm having now. I never get up with a feeling of having to go to work; as some people do.

"I suppose it's because I'm still a fan myself. I still get a big thrill out of working with people I've admired for years—such as Duke Ellington and Carl Wynn. As a kid, I can remember standing outside a theatre in Baltimore to get Ed Wynn's autograph. He's still a hero to me."

This quality of youthful enthusiasm is still one of the greatest assets of Moore, who feels he is lucky to have lasted so long and at present, seems like to go right on performing forever.

"Of course, you don't really retire in this business," he observed with a wry smile. "You just wake up some morning and find they've retired you."

Garry has his own theory on how he and his program pals have managed to endure without boring their public.

"Our survival is probably the result of a remarkable lack of being spectacular," he said.

"When you are spectacular, you have a skyrocket quality that can become so bright you burn yourself up."

At the ripe age of 47, Garry has this philosophy of life:

"It pays to remember to be grateful, and to get the idea you have a right to be happy all the time. If you have really happy hour every day, you're ahead of the game."

Producer Friedman Is Not Pleased With TV Drama

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Lewis Friedman, the producer pulled into NBC's Show of the Week series at mid-season to invigorate its flagging dramatic programs, believes television drama has "compromised itself out of business."

Friedman, who came to television from teaching English, agrees with poet Randall Jarrell's theory that "We are living in an age of instant literature in which a wish is fulfilled with a cliche."

"Drama starts with a dream —individuals dream but the group uses it," he theatre — "And each dream boils down to a situation in which the audience can see itself in all the roles," explained Friedman.

"Or at least, it can in good drama. The trouble with television is that all the dramas are nightmares. Instead of dreams. And the only thing that saves most of them is that they end happily."

Friedman recently finished making The Movie Star, which will be seen Sunday night. The script was written by William Bast, who once wrote a biography of the late James Dean. The plot is concerned with the situation after the death of a famous movie star in a tragic accident when the funeral serv-

Rudolf Friml Now Aiming At a Whole New Career

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It is just 50 years since Prague-born Rudolf Friml wrote his first operetta, and now at 77 the great melodist is aiming at a whole new career of more serious music.

Friml's Chinese - style house on a peak atop the Hollywood Hills abounds in music. Boxes of recording tape are piled everywhere—in closets, on tables, under beds.

"They are symphonies, sonatas, concertos," said Friml. "I have improvised them all—five, six hours a day, every day. It is like a disease; I can't stop improvising.

"But I am never satisfied. I take out a tape I have made a year ago. I do not like it. I play along with it on the piano, change it until I improvised something entirely new. Then I put it away."

This has been going on for years, and the Friml public output has been slim. Of his 31 operettas the most notable were Rose Marie, Vagabond, Three Musketeers, Katinka and Firefly.

His last was Luana, an adaptation of Bird of Paradise that had 24 performances in 1930.

HAS PLANS

"Now I think I want to do something with my serious works," he said. He told of plans to play new orchestral pieces in symphonic concerts this summer. Among them: A timely, stirring long poem, Escape to Hong Kong.

It was Igor Stravinsky who aroused Friml's scorn. They are actually neighbors, but Friml had unsighthorly remarks about Stravinsky's music and work habits.

"He takes a strain, wraps it in discord and plays it as badly as he can," Friml said.

"Why, I read that he spent two or three years to compose a concerto.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Dick "The Bulldog" Brower, all 272 pounds of his mighty muscle, may get his long awaited come-uppance in the feature wrestling event on Friday night's professional grappling program at Memorial Arena, because Haystack Muldoon, 275 pound Arkansas Mountaineer, goes in against him with more weight, more height and much more reach.

Too, Haystack is a firm believer in sportsmanship and figures that Brower has been getting away with nothing short of murder. The Bulldog's victories in this area haven't impressed Muldoon too much. The mammoth Haystack believes that his tremendous weight advantage, he's one of the sports' largest competitors, and experience will be just the ingredients to cut Brower down to his proper size.

The bearded Russian, Ivan and Nikita Kalmikoff, will make their first appearance of the season in the semi-final tag-team entanglement. Ivan and Nikita will face stiff opposition in the persons of Hawaiian ace, Sam Steamboat and Ottawa football star, Tom "The Emperor" Jones.

The opening event will have speedy Ray Gordon going against Frank Valois.

BOWLING

There might be a lot of old stuff pulled off under the moon, but rarely, if ever, is there anything new under the sun.

This reporter "goofed" gently but firmly in a brief talk to the highly successful Belleville Major Ten Pin League at Club Canaro the other night but was set right later by that sports veteran who is still going strong, "Toots" Holway.

Later "Toots" informed me that the game of ten-pin bowling was in vogue here prior to World War One. While not the more or less luxurious set-up with all the modern trimmings that the present game is, nevertheless the boys knocked over the "tenners" both in leagues and in individual tilts.

*

"Toots" was a pin boy at "five cents the pin" for the sergeants' of the local regiment in the armouries. And he also picked up a lot of ten-pin knowhow and practice too. The game, he said, was also played in the YMCA alleys of that era.

And the ex-Montreal Maroon who helped win the Stanley Cup one season during his National Hockey League tenure, and who has been one of the outstanding five-pinners here for years, proved he is not forgotten how to roll the "big ball" against the ten maples.

In fact, his bowling intimates called him "Two-Finger" Holway but the nom-de-alleys applies only to the game of bowling. He won the Major Ten Pin League average trophy with a fine mark of 178.4.

Incidentally league president Wally Dever told me the Major Ten Pin League, which boosted 18 teams last season will expand next year to 22 teams. That's quite a feather in its cap for a league that has been in operation for only one season.

BASEBALL

And don't forget tonight is "Baseball Night in Belleville." Tonight the Kenmore, the city's entry in the senior division of the Lakeshore Baseball League, makes its home town debut with a determined Peterborough Fannings club as the opposition.

Manager Ken Soden and Coach Sid Forster have the stage all set and it is hoped a large turnout of fans will help usher in the first senior baseball activities since the Belleville Hatas split the title with the Oakville Oaks away back in the days of Hurricane Hazel.

The Kenmores won a hard-fought victory against Kingston last Sunday and they are in the mood to avenge the defeat hung on them by the Peterborough club in the league opener at Peterborough.

The Petes will probably use Lefty Bob Gatfield, a spectacled youngster, who southpawed the Kenmies with a five-hitter in the league opener. Gatfield helped his own cause with a double and single.

It is not known at this writing whom the Kenmors will start, but likely the brass will send Larry Soden to the mound. The game gets under way at the Fair Grounds at 8.15.

Toronto Gets Gerry Goyer

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Brisk business was expected today as the National Hockey League clubs prepared for their intra-league draft in the windup of the three-day meetings.

Some hockey men felt that pre-draft trades may be hustled through before the $30,000-per-player grabfest starts, in mid-afternoon and that there is even a possibility of further swaps when the clubs take a fresh look at how they stand after the draft.

Five players, all minor leaguers, were taken up Tuesday when NHL clubs drafted from the Western Hockey League and the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

Several sales or trades cropped up, also involving minor leaguers, some of them have had NHL experience.

All sorts of rumors and speculation still were current in the wake of the resignation of Doug Harvey as player-coach of the New York Rangers.

SCHMIDT MAY SUCCEED?

One of the hottest pieces of speculation was that Milt Schmidt, former coach and now assistant general manager of Boston Bruins, might become Harvey's successor.

Schmidt laughed off the suggestion but admitted he likes to coach and "wouldn't mind coaching in the NHL again."

"But don't get me wrong," he added quickly. "Certainly Muzz Patrick, Rangers' general manager has said nothing at all to me about such a possibility."

Quizzed later, Patrick said Schmidt would be given consideration but added that so would possibly others outside the New York organization.

He indicated that Red Sullivan and Emile (The Cat) Francis, now coaching New York farm clubs, would be given top consideration because of their association with the parent Rangers, but said he is "not ruling out anybody."

Patrick said Harvey, still Ranger property, definitely would be protected against the draft and once more said he hoped Harvey might reconsider his resignation.

WON'T CHANGE MIND

There appeared little chance, however, that Harvey would change his mind. He declared again that he made the decision in the interests of his family, as well as his business interests in Montreal.

Unconfirmed reports current early today had it that the Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs were on the verge of a deal whereby left winger Dean Prentice of New York would go to Toronto in exchange for centre or cash. Billy Harris and right winger Gerry Ehman, plus probably another player or cash.

All clubs filed their protected lists—18 players and two goalies—Tuesday and each was busy scanning the others' lists Thursday night. The lists were handmade business and were not publicly announced.

There were reports however, that Ron Murphy and veteran defenceman Doilar St. Laurent of Chicago Black Hawks would not be protected and would either figure in pre-draft deals or be snatched up in the draft.

GRAB GOALIE

Boston Bruins, long searching for a goalie, had the first choice in Tuesday's draft and promptly bagged goalie Ed Johnston, a Montreal boy in Canadiens' chain. He played last season with spokane of the Western Hockey League.

The Bruins also took another Montreal farmhand, Larry McNabb, a defenceman with Vancouver of the WHL.

A third Montreal minor leaguer—forward Yves Locas—was drafted by Detroit Red Wings from Spokane.

Montreal took forward Art Jones from Portland of the WHL and Toronto took forward Gerry Goyer from Los Angeles of the same league.

The draft price was $20,000. In last year's inter-league draft, the four players were picked.

The only deal Tuesday involving two NHL clubs was a Detroit-Chicago trade. Defenceman Doug Harkley, who has been with Calgary, and an unnamed player go to Chicago in exchange for forwards Len Lunde and John McKenzie, both of whom have been up and down in the Detroit farm system.

In another deal Toronto traded Bill Dineen, right winger and an unnamed player to Hull-Ottawa of the EPHL for Bob Armstrong, former Boston defenceman. Dineen was with Rochester of the American Hockey League last season. Armstrong is expected to be sent now to Rochester.

The joint relations committee of the pros and amateurs met on Tuesday and NHL president Clarence Campbell said preliminary discussions were held regarding a proposed draft of rights to junior players on pro-sponsored clubs. No definite arrangement for the draft has yet been made.

Winnipeg May Join E.P. League

MONTREAL (CP)—The possibility of Winnipeg entering the Eastern Professional Hockey League was discussed Tuesday by EPHL officials attending the annual meeting of the National Hockey League.

A league official said discussions have been "very informal" and will be continued when the league heads meet in Ottawa June 13.

There have been reports of an impending change or two in the EPHL franchise lineup, particularly now that New York Rangers of the NHL are pulling out as parent club of the Kitchener-Waterloo team since the Rangers have acquired an indirect interest in Vancouver of the Western Hockey League and also have been supplying players to Los Angeles of the —TWI

There have also been reports that the Springfield AHL franchise may be sold to Baltimore interests and that the Rangers would be behind a new team in Springfield.

The EPHL official said the situation is far from definite at this stage and that further discussions will be held at the Ottawa meeting.

Defeats Twins 4-3

Kansas Enters Flag Scramble

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Manny Jimenez, a rookie with one foot off the ground, and high-flying Norm Siebern have lifted Kansas City Athletics right into the middle of the never - lightening American League pennant scramble.

Jimenez and Siebern each stroked two hits Tuesday night as the Athletics knocked off Minnesota Twins 4-3, reshuffling the standings by moving within two victories of the .500 mark.

Jimenez, who lifts his right foot when he swings in the manner of Mel Ott, came to the Athletics from Milwaukee in the trade that sent pitcher Bob Shaw to the Braves. He's been sensational. A double, driving in Siebern with the first run, and a single boosted his league-leading average to .386.

Siebern, meanwhile, moved into seventh place among the hitters, stroking a double and homer for a .321 mark, and remained No. 1 in runs batted in with 41. He also tapped one in front of the plate that led to the winning run in the fifth inning.

SPEEDS TO PLATE

Twins' starter Camilo Pascual failed to cover home as catcher Earl Battey tossed out Siebern and Bobby Del Greco, who had doubled, sped home with the clincher. That dropped Minnesota into fourth, percentage points behind Detroit Tigers, who were rained out.

Only two other games were played as rain sidelined the other clubs.

Chicago White Sox whipped Los Angeles Angels 8-5 and Baltimore Orioles edged Washington Senators 6-5 in the first game of a scheduled twin-night doubleheader. The second game was rained out.

Charlie Smith drove in four runs for the White Sox with three singles, snapping a 5-5 tie in the sixth as the Chicagoans broke loose for four runs to whip the Angels. The victory went to Dom Zanni (3-2), the loss to Ryne Duren (2-5). Bo Belinsky was a surprise starter for Los Angeles, but left in the third after he walked five and gave up four hits and three runs. Leon Wagner hit his 14th homer for the Angels.

The Orioles came from behind to win it on Whitey Herzog's two-run pinch-hit homer in the seventh inning. The Orioles built a 4-0 lead in the first inning on Jack Brandt's two-run triple and a bases-loaded single by Charlie Lau before the Senators used a pair of homers by Ken Retzer and a three-run shot by Chuck Hinton to move ahead.

Top Pros Enter Rich Tournament

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Most golf tournaments played just before the U.S. Open or other major national events suffer from sparse entry lists. But nobody is skipping the $100,000 classic tournament at the par-72 Upper Montclair Country Club starting Thursday just to practise for next week's Open at Oakmont, Pa.

Among them are Arnold Palmer, who has a chance here to break his one record for the largest amount of money won by a golfer in one season; Sam Snead, the second game time money winner, and South African's Gary Player, who beat out Palmer for top money a year ago.

In 1960 Palmer won $75,262.85. So far this year he is just below the $60,000 mark.

The charge was dismissed by Magistrate Levius Sherwood Monday on grounds of reasonable doubt.

Weather Halts Softball Game

Showers and the threat of a heavier storm caused postponement of last night's Belleville and District softball league game between RCAF Flyers and Joyce Real Estate at the Fairgrounds.

The game may be played on Friday, June 15, if both teams agree on that date and if the park is available.

This was the second postponement between the two clubs, the other game washed out in Trenton on May 23.

Bobcats are scheduled to visit the Flyers in Trenton tonight while Rolline Juniors clash with the Bobcats at the Fairgrounds tomorrow night. Both games are at eight o'clock.

But Are 'Team To Beat'

Yankees Don't Scare Tribe

NEW YORK (AP)—Hope is bursting out all over the American League now that New York Yankees have been proven something less than supermen in the first third of the season.

Mel McGaha, congenial manager of Cleveland Indians brought his club to town in a fireplace with the world champions. He isn't the least bit scared of the big bad Yanks. In fact, he thinks a couple of other clubs could take it all.

"The Yankees certainly are the team to beat," said McGaha after Tuesday night's game at Yankee Stadium was rained out. "We haven't seen them since Mickey Mantle was hurt, but they are strong even without him. But here we are, a third of the way home and no big spread yet.

"You always shoot for the top," said McGaha, "I never ever expect the seat settles or even tomorrow's game until today's game is over."

TRADES HELP

The trades that brought men like Dick Donovan, Pedro Ramos and Jerry Kindall have helped considerably despite the fact that the controversial "name" players as Jimmy Piersall, Vic Power and Johnny Temple.

"Once efforts by Jim Perry and Pedro Ramos have given our pitching a better look," said McGaha. Donovan, of course, was expected to be our leader. Jim Grant will be available only on weekends now that his 30-day leave from the army Sam McDowell seems to be getting back into his regular rhythm and may start again soon. The bullpen is well fortified with Barry Latman, Frank Funk, Bob Allen and Gary Bell.

Chuck Essegian, of course, has been the big surprise of the Indians. He went into Tuesday's game with a .347 average, second in the league, and had 12 home runs. McGaha said playing every day was the big reason for Essegian's improvement.

"Kindall has shored up our infield at second base," he said. "He seems to be starting to hit again low. Jerry also gives us protection at short if Woody Held wants to sit out a day or two. We have two of the best infielders with the Phillies—Kindall, Held and Bubba Phillips.

National Crowds Set New Record

CINCINNATI (AP) — Attendance at National League baseball games is higher this year than ever before, largely due to the stars at Houston and New York.

headquarters show that paid admissions to games through Sunday totaled 5,461,545, a whopping 1,017,085 more than at the same date of 1961.

Most of the 45 per cent increase was due to Houston and New York, where so far 758,444 fans have paid to see games.

The eight "old clubs" reported a total attendance increase of 258,641 over the comparative period last year. Los Angeles, Philadelphia, St. Louis and San Francisco reported increases, but attendance was off 8,000 at Cincinnati and 8,700 at Chicago.

Los Angeles was far ahead of all others with 800,582 in 25 home games.

'To Beer or Not to Beer' Was Question

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The "walking wets"—baseball and football fans, and tavern operators will tell them the foamy brew—Tuesday won a legal fight to bring their own beer into Milwaukee County Stadium.

The county board voted 14 to 10 for repeal of the ban on carrying beer and other canned beverages into the stadium, home of Milwaukee Braves and of Milwaukee's "home" games of Green Bay Packers of the National Football League.

The county park commission had urged retention of the ban as a safety measure. The board reversed a restriction on carrying bottled goods into the stadium.

Supervisor Cornelius Jankowski, a leader in the repeal movement, argued it was unfair to keep the "workingman" from toting his own sandwiches into stadium when he could buy it cheaper outside. A 3-ounce bottle of beer, emptied into a cup, sells for 35 cents at the ball park. Packs of six can be had outside for $1.00 or less.

The ordinance against carrying canned beverages and bottled goods into the stadium was voted at the start of the Braves' 1961 season. Fans had been allowed to bring such goods to games since the Braves' move from Boston in 1953.

Attendance at Milwaukee baseball games this season is off by more than 100,000. Leaders in the repeal movement blamed the drop largely on the ban carrying beer into the stands.

Pitcher 'Goofs' Fined $250

Giants Nip Cubs, Dodgers Keep Pace

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Stan Musial hit his 459th home run to put St. Louis back in the victory column after eight straight losses. But Curt Simmons' 5-hitter, Tuesday night, evened the count at 4-4 with Musial's circuit blow.

Minutes after Musial gave the Cards a 10-9, 11-inning triumph over Cincinnati Reds, fuming St. Louis manager Johnny Keane announced he was fining Sadecki $250 because "he goofed off."

Keane said he levied the fine on the poorest exhibition of effort I have ever seen on a major league diamond. Everyone else out there was trying to win and he goofed off."

In the fifth inning Sadecki faced five men, committee two errors, gave up two homers, allowed five runs and failed to retire one batter as the Reds rallied to a 9-1 lead.

The 21 - year - old left-handed pitch was hit for a homer by opposing hurler Bob Purkey, After a single by Ed Kasko, Sadecki missed Marty Keough's attempted sacrifice as an error. Then Don Zimmer tapped one back to the mound and Sadecki fired the ball into center field. Vada Pinson's three-run homer topped it off.

GIANTS MAINTAIN EDGE

Meanwhile, the league - leading San Francisco Giants blasted Chicago Cubs 11-4 and maintained a two-game edge over runner - up Los Angeles. The Dodgers won the opener of their twi - night doubleheader with Pittsburgh 3-2 and led 7-3 after eight innings when the nightcap was suspended by curfew. It'll be resumed tonight.

Houston Colts belted Milwaukee Braves 7-1 in the only other game played. The New York - Philadelphia game was rained out.

Musial, who went 3 - for - 6 in pacing the Cardinal comeback and hiked his average to .326 with 11 hits in his last 25 times at bat, cut down Cookie Rojas at the plate with a perfect peg in the fourth inning. Checked on three hits for the nine innings by Purkey, the Cards began to battle back, finally pulling even in the seventh when Bill White hit a three-run homer and Ken Boyer smashed a two - run shot. It stayed knotted until Musial won it for reliever Lindy McDaniel (5-3) with his homer off Dave Sisler (2-3).

ALOU SPARKS WIN

A five - run eighth inning sparked by Felipe Alou's home run and an error by Cubs' shortstop Andy O'Dell (7-6) won it for Giants their fifth triumph in a row and 19th in 13 games. After Alou homered and the next two batters walked, Rodgers dropped a line shot by Jose Pagan that conceivably could have been a triple play. Doubles by Harvey Kuenn and Willie Mays plus Chuck Hiller's single followed. Andy O'Dell (7-6) won it with a five-hitter. Bob Buhl (5-6) was the loser.

Willie Davis drove in two runs for the Dodgers in the opener against the Pirates with a homer and double and scored the clincher in the sixth on a single by Tommy Davis. Stan Williams (6-4) got the victory with 2 2-3 innings of no-hit relief by Larry Sherry, Earl Francis (2-3) lost it.

Maury Wills, who had three singles in the first game, contributed two doubles and a single in the nightcap and Jim Gilliam stroked a double and three singles as Don Drysdale went for victory No. 9. The fellow who pitched before Koufax is right's regularly scheduled game.

The seven - hit pitching by Bruce (3-1) and a 13-hit attack in which every player in the line-up got at least one safety got the job done for the Colts. Al Spangler's leadoff homer in the first inning set the pattern and charged Milwaukee starter Ron Piche of Verdun, Que., with his first loss after three victories.

NOTICE

TO ALL SCOUT TROOPS AND OTHER NON-PROFIT YOUTH ORGANIZATIONS IN THE SIMILAR NATURE

As many of you know, we have been supplying 2-gallon cans of milk to your troops at a nominal charge. This has been done quietly and we therefore feel unfair to those who did not know of it.

We now propose to advertise this service so that all troops might also take advantage of the opportunity to purchase milk at the nominal charge. We feel that this plan is worthwhile and that we should be able to support more groups and still avoid the necessity of asking a loss to ourselves.

We invite group leaders to enquire at our dairy so that we can help in a worthy cause.

Social Credit Explained at Toronto Rally

By PETER BUCKLEY

TORONTO (CP) — Social Credit brought three of its biggest guns to bear on Toronto area voters Tuesday night with a major rally at Massey Hall.

More than 3,000 people attended the rally, and the backing of the 2,700-seat auditorium were all but empty. Audience response was about equally divided between enthusiasm from placard-carrying supporters and apathy from other groups.

Heading the platform assembly were National Leader Robert N. Thompson, Deputy Leader Real Caouette and Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia. With them were some 30 of the party's 70 Ontario candidates, including Toronto suburbanite Malcolm Wallace Middleton, a full-blooded Indian in chief's regalia.

All three speakers pounded at the economic policies of the Diefenbaker government. Mr. Thompson contending that Social Credit offers a "reasoned, realistic and practical program designed to balance Canada's budget and restore confidence abroad in the Canadian economy.

"WILL LEAVE MORE DEBT

"When the Diefenbaker administration steps out of office June 18 it will have piled up nearly $17,500,000,000 more debt than when it came in on a wave of Conservative confidence — in 1957, Mr. Thompson said.

There were other instructions although a New Democratic Party supporter in the front row did manage a continuous stream of interjections which both Mr. Thompson and Mr. Caouette parried easily. There was no organized heckling.

Mr. Bennett got the biggest laugh when he mentioned the dollar devaluation and "rising food prices.

"Bread's going up too, you know, the fifth increase since — Replied Mr. Bennett: "Man cannot live by bread alone."

The B.C. premier, a Conservative before joining Social Credit and leader of the party in 1952, took his hardest swings at Liberal Leader Pearson.

"Its no longer the party of King and Lapolise. It's the party of Mr. Pearson. He's a nice man but oh! a little to the left my friend. Ask any Canadian who values his freedom and vote Liberal in this election.

CLAIMS 40 SEATS

He said the CCF, in becoming part of the NDP, has "sold out for a mess of silver" to the American labor bosses.

Mr. Caouette, speaking in French, said the province he has provided a "surprise to the whole of Canada" in Quebec.

"Quebec will elect at least 50 Social Credit MPs.

The rest of his statement was lost in a shout of approval from the audience.

The deputy leader said a Canadian worker gets little of his pay cheque now, and if you don't like what you've got in 10 years could get no cheque, just like Cuba where the party in government has spent your money.

In the major speech, Mr. Thompson stuck almost exclusively to economic issues, including a six-point exposition of Social Credit policy if it forms the government. It included revised pricing for agricultural products, a municipal development bank and lower interest for industry and home-owners.

And for the record first, aim of Social Credit will be to establish a parity-to-200-to-1 term of government.

Pearson Gives Document on Unemployment

By ARCH McKENZIE

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP)—A document purporting to show government — prepared forecasts of high unemployment unless new policies are followed was made public Monday night by Liberal Leader Pearson.

He also accused Prime Minister Diefenbaker of "deliberately trying to exploit unhappy and degrading efforts of a few Canadians to break up the prime minister's meetings."

Mr. Pearson, speaking to an overflow meeting Tuesday night of 900 persons in this rural centre in Western Ontario, said the unemployment document was prepared by government experts for the committee of inquiry established last year to examine the depleted unemployment insurance fund.

He said the forecast under existing policy of 535,000 unemployed during 1964—or 7.7 per cent of the labor force in that year is a contrast with recent Diefenbaker conservative predictions of full employment soon.

NOT YET PUBLIC

The findings of the committee of inquiry—headed by President Ernest C. Gill of the Canada Life Assurance Company—have not been made public yet.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has said he is unaware of any forecast of continuing high unemployment — a forecast first mentioned by Mr. Pearson early in May at Sault Ste. Marie.

The document he claims to possess was released to the press Tuesday night and he called it "the main table of estimates" used by the Gill committee, which I assure you is not a political document in any or form but which came into our hands."

In addition to a receptive standing-room-only crowd from a high school auditorium, Walkerton is occupied by four Western Ontario Liberal candidates, former Liberal finance minister Walter Harris and former Ontario Liberal cabinet minister Calvert Otterbein, a member of the Ontario legislature.

Ontario Liberal Federation President Roger Frith was master of ceremonies for the meeting as a day-long tour through five heavily rural ridings in a concentrated car caravan by Liberals Ontario seats in 3½ days.

The tour ended at Guelph, Fergus, Arthur, Harriston, Palmerston and Wingham, addressing mass rallies and luncheon and dinner gatherings ranging from 150 to more than 200 persons.

Today, he pressed on to Clinton, Goderich, Exeter, Forest, London, Strathroy and Sarnia in final hard drive for June 18 votes.

His theme was its usual contention that a vote about nothing could do a better job of cleaning up the economy, providing jobs and restoring international accord.

Farm cash will rise with the devaluation of the dollar to 92.5 cents in terms of United States currency, he said in Wednesday, Wellington South, Wellington North, Huron, Perth, Grey-North and Bruce.

Only one of Western Ontario's 23 constituencies is considered safe for the 1958 Conservative sweep—Bruce. Most observers say many have a middling-to-strong Liberal background.

Demonstrations at a piper and majorettes and a school band preceded Mr. Pearson's arrival at each night meeting where Mr. Pearson departed from his text to comment on the Diefenbaker-Kennedy talks that marred Diefenbaker meetings at Vancouver and in the Sudbury area.

TRY TO EXPLOIT!

"There are signs that the Conservatives are trying to exploit such disturbances for political advantage, Mr. Pearson said. They were blaming the Liberals for them.

"I'm distressed at these disturbances and I'm sure all Canadians feel the same way," said Mr. Pearson in yet another reference to them in the last two days. "I am sure Canadians were not the Liberal or the Canadian ones.

But the prime minister and colleagues "seem to be looking for scapegoats. They are trying others." Originally after last Wednesday's demonstrations the Conservatives had blamed the Communists but now the Liberals were guilty.

"This is an ugly business that can snowball out of control. I hope no one exploits it," he said.

His only interruption of the day came at a meeting when a man jumped up to ask why Liberal party placards were waved at Conservative meetings where disturbances had occurred.

Mr. Pearson said there was nothing wrong with placard waving. He'd had a big picture of Mr. Diefenbaker raised at one of his meetings during the day, he noted. But that was a far cry from irresponsible obstruction.

Prime Minister Accuses Pearson Of 'Smearing'

By ROBERT RICE

TROIS RIVIERES, Que. (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker Tuesday night accused Liberal Leader Lester Pearson son of "smearing" Canada's financial integrity by suggesting that mysterious "political" political help has been used to bolster the Canadian dollar.

Mr. Diefenbaker was replying to Mr. Pearson's suggestion in Kitchener Monday that foreign central banks had probably pumped $500,000,000 into Canada's exchange fund in the last month.

The prime minister said that "Canada shouldn't be smeared in that manner." Speaking in an eight-minute rally speech here, he added: "It seems to me a desperate political gamble that Lester Pearson has undertaken."

"I don't care what a man says in political criticism, but to strike a blow at the financial integrity of Canada internationally and nationally, is unworthy of any leader of a great party."

He said Mr. Pearson's statement "is the most irresponsible one he has made."

Mr. Pearson said Monday he had only thought Mr. Diefenbaker said "without proof whatsoever."

INTEREST PAYMENTS

Mr. Diefenbaker said the $682,000,000 represented payments by pledges to Canada's defence and other purchases in Canada and other exchange settlements — "not a speculative transaction."

But he (Mr. Pearson) had wanted to, he could have simply gone to the Bank of Canada and found out.

The reply to Mr. Pearson came in a 20-minute speech to some 1,500 persons in the Trois - Rivieres Armories, which was punctuated once more side on the streets, listening to loudspeaker systems.

In his address the prime minister shifted between French and English, speaking into the microphone when he read the French portions of his speech so that his voice echoed loudly through the huge building. He applauded himself only for his French.

The prime minister described as false a Liberal charge the government had lost $500,000,000 in foreign exchange fund before pegging the Canadian dollar at 92½ cents in terms of the U.S. dollar.

He said $500,000,000 worth of U.S. dollars were sold for Canadian dollars for "the full market value," the transactions were part of the gradual process of the dollar "finding its proper level."

"The Canadian dollars are safe in the bank already to buy back U.S. dollars.

Mr. Diefenbaker, heading into the province for the third day of his election campaign, spoke in Shawinigan to thousands of Transport Workers at a rally there, who predicted the Conservatives will win 75 seats on election day.

BELIEVES WILL WIN

"I have a conviction that we will again be victorious in Quebec, said Mr. Diefenbaker in English.

"In every part of Canada, he said, "Conservatism is the socialist way . . . controls and socialism. Canada that free enterprise would not be undermined.

His night speech—capping a colorful parade behind bands and marching girls through the streets—followed a 90-minute motor tour of communities along the scenic shores of the St. Lawrence River.

Pegging Dollar Was a Misstep Says Douglas

By BEN WARD

FREDERICKSTON (CP)—Defeat of the Diefenbaker administration was described by T. C. Douglas Tuesday night as a misstep which will lead to more economic stagnation and higher unemployment.

The New Democratic Party leader told an enthusiastic crowd of 1,400 packed into a soggy auditorium that the government's decision to peg the dollar at 92.5 cents in United States funds means a situation of tight money and high interest rates just ahead.

The Diefenbaker government has returned with a vengeance to the traditional Liberal-Tory policy of worshipping at the altar of tight money, bowing down before the god of so-called sound finance and high interest rates," he declared.

"It has done so without reference to the crying need in Canada for low rates to encourage policy of easy credit and low interest rates which is the only way to restore employment and get the economy moving."

FLEES TO LEXINGTON

Hypnosis Offered as Aid in Exams

CALGARY (CP) — The Calgary Hypnosis Society has invited Grade 12 students to take post-hypnotic suggestions that will relax them for their final exams.

The students have been invited to attend a meeting, of the society June 13. They will need the written consent of their parents before they can be allowed to take the treatment.

"If the kids have learned the work then that information is already in their subconscious mind," said Bill Brooks, past - president of the society. "We merely attempt to relax them enough so they will be able to remember it when they are writing their exams."

Robert Warren, Calgary public school superintendent, said he knew of nothing in education research which supports the use of hypnosis as a means of helping students.

"If a parent asked my advice as to whether a child should go to the meeting I would definitely discourage it."

Astrological Forecast

For June 7

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Flexibility is key. Trying to deny responsibilities leads only to delay, confusion. More work to try to get out of work, so do what has to be done!

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Low-pressure methods work best, both professionally and personally. State case clearly, forcefully. Avoid sensational claims. Remember to show appreciation to loved ones.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Opportunity to be in spotlight. Take advantage of it by doing very best. Friends, bosses, associates, highlighted. Avoid over-sensitivity. Be willing to accept criticism on constructive level.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Could be vast difference between what you want and what you can afford. Try to arrive at compromise. Arrange program for future. Mere wishing will not get it done on being specific.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Cycle up, making you aware of responsibilities. In making any kind of agreement be sure the road you are taking leads to your goal. Going off on "side streets" could eventually prove costly.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Get to heart of problem today. Fears are mostly created in your own mind. A forthright statement could "clear the air," even in connection with "lingering" tenseness.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Day and evening of harmony if Mary Lee Gough Nay of Boston, 2nd possible ambitions is traveled friend. Suggestions could be received which lead you over hurdles, barriers. Your intuitive judgment apt to be correct.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): What may appear an obstacle could turn out to be a healthy challenge. Fight for what is right. But don't shy away from those who seek to involve you in nebulous schemes.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Favourable lunar aspect today means your vision of future prospects bright, accurate. But you must act on what you see, perceive. Accent on reading, absorbing knowledge.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Indirect approach could gain you what you need. Being "too direct" today might frighten off prospects. This includes romance, business opportunities. Stress diplomacy.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Cycle has been higher . . . means today time to analyze what you want. But not so good for making demands. Go slow and easy. Aim at goal, but be willing to bide time to arrive.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Service is your key word today. Volunteer to work on community project, help fellow worker. You learn by teaching. You gain by "lending a helping hand."

* * *

If today is your birthday . . . there is a part of you which very few people see or know. You often attempt to cover up this side of your nature with a display of frivolity. If you are to make most of your qualities, you should permit joyous "hidden" side to shine forth.

* * *

General Tendencies: Pressure applied to opposing groups for some sort of compromise. Details are worked out and indications for harmony greater than in recent past. Cycle up for Cancer, Leo, Virgo.

Renew Pledge Commonwealth Will Be Heard

Sober British Commons Debates Common Mart

LONDON (CP)—Britain Wednesday soberly reiterated a pledge not to join the European Economic Community until Parliament approves the final agreement after full consultation with the Commonwealth.

The undertaking was given again by Lord Privy Seal Reginald Heath, the government's chief Common Market negotiator, as the House launched a two-day debate on Britain's application to join the community formed by France, Germany, Italy and the Benelux countries.

"We shall try to work out in Brussels solutions to the main problems," Heath said in an hour-long speech.

The packed Commons chamber listened intently and soberly as he continued:

"(The Commonwealth) prime ministers' conference and subsequently Parliament will have to consider this along with all the other parts of the negotiations as part of an over-all settlement."

DISCUSSES ACCORD

Earlier there was given when the lord privy seal was discussing the agreement reached on the six on treatment of exports of manufactured goods from Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

"This arrangement which we have reached is, of course, dependent on all the other arrangements which we shall try to reach in the over-all solution. They must be considered together and reached together."

Heath set a fateful tone on most of the debate when he said his delivery and with statements such his contention that the negotiations were the most complex and complicated British had ever been engaged in.

Labor Leader Hugh Gaitskell maintained the sober approach in a speech cautiously expressing the hope that eventually the negotiations were the most an honorable success.

Gaitskell, however, stressed a number of reservations and said he thought the economic case for joining has been grossly exaggerated.

Quebecers May Face Sales Tax On Ont. Goods

QUEBEC (CP) — Revenue Minister Paul Earl is considering the imposition of Quebec sales tax on all items Quebecers buy in Ontario, it was learned Wednesday.

Oswald Parent, Liberal member of the legislature for Bona and Mr. Earl's legislative assistant, said in an interview the possibility will be considered unless Ontario stops collecting sales tax on goods bought in Quebec.

Talks with Ontario government officials were to be sought.

Mr. Parent said the Ontario decision to collect tax on Quebec - bought goods, effective June 1, is discriminating "against the business of Quebec merchants, particularly in his own constituency of Hull, across the river from Ottawa.

Car salesmen in Hull had been paying Quebec sales tax themselves to keep their Ontario customers.

Holdup Man Gets $3,000 From Bank

TORONTO (CP) — A holdup man escaped with about $3,000 from a Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch Wednesday.

He shoved a note through the wicket of teller Anna Coman which read:

"I know where the alarm is. Don't touch it. If you do you may die. Hand over the bills."

Several customers in the bank and the rest of the staff did not know of the holdup until the short, dark-haired man had left.

The robber ran to a waiting car which sped away.

Bank Manager W. H. Armitage said no gun was seen and the robber may not have been armed.

BARILKO-HUDSON REMAINS FOUND IN PLANE WRECK

NHL Star, Dentist Missing Since '51

COCHRANE, Ont. (CP) — Scrubby wilderness only a few miles from one of Northern Ontario's transportation lifelines has ended its 11-year concern over the fate of Bill Barilko and Dr. Henry Hudson.

Searchers Wednesday found the skeletons of the two men amidst the smashed wreckage on their plane, which apparently caught fire in plunging to the ground 45 air miles north of here and a few miles east of the Ontario Northland Railway.

The searchers were led to the scene by a helicopter crew of the Ontario department of lands and forests, who spotted a glint of metal in the dense bushland.

They found a Fairchild 24 pontoon plane which checks proved missing since the one used for a James Bay flabing trip by the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey star and the Timmins dentist. The plane disappeared Aug. 26, 1951, as its return to Timmins.

Ontario provincial police Sgt. Stradbrey, of Cochrane, part of the plane's registration number, were clearly identified.

Joe Shalla, a member of the first search party to reach the wreck, said the Fairchild's fuel tank apparently had exploded. The plane was partly burned and there were signs the bodies also had been burned.

Shalla, of the lands and forests department's Cochrane district office, said:

Queen Mother Elizabeth Leaves London for Canada

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Mother Elizabeth left London by air today for a 10-day visit to Canada, travelling for the first time on an ordinary commercial flight with other passengers.

Her principal engagements in Canada concern the Centenary celebrations in Montreal of the Black Watch Regiment of Canada, of which she is colonel-in-chief.

After attending regimental ceremonies Friday and this weekend, she will spend several days with Governor - General Vanier and Mrs. Vanier at Government House in Ottawa.

A lounge of the Trans-Canada Air Line's DC-8 jetliner on which the royal party travelled, normally available for 30 first-class passengers, was reserved for the exclusive use of the Queen Mother and 10 of her party.

The plane was due at Montreal International Airport at Dorval, Que., at 5 p.m. EDT today.

The Queen Mother is due in Toronto June 16 to attend the Queen's Plate horse race.

It is her third trip to Canada. The first, as Queen and accompanied by King George VI, was in 1939, the second, as Queen Mother, was in 1954.

Issue of Devalued Dollar Stalks Election Campaign

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The devalued Canadian dollar got another going over on the election hustings Wednesday night.

Lester B. Pearson said it's "nonsense" to say no dollar was lost in the attempt to avoid devaluation of the dollar, the exchange rate of which was pegged May 3 at 92½ U.S. cents.

The Liberal leader, speaking at Strathroy, Ont., had been asked about Prime Minister Diefenbaker Tuesday night of "increasing Canada's financial integrity by suggesting there had been a "mysterious" $62,000,000 U.S. international bailout since May 3 to support the dollar.

Mr. Pearson said he accepts Mr. Diefenbaker's statement that there had been no outside help. But the $62,000,000 was still a puzzling item.

"The certain fact is that the exchange fund received special support in May to the extent of $2,000,000 U.S. dollars," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker has said Tuesday night the $62,000,000 represented "purely routine" transactions—U.S. payments for defence and other purchases in Canada, and other exchange settlements.

Another topic—a national flag for Canada—is the subject of Mr. Diefenbaker's attention Wednesday while campaigning in Quebec's Lake St. John district.

Former PC Member Will Be Recalled to Stand in Probe

TORONTO (CP) — Arthur C. Jolley, former Progressive Conservative member of the Legislature for Niagara Falls, will be recalled before the royal commission on crime concerning evidence on which he Wednesday to a suggestion that he be charged with perjury.

Commission counsel Roland F. Wilson said today that Mr. Jolley will be given a chance to explain how he wrote testimonial letters for gamblers Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley in 1958 and told the commission this year that he did not know Feeley and had only a bare acquaintance with McDermott.

Liberal party counsel S. R. MacKinnon suggested to the commission Wednesday that Mr. Jolley should be charged with perjury.

Meanwhile Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, the commissioner, considered today whether the Ontario Court of Appeal will be asked to rule on the question of whether Feeley should be forced to give evidence — including his income tax returns since 1953 — which Feeley objected to Wednesday on the ground it might incriminate him.

At today's opening, Mr. Justice Roach discussed the matter briefly with Feeley's lawyer and then announced the hearing until 2 p.m. while he studied court decisions on the issue including rulings that resulted from Canada's postwar spy trials which had been proceeded by a royal commission at which those accused had been examined.

Feeley dribbled a droplet of information Wednesday and promptly touched off a legal fight over whether he can refuse to talk of matters that might incriminate him.

The blocky 39-year-old Toronto man, who has been pictured in evidence as co-czar of a gambling realm with Joseph McDermott, then sat silently as his lawyer invoked the new Bill of Rights on behalf of Feeley, already under one conviction on

TORIES STUNNED AS THEY LOSE 'SAFE' SEAT

First Labor Gain Since 1959 Vote

LONDON (CP)—The political fortunes of the ruling Conservative, party sagged still lower today with the loss of a "safe" They seat to Labor—the first Labor gain in Parliament since the 1959 general election.

Dr. Jeremy Bray, a 31-year-old mathematician, won the House of Commons seat in Middlesbrough West, a north of England industrial district, in one of two elections held Wednesday. Dr. Bray defeated Conservative candidate Bernard Connelly by a vote of 15,095 to 12,825.

The Conservatives won the seat in 1959 with a majority of 8,700. They polled 25,495 votes to 16,134 for Labor and 4,336 for the Liberal party.

Liberal candidate George Scott finished third Wednesday with more than 3,000 more votes as 1959—9,829. Two independents got fewer than 200 votes apiece.

Obviously, the Liberal upsurge had cut into the Conservative and Labor vote.

TAKE OTHER SEAT

In the other byelection held in another Conservative seat, Derbyshire West, the Conservatives retained the seat with a greatly reduced majority as the Liberal candidate finished second.

Conservative candidate Aidan Crawley got 24,451 votes, Liberal R. Leander-Thomas 11,235, Laborite J. Dilks 9,431 and R. Grey, an Independent, 1,433.

The Conservative margin was reduced to 1,220 votes while in the April 1962 by-election in 1959 the Conservative majority was 8,100. The Conservatives polled 22,034 and Labor 13,934.

The middle-of-the-road Liberals, who held power for early 1900s, recently captured the Conservative citadel of Orpington, Kent, in a dramatic and ironic within a few votes of stealing another "safe" government seat in the west coast resort of Blackpool.

The Liberals also scored big gains last month in municipal elections throughout England and Wales.

They headed into Wednesday's byelections with only seven seats in the 630-seat House of Commons but their popularity has soared recently among British voters, discontended with the government's austerity measures.

The Conservatives still retain a 100-seat majority in Commons, but the loss in Middlesbrough West—a seat formerly held by Labor's Herbert Morrison—is a severe blow.

FEAR SPLIT VOTE

The Conservatives fear that the next general election, which must be held no later than in the summer of 1964, the Liberals could split the Conservative vote and pave the way

Attlee Discharged

LONDON (AP)—Earl Attlee, 79-year-old former Labor prime minister, was discharged today from hospital where he underwent surgery for a stomach cancer.

"The ailment has been successfully treated by a two-stage operation and he now is making a very satisfactory recovery," a hospital spokesman said.

Jews, Unitarian, Agnostic Lose Appeal Against Bible Readings

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Daily Bible readings in Miami schools were upheld Wednesday by the Florida Supreme Court.

The court said that to deny the vast majority of pupils the right to hear Bible readings "because a minority might suffer some embarrassment or anxious confusion is to approach the ridiculous."

The court said the challenge to the state law requiring such readings, brought by Jews, a Unitarian and an agnostic, appears to be "just another case in which the tender sensibilities of certain minorities are sought to be protected against the allegedly harsh laws and customs enacted and established by the more rugged pioneers of the nation."

The opinion, written by Justice Millard Caldwell, said that the Bible readings could not be made no serious contention that their children "have suffered or will suffer any material psychological trauma as a consequence of the daily reading of the Bible, either in or out of their presence."

The court noted that provision has been made in Dade County for those not wanting to hear the Bible readings to be excused.

The case was argued before the Florida Supreme Court by Leo Pfeffer of New York, general counsel of the American Jewish Congress.

Says $10,000 Bribe Offered To Mayor

MILTON, Ont. (CP)—Crown Attorney Peter McWilliams said Wednesday millionaire builder Rex Heslop offered a $10,000 bribe to former Georgetown mayor Ernest C. Ryan.

Heslop went on trial Wednesday charged with offering a reward to a municipal official to aid in the procuring of a motion by council.

The Crown attorney said Heslop went to the mayor's office before the 1961 municipal election the money plus a business to "take care of him for a good many years."

The bribe was offered, he said, to influence the mayor in encouraging council to release a block of land for development. Heslop developed 1,000 acres in the Georgetown area, but the project stalled by council in building houses on another 1,143 lots.

Five Petawawa Soldiers Killed In 2-Car Crash

Police Say Accident Worst They Ever Saw

PEMBROKE (CP) — Five young soldiers, two from Ontario and three from Nova Scotia, were killed early today when two cars collided on Highway 17, five miles west of this Ottawa Valley town.

Members of the 4th battalion, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, stationed at nearby Camp Petawawa, they were identified by the Army as:

Gnr: John Andrew Munroe, 21, Trout Brook, N.S.; Gnr. Edward Burton Boutilier, 22, Halifax; Gnr. Ronald Dennis Lorgess, 21, Willowdale, Ont.; Lance-bdr. Franklyn W. Kane, 25, Pembroke; and Gnr. Paul A. MacKinnon, 19, of New Waterford, N.S.

Kane, alone in one of the cars, was the only married man among the victims.

Army officials said they believe the two cars met at high speed on the highway. The motor was ripped from one car and wreckage of the vehicles was strewn 100 feet away.

Indians Advised By Their Chiefs Not to Vote

OSHWEKEN, Ont. (CP) — Chiefs of the Six Nations Indians have passed a resolution advising Indians not to vote in the June 18 federal election because promises made to them by Ottawa

The six hereditary chiefs, meeting Tuesday in the Onondaga longhouse here, agreed it is "advisable to caution our people to refrain from voting in the coming federal election."

"An Indian who votes sacrifices all his national treaty rights, the same as an enfranchised Indian who decides to leave the Indians and accept Canadian citizenship . . ." said the resolution.

"Promises made to the Indians are a farce, and a bad-joke to play on the Six Nation people, who are still alive were highly instrumental in forming what is now Canada," it added.

At Ottawa Col. H. M. Jones, director of the Indian Affairs branch, said Wednesday night there is "nothing at all" to the effect statement that Indians who vote would lose their treaty rights.

"They lose nothing and gain the right to vote the same as any other person," he said in an interview. "They lose nothing of their treaty rights or any other right they may have."

That was spelled out in the recent legislation by which the franchise was extended to all Indians.

MAY CHARGE ADMISSION

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is expected to decide the question of admission charges to Canada's national parks. An official of the national resources department said Wednesday the decision made would likely be announced within a month.

Accidental Poisonings May Be Reduced by New Group

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Pharmacy and medicine joined forces Wednesday in a province-wide campaign against accidental poisonings.

A committee of trustees for the control of accidental poisonings was set up.

Cheques totalling $1,800 were presented to provide initial funds for research programs into development of a child-proof safety cap for medicine containers. The money was donated by the ORPA and the Essex County Medical Society.

Dr. Henri Brunell, director of the Windsor Poison Control Centre, in a speech to ORPA delegates, called upon Ontario's 4,500 pharmacists and 8,500 registered physicians each to contribute $3 to the research fund.

The association passed a resolution calling for removal of the 11 per cent federal sales tax on the wholesale value of pharmaceuticals.

The resolution, to be forwarded to the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association, said the move would be a practical measure to reduce the cost of drugs.

THE ORPA also passed a resolution saying it was opposed to legislation such as the type passed recently by the Alberta provincial government which tends to place responsibility and liability on the pharmacist dispensing prescriptions.

The legislation permits the pharmacist to substitute, under certain circumstances, generic equivalents for drugs listed on a doctor's prescription.

The association dropped the term "retail" from its name and opened its membership to all the 4,500 registered pharmacists in the province.

Up to now, the association's membership of 1,300 has been composed of pharmacy managers or owners. The change means pharmacists employed in hospitals, drug firms or those who work for owner-pharmacists will be able to join the organization.

A. O. Lawrence of Sudbury was elected president.

Other officers elected included A. B. Ward of Ottawa, first vice-president.

First Secret Army Killers Are Executed

PARIS (AP) — Two Secret Army killers were executed at dawn today—the first to be put before a firing squad—but former Gen. Edmond Jouhaud remained in the death row he had shared with them.

The fate of the 57-year-old Jouhaud, deputy commander of the underground terrorist army, still rested with President de Gaulle. There was an indication de Gaulle would spare his life.

Southeast of Paris at Fort du Trou d'Enfer (Hell Hole Fort) rifle volleys followed by two pistol shots — the customary coups de grace—rang out at 8:12 a.m. They brought death to Albert Dovecar, 37, a former sergeant in the Foreign Legion, and Claude Piegts, 32, a civilian.

They had been convicted of slaying a police commissioner in Algiers March 31, 1961.

a charge of obtaining police information illegally.

By the time the commission adjourned, indications were the case would be transferred for a ruling to the Ontario Court of Appeal, where McDermott-Feeley lawyer Walter G. Rose previously has scored a win on a technicality before the commission.

CROSSBOWS LEGAL POINT

Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, the commissioner, ruled against Rose's motion on the question of his right to question the gambler on any point, but at adjournment he had not still discussing a subsequent request by the lawyer that he call on the court for a ruling.

While the commissioner did not say whether or not he would take the matter to the court, he talked with Mr. Rose on the wording of a question for that body. In any event, the lawyer could be his own at the court's permission to hear the issue, as he did previously.

Should a court reference be sought, commission hearings probably would be adjourned until the Appeal Court handed down a decision. This happened when Mr. Rose was appealing the case of his client, Toronto gambler Clarence Crossbows.

ASKS PERJURY CHARGES

Besides Feeley's abbreviated appearance on the stand, there were three developments before the commission this morning.

1. Liberal party counsel B. J. MacKinnon asked for a perjury charge against Arthur C. Lolley, former Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Niagara Falls, when it was disclosed that he had wrote testimonial letters for McDermott and Feeley conflicting with his evidence under oath to commission.

2. Mr. MacKinnon said an "extraordinary procedure" was used in 1957 in the issuance of provincial licences to three gambling clubs with which McDermott, Feeley and Lolley connected, after Louis Hermon, then their lawyer, interviewed Attorney - General Kelso Roberts.

3. Mr. Herman, now secretary-treasurer of the Progressive Conservative Association of Metropolitan Toronto, denied that he tried to use "influence" in an unsuccessful 1960 attempt to block cancellation of one of the club charters.

4. Edgard Handy, private secretary to the late Liberal premier Mitchell Hepburn, was reported to have happened by chance to deliver to the federal insurance department in 1956 an application for a licence for a finance company for a group of McDermott and Feeley. This came about because Mr. Herman and Mr. Handy were old friends, and Mr. Handy volunteered to save the lawyer a trip to Ottawa.

Appearance of Feeley—who is to be followed by McDermott—provided something of an anti-climax after a bulldup that had been piling up since hearings opened March 21, with witness after witness linking gambling operations, policemen and politicians to the names of the pair.

The heavy-set witness, with a bulgy briefcase beside him, got off to a dragey and vague start in testimony and quickly came to a dead stop after dropping a few smidgeons of information, most interesting of which was that he filed income tax returns on just $7,200 for 1953.

When Mr. Justice Roach ruled that this and other tax returns be filed as exhibits, Mr. Rose protested and the gambler also registered objection on the ground they could tend to incriminate him. Then the legal argument began.

R. K. Cameron Moderator of Presbyterians

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. Ross K. Cameron of Toronto was elected Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada Wednesday night at the church's 87th general assembly.

Dr. Cameron, 57, a native of Stratford, served as minister for 22 years at Medicine Hat court Road Presbyterian Church.

About 300 commissioners from 48 presbyteries across Canada cast ballots in a majority on the first ballot over the only other nominee, Rev. G. Deane Jamieson of Brantford.

Retiring Moderator Dr. Robert Taylor of Medicine Hat, Alta., hailed his successor and made several proposals to facilitate the Methodist-United Church leading 300,000 Canadians.

Dr. Cameron held previous charges at Streetsville, Ont., and Edmonton. During the Second World War he served as chaplain with the RCAF and attained the rank of squadron leader.

Dr. Taylor said in his sermon that the Presbyterian Church is not church union but that churches would recognize each other as brethren.

'DO WE BELONG'

"Do we recognize that we belong to the fellowship of believers, the communion of the apostolic succession?" he asked. "The danger to the church is that of measuring ourselves by our differences."

Dr. Taylor reviewed his tenure as Moderator and said the task would be lightened by all following the Moderator's wife to accompany him on travels.

The 87th assembly will continue in Knox church here until June 14.

Business items on the agenda include a proposed increase of a minister's stipend to $3,400 from $3,100.

Driver Charged After Child Struck by Car

Eugene Timothy Pearce, 3-yearold son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Pearce of 2 Railway Terrace, was taken to the Kingston General Hospital Wednesday evening for an emergency operation after he was struck by a car on Belleville St.

It is said the child was struck by a vehicle driven by Victor C. Deline of Belleville.

The boy is believed to be suffering a fractured skull and a fractured right leg.

He was attended at the scene of the accident by Dr. N. McDonald. He was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital and then taken to the hospital in Kingston by LaSalle ambulance.

Deline was charged by the city police with dangerous driving in connection with the accident.

Tely Thanked For Apology By Thompson

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Thompson, national Social Credit leader, voiced his "personal admiration" in a telegram and publisher John Bassett for an editorial in Wednesday's paper concerning a Telegram story Tuesday on the resignation of a Sarnia Ontario Social Credit party president.

Mr. Thompson certified the Telegram in a speech Tuesday night for giving front page headlines to a story more than a year old, in its editorial Wednesday The Telegram said the handling of the story about B. R. Patterson's resignation in June, 1961, was "a monumental mistake" although the resignation would have been hot news had it come in June 1962.

In a letter to Mr. Bassett, Progressive Conservative candidate in Toronto Spadina for the June 18 Dominion election, Mr. Thompson said:

"Setting our conflicting political views aside, I must say after reading today's editorial in The Telegram (and the page one coverage) I devoted to my attack on you that you, as a newspaper publisher, and your publication ranks very high in terms of my personal admiration.

"One apology deserves another, and I do so now my attack on your integrity as a publisher — although I naturally must reserve my judgment on your political beliefs.

"As a political candidate you will appreciate how upset I was to see the worthless year-old charge of one of our ex-supporters given prominent front page play. I did not anticipate that The Telegram would set the record straight. As long as we have great newspapers, that can show great courage in apologizing for great mistakes, this will be a great country."

Conservatives Hold Rally at Cherry Valley

PICTON — Seventy electors attended a Progressive Conservative rally in Cherry Valley hall, arranged for Athol and South Marysburg townships, Wednesday night.

Dr. Douglas Allenbrand as he enumerated the Diefenbaker government's record in the fields of agriculture and social welfare. He stressed the importance of assisting our industry in this area and assisting those already established. Special effort, he said, should be made to dispose of surplus canned goods.

C. A. Milligan, M.P., said that the present government had replaced United States canned goods in Canadian army canteens. He told of contracts totalling $100,000, of which $18,000 came to Prince Edward factory. He felt that pegging of the dollar affect needed protection for the canning industry.

Mr. Milligan said the present cabinet is composed of dedicated men and that they deserved to be given at least four years to receive the credit for the benefits which will accrue from the work being done. Price support for the Conservative party candidate, Mr. Milligan said, was a matter of extra dollars into farmers' pockets. He credited, in reviewing aid to agriculture, appraised the immigration policy which was being carried with the economic development.

Mr. Milligan in a piece of legislation that the opposition voted against in the House—"now they are critiicizing everything," the retiring member said.

ASSISTANCE TO AGRICULTURE

Assistance given agriculture was llated by James Bird of Picton, Conservative organ at almost doubled since the Conservatives. Sale of wheat to Red China was a big factor in new purchases but removed the threat of western competition to the east in production of feeder stock. "With the wheat sold, the government is going to promote greater attention to agriculture in Eastern Canada," he said.

Picton Army camp Major Bird pointed out that exhibition of dollars are invested here; changing conditions necessitate a change in the type of military training in built up areas. "Every fall we see an even bigger military establishment in Picton, he declared. Wembeden Pte. Wilson.

LAUDED FOR SERVICE

Mr. Allenbrand's 20 years' service on Napanee council, two as mayor, service on the Ontario Municipal Board, as the Boy Scout Association, Cancer Society and other groups, was cited by Phil Dodds in his introduction.

Allan Lawrence, president of the Riding Association received days notice in Manitoba that he could not sell wheat, and the difference to the farmer was paid by the government on its increase in pensions.

Applause greeted Major Bird's declaration that men offering office or anything are victims of rowdyism at political meetings. He says the Prime Minister "it was a disgraceful thing and the opposition must share the blame."

Walter Nind, past president of Wellington P.C. Association thought disturbances at rallies are a sign of communism infiltration.

Mrs. Nind, president of the ladies' association, gave a challenging and humorous talk to electors, urging women to set an example for the men.

South Marysburg president Donald Walker, as chairman, and Bruce Gordon, expressed confidence that the achievements of the Conservative government will be recognized by voters.

President of the Riding Association, Barney Hepburn, gave advice on how workers might best assist the candidate.

The ladies of the two townships served bountiful refreshments

Man Is Crushed Between Truck And Light Pole

A 19-year-old Belleville youth, Larry Outingdyke, of 85 Donald St., is in hospital here as the result of an accident which occurred Wednesday evening, shortly before 8:00 p.m., at Wetmore's service station lot on the corner of North Front and College Streets.

Police said a tractor trailer owned by City Construction Ltd. was parked on the service station lot, being filled with gasoline.

While the driver, Clarence J. Hayes, R.R. 1, Thurlow, was in the station signing a bill for the gasoline, the air brakes attached to the rig, let go, allowing the vehicle to roll backward, down an incline. It came to rest at the intersection of North Front and College St.

Mr. Outingdyke, the service station attendant, seeing the truck rolling, ran to the vehicle and jumped onto the running board. As he attempted to open the door to bring the runaway vehicle to a halt, he was crushed between the truck and a light-standard located on the northwest corner of North Front St.

He suffered a fractured thigh bone, fractured leg and a serious laceration to the calf of his right leg.

Dr. E. MacDonald attended the victim at the scene of the accident, and he was taken to hospital by LaSalle ambulance. This morning his condition was reported as good.

Heavy Surface Being Put on Division St.

TRENTON — Trenton's most talked - about street . . . Division Street, is in the news again. The new surface is being signature of town engineer Eric Alderary, has called for tenders for the addition of an inch-and-a-half of asphalt surface on the street, between between Dundas St. W., and Front St. All tenders for the work must be in by 5 p.m., June 18. When Division St. was being reconstructed last year, Mr. Alderary recommended that only two inches of asphalt be laid, and that the street be allowed to "settle" over the winter. In this way, cracks from ice, water and frost could be mended before the final surfacing was done. The extra surfacing will ready the street for heavy traffic.

Work must be completed by July 20.

NEAR COMPLETION

One of cheapest . . .

Trenton's early air - raid warning system is nearing completion. Three areas have been installed and wired. Inspectors from the Ontario Hydro have been asked to inspect the installation and wiring. Once they've passed it, the public utilities will be asked to hook up the connections; army officials will take it from there and the initial testing of the apparatus will take place. Although nothing concrete has been announced, originally it was planned to sound the sirens from the Trenton fire hall.

RADIO INSTALLED

Fire Chief Charles Ellis said yesterday that a two-way radio system, linking his car with the fire hall has been installed and was only waiting for approval from the department of transport to be put into use. One other unit will be installed in a fire truck, and Chief Ellis then link, communication-wise, the chief's car, the truck and the hall. The town has rented the equipment on a trial basis.

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Corporal Lloyd Lyle of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment at Brighton, said yesterday that a car, stolen in Toronto on Monday, was found recovered near Brighton at 8.30 a.m. Tuesday. The driver, Frederick Aldham, 30, of Toronto, has been charged with the theft and is due in court at Toronto, awaiting a court appearance.

The car was recovered on Highway 30, north of Highway 401 by Constable J. C. Mason of the Brighton detachment.

Sea Cadets Get $614 From Tag Day

TRENTON — Lt. H. W. Curtis, Commanding Officer of RCSCC "Trent", announced yesterday that Trenton Sea Cadet Corps had realized $614 from last weekend's tag days in Trenton and Frankford. Since corps activity can be carried out for very little more that this sum, over a one-year period, Lt. Curtis said that he was more than pleased at the response of Trenton and Frankford citizens.

The Trenton corps has grown from 40 members to 55 and applications to join continue to be received.

This summer, 13 cadets will attend a two-weeks' training course on the HMCS "Acadia," based on Canada's east coast. Two local cadets will attend a seven weeks' leadership course aboard HMCS "Cornwallis", in Deeprbook, N.S.

Meanhile, all cadets are busy making sea-worthy two training boats. One boat was donated by a Kingston shipbuilding firm and the other purchased through donations from Trenton businessmen.

Sewer Fee Not Yet Paid

TRENTON — An error appeared in the writeup of Trenton's Monday night council meeting, published in the Ontario Intelligencer, Tuesday.

During the discussion of G. C. Robinson's letter, querying the basis for the $200 sewer fee, the town clerk's figures he had already been paid by Mr. Robinson.

It has since been revealed that while Mr. Robinson did agree to the charge, to pay, when he is convinced the charge is justified, he has not yet paid the fee.

Fears U.N. Invasion

The DeKalb, Georgia, New Era fears that the United States may be invaded by a United Nations "peace force."

The New Era admits that this sounds fantastic, but argues that it is no more fantastic than other actions by the UN and is the logical end result of a U.S. proposal to the peace conference at Geneva that all national armies be abolished and replaced by a UN police force.

If the reader still cannot find the narrow bridge of reason linking this fantasy with the facts, let us pause to point out that the Geneva meeting is considering all the effects of universal disarmament and the U.S. had suggested that, once all national armies were abolished, some international police force would be essential to prevent international gangsterism.

It is, of course, a long, long road from such a suggestion to a world in which it would be an actuality. But the DeKalb New Era sounds the call to the ramparts. The advocates of "no win" policies, it declares, are openly declaring by this proposal "their eagerness for the United States to abandon its national defence and depend on the whim of the communists and neutralists."

Laughter is the natural reaction. The New Era, hardly deserves to be taken seriously. But it is a little more difficult to laugh at Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, one of the greatest soldiers of the Second World War. And here we find Monty talking much the same way, on a slightly different subject. He does not want Britain to join "the Common Market, because the Common Market is the first step towards a United States of Europe and a United States of Europe "might well mean that we would have our laws made for us by Europeans and not by our own Parliament."

When a man of Montgomery's stature finds it so hard to accept union with his country's friends, one may perhaps pardon the New Era for being so alarmed over the possibility of cooperation with the enemy, no matter how distant the pre-conditions for this co-operation may appear to be.

Lamprey Scores TKO

There can hardly be a more dramatic object lesson to man of the often unexpected effects of his meddling with nature than the announcement by Hon. J. W. Spooner, Ontario Minister of lands and forests, that a quota system will be imposed on commercial lake trout fishing in Lake Superior. In other parts of the Great Lakes commercial lake trout fishing has long since become a thing of the past.

The decline in the trout population is blamed on the sea lamprey, which fastens itself on the side of a trout and sucks the blood—and life—out of the fish. The lamprey was able to make its way into the Great Lakes when man built canals around formerly impassable rapids.

The effects of man's works on the balance of nature is an old story, but seldom is a change so rapid as that which has overtaken the lake trout.

Within the memory of middle-aged people, it was common-place to see the fishing boats pull into port on Lake Huron and Georgian Bay loaded with boxes of trout. Pound nets, when lifted, came up a silvery, shivering mass of trout, with only a few whitefish or pickerel. Not only have the fish virtually disappeared from Lake Huron and Georgian Bay, but now their last stronghold in Lake Superior has suffered so heavily that quotas have had to be imposed.

At first, when the decline started, there were some who doubted whether the lamprey was responsible. It is evident from Mr. Spooner's announcement that officially doubts on this point have been erased. There were, however, some who suggested that the decline in the trout population was in some mysterious manner linked with the spectacular increase in the number of smelt.

It is strange, too, why the lake trout population should have decreased so rapidly and so sharply while there has been an equally rapid and proportionately large increase in rainbow trout in the same Lake Huron and Georgian Bay waters where the lake trout once abounded. The theory is that the lamprey attacks the lake trout because it is not protected by heavy scales, like the carp, pike or pickerel. But the rainbow trout is smooth skinned too, and lampreys do attach themselves to these fish. Why has the rainbow trout survived and multiplied, while the lake trout has been so severely depleted in numbers? Is it possible that when the victory of the scientists over the lamprey now in sight is finally achieved, it will be discovered that the lake trout is unable to make-the hoped-for comeback.

Ottawa Offbeat

Strain on Party Leaders Almost Beyond Endurance

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — This is just another Federal election . . . and in the last 93 years around these parts, there have been quite a lot of them . . .

. . . and another election, except, that this time, the question is not so much who is going to win . . . but will the winner be standing on his feet, conscious, alive and breathing, when the votes are counted.

The amount of punishment that Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Pearson have deliberately been inflicting on themselves is not only incredible, but senseless.

Never will the price of victory be so high as this time in blood and sweat.

You must have noticed some of the strange things that have been happening right out on the campaign trail . . . the sudden flare-up of buffoonery, the hot and insulting words, the quick demonstrations of irritation, the angry looks, the scowls and other assorted unpleasantness.

GETTING THROUGH

Hints of this . . . and it is the cost of the preliminary gags often almost inhuman fatigue . . . have been coming on for months, even the most objective of the election news coverage.

The tension, emotional and physical, on both leaders in the final seven or eight days of the eight-week campaign, just conceivably could be enough to crack them.

Under the straight physical and mental pressures, it is possible either might suddenly and in an always-to-be-regretted moment, make some dreadful gaff.

Within it this political endurance contest is the greatest uncertainty.

Both Diefenbaker and Mike are being literally flown to pieces for $60,000 each . . . the price of hiring their airplanes.

At that price, the two leaders haven't felt they could spare a moment for relaxation or sometimes, even sleep. —

At 60-odd, they have been compelled to push themselves to their physical limits.

The plane has the undeniable advantage of being able to whisk a campaigner from one end of the country to the other in a few hours — a journey, which just a couple of elections ago, used to take, with the railroad's unhurried, whooping-it-around, the best part of a week.

TOO MUCH OF A MUCH

But in doing this, the aircraft has disrupted the political working day to a back-breaking temper-wrecking per 16 hours, six days a week.

The Prime Minister is 66 . . . the Liberal Leader 65 . . . and if they're going to get a good day at work by seven in the morning, and then to bed when they've got to be to bed, and asleep by ten at the latest, especially when they're both hard, hot, heart-straining days they do.

Even Trade Minister George Hees, ex-Argo, track star, swimmer, hiker and general all-round athlete, hits the sack by 10, even on an ordinary working day, let alone Election.

But the two leaders, more than 15 years older, and never in such great shape as Hees, never make it now before midnight, and if they're not aboard the plane, seldom sleep.

Both leaders have been showing the strain — how to be polite, yet get exceedingly irritated if anybody mentions this thing they're doing a little wilted around the edges.

And when the winner, beneficiary, staggers in under the wire at campaign trail's end, there'll be a mountain of waiting, decisions by their disemraying Cabinet Ministers.

What kind of shape will he be in to shoulder the load of responsibility accumulated in the eight weeks he has been out of the country working himself to death?

Drug Addicts Go to U.K.

St. Thomas Times - Journal

Canadians may be surprised to know that there are Canadian immigrants in London whose only reason for going there is to obtain regular supplies of heroin, or whatever their favorite drug is, and to be treated for their trouble under the National Health scheme.

Great Britain treats drug addiction as an illness, not a crime, as in Canada. Drug addicts come under the Dangerous Drugs Act. On medical recommendation an addict can register at a particular drug store and obtain a specific amount of drugs to be taken every day. In cause of time, the addict may be "weaned" until he is finally removed from the black list.

But the victim may have to be written off as a hopeless victim.

There are 44 Canadians on the addict registration list in London. Treatment costs them nothing. It is a terminal charge of two shillings, or 30 cents, is made for the daily doses.

In the whole of Britain, the number of addicts on the register is 437. It is estimated that the number of addicts in the United States is 44,000.

Britain appears to be making a methodical, planned and successful effort to deal with her drug addict problem.

War Widow Asks Return of Wallet

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

I lost a red wallet with a sum of money in the A-P store in the shopping plaza. Would the person please return it, return the wallet for sentimental reasons? It was a gift to me by my daughter whose picture was in the wallet with her little girl and also my name, address, phone number. Being on a pension I am very sorely needed. If returned I would reward the person. Hoping to hear from you.

Earlier on the day the Queen had opened the Canadian wing of the Ontario's first controlled - access highway.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A RACIAL INSANITY

Why do we need to have war? Why do we have it, and why have we continued to have it since the dawn of history?

It would take wiser minds than ours to give a complete and satisfactory answer to those questions. War is one of those mysteries which, like the fact of which man has become involved and for which he appears unable to give any good reason, he disclaims self defense. He declares that he is the champion of moral principle. He calls attention to the fact that if war is not waged here-greater war will have to be waged a few years hence.

So, on we go. The tanks roll, the soldiers march, blood and treasure are poured out, and why?

We can only answer that it is not the common people who want war or who bring it about. Governments and the people who lead governments are responsible for war. Human life being as it is there would probably always be disputes among men which would have to be kept down by police action. But if police action is one thing and the building up of huge war machines is another. The reason behind police supervision but there is no incomprehensible folly behind war.

Does this mean that we can disarm? Not at all. We must protect ourselves against a folly which we in some measure have helped to create. No one knows the answer, but we must seek to find it out. And always we should keep assuring ourselves that war is a kind of racial insanity for which we must eventually seek cure.

Today, June 7th, is the birthday of Mayor George O. Tice His reception was born at Mountain View and lived there until he was five years of age when he came with his parents to reside in Belleville. He spent twenty years in western Canada but the greater part of his life has been passed in Belleville Incidentally it may be added that the Mayor is a good Presbyterian, a citizen ever on the lookout for the best interests and one who is self-sacrificing and not in the habit of praise. His six years in the city council prove his enduring qualities. All sons of Belleville and many residents in the district will join him many happy returns of his natal day.

Strictly Personal

Most Women Want Men To Dominate

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: The finding of opposites is usually the best guarantee of body politic, as it is for the body physical, but the hardest to achieve; yet we can see its value in medicine where we rarely require radical surgery, we put ourselves into the hands of a conservative surgeon.

What a woman really wants is a man who is sturdy, self-reliant, independent, courageous, most tolerant — and will obey her slightest whim.

Speaking of the inanity of most letters I get, I was yesterday reminded me of Ambrose Bierce's tart definition of a lawyer as "a man who has a hand in your pocket, his tongue in your ear, and his faith in your patience."

We have not passed that subtle line between childhood and adulthood until we remove from the passive voices to the active voice — until we have stopped saying "it got lost," and say, "I lost it."

The most common way of committing suicide is not by violence, but by neglect — by shooting or stabbing oneself gradually, or by drowning oneself over a long period.

Every cosmic problem has its microcosmic counterpart, and if we ask why the world continues to have wars when most people don't want wars, we must ask why so many millions of us continue to have fights when we know that suffering is bad for us and does no good.

A university should more properly be called a "multiversity" — because it has no right to unify and coordinate the various branches of study to a hundred subjects, each filled with specialists who know little, if anything, about the relationship of their subject to others.

It is the basic delusion of young people that they are going to live forever, but it is at the same time they are never going to grow old, or be a decrepit as their grand-parents; therefore it is impossible to discuss the passage of time sensibly with youngsters.

If our 17-or-18-day Puritans really knew how to read Shakespeare, they would scream for his plays — because he is so far stricken from the nation's beliefs and mores and is such an amusement of "obscenity" in them. (For evidence, consult Eric Partridge's latest work on "Shakespeare's Bawdry.")

The truly educated and attractively groomed and costumed women in the world is unappealing if her mouth is hard, her eyes are sullen, and her expression is bored or greedy — as is so often the case.

Laughter runs the longest gamut of any human emotion: from innocent joy to the coarsest cruelty.

To Your Good Health

Similar to Peptic Ulcer

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Just what is a diseased gall bladder? — M.H.

The liver produces about a pint of bile a day, which is used for digestion. Some of this flows directly to the small intestine. The rest is stored and concentrated in the gall bladder. When needed it flows into the "common bile duct," which also carries bile direct from the liver.

Like any other organ, the gall bladder may become infected, with acute infection, there will be fever; the gall bladder may subside into a chronic state which will make the wall thicken.

There's also the problem of crystals of "gall stones" — bile salts or cholesterol crystals form and are the basis for the stones.

There may be a single stone or several, or a sand-like sediment known as "gravel." When these particles try to escape through the small bile ducts, the resulting colicky pain can be severe.

If only the outlet of the gall bladder is blocked, there will be pain but no jaundice; if the "common duct" is obstructed, bile no longer can escape from the liver, and it backs up into the system causing the yellowness or jaundice.

Gravel or stones may be lodged in the gall bladder or may stick to the mucous lining which, in turn, may develop polyps. Cancer of the gall bladder is a possibility.

An acute infection, with pus formation, is referred to as empyema of the gall bladder.

Various symptoms are possible: Acute sharp pain or vague discomfort in the upper abdomen, centrally or to the right of the midline, pain in front of the right shoulder blade, and even to the tip of the shoulder.

It's not always easy to distinguish these symptoms from those of peptic ulcer, and X-ray becomes important, although with different technique. Drinking a barium mixture outlines the stomach and duodenum in seeking an ulcer; for gall bladder the patient swallows a dye (in tablet form) the night before X-raying.

Gall bladder cases require careful treatment. I won't generalize because it varies greatly. Some cases can be handled by diet and medication; others must have surgery. And no, there isn't anything that will "dissolve gall stones."

Dear Dr. Molner: At what age should a child change from a baby bed to a regular bed? — Mrs. H.

Fourteen years or thereabouts but there's no fixed age. Many children are cared for by generous practitioners, and they'll need to change as they reach puberty.

When a youngster gets into the teens, he's likely to be a bit self-conscious about going to a "child doctor."

Likewise the pediatrician himself is usually happy to see the adult to another physician, since by the age of 14 or 15 the "ailments of childhood" taper off.

Two of Five Go to School

Unesco Features

Only two out of five school-age children around the world receive some kind of education. European newspapers have the term, more than 200 million pupils. Nearly all children in North America have access to books, magazines and other reading material than any others in the world. The number of radio sets has been reached and passed. In little over one per every 10 persons in the world but television is the fastest growing communication medium today.

These facts and information can be found in "Basic Facts and Figures," a UNESCO annual publication of statistics in education, culture and mass communication gathered from 200 different countries and territories.

Education statistics take up more than a quarter of the pages in the book. Teacher shortages are about the same as the statistics. At least one or two countries have only one teacher for 100 or more pupils, and even in some of the more developed countries, a class may average out to 40 or 50 per teacher.

According to other statistics, the people of Hong Kong go to the cinema more often than anyone else in the world — 22 times a year — every inhabitant. The Eskimos, about as often although their proportion-ate attendance is greater than their disposal is lower than in many countries with smaller attendance records.

North America, with 36,000,000 television sets, has the biggest share of the 80,000,000 sets now in operation around the world. Monaco, with more than one television set for every two thousand persons, has the record for an individual country.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

I was sitting with an old friend in his garden when a member of his family came by and handed him a slip of paper.

"You were to call this number," she said.

Without even looking at the paper he crumpled it up and tossed it aside.

"Hey!" I protested.

"No," he said. "Over the years, I have found that every time somebody calls me when I am out, and leaves a number for me to call, it is busy when I call it. In fact, it can be busy time after time. People who give numbers are usually very busy themselves. They expect me to keep getting up from my work to call me back and to try their darn number over and over, they are crazy.

"But," I said, "you didn't even look at the number. Maybe it was something important."

"If it is important," said he, "they will get to the trouble of catching me, and they will be the trouble of trying to catch them. So I have never lost anything by following this rule."

7 Members of Moira Lodge Are Given 50-Year Jewels

Seven members with fifty years' consecutive membership were signally honored by Moira Lodge, A.F. & A.M., No. 11, GRC, at its regular meeting in the Masonic Temple last night.

Presented with fifty-year jewels were:

Rt. Wor. Bro. Aubrey Lott, of Ancaster, who is also a Past District Deputy Grand Master of Frontenac District;

H. W. Sharpe, of Lindsay;

Bro. Walter Aselstine; Forbes McLean; Charles Sprague; William Hunter and Norman Williamson, all of this city.

Three others, Bro. Norman Kerr, of Montreal; Bro. Percy Turner of Saskatoon, and Bro. J. F. Hinchey of this city, were to receive their jewels, but were unable to be present owing to distance, or illness.

It is considered quite an event when one member is honored by the presentation of his jewel, but when ten members are eligible for the honor in any one year, it seems to be a record for one lodge.

A large attendance of Masons was on hand to honor these veterans, who received a standing ovation when presented with the insignia for such long and honorable service.

Rt. Wor. Bro. Harry G. Bates, District Deputy Grand Master of Prince Edward District, on behalf of the Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario, in a very happy and congratulatory address, made the presentation.

Replying for the recipients were Bro. Walter Aselstine and Bro. Charles Sprague, who told of some of the happenings many years ago.

Wor. Bro. Dr. Paul Foster, Master of the lodge, was in charge.

An added feature of the evening was the presentation by Wor. Bro. Harry Bailey, of a set of wands, on behalf of Bro. Norman Williamson, which were gratefully accepted by Wor. Bro. Foster.

Hon. Paul Martin's Recipe

Less Politics and More Statesmanship Canada's Need After 'Five Lost Years'

Speaking here yesterday, Hon. Paul Martin expressed "amazement" that Prime Minister Diefenbaker's recent remarks consist mostly of "an attack on personalities rather than on the problems which are of grave concern to the Canadian people at this time".

He addressed almost 200 people attending a luncheon meeting at the Club Canara.

"Why doesn't he talk about the problems which face the Canadian people rather than abuse those who are trying to do their best at this time?" queried Mr. Martin. Any Prime Minister who reverts to this form of campaign speaking has surely realized that he is fighting a losing battle and is attempting to evade the real issues at stake, said the Liberal parliamentarian.

"What Canada needs in these difficult times is less politics and more courageous statesmanship to face the serious issues of today. The last five years have been wasted years and Canada has fallen from third position to eighth in the world's trading", he noted.

The Canadian people are not avoiding the real issues of this election, possibly the most important held in this country, Mr. Martin commented. There are "so many domestic problems unsolved" and the people from coast to coast are looking for the answers to these problems, he declared.

PLANS SCHOLARSHIPS

The Liberal educational policy, designed to solve the problem of making education available to every person capable of taking it, is to provide 10,000 scholarships.

The Liberal educational policy, designed to make the best possible use of the opportunities available to the youth of the country, is to provide 10,000 four-year scholarships each year for Canadian students. There will also be a student loan fund set up to assist worthy students so that financial difficulties at home would not prevent their obtaining a college or university education. For those who cannot carry on to this level of education, the Liberals will extend the family allowance program to the age of 18 in order to allow them to get adequate vocational training, at another level, he said.

Mr. Martin attacked the government's fiscal policies over the past six years. "In six different budgets they have presented six different deficit pictures," he said. This has resulted in the accumulation of a national debt of some $3,000,000,000, the same amount that it cost Canada to wage the First World War, he commented.

The Unemployment Insurance Fund has dropped from $950,000,000 in 1957 to only $52,000,000 as of today according to the latest figures from Ottawa, he said.

The deficit is due to a lack of adherence to proven principles of good, sound business management and nearly all of our problems are a part and parcel of this mismanagement, Mr. Martin said.

FARMERS' PROBLEMS

In commenting on the Conservatives' promises to the farmer in the last election, Mr. Martin noted that they promised three main points — no cost-price squeeze, a restoration of the farmers' markets and an increase in the farmer's net income.

"We want an accounting of these things. Why haven't they been done? Why no crop insurance? Why no improvement in net income in the past five years over the record of the past 12 years?" he asked.

Mr. Martin also spoke on unemployment. He stated that to have a half million people out of work in a work force of six mission is a situation which society cannot allow to continue and which is going to be felt at every level of society.

He asked voters to reasonize these facts and to realize that "Canada's greatest statesman - - - a president of the United Nations - - - a founder of NATO" and a man who would have been secretary-general of the United Nations if the communists hadn't opposed him, Lester B. 'Mike' Pearson, is fully capable of establishing Canada as one of the foremost nations of the world."

Mr. Martin expressed his confidence that the Liberals will emerge from the election victorious and urged local citizens to "leave no stone unturned" in electing Robert Temple "as a member of the Liberal government to restore Canada's good name and prosperity."

Following his address Mr. Martin was presented with a telegram bearing the names of over one hundred well-wishers who expressed their regret at being unable to attend the luncheon.

Mayor Hair greeted Mr. Martin, who was introduced by Robert Temple and thanked by Frank Follwell and Rev. Sills, who was chairman for the meeting.

Following the meeting Mr. Martin delayed his departure from Belleville several hours in order to attend a tea at the Hotel Quinte held by a former employer of his, Mr. John Hayes, in honor of Mr. Temple.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hayes Entertain 800 at Tea

More than 800 women attended the tea given by Mr. and Mrs. John Hayes at the Hotel Quinte yesterday in honor of South Hastings Liberal candidate Robert Temple. Mr. Hayes a native of Belleville, is chairman of the board of Laura Secord Ltd.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes and Mr. and Mrs. Temple received the guests, assisted by maitre d'hotel John Hogan and Mrs. J. Rashotte. Tea and coffee were poured by members of the hotel staff, and background music was provided by Jimmie Corradi at the piano.

Highlight of the afternoon was a short address by Hon. Paul Martin, former Minister of Health and Welfare. Mr. Martin was introduced by Mr. Hayes, who was at one time his employer.

Mr. Martin said that Canada's problems — unemployment, agriculture and finance, to name a few — needed a fresh look by a fresh group, one which had the commanding nation-wide strength of the Liberal party. He strongly endorsed Robert Temple, "a man who I know is deserving of the support of the people of this area, a man who understands the needs of the district, and will be well able to assist his government when it is called on to take over from the present administration". Mr. Martin was interrupted several times by applause.

Vegetable Variations Abroad

by Mary Moore

The vegetables that are on my mind today belong to the cabbage family and the reason that they are on my mind is because they are plentiful and as the summer progresses become more so. Add to that my yen for change and those are reasons enough for one column.

To broccoli we are going to add a curry sauce as the Italians would. Cabbage we are dressing up in the Austrian style and cauliflower goes Swiss cheese like the Italians do in Milan. We are nothing if not cosmopolites today.

Dinner Menu

THURSDAY

Grilled Calves' Liver and Kidneys; Mushroom Gravy; Spanish Rice; Creamed Carrots and Asparagus; Western Salad; Strawberry Shortcake (see Wednesday); Tea.

SUNDAY
(Gessie)

Roast Leg of Lamb; Broccoli with Curry Sauce (see Thursday); Boiled Minted New Potatoes; Shredded Cabbage and Pineapple Salad; Strawberry Meringue (see Wednesday); Coffee.

BROCCOLI WITH CURRY SAUCE:

1½ lbs. broccoli. Sauce Ingredients: ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon paprika, 1 egg, beaten, 3 tablespoons mild vinegar, 2 tablespoons salad oil, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, ½ teaspoon curry powder, 1 finely chopped green onion.

Wash broccoli and trim off a bit of end of the stems. If any of the stems are more than 1" in diameter, cut 4 to 6 lengthwise gashes through them. Cook, covered in small amount of boiling, salted water until just tender, about 10 to 15 minutes. Top with Curry Sauce: In top of double boiler combine mustard, salt, sugar, paprika, egg, vinegar and salad oil. Cook over hot water until thickened, stirring constantly. Add butter, curry powder and onion; mix well. Serve at once over cooked broccoli.

VIENNESE CABBAGE:

1 medium head cabbage, small onion, chopped fine, ½ teaspoon ground anise (optional), 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons (or less) sugar.

Wash cabbage well; cut into 8 or 10 wedges and remove the core. Mix onion, anise, if used, salt, pepper, vinegar and sugar in large shallow pan or frying pan. Bring to a quick boil; add cabbage wedges, cover and cook over low heat until crisply tender, or about 10 to 15 minutes. Serve immediately.

CAULIFLOWER A LA MILANAISE:

1 medium-sized cauliflower, 3 tablespoons butter, ¾ cup Swiss cheese, grated, 1½ teaspoons salt.

Remove the green outer leaves from the head of the cauliflower. Wash and drain. Cook whole in boiling water to cover with the saucepan uncovered, adding salt. During cooking have the stem end down so that the tender "flowers" will not be mashed. Do not overcook cauliflower — 10 to 15 minutes are adequate. When done, drain and carefully transfer to shallow ovenproof bowl or round ovenproof platter. Spread with softened butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper and with the grated cheese. If desired, place under the broiler flame in a hot oven until the cheese browns. Serve whole. The Swiss cheese blends especially well with the cauliflower flavor.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Brother Bites Brother

DEAR DORIS:—My problem is Bobby, age 2. He bites—people, himself, other little children, including his one-year-old brother. He has been doing this since he was 14½ years.

DORIS CLARK

We have bitten, spanked, scolded, talked, sent him to his room, tried to give him more love and affection. But so far nothing has worked.

Normally he is a happy child, sleeps well, but has a poor appetite.

Can you give any suggestions that will help him and us to stop that biting? It is starting to cause friction and tension between us all. I feel I can't trust him in the same room with his young brother. He knows it is wrong to bite, but he brags about it to his Daddy: "I bite Tommy, Daddy. Mommy spank me."

—What can we do?—MOMMY.

DEAR MOMMY:—Bobby's problem is Tommy—and you.

Just when things were going fine and you were all devoted to Bobby, Tommy came along and spoiled it all. So he bites Tommy to get even.

If he can't get attention the other way, he will have to settle for causing a scene. Even boasts about it to get more attention from Daddy. What matter to him if your attitude is hostile? It's attention, isn't it? Better than being ungelic and ignored.

I suspect the poor appetite is another means of focussing your concern on him.

So the treatment is to give him better satisfactions with life. A father who plays with him; games which challenge awakening intelligence; plenty of affection. There is no substitute for sitting on the floor with him, drawing pictures, talking, laughing, making him feel like a going concern, completely apart from young brother.

A term at nursery school has accomplished the seemingly impossible with such boys. Self-expression on a good level can make anti-social behavior vanish. Is it possible you might find one near you?

Ceylon, Indian Slides Seen by St. Julien

The regular meeting of the St. Julien chapter I.O.D.E. was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. George Hume, 15 Hyde Park.

Following the presentation of the flag and prayer of the Order, Mrs. R. M. Patterson, Regent conducted the business meeting.

Tentative plans were laid as to pot-luck supper to be held at the home of Mrs. W. Slade early in September. Pictures of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will be presented to an adopted school and a duplicate pair will be presented to another worthy source.

A representative of the chapter attended the United Appeal meeting at which Dr. R. Scott, campaign manager, gave an inspiring address. This worthy cause calls for concentrated effort, not only in the collection sense but individually as well and to be well informed as to its function is important to all chapter members.

NEW PROJECT

A new project of the I.O.D.E. is the forwarding of magazines to the Fox Nursing Station, Manitoba. A shipment has been gratefully received and more will follow.

The social part of the evening was highlighted by beautiful slides of India and Ceylon, shown by Mrs. J. Parrott, who had visited these countries recently. The fact of these people being part of the Commonwealth created added interest and the running commentary of Mrs. Parrot brought the customs of these distant lands into prominence most forcibly.

A delicious lunch was served by social hostesses, Mrs. G. Gibbons and Mrs. R. J. McDonald.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Hume for her hospitality.

Women's Institutes

BONARLAW W.I.

BONARLAW — The W.I. May meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Clarence McKeown with an attendance of 13 members, one visitor, and two children.

The president, Mrs. M. Cassidy, opened the meeting and Mrs. W. J. Barlow read the minutes. Mrs. Clayton Burkitt and Mrs. A. Burkitt gave reports of the district convention at Ivanhoe.

Mrs. Fred McKeown and Mrs. G. Burkitt, conveners for health, will be in charge of the meeting June 27th. They decided to have an open meeting at the L.O.L. hall and show films on First Aid, in the near future.

A reading was given by Mrs. G. Burkitt and Mrs. C. Burkitt conducted a bird contest.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Reid.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Margery B. — I'm embarrassed by the way my mother dresses.

Mrs. J.B. — I must appear in extreme and interesting costumes.

• • •

Margery B. — I'm 15 and it embarrasses me to have my mother borrow my dresses and insist that we share each other's outfits. My friends' mothers look like mothers. At least they dress their age. But mine looks like an over-age teen-ager, with her skirts above her knees and tons of junk jewellry all over her!

It's all right while she's on a job. But when she's just out for a walk with me, why must she wear all that eye shadow and green, mascara and purple lipstick? I almost died last week when she met me after school. She was wearing a wacky baseball hat!

She's my mother and I love her. But believe me, I don't like to be seen with her.

• • •

Mrs. J. B. — Even though I'm 15 and mother of a 15-year-old laugher, I take a size 3 dress and I model for fashion photographers and magazine illustrators, have teen dimensions but because I'm tall I'm in demand for certain extreme assignments, too. As a divorcee, I'm fortunate to be able to command a comfortable income from this employment. In a few years I know I'll have to get into some humdrum job, but now I must present the impression of youth which brings me — and Margery, too, despite her criticism — many luxuries we couldn't afford from her father's support money.

Margery is a squeamish, prudish youngster and her big cry in life seems to be in finding fault with me. It probably comes from ideas put into her head by relatives she stayed with who still have it "in" for me.

• • •

The Council: Something is wrong in your relationship cries "Help!" because each is making life hard for the other. With all the unpleasantness which has entered their lives in the past, leading to divorce and Margery's sojourn among carping relations, we'd expect these two to be models of considerateness toward one another. But Mother wears flashy theatrical outfits in public, and Daughter sees no reason for same save to embarrass her.

Each can ameliorate the situation via an unselfish look at the other's position. Mrs. B., in addition, might take a cold hard look at herself in a three-way mirror. Would a sensitive teen-ager say, "That's my mother!" with pride — or despair and apology?

For Margery's part she might try to see the outliffin' loyal mother beneath the facade of cosmetic mask and attention-getting styles. She might balance her cries of disapproval with as many soft kind expressions of appreciation as she can frame. She can muster some real admiration for the effort and ambition of this parent who is going it alone emotionally and almost alone (when it comes to extras) financially.

But Mrs. B. must compartmentalize her life more strictly, not only in response to Margery's troubled feelings, but also in the interests of reality for herself. Why can't she bend every effort to separate her professional from her private life? Why, when this becomes impossible, can she not mouth a word of regret and explanation for Margery who longs for a conformist-type mother?

Also Mrs. B. must realise that no matter how "springtime" sh th'nk- he- look- she's a woman not a teen-ager. She's also a mother and, as the statistics go, possibly a grandmother in five years! So the studied effort to look half her age may well be making her look, to the average eye, twice her age — what with the heavy-handed bedecking of self. We've a wird by the wise t've hope that's Mrs. B.!) from a famous Hollywood fashion consultant: "When a woman dresses her age, she usually looks 10 years younger!"

A little more attention to the other's problems, and this interesting family can become a happier one.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

PICNICS SHOULD BE FUN

Question: A friend of mine has a terrible habit of smearing her lipstick all over my best napkins wherever she eats at our house. I'm sure she does it other places, and I'm sure her other friends get just as irritated. I'd like to point this out to her for her own good, and wonder how I can do so without hurting her feelings. — Mrs. J.O.C., Hartford, Conn.

Answer: You can't. Making a fuss over an unfortunate habit or mannerism for someone's "own good" only results in strained relations. If a guest is really welcome, then a hostess simply overlooks such a minor inconvenience. Perhaps you're more aware of the lipstick smears than her other friends. If it's so irritating, next time have a pan of warm soapy water tucked away in the laundry room so you can drop the napkin in to soak before the lipstick stain sets. Your guest need never know, but with a little advance planning you can keep the friendship from becoming a complete washout.

East Hastings UCW Hold Regional Meeting in Madoc

MARSH HILL — The first regional meeting of the East Hastings United Church Women was held in Trinity United Church, Madoc, on May 29th. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers.

Mrs. Emma Reid presided at the organ throughout the morning and afternoon sessions. The ladies of Madoc were in charge of registration, and Mrs. Milley and Mrs. Empey received the ladies.

The regional vice-president, Mrs. Leslie Finkle, presided at both sessions and Mrs. Harold Detlor was secretary for the meeting.

The morning worship service was in charge of the West Huntingdon United Church, and Mrs. Clayton Wright, the president opened the meeting with prayer. The Scripture lesson, Psalm 34, was read by Mrs. Revoy.

EXTENDS WELCOME

Miss Olive Ashe, president of Madoc United Church Women, welcomed the ladies to Trinity for their first regional meeting, telling that there were always difficulties and problems in the birth of a new organization and she felt many benefits would be derived from this meeting.

Mrs. Roy E. Vessey, of Colleys Hill United Church, conducted the Bible study using as her theme, "We can't live a faith we don't know and we can't teach a faith we don't live." She asked: "What is the purpose of Bible study? Answers given were: "To strengthen our faith," "To learn God's word," and "to have the Bible speak to us." Mrs. Vessey advised reading as many translations as possible of the Bible. The study was taken from John 1: 4; Ephesians 2: 8-10, and 2nd Corinthians 13: 5.

The minutes of the executive meeting, which had been held in Marsh Hill United Church, were read by the secretary and an invitation from Foxboro UCW to have the next regional at Foxboro was read.

Mrs. C. W. Sine of Harold, Presbyterial literature secretary, gave an interesting half hour talk on various new books and especially recommended some that would help the new organization.

GROUP COMMITTEES

The ladies divided into committee discussion groups with the following leaders, which proved informative and instructive: presidents — Mrs. R. H. Smithrim, Presbyterial president; program planning, Mrs. R. C. Ellis, Conference vice-president; co-operation in Christian Education and missionary education, Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Conference vice-president.

During the lunch hour, greetings were brought from the Belleville Presbyterial by the president, Mrs. R. H. Smithrim, of Trenton, and from the Bay of Quinte Conference by vice-presidents Mrs. Clarence Holmes and Mrs. R. C. Ellis.

The afternoon worship service was taken by Hazards United Church Women, led by Mrs. Allan Franks.

Miss Alma Moorcroft, president of Hazards U.C.W., read the Scripture from Psalms 29 and 122. Mrs. Franks gave the meditation, "Task of the Peacemaker," and closed with prayer.

Members of the Madoc U.C.W. received the offering, which was dedicated by Mrs. Emerson Hodgins of Tweed U.C.W. Mrs. Bill Matthews of Cooper U.C.W. favored with a lovely solo.

Roll call was answered by 24 organizations.

GUEST SPEAKER

Miss Ethel Horton introduced the guest speaker, Miss Millicent Howse, B.A. Miss Howse was born in Newfoundland and spent 33 years in Angola with the United Church. On her trip home she travelled by way of India to attend the World Council of Churches in New Delhi. This was the first time a World Christian conference had been held in a non-Christian country. There are only 25,000 christians in New Delhi. Members of the Russian Orthodox were present and 16 new churches joined this World Council. She spoke some time in England with the Bible societies.

The theme of Miss Howse's address was, "Jesus Christ the Light of the World".

In Angola before the light of Jesus shone, the people were undernourished, with an average life expectancy of 30 years and only a few were educated. Since the light has shone, there is the need for training schools for their own people so they can take over in agriculture and phases of church work.

Miss Howse told incidents of how she undertook to teach the African a better way of life. She thanked all for what had been done, what is being done and what will be done.

"The world needs young people to go into our underprivileged countries to be teachers and nurses. There is a terrific challenge to our young people, to go out and do work for Jesus Christ".

Mrs. F. Davidson answered questions from the question box.

The courtesy report was given by Mrs. Clifford Bailey of Colleys Hill U.C.W. and she was assisted in the preparation of this report by Mrs. Cecil Hubbell of Foxboro U.C.W. and Mrs. Stanley Sandford of Eldorado-Union U.C.W.

Mrs. Milley of Madoc pronounced the benediction.

FOWL BLOW

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP)—The Pembroke resident who thought a foul ball from a ball game had broken his window discovered it was an off-course partridge that crashed the glass. The bird, with only a small cut on its neck, was released next day.

Doctor Charges Minister With Intimidation

REGINA (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Walker may be using intimidation tactics by suggesting criminal action against any doctor who refuses service to patients after July 1, Dr. H. D. Dalgleish of Saskatoon, president of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons, said Tuesday.

Dr. Dalgleish said in a telephone interview that the attorney general should read the section of the Criminal Code on intimidation.

The attorney-general had said doctors could be convicted of criminal conspiracy and sentenced to up to five years if there was proof they had made an agreement among themselves to break their contracts.

Dr. Dalgleish said:

"No member of the profession has any intention of offending against criminal law or the disciplinary rules of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. If Mr. Walker is reported accurately, I think he is taking extreme measures in suggesting doctors be prosecuted criminally. I doubt if any responsible members of the cabinet share his view.

"His statements are irresponsible and may indeed amount to intimidation. On this point I suggest he give thought to future consideration of the Criminal Code relating to intimidation before repeating similar statements to those he allegedly made at Birch Hills."

Prince Philip Says It Is Up to People to Rescue World in Closing Parley

VANCOUVER (CP) — Delegates to the Second Commonwealth Study Conference leave for home today, carrying with them this message from Prince Philip:

"It is up to people like you to make certain that mankind retains responsibility for and control of his environment and does not let the world slide into a state of confusion merely for lack of thought or foresight."

Prince Philip, president of the conference, made this remark in a 20 - minute speech Wednesday to the 300 conference delegates at the University of British Columbia.

The 25-day travelling seminar, in search of means to aid in deciding "the human consequences of the changing industrial environment," carried delegates across Canada, into industries, communities and homes.

"Whatever use you make of the experience," Prince Philip told them, "I would only ask you one thing: To remember that wherever you are responsible for taking a decision in your industry or community, it is going to react on people."

OUTLINE PURPOSES

He said this is the crux of the conference. Growing population, greater centralization of control of industry and commerce, growing mechanization and automation made the individual less and less important.

"Progress means nothing unless people come along with it of their own free will. Efficiency is merely another name for tyranny unless it is consciously achieved by the voluntary actions of groups of human beings."

The 300 delegates from 35 Commonwealth countries ended the conference, which began May 13 in Montreal, by attending a private dinner Wednesday night.

As the Conference ended, Prince Philip, who spawned the idea and held the first conference in 1956, said it had "brought a new life and a new meaning to the Commonwealth idea to a great many people."

He said Canada had taught many lessons, perhaps the most important of which was that "a high standard of living does not insulate communities from the harsh problems of industrialization which are experienced in every part of the Commonwealth."

Today Prince Philip was to fly with many of the delegates to Toronto, from where he was to go to New York for a dinner address tonight before departure for London.

Robarts Denies Personal Income Tax Is Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts denied Wednesday that he is preparing a provincial personal income tax. He said a suggestion that such a tax is in the offing is "absolutely ridiculous."

He was commenting on a statement by Liberal candidate Paul Martin, who asked the premier to "deny that he is right now preparing a provincial personal income tax because he knows there is no hope of getting any more money from the federal government because of the financial mess at Ottawa."

Mr. Martin, a former health and welfare minister, is a candidate in Essex East.

Queen Improving

LONDON (CP) — The Queen is "steadily improving" from a cold that forced her to miss the Derby, Britain's top racing classic, Wednesday, a spokesman at Buckingham Palace said today.

Three Units of St. John Ambulance Corps Inspected

Belleville, Trenton and Picton units of the St. John Ambulance Brigades are to be combined, soon, into a single unit, the Quinte Corps. Major Ken Wilcox will command the new unit.

Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell of Toronto, Provincial Superintendent of Ambulances for the Corps, and chief inspecting officer at the No. 399 Belleville Ambulance Division annual inspection yesterday in the H. and P.E. Reg. armories held members of the corps of the coming change.

Other inspecting officers were Mrs. Dennison, of Toronto, Provincial Superintendent of Nurses and Mrs. Ashley, of Belleville, Provincial Cadet Superintendent.

Th inspection included No. 399 Belleville Ambulance Division, No. 150 Nursing Division and No. 150 Cadet Nursing Division of Belleville and No. 127 Nursing of Picton.

Air Pearce, owner of a jetliner that crashed at Paris, killing 130 persons. Drs. Hope Harvey Payne Jr. and Robert S. Payne, whose mother died in the flaming wreck at Orly Airport, said they were withdrawing their action but were retaining the right to re-file it later if they choose.

Brantford reported that 150 persons in the transport business were out of jobs.

WITHDRAW SUIT

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Two dentists have withdrawn a $250,000 federal court suit against Air France, owner of a jetliner that crashed at Paris, killing 130 persons. Drs. Hope Harvey Payne Jr. and Robert S. Payne, whose mother died in the flaming wreck at Orly Airport, said they were withdrawing their action but were retaining the right to re-file it later if they choose.

The programs began with a march past of all units, led by Superintendent Jack Hodgson of Belleville and the RCAF Bands, from Trenton. Skills were demonstrated by "casualties" who had injuries simulated by Cpl. A. J. Gardiner, of RCAF Station Trenton.

After the demonstration, awards were presented. An Award of Merit was presented to Pte. George Pritchard, of 399 Ambulance Division, Belleville, who on Aug. 7, 1961, successfully applied artificial respiration to an unconscious boy pulled from West Lake, near Wellington. The award was presented by Lt.-Col. Campbell.

Superintendent Mrs. H. W. Ried of No. 150C Cadet Nursing Division, Belleville, was presented a long service medal by Dr. Calvert of Peterborough, the area surgeon.

Twelve proficiency awards were presented to Cadets and Cadet-Nurses and a 20-year service certificate was presented to Mrs. Ruth Ferguson, and Mrs. Marguerita Anne Peters, both of Picton.

The Charter of the Trenton Branch was presented to Dr. W. A. Gray, chairman of the Trenton Branch Committee and the Charter of the Prince Edward County Branch was presented to the Secretary, A. E. Pettigrew, in the absence of Dr. Allison, chairman of the Prince Edward County Committee.

After the inspection, refreshments were served upstairs in the armories.

Cadet Officer Mrs. N. Baverstock watches as Cadet Nurse Jean Frechette of No. 150-C Cadet Nursing Division of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, adjusts a bed table for Mary Ellen Noble, a simulated casualty in last night's St. John Ambulance Brigade inspection.

Railways Report Booming Business in Freight Since Teamsters Went on Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Railways reported booming business Wednesday as a result of the Teamster's strike and a trucking company asked the Ontario Labor Relations Board to declare the strike illegal.

Both Canadian National Railways and Canadian Pacific Railway credited the strike by 7,200 Ontario truckers with bringing them increased freight business.

The CPR reports that small freight shipments through Toronto hape increased 500 per cent. Both railways are dispatching extra equipment from across the country to meet the Ontario need.

Settlement of the 11-day walkout seemed distant as the breach between union demands and company offers widened.

Argosy Carriers Limited of London, one of 65 trucking companies idled, asked the labor relations board to declare the strike illegal and applied for an injunction against pickets.

Argosy claims the Teamsters went on strike while on assigned jobs during working hours although no collective agreement between the company and any trade union was in effect at the time.

TEAMSTERS TO MEET

Leaders of Teamster locals in Hamilton, Windsor, London, Kingston and Toronto were to meet here to arrange the terms they would demand for a settlement.

Tuesday, Toronto local 938 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters proposed a 72-cent-Employment Service office in sa-hour package as the basis of the strike. Trucking companies have offered a 24½ cent increase.

Ben Lessard, president of London's Local 141 said three firms have signed interim agreements with the local "to get their trucks back on the road." He predicted others would follow.

Spickett Transport company, London, M. F. Jones Transport Limites of St. Thomas and Canadian Freightways of Windsor granted truckers a wage increase to $2.13 from $1.78, he said.

Mr. Lessard said the truckers will resume work immediately and that the wage increase will be adjusted to meet the terms of the province-wide settlement.

LAYOFFS GROW

Meanwhile, the strike caused another 25 men to be laid off in Brantford. Victoria Transport, a non-union trucking firm, closed operations Wednesday, following a demonstration by 35 pickets.

The demonstration was orderly but a spokesman for the firm said it will close down for the safety of the drivers and the equipment. Twenty-five staff members will be out of work.

Earlier 12 employees at Copeland Refrigeration and another at Sterling Action and Keyway laid off because of the strike. Both are Brantford firms.

Before Wednesday's layoff at Victoria Transport, the National

Turn About Is Fair Play, City Kids Go to Country, Country Kids Come Here

Turn about is fair play!

And that is exactly what it was for approximately 125 public school children in Belleville and vicinity yesterday, as tours were taken in the interests of their education.

City children—grade VII students at Queen Victoria School, went to the country and enjoyed the day inspecting the various projects of the Moira River Conservation Authority.

And junior students at the Douglas Atkins composite school in Thurlow township came to the city where they got an insight into the complexities of transportation and communications, as they visited the local Canadian National Railways.

ENJOY FULL DAY

For the Queen Victoria students it was an all-day affair with two bus loads leaving in the morning to visit a farm pond north of the village and Authority reforestation projects in the Halloway district, before stopping at the Col. Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area at Thomasburg for the noon-day lunch.

Then following lunch they divided into groups for class projects at the conservation area and later visited more reforestation projects in the Actinolite Area before winding up the day with a visit to the O'Hara Mill Conservation Area north of Madoc.

The day's outing was sponsored by the school Home and School Association members who, as well as arranging for the buses, provided the noon lunch of hot dogs, milk and ice cream.

It was a fine day's outing for the children who waded in the Moira, caught a few fish and captured polliwogs.

They viewed samples of the beaver's woodcutting ability, chased a porcupine up a tree and even ran across a few bloodsuckers while wading in the river.

Moira Conservation Authority Fieldman Michael Chubb headed up the conservation tour for Queen Victoria School students. He addressed the students on the various aspects of conservation work, stressing the importance of everyone being conservation conscious if the resources of the nation were to be preserved.

VISIT RAILROAD

At the same time in the city Grade 7 to 4 from the Douglas R. Atkins School were learning about railroading.

They toured the station, went through the tele - communications building and visited the yard office where big IBM machines automatically keep track of all freight cars and their contents while they are traveling through the area.

Later they went over to what remains of the CNR roundhouse and saw engine maintenance men servicing the big road diesels which haul long freights and passenger trains across the province.

They even inspected the engine cabs with their myriads of controls. A few of the more venturesome had the privilege of sounding the raucus diesel horn.

Rideau Area Manager J. A. Pollock arranged the tour for the visiting school children while department heads conducted the children along the tour.

Mining King Has Hot Horse

'Gold In Them Thar Heels'

TORONTO (CP) — Mining magnate Jim Boylen has the true prospector's philosophy: The next claim staked, the next hole drilled, may reveal the pot of gold.

Prospector Boylen hit it many times in more than 30 years of tapping rocks and drilling holes. Now as horse owner Boylen and a comparative rookie in thoroughbred racing, is reaching for another plateau in the 102rd running of the Queen's Plate with King Gorm. The $75,000 classic for Canada-bred three-year-olds will be raced with the Queen Mother looking on from the royal box at the swank $15,000,000 Woodbine track on Saturday June 16. Post time is 6:06 p.m.

Some experts figure Boylen can strike it rich with King Gorm, an expensive colt who had an inconspicuous season at the races in 1961. This year the colt developed rapidly and it's likely he'll start first or second choice in North America's oldest continuously - run stakes race.

PAID $35,000

Boylen, proprietor of the 103-acre Lanson Farms in suburban Malton, bought King Gorm for $35,000 at the 1960 private yearling sales conducted by jockey club chairman E. P. Taylor. At times last year, Boylen probably figured he had put his money on the wrong horse.

It probably made him think back to 1956 when he bought a yearling by name of Soul of Honour for $45,000. That one didn't even pay for his keep.

King Gorm, by Never Say Die out of White Lodge, has proved himself this season. He has started three times and was beaten only once—by Sun Dan, another plate eligible, and owned by W. J. Farr of Weston, Ont.

Cup Show Offered CBC For Free

TORONTO (CP) — CFTO-TV, Toronto's private television station, and CTV Television Network Limited, today announced that the Grey Cup football telecast will be offered to the full CBC network free of charge.

John Bassett, chairman of CFTO-TV, said in an interview his station's broadcast of the game—to be played in Toronto Saturday, Dec. 1—will be offered without charge to the CBC to carry the spectacle to the greatest possible number of fans across the country.

CFTO-TV and the network of which it is a member purchased exclusive TV rights to the game from the Canadian Football League last month for $175,000.

Bassett, also chairman of Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference, said he and Spencer Caldwell, CTV president, have "agreed to supply the Grey Cup game feed to CBC free for transmission on the entire CBC network coast to coast, including those areas where there are independent stations of the CTV network."

The CTV network has eight stations—in Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver.

In areas covered by both CTV and CBC, both could carry the game.

May Be New Coach

Rangers Grab Olmstead

MONTREAL (CP) — The coach-hunting New York Rangers snapped up Bert Olmstead in the National Hockey League draft Wednesday and the lanky wheat farmer from Sceptre, Sask., immediately became a prime candidate for the job vacated by Doug Harvey.

"We must seriously consider Olmstead for the position because of his leadership qualities," said Muzz Patrick, New York's general manager. "We need a take-charge guy now that Harvey is gone." Harvey announced his resignation Monday.

Olmstead, 35, understood to be interested in a coaching job, is among three leading candidates for the post with the Rangers. The others are George (Red) Sullivan, a former New York centre, and coseline NHL goalie Emile (The Cat) Francis, both coaches of teams in New York's farm system.

ALSO TAKE HORVATH

The Rangers picked up Olmstead from Toronto as one of nine players grabbed up for $250,000 in Wednesday's intra-league draft. They also took Bronco Horvath from Chicago Black Hawks.

Under the system, each of the six clubs flies what is called a protected list of 18 players plus two goalies, making them immune from draft calls by other clubs. It's designed to give the league balance.

Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings, the havoots who missed the Stanley Cup playoffs last spring, each picked up three players.

The Bruins took defenceman Irvin Spencer from New York when he was dropped from the Rangers list to make room for Olmstead, defenceman Warren Godfrey from Detroit and Jean-Guy Gendron, a forward who has shuffled around the last few seasons among Boston, Montreal and New York.

In a post-draft deal, they also acquired goalie Bob Perreault from Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League in exchange for goalie Ed Chadwick and defenceman Bob Ashbee, plus the loan to the Bears of an unnamed player.

Three farmhand Weddings of NHL clubs were claimed by Detroit. They are Alex Faulkner, a Toronto chattel and native of Bishop's Falls, Nfld., who was with the AHL Rochester Americans last season; New York owned Floyd Smith from Springfield of the AHL; Barclay Plager, a Montreal-owned player from Kingston of the Eastern Professional Hockey Leag ue

The Maple Leafs took one player, Ed Van Impe, a Chicago-owned minor league defenceman, while Montreal and the Black Hawks passed on each draft call.

But in Tuesday's draft from the minor leagues the Canadiens claimed Art Jones from Portland of the Western Hockey League. A Montreal spokesman said: "We did it to protect our minor league interests." He did not elaborate.

After Wednesday's draft meeting, the AHL Quebec Aces announced the purchase of forward Bob Conroy from Chicago's AHL Buffalo farm club.

Among the more prominent players not on the NHL protected lists and left unclaimed were: Borje's Dick Meissner and Jerry Toppazzini; Vic Stasiuk of Detroit and Larry Hillman of Toronto. They remain with their respective clubs.

Pitching—Ralph Terry, Yankees, posted first shutout of year, allowing only four hits, striking out 10 and retiring 18 men in order at one stretch in 5-0 victory over Cleveland that sent New York into American League lead.

Batting—Joe Hicks, Senators, tripled and scored first run in seventh inning, then provided margin for 2-1 victory over Baltimore with ninth - inning homer.

Wide Open Field at Mosport

ORONO, Ont. (CP)—A wide-open field is in prospect for Saturday's 200-mile international sports car race at Mosport Park, first major event of the 1962 season.

United States and European aces will meet top Canadian drivers in the event organized by the Canadian Racing Drivers Association.

The inaugural 200 last year was won by Stirling Moss of England and drew more than 30,000 to the two-mile track and its parklike surroundings about 80 miles east of Toronto.

Mosa, recuperating from an Easter weekend crash at Goodwood, won't be around to defend his title but his personal Ferrari-engined Ferrari is being driven by Innes Ireland of England.

The big American names include Rodger Ward of Indianapolis, winner of this year's Memorial Day 500-mile classic. But Indianapolis features cars specially constructed for the left hand turns of the oval track and it remains to be seen how Ward will take to a sports car on the tricky, hill-and-dale course at Mosport. He will drive a Buick-powered Cooper Monaco.

Liberal Policies Arouse Greater Voter Interest

INCREASING INTEREST — A group of Tweed residents gather around Robert Temple, Hastings South's Liberal candidate, during a recent visit to that village to hear his views and his party's answers on some of the problems which Canadians are experiencing today. Included in the above picture are Jack Lemke, Leo O'Coin, Louis Genore and Moser Generoux.

Everywhere that Robert Temple, Liberal candidate for Hastings South, has been travelling in this riding he has been finding more and more people interested in the Liberal Party's positive approach to the issues and problems which face Canadians today.

There is widespread interest in the devalued Canadian dollar, the $3,000,000,000 Canadian national debt, the 500,000 people who are unemployed and in the apparent unconcern of Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his party about these problems, the candidate noted.

At Mr. Martin mentioned in his address yesterday, the Prime Minister appears to favor a campaign of heaping abuse on personalities who are now trying to do their best to meet these problems rather than to say what he and his party expect to do, or if they expect to do anything, about them, Mr. Temple commented.

The Liberals favor a positive approach to these problems and offer a plan of action in every field where they feel the Conservative government has mismanaged the affairs of Canada, the Liberal standard-bearer said.

In education, so essential to any Canadian young person today and tomorrow, the Liberals will put into action a plan where 10,000 four-year scholarships are available to deserving students each year to further their education at the college or university level.

There will also be a student loan fund so that no deserving student need miss a higher education because of financial problems. An extension of the family allowance plan up to the age of 18 will also assist those unable to carry on to a university level to complete their education at a lower level, he said.

CANDO, the Canadian Development Organization, designed to expand job-training for Canadians to fill the opening for semi-skilled and skilled labor by training the unemployed for new jobs, will be set up and made available, at the request of the provinces, to help reduce unemployment, he advised.

The promotion of freer trade with the countries of the Free World, especially Great Britain, the United States and the European Common Market, will help to ensure increased production and employment for Canadians, he said.

Tax incentivei which will be provided for both new companies and for established firms which wish to expand, Mr. Temple states. The Liberals strongly feel that priority in this respect should and shall be given to industry in areas where new job opportunities are most needed and to industries which increase their export markets.

These are but a few of the answers which Canadians throughout the riding of Hastings South are receiving when they ask Mr. Temple what the Liberals propose to do about a problem. Many are finding these answers satisfactory and, in some instances, the only answers.

Despite the increasing tempo of the election campaign Mr. Temple will continue to be available throughout the riding to discuss matters of either local or national importance with the people he desires to actively represent as a member of the Pearson team in Ottawa after June 18th.

Rally To Win 9-5

Bobcats Defeat Flyers

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Spotting the opposition a 3-0 lead in the first inning, the Bobcats fought back to down the RCAF Flyers 9-5 in Trenton last night and take over second place in the B. and D. softball league with the win.

The Cats play host to Robbins Juniors in an 8.00-p.m. fixture at the Fairgrounds tonight.

The Flyers scored three runs on as many walks and two errors in the first inning against surprise starter Gord St. Louis. St. Louis was given the Bobcats' pitching chore when Bobby Green arrived late for the game.

St. Louis got one run back in the second when he singled following a walk. The Tabbies tied it 3-3 in the fourth on a walk, Smrke's sacrifice, Doug Murray's double and another RBI single by St. Louis.

Bobby Green took over the winners' mound duties when the first two Flyers drew walks to open the bottom of the fourth. Green gave up three hits over the rest of the game, fanning four and walking two, to get the win. St. Louis allowed four hits and passed five in his three inning plus.

Pat Gilmour doubled home the Bobcats' lead runs in the fifth following a walk and an error. The winners made it 9-3 in the sixth on a walk, Green's single, a throwing error and Wright's double, chased starter Howie Cole to the showers in the process.

Don Cole tripled and scored on Kennedy's grounder in the seventh while Corscadden walked and rode home on McDonald's single for the final RCAF run.

Howie Cole was the losing pitcher, lagged for seven of the winners' eight hits in six innings plus. He whiffed five and walked four. Mike Mahaffinik hurled well in relief, striking out five while yielding one.

St. Louis was the only Bobcat with more than one hit, getting two singles and driving in two runs in as many trys. Pat Gilmour, Doug Murray and Al Wright, who played a strong game at shortstop, each collected a key double while Bob Green, Floyd Crawford and Frank "Shiner" Murray had singles.

Donnie Cole tripled for RCAF while singles went to "Corky" Corscadden, Roger Drake, Doug Alexander, Harold "Dusty" McDonald, Sam Mann and Howie Cole.

Centre fielder Billy Mitts of the Flyers was thrown out of the game by plate umpire Ted Peabay for protesting a called third strike.

Writers Can Do Whole Show Around Given Line

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—There's a television tale, possibly untrustworthy, about a producer who urged a mystery writers on a production line basis.

His secret was to have his secretary hand him, every few days, three different objects—a fish, a marble and a burned-out flashlight bulb, for example. Then he would proceed to rip off a story around these "clues."

Television through the seasons has streamlined the "instant plot" technique to the point where—at least from this viewer's observation post—the script writers can and do turn out their daily quota by writing a whole show around a given line of dialogue.

It's really not hard. Just try some of the following tried, true and tired lines yourself—You may discover you, too, have a future as a TV author:

"I hope you're right in your diagnosis, doctor. But even if we do operate now, it will be touch and go."

"It doesn't, matter what he has done, lieutenant. He is entitled to the very best defence we can give him."

"Staying in town long, friend? We don't cotton to strangers here much."

"All right. Sure I was at the apartment—and I took my gun. But he was already dead when I got there."

Really, there's nothing to it.

Cleroux Wins Over Simpson

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—Bob Cleroux, his heavyweight title stalled by last April's setback by Zora Folley, scored a one-round knockout Wednesday night over Jimmy Simpson of Birmingham, Ala.

Recommended tonight:

Brenner, CBS, 9-9:30 EDT—Summer rerun of a police story with Edward Binns and James Broderick.

Fullmer, Pender In August

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Promoter Norm Rothschild said Wednesday night the title fight between Gene Fullmer and Paul Pender, who both claim the middleweight championship, has been rescheduled for Aug. 28 at Bozeman, Mont.

"The guarantee of $113,750 to each fighter still stands," Rothschild said. "That was what they signed for on the original June 9 date at Bozeman and that's what they'll get. I have not yet completed negotiations for the television and radio rights but I am very close."

The June 9 date fell through when Rothschild couldn't get a sponsor to put up enough money.

Rothschild made the announcement shortly after the National Boxing Association ordered Fullmer, NBA-recognized champion, to defend his title by Aug. 1 or face possible loss of his crown.

Pender is recognized as world champion by New York, Massachusetts and Europe.

K. Douglas Reports Golden Lining for Movie Spartacus

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Those who despair over the monumental costs of Cleopatra and Mutiny on the Bounty may find some solace in the Spartacus record.

The gladiators-and-slave epic was termed Universal's folly when Kirk Douglas was producing and starring in it. The bill kept mounting with retakes and retakes of the retakes until the total came to a reported $11,000,000. That was about the most expensive film ever made in Hollywood to that time.

Now Douglas reports a golden lining.

"By the end of this year, the picture is expected to have brought in $20,000,000," said the actor. "That will mean a good profit, and the risk is by no means milked. It's also the kind of picture you could bring back every five years or so."

By some mathematical magic ordinary films are supposed to double their cost in receipts before showing a profit. That represents the added costs of distribution, advertising, interest, etc.

LARGER THE BETTER

"But when a picture begins to cost many millions, that rule no longer prevails," Douglas explained. "You can show a profit with less than double the cost.

"However, you couldn't prove it by me. I still haven't seen a dime of my share of Spartacus! and won't until it's securely in the profit column."

Douglas is now happily working for someone else—Perlberg and Seaton in their The Hook. Does this mean he has given up the travails of being a producer?

"Not at all," he said. "I've got several projects on the fire, including another big one, Cortez and Montezuma. Only next time we'll start with a finished script. We got in trouble with Spartacus because we had to work fast to beat the version that Yul Brynner was supposed to be making."

Yanks Blank Tribe, Take Over Top

Twins Win, Tigers Split

By JIM HACKLEMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

Pitching was the key in the American League Wednesday, with star performers ranging from Ralph Terry of New York's leagueleading Yankees to Claude Osteen of Washington's last-place Senators.

Terry turned in a masterful four-hitter as the Yankees broke their first-place deadlock with Cleveland, beating the Indians 2-0. Jim Kaat pitched a five-hit shoutout for Minnesota Twins in a 3-0 victory over Kansas City Athletics that pushed the Twins into third place.

Jim Bunning went 11 strong innings in Detroit Tigers' 3-2 decision over Boot Red Sox for a split of their day-night doubleheader. The Red Sox shaded the Tigers 2-1 in the afternoon game on Billy Monbouquette's pitching and Frank Malzone's ninth-inning homer.

Ken McMicke again proved a jinx against the former club, beating White Sox 1-0. Osteen and the Senators defeated Baltimore Orioles 5-3.

STRIKES OUT 10

Terry, 7-4 and the Yanks' top winner, struck out 10 and walked two in 8 innings in order during one stretch. The lean righthander issued just one walk to Chuck Essegian with two out in the ninth inning.

The Yankees were checked on three hits from Medical Grant until the sixth frame, when back-to-back homers by Roger Maris and Bill Skowron and gave them control. They added three more runs in the eighth against Bob Allen and Garry Bell. Grant, working on the last day of a 30-day leave from the United States Army, had his first game in four decisions.

Kaat doled out five singles and allowed only one Kansas City runner as far as third base. The Twins took command early, tagging Kansas City ace Jerry Walker for eight hits and six runs before chasing him in the fourth inning.

Bob Allison drove in Minnesota's first two runs with a double and a sacrifice and George Banks whacked a two-run triple in the fourth, then scored on Don Mincher's single.

The Twins took over third spot from Detroit and climbed to within eight percentage points of Cleveland.

MAKES COMEBACK

Bunning, forced out of action last Saturday when he pulled a leg muscle running the bases, made a quick comeback with an eight-hitter in Detroit's seven-inning opener against Boston. The Tigers pushed across the winning run in the 11th inning against reliever Dick Radatz on Norm Cash's walk, Dick Mc-Aulife's single and Dick Brown's bunt. Cash also hit his 15th home run of the season and Chuck Schilling homered for Boston, tying the score 2-2 in the eighth.

McMicone's homer, with one man out in the ninth inning, settled the day game, a pitching battle between Monbouquette and Detroit's Jim Regan. Monbouquette gave up seven hits, including a homer, a double and single by Brown. While Regan allowed only five including the homer by Malzone and one by Bob Tillman.

The Angels cashed in against Herbert with one out in the last of the ninth when pinch-hitter Tom Burgess hit a screen-leader sacrifice fly after a walk to Albie Pearson, Lee Thomas' single and an intentional walk to Bob Rodgers.

Joe Hicks provided the Senators' big punch. He tripled off Robin Roberts in the seventh inning, scored the game's first run on Bob Johnson's single and hit a clinching homer in the top of the ninth against Dick Hall.

Reid Tosses Two-Hitter

Kenmors Defeat Peterborough 5-1

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Stan "Lefty" Reid made an auspicious appearance in senior baseball in the opening clash of the Lakeshore League here last night.

The brilliant South Hastings southpaw hurled a masterful two-hitter that sparked the Belleville Kenmors to a 5-1 victory over the Peterborough Fannings.

Reid gave up his two hits both singles, in the first innings and after that was invincible. Only 28 batters faced him over the rest of the nine-innings route. He whiffed seven and walked six.

The victory which marked the opening "Baseball Night in Belleville" gave the Kenmors a 2-1 record and a spot at the head of the league.

Reid was backed by some superb fielding and daring baserunning although his mates erred once behind him, once in the first and again in the ninth. They pulled off two fine double plays to nip potential rallies.

The Kenmors spotted the Petes a run in the first innings Whitesell and Asselstine's toss-off singles by Driscoll and Reid error.

Then they backed up Reid's fine mound performance with two runs in the second and fifth and an unnecessary insurance marker in the eighth.

Lefty Gerrard, a bespectacled southpaw who beat Kenmors the first time out, went the route for the Petes and gave up eight hits, all singles. He struck out 10 and walked five some of them intentional.

Gary Goyer who had two of the Kenmors hits drove in three runs, Reid and Folwell drew walks in the third innings and advanced on Asselstine's perfect sacrifice. Goyer's clean single to centre drove in both runners.

In the fifth with one out Folwell singled and Asselstine drew a walk. Again Goyer hit to the pitcher scoring Folwell. And on a perfect double steal, Asselstine romped home with Goyer going to third. Gatfield retired the next two batters.

Ricky Locke gained a one-man show in the eighth. He singled sharply to left and in a breath-stroke dive slid safely into second. He started to steal third when Gatfield uncorked a pessed ball and Peterborough— Driscoll, Mahoney, Shrubb, Hill, Whitesell, DeNoble, Foley, Ayotte, Stanlick, Gatfield.

Kenmors — Folwell, Asselstine, Goyer, Hunter, Mavety, Kenzie, Locke, Grille, Dugald, Reid.

Locke went all the way around to score.

With two out in the ninth Asselstine scored on a two-base error throw to first, but Reid retired the next man for the game and the victory.

Besides Goyer, Duffy Folwell and Larry Mavety who had two singles, Asselstine and Locke getting one each.

Some 400 fans saw the opening tilt which was preceded by a parade which included the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Band, Cadi Chapman's majorettes and clowns.

Opening ceremonies were conducted by Deputy-mayor Ben Corkes, Les Grills and Bob Temple. Mr. Grills popped up York pitch with Mr. Temple behind the plate.

Lightfoots Defeat Pepsi's 27-1

Scoring freely in every inning except the last, Lightfoot Construction whipped the Pepsi's 27-1 at CNRA Park last night.

It was strictly "no contest" from start to finish as the Lightfoots bagged six in the first and seven in each of the second and fifth frames.

The Pepsi's finally broke through for their lone run in the sixth.

Don Smith threw a five-hitter on the Lightfoot pitching rubber. He struck out six and walked two.

The Pepsi's paraded Al Wager, Ryan, Gary Whalen and Wood to the hill and among them gave up 15 hits while the team committed eight errors. They had nary a strikeout but issued no less than 19 walks.

Don Smith hit a triple, double and two singles. Doug Moreau a home run and two singles and Tom Lynch four hits to the Pepsi lineup. Don Wood had a double and Ron Bamber and Rusty Garvin a single each.

Al Devey collected two of the Pepsi's base hits with Ron Bamber, Neil Donovan and Bill Bradley getting the others.

Cardinals Hurler Is Suspented

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pitcher Ray Sadecki, who earlier said he wants to be traded, was suspended indefinitely Wednesday night by St. Louis Cardinals general manager Bing Devine. Devine said Sadecki is suspended without salary when he didn't report for Wednesday night's game with Cincinnati.

"I don't see how I can pitch anymore for a guy like this," he said, referring to Cards manager Johnny Keane who slapped a $250 fine against the former bonus baby Tuesday night.

The 21-year-old Sadecki entered Tuesday night's National League game against Cincinnati in the sixth inning and was removed without getting a man out. He gave up two home runs, committed two errors, and allowed five runs.

Keane called it "the worst exhibition of effort I've seen on a major league diamond."

The Cards won 10-9 in 11 innings.

PASS UP DITMAR

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—New York Mets decided Wednesday night against signing pitcher been working out with the National League club the last two days.

Minor Softball

The Squirt division of the Belleville Minor Softball Association got swinging into action last night with five games being played in all.

A good turnout of boys attended the three Eastern games at Pine Street School with one Western division game on Queen Mary School and one at Moira Street football.

All three leagues, the Tykes, Squirts and Peewees, are now under way and all games will commence at 6.30 p.m.

In last night's games, the Steelers drowned the Lions 21-3 and the Vikings shaded the Cowboys 10-9 in the Western division. At Pine Street Peterborough Redskins topped the Packers 13-11 while the Bombers downed Eastern 28-0.

World Soccer

England Has Chance

SANTIAGO (CP) — England and Yugoslavia are favored today to qualify for two remaining quarter-final berths in the world soccer championships, under way in four Chilean cities.

England can make the June 10 quarter-finals with only a tie against winless Bulgaria this afternoon in group four play at Racagua, while an upset by the Bulgarians would give the spot in the round of eight to Argentina.

In the other key game Yugoslavia will take on Colombia in group one at Arica, needing only a draw to advance. Should Colombia pull an upset, it would get the place in the quarter-finals.

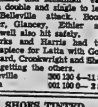
Russia, West Germany, Chile, Brazil, Czechoslovakia and Hungary already have clinched quarter - final berths. Russia nailed down first place in group one with a 3-1 victory over Uruguay Wednesday, West Germany won first place in group two at Santiago by blanking Chile 2-0, Brazil moved to the lead in group three at Vina Del Mar with a 2-1 decision against Spain and Hungary climbed first in Group Four, playing a scoreless tie with Argentina.

South Hastings Baseball League

Belleville Ellis Printers defeated Latta 11-8 on the latter's diamond last night.

The visitors took a 3-0 lead in the first and never looked back, adding another trio in the fifth and four in the seventh.

Bobby Boyle pitched the victory, allowing eight hits, striking out eight and walking three.



Reid started with relief help from Ray for Latta. They faced three while passing half a dozen. They allowed eight hits.

Tomaso and Mullins each hit a double and single to lead the Bellevilles attack. Boomhower, Glancey, Zehler and Rathwell also hit safely.

Parks and Harris had two hits apiece for Latta with Gow, Hazzard, Crookwright and Shannon getting the others.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tommy Jaques of Chatham, is an optimist of the first water. Mr. Jaques, whose name was seldom if ever mentioned in the halcyon gold-rush days of the senior "A" hockey Klondike, came up with an idea the other day.

He wants senior hockey back into the playing fold and would encourage it by reducing the number of teams, thereby, he says, increasing the number of players of senior calibre available, and who would be paid salaries.

This senior "mousetrap" failed to bring about hockey managers beating a path to the door of the Jaques hacienda. In fact the Jaques plan was not supposed to be given the news outlets before OHA president Lloyd Pollock of Windsor called a senior meeting.

This, Mr. Pollock has done, and if you read yesterday's sports' pages you would have noted where Mr. Pollock stated there would be no change in the senior share-the-wealth program.

All of which would seem to indicate that the OHA prexy would have no part of the pay-as-you-play system, rather "play-now-and-get-paid-later."

The Jaques system, it appears to this corner, would bring about fewer teams, more players, a longer schedule, and limited salaries. This is an old lyric set to a slightly different tune.

The optimistic Mr. Jaques did not lay out any plans to beguile the once-faithful into arenas.

What he did say was "I am against all players receiving the same amount of money. There must be degrees and a control of salaries, these, of course, coming under the league. Chatham and Windsor should be permitted to pay salaries."

Mr. Jaques' script is a touched-up re-run of the 1958-59 senior hockey whodunit which died an unnatural death with the managerial conspirators all in on the kill.

The greater majority of the senior "A" mourners did not linger long after the demise of the golden goose. They fled to the greener pastures of American league where the take is reported to be as good if not better than the good old days before senior hockey laid its egg.

It was a double tragedy. When senior "A" hockey died it took along with it the fan interest that helped pay the shot in the golden years. Last year's "senior" setup in Western Ontario was a flop from the box-office point of view—and managers know it only too well.

Out in the wild and woolly west it might be different. Out there where the "gold of the night meant pay of the day," the brand of senior hockey appears much better than that which paraded its warts down east last season. But even the west had its fan troubles, according to reports.

That platinum-thatched Methuselah from down Stratford way hits the nail on the head. He wonders, he says, if Jaques was around when the senior "A" series was flourishing, at least from fan appeal. Despite bumper crowds, he says, few clubs made money. In fact the majority finished the season using plenty of red ink.

It is evident that sports-minded people just don't go for senior hockey as they did at one time—and that could apply to other "amateur" sports as well.

"Those of us," he writes, "who flocked to games years ago when players were paid as much as $200 a week, know only too well what happened in senior hockey, and in some cases senior baseball. Clubs were bidding against each other for players who were bartering their services for the highest bid and this eventually meant the death of all clubs."

"It wasn't the fault of the players, because, under similar circumstances what player, in most cases, wouldn't sign with the club offering the best salary? As for the league controlling salaries, that is a huge joke. It just can't be done." Amen, brother.

Position Said Precarious

Eastern Pros Ready For Graveyard?

MONTREAL (CP) — The Eastern Professional Hockey League, which came into being three seasons ago with the demise of the Quebec League, is in a precarious position.

The problem is whether there will be continued support from National League clubs that have been operating farms in the EPHL.

Most clubs in the six-city EPHL lost money last season, some of them heavily. Hull-Ottawa Canadiens and Kingston Frontenacs were said to have broken even.

The league's difficulties came to light when NHL owners, at their annual meeting, considered a communication from the EPHL which said in effect that operation would be jeopardized unless parent clubs made known their position in advance. The EPHL's annual meeting is scheduled for Ottawa June 16.

Some NHL clubs are reported to have suggested that the NHL itself as a group underwrite the EPHL. This suggestion was turned down, but individual NHL clubs were told they can continue their separate operations in the EPHL as they see fit.

MAY PULL OUT

Some clubs were reported seriously considering pulling out and moving their EPHL farm operations elsewhere, possible to the Western League.

John Urie of Ottawa, EPHL president, said he had not been officially advised of any action taken by the NHL owners.

The situation is expected to be explored further before the EPHL meets in Ottawa.

The EPHL has also been considering shifts in franchises. Other cities interested are reported to be Winnipeg, Windsor and London. There have also been reports of a franchise going to Syracuse, N.Y.

Three EPHL clubs have been

PLAY BALL—Robert Temple, Lee E. Grills and Deputy Mayor Ben Corke are seen as they were about to take part in official opening ceremonies for the local senior baseball season at the Fairgrounds last night.

100-per-cent controlled by NHL Ottawa-Hull by Montreal Canadiens, Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers by New York Rangers and Kingston by Boston Bruins.

Detroit Red Wings have been closely associated with Sudbury Wolves, but without full control. Chicago Black Hawks have had an interest in Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds.

Toronto Maple Leafs have had no interest in any EPHL farm team, and North Bay Trappers whereas locally - owned clubs have been helped by the five other NHL clubs.

Except for financial losses by NHL parent clubs, some hockey observers feel there is a geographical advantage in the EPHL farm setup.

They say shifts of players between the two leagues can be made quickly and at less expense than from Western Canada. They also say that the controlling club can summon farmhands at any time, elsewhere are prone to protest about their players being called up suddenly to the major league.

The Giants scored single markers in the second, third and fourth frames with the Twins getting one in the second and two in the third to send the game into the fifth all tied up at 3-3.

BARILKO-HUDSON

vision, said the plane plowed a hole eight feet wide and three feet deep when it went down. The wings had been sheared off and pieces were found partly hidden in shrubbery.

ANNOUNCES DISCOVERY

Announcement of the discovery was made by Lands and Forests Minister J. W. Spooner, Deputy Minister Alex. MacDougall, said relatives of the men were notified immediately.

First hint of the mystery was nearing an end came last Thursday, when helicopter pilot Gary Fields first sighted the gleaming wreckage.

No landing was made at the time. But after the 'copter returned to its base at this community 30 miles north of Timmins, officials realized the wreck was the line of flight the Fairchild would have had it been on course in the 250-mile flight to Timmins from Rupert House.

The search, with additional helicopters and fixed wing planes, began the next day. But it was complicated by the fact no bearings were taken on the area almost directly over Barrys.

It was Fields, who found the wreck again today, ending the renewal of one of Canada's most massive air searches. The original search cost more than $250,000 and involved 1,345 flying hours by 17 RCAF aircraft.

The April before the ill-fated flight, defence-man Barilko had scored the winning goal in Toronto's 1950-51 Stanley Cup championship, their last until this year. During the summer he went to Timmins to fish with his friend, Dr. Hudson.

FLY TO NORTH

The dentist - pilot flyed his seaplane off Porcupine Lake, flew north over Cochrane and on to Kenogami Lake, about 90 miles south of James Bay. The second leg, over some of the most desolate terrain in North America, was where search planes later concentrated.

They passed the plane again at Fort George on the east coast of James Bay and apparently spent a Saturday fishing for Arctic char in Seal River.

At 1 p.m. that day they put in for gas at Fort George on the homeward flight. They unloaded, refueled, had sleeping bags and cooking equipment and asked the Hudson's Bay Company manager to keep them until next year.

It took them 3½ hours to get to Rupert's House, the plane's speed cut to 90 miles an hour by southerly headwinds.

Mrs. Eva Williams, wife of an Anglican missionary and last person to speak to Barilko, said she stood on a hill near the seaplane dock and shouted: "You must like it in this country."

"I sure do," the hockey star replied.

TORIES STUNNED

for a labor victory.

The Middlesex North West result brought shouts of jubilation from the Labor camp.

Labor leader Hazen Galtaleil described the win as "a wonderful, wonderful result."

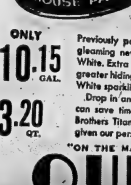
"This is one of Labor's greatest victories since the war," he declared.

Liberal Leader Jo Grimond also declared he was satisfied with his party's big increase in the share of the vote.

But perhaps the happiest participant in the election far Scottish Leut. Michael Thompson, of the Queen's Dragoon Guards, who ran as an independent only to obtain his release from the army after eight years.

Thompson polled 317 votes even though he declared before the poll that he was not campaigning and was not interested in politics.

Under British law, the armed forces must release anyone contesting an election.



Standings of the parties: Conservatives and allies 366, Labor 254, Liberals 7, Independents 1, vacant 2.

Que. Majority Predicted by Prime Minister

By ROBERT RICE

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)—Campaigning in a bilingual fashion, Prime Minister Diefenbaker Wednesday night forecast that Conservatives will win a majority of Quebec's 75 seats in the Commons.

He also had some specific ideas of particular interest to Quebec, including:

1. Legislation alone cannot achieve national unity.

2. All parts of Canada must approve the symbols of "our sovereignty"—a distinctive national flag and a Canadian anthem.

3. The distinctions between the two main races of Canada must be preserved—but not at the risk of turning them into disputes.

On his third and longest visit to Quebec province, the prime minister mixed English and French—sometimes in the same sentence—in a day-long, 200-mile tour of four ridings in the Lake St. John region of the province.

"What norn?" he said, as he shook hands with scores of Quebecers in roadside stops at small communities in the area during a jaunt that took him to St. Bruno, Roberval, Alma, North Chicoutimi, Jonquiere and this city of 35,000.

He made a plea for the re-election of Douglas Fisher in Port Arthur riding and the victory of Ted Freeman, NDP candidate in Liberal-held Fort William.

DRAWS COMPARISON

Mr. Douglas said President Kennedy is facing "the bitter hostility of the American Medical Association' in his fight to provide medical care for the aged.

He likened this to the opposition which he said the Canadian Medical Association and the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons are putting up against Saskatchewan's medical care bill.

"There two groups have gone so far as to try to prevent the recruitment of doctors from Britain willing to participate in the Saskatchewan plan," said Mr. Douglas, who as premier of Saskatchewan laid the groundwork for the plan.

But the doctors had not been able to present a united front. He knew personally of "hundreds of doctors" who supported the Saskatchewan proposal. Four of them were NDP candidates in the federal election dedicated to a national medical plan.

"Just the other day a group of doctors from Ontario courageously met before the annual commission on a health plan supporting the kind of medical care program proposed and promised by the New Democratic Party."

the Conservatives ideas today.

"Many symbols of our sovereignty remain to be secured," he said. "They can only be secured with the approval of all parts of Canada."

Medical Assoc. Under Attack By Douglas

By BEN WARD

PORT ARTUR (CP)—Tommy Douglas levelled an angry broadside at the Canadian Medical Association Wednesday night, declaring that it is interfering with the rights of the public by battling the trend towards a tax-backed Canadian medical insurance plan.

He said medical insurance is emerging as the hottest political issue in the June 18 election campaign and linked his party's battle with that of President Kenedy for his medicare bill.

The New Democratic Party leader spoke to an audience of 1,500 in Exhibition Auditorium, just a few yards from the border between the twin Lakehead cities of Port Arthur and Fort William.

It was his third standing-room-only crowd in as many nights, following up successful meetings at Glace Bay, N.S. and Peterborough, Ont.

Today Mr. Douglas flies to Saskatoon for a night meeting there.

Thompson Says Social Credit National Party

By STAN McCABE

MINNEDOSA, Man. (CP)—Robert N. Thompson, national leader of the Social Credit party, said Wednesday night that Social Credit has finally become a national party.

Mr. Thompson spoke to about 200 people in the Legion Hall in this key town of the western Manitoba riding of Marquette after making a brief stop in Portage la Prairie.

He said Social Credit' does not have the millions of dollars that the old parties do, but it has about 200 candidates in the field—twice as many as in 1957. There were candidates in every province in Canada.

"We have finally become a national party," he said to an attentive but undemonstrative audience. "We used to be just a Western party."

Mr. Thompson said that Canada has been in serious financial difficulties since 1957. PM (Prime Minister Diefenbaker) has faced a lot of problems when he took office in last year and he doesn't have the answers, Mr. Thompson said. he, ex pects the party to take 18 to 20 seats in Quebec in the June 18 election.

GIVES HIS REASON

"Socialism doesn't have any chance whatever in Quebec at this time," he said. "That's why Quebec people have turned to Social Credit."

Mr. Thompson also predicted Social Credit has a chance of taking some seats in Ontario. He said the party has twice as much strength in Manitoba as it did in 1957.

"Further west," he said, "the CCF is dead and the New Democratic Party is not able to fill the gap left by the CCF. The NDP are going to get off the ground at all."

He predicted that in his home province of Alberta Social Credit candidates will be elected in all 17 ridings.

On the subject of wheat sales to Red China, Mr. Thompson said Canada had sold less wheat in the last five years than it had in the period 1952-56 in another couple of weeks the Communist Chinese would be sending a trade mission to Canada to try to sell grain to help pay for the Canadian wheat they had bought.

"We are fighting a war," he said. "We have fallen into a trap that's laid for us. We are not fighting an atomic war, but an economic war."

CHOSEN PRESIDENT

HAMILTON (CP)—Dr. W. H. Cook, director of the division of applied biology, National Research Council, Ottawa, Wednesday was elected president of the Royal Society of Canada at the annual meeting.

Third of Fund Used to Avoid Pegging Dollar -- Pearson

By ARCH MacKENZIE

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP)—Liberal Leader Pearson said Wednesday night he accepts Prime Minister Diefenbaker's word that a $62,000,000 addition to the foreign exchange fund in May was a normal transaction.

But he said he still is puzzled about it. He denied that his previous suggestions that foreign central banks may be helping steady the dollar comprise any betrayal or are selling Canada short.

He said the government is hard pressed to hold the dollar at the current 92.5-cent mark in terms of United States currency and that the "confused, slipshod panicky way" the government went about devaluating the dollar is the greatest possible worry.

Mr. Pearson was speaking to an enthusiastic crowd of about 1,300 in this Western Ontario farm town. They were jammed into every nook and corner in the Memorial Arena.

ON LONG TOUR

The speech capped another long day whittle stopping through Western Ontario constituencies starting at Blythe and Clinton in the morning and including a late-afternoon coffee - party crowd in London and then swinging around for Pearson to shake his hand.

Today, Mr. Pearson pressed on from Sarnia to more rural points and he will end a 316-day stay in Western Ontario tonight at Windsor, flying to Halifax Friday.

Earlier this week, Mr. Pearson had suggested that foreign central banks might be helping stabilize the Canadian dollar to keep it from slipping lower than the 92.5-cent rate at which it was pegged May 2.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker denied the suggestion and the Liberal contention that since October it took $600,000,000 from the exchange fund to keep the Canadian dollar at the pegging level of 95 cents in U.S. funds.

"This is nonsense," Mr. Pearson said Wednesday night of the $600,000,000 denial. One third of the whole reserve fund had been used up in a "desperate but unsuccessful attempt to avoid devaluation."

WHY WERE THEY?

And if the $62,000,000 added to the fund in May was a normal transaction rather than foreign help, "why were the figures ever produced in a way that showed this $62,000,000 as a separate special credit?"

"The certain fact is that the exchange has been given special support in May to the extent of $62,000,000," Mr. Pearson said. Now he had had hard words from both Mr. Diefenbaker and Finance Minister Fleming. But if, as the government contended, the 92.5-cent devaluation was a good idea, why had the government waited four months before doing it and spending $600,000,000 during those months to keep up the rate?

"The last thing I would want to do is to sell Canada short and I've served the country all my life," Mr. Pearson said amid a loud burst of applause. "You don't sell the country short when you expose difficulties in hopes the government of the day will do something about them."

"Jest a Second"

"Every time we switch on we get this effect!"

New Pastor Inducted Into Pastorate of Parkdale Baptist

Parkdale Baptist Church was filled to capacity last Sunday morning when the members and friends welcomed the new pastor, Mr. Michael Twilley, formerly an assistant pastor of Dorcas Park Baptist Church in Toronto.

MICHAEL TWILLEY

The induction service was conducted by the former pastor, the Rev. Robert Snyder, with the deacons of the church participating. Deacon Harold Robinson gave a resume of the growth of Parkdale Baptist Church since its beginning seven years ago. Mr. Robinson said that he felt that the efforts of the former pastor, Mr. Snyder, had contributed in a large degree to the progress and growth of the church and Sunday School. Last Sunday the attendance at Sunday School was 160.

ACT OF DEDICATION

A prayer of dedication was offered by Mr. Snyder, during which time the deacons laid their hands on Mr. Twilley's shoulder as a token of their acceptance of him as their pastor.

Mr. Twilley conducted the worship service, taking his message from Mark 10, in which the story of blind Bartimaeus is told. Bartimaeus cast away his garment, his filthy rags which were hindering him, and went to Jesus, who said unto him: "Go thy way; thy faith hath made thee whole." He followed Jesus in the way.

So it is with all who would follow Him; one must cast off his or her filthy rags of sin and self-righteousness, and with nothing to hinder, must come to Jesus who will cleanse and open the eyes of understanding.

The service concluded with the singing of a hymn and the benediction by the pastor.

At Robervai he said national unity cannot exist unless there is general acceptance of these "symbols of our sovereignty" in all provinces. Later, at Chicoutimi, he said a true national spirit cannot be developed by legislation alone.

Leaders of the New Democratic and Social Credit parties dealt with the health insurance issue, on which they are poles apart.

NDP chieftain T. C. Douglas said it is a "burning social need in Canada" and accused the Progressive Conservatives of siding with the Canadian Medical Association in opposition to it.

Social Credit Leader Robert N. Thompson said the "true issue" of the election is being fought in Saskatchewan, where the provincial government and doctors are at loggerheads over a provincial health plan scheduled to start July 1.

"The people of Saskatchewan are helping to determine whether Canada will sink even farther into planned welfare economy or decide on a policy of individual enterprise and buoyant economic growth," he said at Minnedosa, Man.

Today Prime Minister Diefenbaker takes an afternoon off from campaigning to meet the Governor Mother on her arrival at Montreal's Dorval airport for a 10-day visit to Montreal and Ottawa. He will go on to Quebec City for an evening rally.

Mr. Pearson, on his fourth consecutive day in southwestern Ontario, swings through Lambton, Kent and Essex counties to an evening meeting at Windsor.

The two other leaders head into Saskatchewan.

Wednesday saw the detainment of voting in one constituency—Stormont in Ontario—until July 16 because of the death of Liberal candidate Albert Lavigne.

Today, at 8 a.m. local standard time, the deadline passed for candidates elsewhere to withdraw from the election, now only 11 days off. Before today a withdrawing candidate could get his name off the ballot or else have his withdrawal officially noted on polling station signs.

DOLLAR DEVALUATION

The dollar devaluation has been given as the reason for announced increases in gasoline prices and trans-ocean air fares, and for a Toronto bakery's prediction of higher bread prices.

Trade Minister Hees told a Springhill, N.S., audience Wednesday that any Canadian producer increasing his prices on those grounds was using a false excuse for doing what he obviously wanted to do anyway.

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke for 12 minutes at Jonquiere, mostly in French, about national unity.

Transport Minister Balcer was the main speaker and both he and Mr. Diefenbaker predicted a Conservative victory in Quebec, where the party won 50 of 75 seats in the 1958 election.

Former Liberal health minister Paul Martin, at Canamoque, Ont., promised a farm policy that would help all Canadian farmers and termed the present government "the most incompetent in the history of Canada."

Liberal campaign chairman Walter Gordon, seeking election in Toronto Davenport, said there that one of the campaign issues is the problem of stopping the Canadian dollar from further decreases in value.

British Columbia Premier Bennet, speaking at Halifax, said "Canadians need a 90-cent dollar, not a 85-cent dollar." A Social Credit government at Ottawa would devalue the dollar further "from a position of strength, not from a position of weakness."

Two B.C. cabinet ministers, Attorney-General Bonner and Education Minister Peterson, spoke at different points in Quebec province. Mr. Bonner said Canada should not trade with Communist China or Cuba.

Health Minister Monteith, speaking at Parry Sound, promised the Conservative government would consider a new and all-out attack on chronic illness and said present federal assistance towards homes for the aged is not sufficient.

Common Market Against Nature Asserts Mr. K.

Trade With Red Bloc More Sensible, He Says

CP from Reuters-AP

MOSCOW — Soviet Premier Khrushchev Tuesday denounced the ties among the six Common Market countries as being like "an unnatural relationship between men."

He offered the comparison in a salty 30-minute speech at a three - hour reception honoring Italian Trade Minister Luigi Preti, visiting an Italian industrial exhibition in Moscow.

"Don't believe you can frighten us," Khrushchev said, waggling his fingers at the Italians in a favorite gesture. "The Common Market is the usual bogeyman, but it will disappear like smoke."

Khrushchev indicated that the Common Market nations could form a more natural trade alliance with the Communist bloc because "we can give you raw materials and you can give us industrial equipment."

SELL BUT NOT BUY

He said the present Common Market tieup was like a marriage between males because "common nations" were all highly industrialized and preferred to sell but not buy from each other.

The Common Market, Khrushchev said, was "artificial" and against nature. And even if it is registered by law nature will not be deceived.

"Because in this marriage," he said, "there are not two sexes, there are only two males." Since there are only two males, he would not go "deeper in this subject because here with us, the common nations established by law will."

MAY NOT BUDGE

Sixty-six trucking companies represented by the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau have offered an increase of 94½ cents an hour. Teamsters' demands have ranged up to a 72-cent-an-hour package requested by Toronto local 938.

No bargaining meetings were pending. A spokesman for the transport bureau said: "We have not been approached."

Earlier Thursday, more workers went on strike as freight handlers and maintenance workers of Locals 938 and 419 joined the truckers. About 1,100 men employed by 22 small Toronto firms were affected.

J. M. (Jacob) Dodds, Canadian director of the Teamsters, said the wildcat walkout was prompted by unnecessary delays.

42 DRIVERS SETTLE WITH TRUCKING FIRM

End of 11-Day Walkout Seen

TORONTO (CP) — A settlement reached yesterday between a Toronto trucking firm and 42 drivers caused some hope for an early end to the 11-day strike by 8,200 Ontario Teamsters.

M and P Transport Company, an Edmonton-owned firm with limited operations in Ontario, proposed a settlement which was ratified by members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.).

Terms of the settlement were not released pending ratification by a second company which was not named.

Wednesday, three trucking companies in London, St. Thomas and Windsor signed interim agreements with the Teamster's London Local 141. The agreement, which will be made to conform with a province-wide settlement, increased pay to $2.13 an hour from $1.78.

Price of Bread Will Increase Despite Warning

TORONTO (CP)—A spokesman for Metropolitan Toronto bakers said Thursday that the price of bread definitely will go up, regardless of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's warning Thursday against doing so.

"I would love to talk to Mr. Diefenbaker in my shop and show him my costs," said Guenther Gundlach, president of the Associated Retail Bakers of Metro which represents 80 shops.

"I would love to talk in front of some of these politicians to make my position clear."

Mr. Diefenbaker said at a luncheon rally the government will act quickly against "greedy people" taking advantage of the recent dollar devaluation to raise prices. The action would be "a fight to the finish if necessary."

Lower value of the Canadian dollar in terms of U.S. funds has been blamed for price increases announced or pondered this week by bakeries, some gasoline refineries and airlines running trans-atlantic routes.

THE WEATHER

Queen Mother Arrives and Is Greeted, Bagpiped, Saluted, Gone in 20 Minutes

MONTREAL (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth flashed a brief look at Canadians Thursday and a number of them had less than a brief look at her.

The Queen Mother was whipped through a precision-timed series of events after she flew into Montreal to begin a nine-day visit.

She arrived on a regularly-scheduled DC-8 jet flight of Trans-Canada Air Lines, having a smooth trip under bright skies.

The sky was sprinkled with clouds at Montreal and she seemed "it looks a little like rain," as she stepped off the plane, adjusted her lavender-coloured hat and her world-famous smile and walked down the ramp to be greeted by the official welcoming party.

First to greet her were Governor-General and Mme. Vanier, then Prime Minister and Mrs. Diefenbaker, Quebec Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Comtois, Premier and Mrs. Jean Lesage of Quebec, and Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal and Mrs. Drapeau.

FIRE A SALUTE

A 21-gun salute was fired during the welcoming ceremonies. The spirit, raised-backed band of the Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment) of Canada bag-piped the opening bars of God Save the Queen.

The royal standard was snapped open on its temporary flagstaff.

Then Queen Mother quickly inspected the 100-man guard of honour drawn from 2nd Battalion, her regiment, She is colonel-in-chief of the regiment and is to present it with new colors Saturday.

About 2,000 people lined the balcony of Montreal's airport terminal building for the ceremony which lasted only about 20 minutes.

Several flags—Union Jacks, Red Ensigns, and the Quebec provincial fleur-de-lis — hung along the Queen Mother's route to the city.

At the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, the Queen Mother's procession ducked into an underground passageway leading to the hotel's parking entrance, where the usual red carpet awaited. She went straight to the elevators taking her to the royal suite on the 20th floor.

13 East Germans Seize Ship, Brave Bullets, Flee to West

CP from AP-Reuters

BERLIN — Bringing a baby with them, 13 young East Germans—six of them crew members—seized a 500-ton river excursion boat after getting the captain and engineer "roaring drunk" and escaped to freedom early today under a hail of machine-gun bullets.

The refugees told police the captain and engineer, both "old Communists," were locked by the six crew members in a cabin after they became heavily intoxicated during a party that was part of a weekend plan.

Two of the crew then steered the boat upriver.

The German police, firing from a watch tower, a pier, a spare boat, pumped more than 200 bullets into the fleeing vessel. Nobody was hurt.

West Berlin police fired 10 shots back at the East Germans to check their fire. The boat, the Friedrich Wolf, was riddled and there were bullet marks on buildings on the West Berlin shore.

The escapees included eight men, all employees of East Berlin's white fleet of excursion boats, two women, one a couple's five-months-old boy, East Berlin.

The adults, all about 30 or under, told police they had been planning the escape for a week.

Thursday night the crew and the group went aboard the Friedrich Wolf at her mooring beside the River Spree and began drinking with her captain and engineer at an all - night party. When the two were off guard, they jumped them and tied them up.

Under cover of darkness they spirited their women and the baby aboard. Then at dawn the crew cast the two - decker boat moving.

Racing the engines at their top speed of 16 knots, the men aboard the Friedrich Wolf suddenly swung left and rammed the boat into the entrance of the Landswehr Canal—Western territory.

The escapees, moving quickly in two and threes, a pram ashore. They flung themselves to the ground to escape the whipped bullets. When the West Berlin police fired, the vopos checked their fire.

The whole thing was over in 20 minutes.

The boat's captain and engineer were allowed to get the crew under way and return to East Berlin.

Conservative Regrets Distributing Red-Baiting Pamphlet on Douglas

WINNIPEG (CP)—A spokesman for the Progressive Conservative party issued a statement Thursday signed by Richard Seabon, Progressive Conservative representative for Manitoba legislature, saying he is "exceedingly sorry" if he has caused offence to "anyone people" in connection with the distribution of a pamphlet.

Mr. Seabon told a reporter the pamphlet, issued by an organization known as the Canadian Intelligence Service, has been distributed only to a small group of his intimate supporters.

The pamphlet asserted that T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, and Liberal candidate Paul Martin, Jr., former minister of health, had received "Communist - masterminded" youth training in Moscow in 1936. Attached was a letter on Mr. Seabon's stationery which read:

"I am enclosing a pamphlet about the New Democratic Party that I have just received from the Canadian Intelligence Service in Ontario. If this information is correct, I feel it is a duty to perform by alerting our friends and neighbors and avowed."

making sure that they vote on election day, June 18.

The Canadian Intelligence Service is operated by Ron Gostick of Fisherton, Ont., and issues anti-Communist literature.

The explosive statement, signed by Mr. Seabon, said the pamphlet was not intended to "give any kind of support" to the party's candidate in Winnipeg North Centre, Mr. Seabon added.

"More recently I have learned with regret that a large part of many of the views held by the Canadian Intelligence Service are incompatible with the Canadian Bill of Rights. These views I do not endorse and cannot subscribe to."

At Saskatoon, Mr. Douglas said he attended the 1936 World Youth Congress along with representatives of the Liberal and Young Conservatives. He added that many other Canadian groups were represented, including the Roman Catholic and some Protestant churches.

"This is ridiculous," he said of the letter. "The motive was obvious—to link the New Democratic party with Communists who they have so firmly disowned."

Ontario Appeal Court Will Decide on Feeley Talking

TORONTO (CP) — If Vincent Feeley is going to sing loudly enough to suit Ontario's royal commission on crime, the provincial Court of Appeal will have to call the tune.

The gambling chief's reluctance to deliver the desired goods—particularly bank-book notes as represented by his tax returns—caused the commission counsel on behalf of the conductor and the much-berated Feeley foundation to still pending developments.

The high court is to rule on two questions the commission chairman has to make the laconic gambler talk, particularly in view that would incriminate him and also in giving details on his income tax reports.
